You see a little of the cost of it when you buy your books, a little of the loneliness when you unload your suitcase in an empty dormitory room, and a little of the bigness of it when you join the crowd. Hear it at lectures, at bull sessions, or while you drink that Union coffee by yourself. Feel it in the push to get that paper in on time, the tension of final week, and the satisfaction of pulling the grade you wanted. Iowa State University. Catch it in snatches. As you go through, get a glimpse, a big glimpse, of it.

The 1963 Bomb

A way of looking at Iowa State University

TWICE EACH DAY Ira Schroeder climbs the steps of the campanile to play a carillon concert. Schroeder has been around the world as a guest carillonneur and has been playing for ISU since 1931.

AS THE YEAR PROGRESSES, the campanile takes on a familiar and sentimental significance—the carillon concerts, tours up the winding steps at Veishea, and the midnight excursion to herald the arrival of another coed on campus.

Freshman orientation this year showed the typical picture of the first few days of school. Small groups of bewildered freshmen wandered into the armory wondering why they were going to a convocation, if they were there at the right time and right place, and how to act so they wouldn't look like freshmen. And when convocation was over, they were let loose to roam around the campus. Everything was located from the most obvious landmark, the big tower with the clock,

Night Life At Iowa State

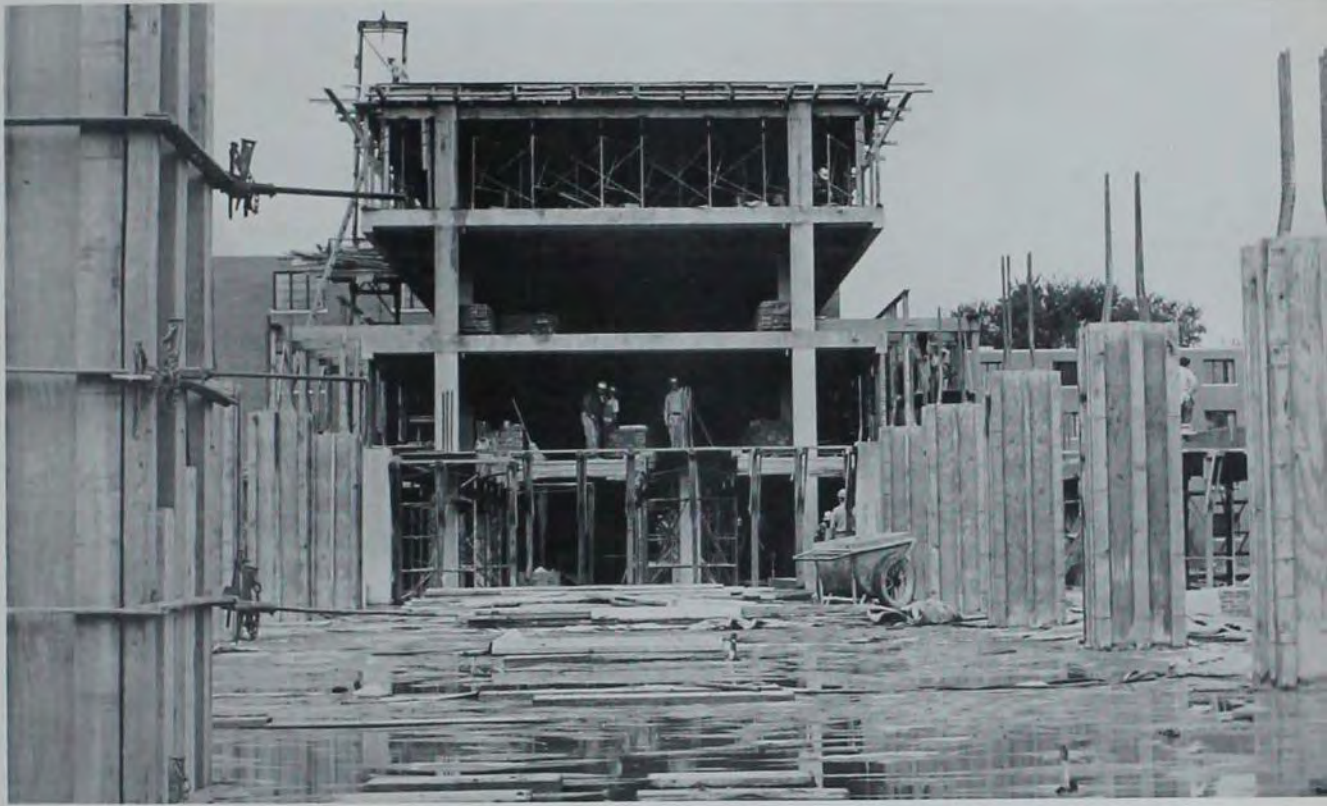

Three of the most familiar buildings on campus glow in the darkness. Beardshear, the busy and crowded hub of activity throughout the day, stands deserted at night. The Union, day and night the traditional meeting place for first dates, hours of concentrated bridge playing, efforts at studying, or a quick cup of coffee before class, stands reflected in the dark waters of Lake LaVerne. The library, jammed with book laden and sleepy but determined students, perhaps represents the most frequent night life during the week. Weekends, however, were jammed with concerts, parties, plays, dances, exchanges, games, and a few were still at the library.

Expansion Pervades Campus

Since its establishment in 1858, Iowa State has been growing and broadening its opportunities until in 1959, it became a university. But take a quick look around our campus this year. Carpenters perched precariously on top of half-completed structures, bare frames of boards glazed with winter's frost, stakes making proposed dimensions for room lengths—our campus is continuing to expand. The buildings under construction this year alone include a men's physical education addition, an engineering building, the WOI communications building, an addition to the large men's dormitory and the Stange Road underpass. Other improvements have been departmental name changes such as Department of Animal Husbandry to Department of Animal Science, establishment of a department of metallurgy, addition of a three-year certificate program in restaurant management to the college of Home Economics and the addition of undergraduate majors in English and Speech.

