

A TRIBUTE

THEY HIT the line—and they hit it hard—
And they ran the ends of fame,
They passed and kicked to the distant goal,
When they starred in the college game.

But they heard the bugles of war that called
To a rougher and tougher test,
And now they sleep under foreign sod,
The stars who have earned their rest.

They played the game in the good old way
That led to the bayonet's thrust.
They led the charge to the final goal
Which covers their golden dust.

In Memoriam

These Americans—who trained for life here at Iowa State—gave their lives that we here today might live. Heroes? Not to themselves. They were just Tom, Dick, Spike, or Jim—lettermen here, fighters all the time, but mainly they were Americans:

First Coach of The Original Cyclones

GLENN SCOBEY "POP" WARNER

—coach of the original Cyclones during 1895 and 1896, the great Warner was only then beginning to evolve the strategy which forever will make his name synonymous with gridiron tactics. In fact it was actually his first coaching job. His previous experience had been in 1894 when as captain and guard at Cornell University he worked out a number of successful plays for his team.

"STRUCK BY CYCLONE" "IT COMES FROM IOWA AND DEVASTATES EVANSTON TOWN"

"Team of Eleven Husky Footballers from the Iowa Agricultural College Descends Upon the Northwestern University Kickers and Leaves Nothing but Touchdowns and Goals in Its Wake—Score 36 to 0.

"Northwestern might as well have tried to play football with an Iowa Cyclone as with the Iowa Team it met yesterday. At the end of fifty minutes' play the big husky farmers from Iowa's Agricultural College had rolled up 36 points, while the 15-yard line was the nearest Northwestern got to Iowa's goal.

"The interference of the team from the West was almost perfect and the Northwestern men were hurled aside at will and great holes made through which the Iowa backs poured."

That, in brief, is the account of the game which gave the athletic teams of Iowa State College the nickname by which they are known from coast to coast.

Coach of the "Original Cyclones" was Glenn Scobey Warner, a great linesman at Cornell University. He had not yet earned his "Pop" title but even in this first year of coaching he was serving warnings of the tactical skill that was to lift his name to the highest pinnacle of the football world.

As was the practice in that day, Warner was head coach at the University of Georgia but for the last month of summer and the first month of fall he would tutor the football team in Ames. And, so legend has it, he would even play with the Cyclones on occasion.

His first team at Iowa State, with Bert German as star back and coach when Warner reported to Georgia, won four and lost two games. His 1896 team won five and lost two games.

Warner left both Iowa State and Georgia then to return to his alma mater at Cornell and remained there until 1907 when he transferred to the Carlisle Indian School for a five-year stint. Followed three more years at Cornell and back to Carlisle for seven years. It was during his second stay at Carlisle that he reached national stature.

At Carlisle he developed Jim Thorpe, by many considered to be the greatest athlete ever developed in this nation. Another of his star pupils was Chief Bender, the great pitcher of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Warner sent his teams against all comers in those days and was so consistent a winner that schools all over the country were trying to lure him away from his job. Finally he took the offer from the University of Pittsburgh to lead the Panthers to national recognition.

At Pitt he perfected his "razzle dazzle" style of football to the point that the famed "Warner" system was spoken of in hushed tones as Thespians would use to reverence Shakespeare. He turned out the "single wing" offensive formation so universally used today. He later introduced the "double wing" and at one time experimented with what he called the triple wing. But that was at Stanford and many coastal news men are still trying to figure out if the wily Warner was having a bit of a joke at their expense.

In 1922 he left Pitt and went to Stanford where the second of his all-time great football stars was developed—Ernie Nevers. Here it was that the double wing back formation was sprung on an unsuspecting football world. He invented and improvised the unbalanced line, reverses and double reverses and the screen pass that became so effective the rules committee was the only thing to stop it.

Following the 1932 season Warner left Stanford and began a five year contract at Temple University. During the following six years his magic touch did for the Owls what it had done for every team he coached and national limelight was focused on the Pennsylvania team.

Failing health caused Warner to retire in 1939 although he did act in an advisory capacity for San Jose in California—with the inevitable results that San Jose was to enjoy its greatest era of football success.

Today Iowa State pays homage to a great football figure—to GLENN SCOBEE "POP" WARNER!

Cyclones, Huskers in 41st Game

Will No. 41 be a repeat of No. 1? Well, as they say in the Navy—"that's a good question" for it can't be answered at the moment. But you can win a tidy sum by wagering that Cyclone fans want a repeat of that first game.

