

bio-photography

2/9/83

John, I'm enclosing nine B/W prints and two transparencies - which I did not have time to convert to B/W. (I'm seldom satisfied with the B/W negs that I make from Kodachromes. If you believe you can do better, I'll send the transparencies.)

A yellow-bellied sapsucker has been an irregular customer at our suet. I've tried a couple of color shots - not yet processed. If you greatly need this species - It's a female, looking rather drab in her winter plumage. → give me a ring. See numbers below.

The two odd-size prints - wren and titmouse - look a bit shop worn; I failed to find the negatives.

I'm happy to know you are closing in on this project.

Dick T.

6 April