Moments of Silence

Students alone contemplating away from the masses of chattering, bustling students. A girl sits in the Union with a book on her lap and her eyes wander. A boy lies on a bench staring at a tangle of red and gold leaves while he remembers his last year at college. Standing on one of the often frequented wooden bridges, a girl stares past a pile of leaves into a world of wondering. It is the same route home every day for the student wife, but every day there are different thoughts. A stone bench, a quiet library corner, a dorm room . . . each student has a place for infrequent but necessary moments alone.

Sweetheart's Ball, Veishea, Greek Week, Registration Dances and house parties fill weekends for sociable people

Soft lights, a tinkling stone fountain, blooming magnolia trees, and a touch of long formals brought out the Southern theme "Gone With the Wind" for this year's Autumn Cotillion. Formal dance programs, chaperone booths, and elaborate decorations suggested a return of the long-formal dance to Iowa State. The Autumn Cotillion was the first big dance of the year. The following social flurry included the Registration Dance, Homecoming, the Sweethearts' Ball, the Military Ball, and Veishea as well as numerous individual house parties.

Year begins with bustle of activity, spring weather

Summer took over fall this year and fall chased away the beginning of winter. Enthusiastic students took full advantage of the warm weather by taking books, notebooks, pencils and theme paper and retiring to a quiet spot outside to concentrate. Central campus was spotted with bits of color sprawled on stone benches and heaped in piles of leaves while the library was almost vacant. But although the autumnal weather persisted, unexpected rains came just often enough to make the umbrella almost a habit. Football games, the Autumn Cotillion, Registration Dance, Blast, and the whirl of activities filled the spare moments and made it even harder to begin studying again.

Chorus lines, gamblers and "Miss Legs" bring in money for Campus Chest at Blast

Miss Legs

Cockroach races, egg throwing, people thrown in jail and ring throwing for coke dates were common occurrences at the Friday night Blast held for Campus Chest. Part of the Week's activities included an auction held Wednesday night with such things as Dr. Hilton's favorite cake, a mystery package from Spike, a pizza party, and a car wash going up for bidding. One of the most popular parts of the Blast was the Miss Legs contest where ten cents bought a vote for one of the contestants. Food sales also contributed to the week, largest seller was taffy apples — over 1,000 sold. Special events were also held by individual residences such as the Theta Xi pancake supper. The Blast proceeds, sweatshirt dance, and other money earned during the week plus individual donations were contributed to the Campus Chest.