The first meeting between the two schools was the first game of intercollegiate football for Iowa State. The 1891 contest ended with a 22 to 0 victory for the Cyclones. Natural, isn't it, for Iowa State to want a repeat?

In the forty games played from 1891 through 1944 the Huskers have collected 31 victories to eight for Iowa State. The 1911 contest ended in a 6 to 6 tie.

The Cyclones have won the last two contests, 27 to 6 in 1943 and 19 to 6 in 1944.

But history doesn't win football games. No. 41 will have to be settled on the gridiron here today in the first peace-time meeting of the two schools since the fall of 1941.

Both teams need today's contest to retain any chance of winning the 1945 Big Six football championship. That means a red-hot offensive display should be offered up to Homecoming fans here today. Neither team cares for the role of "also-ran"—so all out football is the order of the day.

Nebraska Coaching Staff

This is the year the upbeat begins in Cornhuskerland. Those Crimson-clad stalwarts aren't planning any sudden right-about-face but the climb is on. The teams which have played fast and loose with Nebraska during war-time season know well their days are numbered.

Where other teams, handicapped by lack of manpower, quit intercollegiate athletics, the Huskers fought on in the tradition which for years has made Nebraska a feared and respected football giant from coast to coast. There were times when "fight" was all the school had but now Huskerland is ready to roar "Let's go, Nebraska."

This year, under the football genius of George "Potsy" Clark, Nebraska begins the rebuilding process. Under Clark's magic touch, the Huskers hope to quickly wipe out the memory of the past two years.

G.I. veterans are filtering into the Cornhusker roster, veterans who helped mold Nebraska into its gigantic pre-war stature. They will make the team tougher with each succeeding game this year and in 1946 they'll be ready.

This will be a year of rebuilding for Clark and his five assistants but it will also be a year when Nebraska will pass out a few "lumps" to unwary foes.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT ON MILITARY LEAVE

Although the burden of students was greater than ever during war times because of the increased military enrollment at Iowa State College, seven members of the Athletic Department were granted military leaves in order that they might volunteer for service of the nation.

In the order in which they joined the fight for freedom the seven men were: Major Beryl S. Taylor, Army; Lieut. Doug Kerr, Navy; Lieut. L. C. (Cap) Timm, Navy; Hugo Otopalik, veteran of World War I who served with the American Red Cross in Europe; Lieut. Ray O. Donels, Navy; Lieut. (j.g.) Harry G. Burrell, Navy; and Lieut. (j.g.) Jack M. McGuire, Navy.

The rest of the department includes Louis E. Menze, director of athletics, Harry Schmidt, Russell Dickinson, Merl J. Ross, and Gordon Munson.

Taylor is the only one of the seven released from service at this date and resumed his position on the staff this fall.

GEORGE BRETNALL

Track Coach

Iowa State, Big Six champions for the past two years, will have but two lettermen on hand when it begins defense of its title. Sam Deal, reserve center, and Bob Peterson, a regular last year before being called into the service are the major lettermen. John Pflum and Bernard Babbitt, minor lettermen, are also available. Among experienced transfers, Ralph Welton, Western Michigan, looks good.

Three freshmen from the Ames high school state champions of 1945—Don Ricketts, Jim Buck, and George Duvall, as well as Jim Brandes, member of Waverly's 1944 high school champions, are among the better looking freshmen.

Other prospects include Gene Phelps, flashy halfback who will report at the end of the grid season, Norman Pederson, discharged Army flier and member of the 1942 squad, and 1944 squadmen from the Navy, Bob Watts, Ted Schaller, and Jim Harland. Navy newcomers are Don Halverson, Robert Alley, and Jim Kilgariff.

The Cyclones will be fairly inexperienced, says Louis Menze, director of athletics and basketball coach, and rather small but will have better than average team speed.

Eleven members of the 1945 squad which retained the Big Six indoor and outdoor track title will be on hand for the 1946 season, aided by a pair of discharged veterans who made letters nearly four years ago.

Larry Inman, a distance star in the true tradition of the Cyclones, and Norman Pederson, versatile sprinter and jumper from the same pre-war period, are the veteran "new-comers."

Other point winners Coach George Bretnall will be depending upon include John Alexander, Bob Jones, fourth in the Nationals last year as a freshman, and Bill Rowland, middle distance stars; Bill Arlen, conference champ, and Norval Hart, distance men, Bill Belt, Roy Clark, and James Lovell, jumpers; Dick Howard and James McCauslin, sprinters, and Ted Moorman, sprinter and hurdler.