AS LONG as people have friends who want to drown them, there will be a way of collecting money for charity.

Ballet, opera and concerts featured during the year

GIANNI-SCHICCI, opera performed fall quarter.

A four-part chord, with wave of a hand, and the beginning of a Gershwin tune. It could be Sor-Dor, Sinfonia, a concert by the Iowa State Singers or America Musicale. It could be one of the groups brought to Iowa State for Focus, Greek Week or even a flash-act for Varieties. Musical events include a wide variety of groups and types of music for participants as well as spectators. Winter quarter brought American Musicale, given by the men and women's music honoraries and featuring only music by American composers.

EVERY GAME has a loser's bench. It was Iowa State's at Homecoming.

Football and basketball attract the largest student crowds at Iowa State. However, the true sports enthusiasts may also be found at the golf course watching a cross country track meet, in the men's gym timing a swimmer's backstroke, or in the Armory counting points in a wrestling meet. Intramurals also provide a chance for boys as well as girls to participate in such sports as basketball, ping pong, tennis, swimming, and volleyball. Spring, fall, or winter, outside or inside, large groups or individuals may be seen almost anywhere on campus competing for trophies, conference titles or just personal satisfaction.

THE SOCCER TEAM continues to win games and support itself independent of the athletic department.

HOMECOMING—

festivities start with “Pep Bar-B-Q” and “Jazzboree”

JUDGES follow close on the heels of long nights of display building

Sleepy students stuffed bright crepe paper into holes in homecoming displays, and alums walked around proudly pointing out their old residences. Friday night the armory rang with cheers for the tomorrow's big game, and after the pep barbeque, students flocked to the union for the informal dance or started the rounds of the homecoming displays. This was the one night of the year when walking was the fastest and most popular form of transportation. Saturday morning found crowds of mum-sporting mothers and dates rushing to the stadium with their escorts. Everyone was excited, the students with the promise of a free Monday morning and the alums with a game to renew their school spirit. Later in the afternoon disappointed fans poured out of the bleachers and across the campus to show visitors one last look at the new classroom building. "Well, there is always another year."

Hot sun blazes on featured event—the game

CHEERLEADERS, as well as players put out their best efforts,

BUT the game ended in defeat.

HOT SUN of a beautiful day beats down on the Homecoming crowd.

People packed tightly together on the football bleachers, a hot fall sun beating down on the tops of metal helmets and the expectant hush just before the presentation of queen and attendants—half time at the Kansas-ISU Homecoming game. A blast of trumpets and Kay Kolosha, Homecoming Queen for 1962, was escorted to the field followed by Mary Jane Kimball and Pat Hildebrand, attendants. The team rushed back onto the field amid the cheering of an excited and still hopeful crowd. Cheerleaders anxiously paced back and forth trying to watch the game and keep cheering at the same time. The second half brought a determined but unsuccessful effort leaving the final score as 29-8. A mixture of talk on the way home included the strong defense used by Kansas, the winning SAE sweepstakes display, and plans for the Homecoming dance that night. Kay Winding's Orchestra played for the Saturday night dance, the final event of this year's Homecoming.

ESCORTS for the Homecoming court of Pat Hildebrand, Kay Kolosha and Mary Jane Kimball were a representative of the 1952 football team, Governor Erbe, and Ralph Olson.

Homecoming Queen

Katherine (Kay) Kaloosha was crowned queen at the Pep-Bar-B-Q and presided over the rest of the weekend's events. Kay, from Pampa, Texas, is a junior in Home Economics Education and a Kappa Alpha Theta.

LAKE LAVERNE seemed to be frozen solid, but water still flowed over the dam.

Winter brought less snow and more bitter cold than usual

SNOW clothed Christian Petersen's statues on the MacKay lily pool.

ATHLETIC souls find that winter isn't all bad.

Snowboots trudded through piles of whiteness on their way to class. Remarks about quitting school and going to Florida were frequent, and buildings were more crowded than usual with students who just couldn't quite get up the courage to brave the cold. Winter had hit the campus again. The first few days brought many complaints, but after a couple of weeks most of the faces of students and instructors alike wore an expression of grim acceptance. About January when most people had decided that winter was going to stay for a while, snowball fights were frequent and a few snowmen dotted the residence lawns. Lake LaVerne was a retreat for those few winter enthusiasts who liked to ice skate. Even the sale of Union coffee (believe it or not) went up. "Well, at least it's hot." Then in February those false starts of spring brought a few warm days which were followed immediately by heavy snow and zero temperatures.

CAR OWNERS trotted out torches, heat lamps and inverted prayers in their efforts to get their cars thawed enough to move.

Christmas Festival of Music presented for seventh year; participation has grown to 1,000 students and faculty

Eight hundred voices blended in an old German melody, Of The Father's Love Begotten, the opening of the annual Christmas festival of music. This program was started seven years ago as a service to the campus and community. The participants have grown from the original 500 to 1,000. Three years ago the performances were increased from one to two to accommodate the growing audience. This year the program included old popular Christmas carols as well as contemporary 20th century and traditional Christmas music. Above the chorus, spotlighted in the darkness was the modern dance club depicting the Nativity. The final Christmas wish was a combined offering from band, orchestra and festival chorus — The Messiah Chorus.

COACH HORNS opened the festival program.

DANCERS interpreted the joyful mood of the Christmas music.

IOWA STATE SINGERS united with the special Festival Chorus to do the vocal work.

CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTING on central campus is held the week before the Festival.

State, university, and residence politics occupy Iowa State students and faculty

FACULTY MEMBERS display political interest by running for office. Dr. Murray, 1958 candidate for Governor, welcomes Dr. E. B. Smith to the ranks of campaigners. Smith ran for the Senate this year.

ALL-UNIVERSITY nominating convention has all the trimmings of a big-time convention, including pages and a committee to approve the seating of delegates.

DON MEYER, center, and running mate, Don Christensen, won the student body presidency and vice presidency by defeating Lee Johnson and Ron Goodman.

CAMPUS organizations of both Republicans and Democrats outnumber the young Americans for freedom 15 to 1, but the YAF was the most vocal throughout the year.

CAUCUSES at the GSB convention helped to shift delegate support to the major candidates. For the first time in three years two presidential candidates ran on the all-university ballots.