The only fixture on the indoor track schedule will be the Big Six indoor meet when the Cyclones seek their third straight title the second Saturday in March.

Marching Band Ready to Perform

Under the direction of Alvin R. Edgar, who is beginning his eleventh season as director of band and orchestra at Iowa State College, the Iowa State College marching band will again entertain Homecoming day crowds.

The maneuvers the 102-piece marching band goes through this afternoon, or any Saturday afternoon, don't just happen. They represent hours of drill in the evening during the week on North Field. The formations are thought up and perfected by Director Edgar.

For each game Edgar originates six new formations. Seldom is one repeated, with the exception of "ISC" for Iowa State College. The band usually has but one week to commit the formations and music to memory and perform them without a hitch on the day of the game. It is necessary for 130 members to learn the formations, since 28 alternates are trained to fill in wherever needed.

IT'S THE EXTRA POINT THAT COUNTS

Failure to make that extra point accounted for the loss of over 20% of America's key football games last year!

Failure to chalk up extra points by buying Victory Bonds now to build the peace is stopping short of the goal. Victory Bonds tackle our post-war problems. They hold the line against rising prices, and guard the recovery of our wounded.

And Victory Bonds carry you over the goal to a secure and brighter future.

WOI Trio Airs Grid Schedule

THE GAME

THE COLOR

THE CONTROL

DALE WILLIAMS

L. L. LEWIS

It takes team work on the air too. The smoothly handled broadcasts of the complete Iowa State College football schedule carried by WOI, the broadcasting service of Iowa State College, need the same integration as does the smooth performance of the Cyclones whose actions are so vividly portrayed eight times each fall.

The first team is composed of Dale Williams, Bob Mulhall, and L. L. Lewis. But back of this trio stands the technical staff in the Service Building in Ames. This includes such unsung performers as the control man, the news announcer, the voice which every half hour makes the required station identification which Dale Williams usually manages to forget. The list goes right on to include practically every member of the staff—tickets must be obtained, hotel reservations made, wire space leased. The thousand and one details which are handled days and weeks in advance of a game so easily, so smoothly that no one outside the station realizes that the broadcast is actually composed of more than the endless flow of words streaming out of the radio.

Since few listeners will ever get the chance to see the WOI radio team in action, its first team is presented here today. Performing high above the field in the west press box, it will be bringing today's game to all Iowa and the surrounding states.

First man on the scene is always L. L. Lewis, the station's chief engineer. His is the third name you hear each week when Dale Williams says goodbye after the broadcast. He sets up the equipment, gets the wire through to Ames, and has everything ready when Williams and Mulhall are set to go on.

Bob Mulhall, who played his college football at Loras College, handles the color assignment at all games, as well as giving his analytical review of each half. His is the voice which does the job while Williams is out for refreshments at the half.

Williams, one of the finest play-by-play announcers outside of the networks, is the voice which brings the full excitement of the breathtaking football picture right into the homes of thousands of WOI listeners. A sports enthusiast who has been connected with the field as a player and fan for years, Williams has only one weakness—he thinks the St. Louis Cardinals are a good ball club!

That's the lineup for the fans who are not able to be on hand for today's game. It will be Williams, Mulhall, and Lewis pitching, Iowa State College radio fans catching.

IOWA STATE RELIES ON SEAL-O-SAN

IOWA STATE and more than 5500 other schools now have Seal-O-San finished gymnasium floors. For Seal-O-San is the one floor finish that can take the punishment inflicted by all gym activities and come through unharmed.

Especially for basketball is a Seal-O-San floor ideal. Because Seal-O-San makes any wood floor 100% non-slippery. By preventing skids and falls, it assures faster floor play, speedier dribbling, and more confident shooting.

But there are many other advantages of Seal-O-San. It provides a beautiful floor, yet it costs much less than other types of finish, because it is applied without skilled labor. It seals the floor against dirt and moisture, thus eliminating costly scrubbing. And it is easy and economical to maintain.

Seal-O-San offers the correct solution to the gymnasium floor problem. Coaches and school officials are invited to write for complete information.

Is He Thinking "Peacetime Bus Service Has Returned?"

Probably not. But now he can enjoy bus travel as he knew it before the war. With the return of new faster speeds and more daily schedules, bus service will now fit all your travel plans for fall.

This means that bus travel for college students is "tailor-made travel" for school budgets. Let all your trips this fall be by bus—and you will be money ahead. You can squeeze in many an extra trip—football games, out-of-town parties, week ends home—thanks to Overland Greyhound's convenient daily schedules and amazing low fares.