Varieties is highlighted

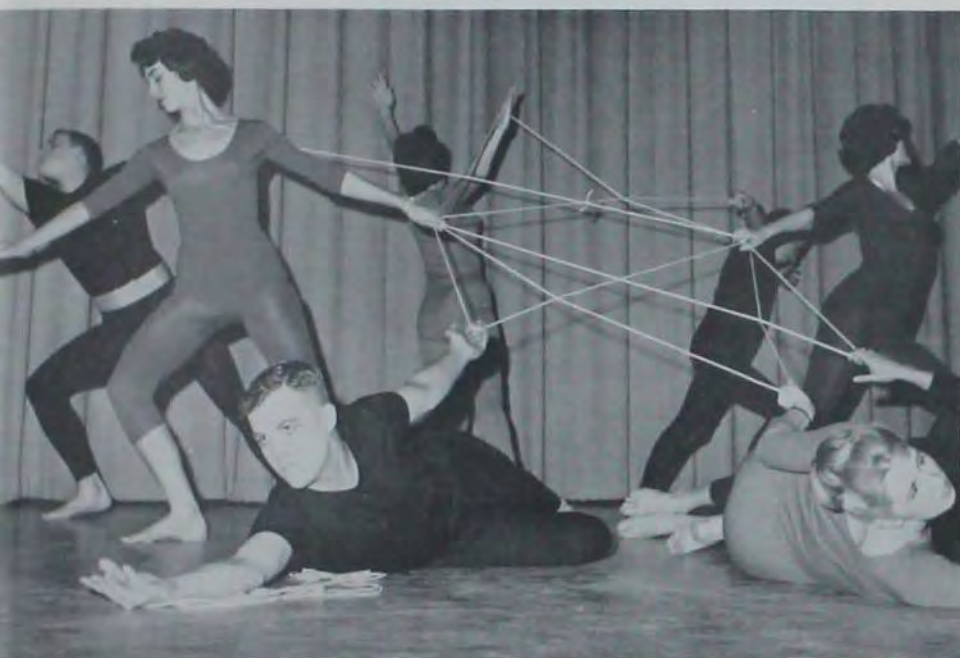

Whammy! Evil-eye Fleagle strikes again. Another man was caught and dragged to Marrying Sam because Sadie Hawkins Day had hit the campus. It wasn't an Iowa State coed during Dames Daze; it was the Phi Delt and Theta Sweepstakes Varieties winner, Dogpatch U.S.A. Second was Alpha Gamma Delta and FarmHouse with Westside Story. Maria, the jock from SUI and Toni the slide rule case from Iowa State fell in love. "Toni." Maria." "Toni, Toni." "Maria, Maria" "Toni — " The third place skit by Delta Sig and Pi Phi was a serious portrayal based on the Civil War. It was entitled Brotherhood and directed to the students of Iowa State. "Look at you, yourself." M.C.'s Steve Busch and John Rock kept the audience laughing with their I.S.U. coloring book. Color them funny. Barb Flickinger, winner of the flash acts sang "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," and the winning Sig Ep Varieties girls tripped daintily across the stage dropping flowers.

Barjche

The opening number of Barjche depicted a typical tryout, initiation, rehearsal and opening night of Modern Dance Club. The prologue as well as the rest of the program, was composed and arranged by the members of the club. This was followed by a variety of dance in design and movement. "There is a time to kill and a time to heal, a time to breakdown and a time to build up." The emotions of mankind were depicted in this dance theme taken from Ecclesiastes 3:1-8. This music for this dance was written by a member of the faculty. "Pre-Classic Dance Suites" was performed to a score written in 1670 and was accompanied by a harpsicord. Barrels were used as props for "African Echoes," ropes as designs for "Ropes," and scarves for "Blow Prairie Wind." One of the numbers was a dance depicting a dance. A wild can can, a humorous Charleston, and a jazz cha cha were portrayed in "The Three C's." One of the longer parts of the program was a dance version of Porgy and Bess.

Religion-In-Life Week

Religion-in-Life Week began with all-out-to-church morning and was continued on Monday by the All-University Convocation. Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, author of 19 books spoke on "The Price of Excellence." The second All-University convocation was held Wednesday night with Dr. Theodore Gill, president of the San Francisco Theological Seminary speaking on "Man's Quest for Peace in the Community."

*People-to-People, Model
UN, and Cosmopolitan
Club work to improve US-foreign student relations*

RUFUS ADEGBOYE presided over Cosmopolitan Club meetings. The club primarily exists to give students from all countries including the United States a chance to mix socially.

PEOPLE-TO-PEOPLE tries to set up a buddy system for welcoming students from other countries to ISU, and planning Model — UN.

An international banquet was held spring quarter with foreign students preparing their native foods for the buffet. This was part of the People-to-People program which was organized in October of last year for the purpose of establishing personal contacts between international students, American students, and the people in Ames. Part of the plan includes a brother-sister program where I.S.U. students are given a counterpart from among the international students. The biggest project of the year was the Model U.N. Delegates from universities all over the state representing their native countries debated resolutions on current world problems.

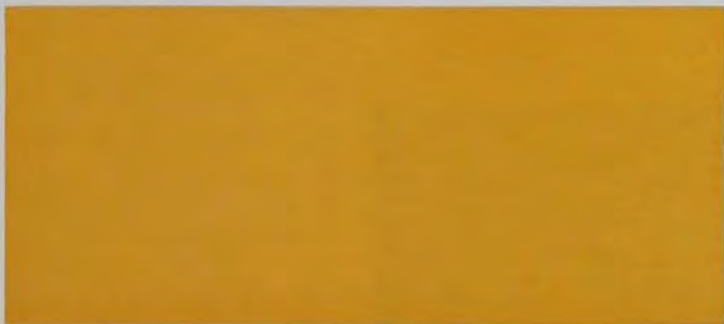

MODEL UN officials talk over the day's program. Model UN contains student delegations representing each UN member country, and the organization is patterned after the United Nations organization.

AFRICAN NIGHT at Cosmopolitan Club consists of a program presented by the students from Africa and a display of African decorations and artwork.

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra performs for Focus Week

FOCUS

Music, dance, architecture, literature, drama — Variety in art for Focus 1962. In the field of literature was Richard Llewellyn, internationally known novelist, playwright, producer, and director who presented a lecture on "The Modern Novel." Howard Clurgyman, director and drama critic, also gave a lecture, this one entitled "A View of the Contemporary Theatre." The area of dance was represented by internationally famous dancer and choreographer Bruce King who presented a master lesson in modern dance. A view of drama was given by students from the University of Iowa drama department who brought back the all-but-forgotten art of pantomime. International relations were brought to focus by Juscelino Kubitschek former president of Brazil who discussed "United States and Brazil: Partners for Peace." A range of music was offered by Herb Shriner in Pops Americana, the Lime-liters singing rollicking folksongs, and the Minneapolis Symphony under the direction of Stanislaw Skrowaczewski. Variety in art for Focus 1962.

813 pints of blood given during Greek Week

THESE COUPLES dance to the music of Ray McKinley Saturday night at the Greek Week dance.

Greek Week, with a few additions and a new purpose was changed in many aspects this year. Formerly it had been limited to attendance only by Greeks but many of this year's events, including the Limelitters, were open to the public. In the attempt to make Greek Week more universal and important to the community, the afternoon Olympics were eliminated and replaced by a service project. Greeks volunteered to give what was most important to them, (besides their activity ticket) their blood. In two days, 813 pints of blood were given to the Red Cross Blood Bank to be used for patients undergoing surgery as well as replacement for other excessive loss of blood. The social events of Greek Week included a song packed two hours featuring the Limelitters. This was followed by a round of parties bringing New York to the campus for a night: The Stork Club, FarmHouse; Peppermint Lounge, Kappa Sigma; "21" Club, Tri Delt; Stardust Lounge, Tau Kappa Epsilon. Other Greek Week old regulars were the dinner exchanges, the semi-formal dance on Saturday evening with Ray McKinley playing, and the crowning of the Greek Week King and Queen. The more serious side of Greek Week included the opening convocation held Thursday night with Hugh Sidey, the Washington correspondent for Life Magazine, as speaker. The was followed by tapping for Gamma Gamma, the Greek honorary.

"I NOSE what you mean." One of the Limelighters clowns around at the concert given Friday night as part of the entertainment of Greek Week.

MARY HENNESSY smiles bravely at the nurse and tries not to think about the needle in her arm as she gives a pint of blood.

JUDY CLAUSE smiles at interested onlookers after being tapped for Mortar Board, the top women's honorary.

VAL LEMBKE is tapped by Victor Klopfenstein for Cardinal Key.

"HEY, you guys. This is a race, remember?" The winning men's canoe team gets detoured for a minute by a traffic jam.

Skies are blue and sunny for Veishea's fortieth year

PAT MELROY is monitoring the A.P. News through two different receivers in a mobile Military Radio Van. This demonstration was part of the R.O.T.C. open house.

The time was Thursday, May 4th, 11:50. Thousands of jubilant students rushed across campus — Some to sheds and barns which housed half completed floats, and some to the steps of Beardshear for the opening ceremonies. Ray Cunningham lit the Veishea torch, officially opening the three day holiday and lending a note of solemnity to the afternoon. And then the announcement of queens. Veishea Queen of Queens, Barb Haugen; Attendants, Nancy Hillig and Joyce Rice. Veishea 1962 was off to the races. People and swans lined the shores of Lake LaVerne, cheering for the wet but happy victors of the canoe races. Thursday's other events included Mortar Board and Cardinal Key tapping and the sweatshirt dance. Friday the campus was jammed with visitors, old and young, touring the open houses.

"Wonderful Town" presented by students in SOV

"YEAH but styles aren't that short this year." Hester Fassel, one of the two sisters who have left Ohio to make their way in the big city, tries to reason with the Sport.

WHAT do you mean my pants are too short? Jim Bobbitt, the best shirt ironer in New York doesn't seem to worry too much about what goes on the other half.

WHO'S GOT the pigtail? Bill Walker or D'Ann Parrott? These two clowns dance their way across the stage as part of the 11 member dance group.

Friday and Saturday night Stars Over Veishea presented "Wonderful Town" including: cast, 16; chorus, 13; dancers, 11; and orchestra, 24, plus numerous production crews. This is the story of two sisters from Ohio who venture to New York to seek fame and fortune and wander into the curious realm of Greenwich Village. Eileen, the "femme fatale", and her practical sister Ruth, the aspiring young writer, were forced into a basement apartment where they met all imaginable odd remnants of the human race; Wreck the football hero who ironed their clothes but would not wash them because "washing was women's work," Helen who lived with Wreck because it was cheaper, the Brazilian admirals who carried off Ruth in a wild cha cha from the Brooklyn navy yard all the way across New York, and Violet, the former inhabitant of the apartment whose old customers kept dropping in on the girls.

AS IF EXCITEMENT wasn't great enough in "Wonderful Town," Ruth had to add to the confusion by continuing to write her book throughout the play.

The Purple Shaft

and After.

Carpenters and paper stuffers from float building crews and demonstrators and tour guides from the open houses pulled on their finest sweatshirts and took a break from their labors to listen to the folk singing and collegiate-gear'd humor of the Brothers Four. This was followed by informal dancing to the music of the J Hall Four and the Al Sharon Quartet. Extended hours for women allowed time for a little more festivity and a chance for people to get a little wearier before they set out the next day to welcome the 1,000 high school students to career day and to finish their weekend chores.

THE BROTHERS FOUR returned to Veishea for the second year in a row to highlight the first night.

THE SWEATSHIRT BALL gives float builders a chance to relax in their working clothes before putting the final hours in on their floats.

MRA DIVISION WINNER was the entry of Pearson House.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON and Kappa Alpha Theta combined talents to carry off the trophy for the combination float division.

Motion picture titles provide float ideas

101 DALMATIANS from the Kappa Kappa Gamma float romped along the parade route.

Crowds of spectators sat on blankets, lined the curbs and hung out of trees along the parade route Saturday morning. The day was bright and sunny without Veishea's usual parade day rain. After the long wait for the first float, bands and floats passed quickly in review with only a few minor breakdowns and stray band players. This year many of the residences combined their efforts in one float. Winners were: Theta and Phi Delt, Sweepstakes; Pi Phi and Beta, combination Sweepstakes; Sig Ep, fraternity division; Kappa, sorority division; and Pearson House, men's dormitories. After the parade hot and weary visitors took one last look at the campus and the long job of taking down and tearing apart was begun for another year's Veishea.

THE PARADE, the weekend, Veishea '62 . . . ended.

Veishea Queen of Queens

Barbara Haugen received the crown of Queen of Queen's at the opening Veishea ceremonies. She led the Saturday parade and reigned as guest of honor over the rest of the weekend's events. At the time of her coronation Barb was a junior in Home Ec Education. Her hometown is Rake, Iowa, and her home at ISU is Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Every school has its traditions that will be remembered with a smile or perhaps a small pang in years to come. No one is quite sure how they started but each new class gradually picks up the customs and superstitions. A student may be seen walking through the Union's revolving door and swinging deliberately around the zodiac so he will not fail his next test. In the fountain directly outside these doors sit four silent Indian maids who watch over passing students. The ring of the campanile is as familiar to most students as a friendly face on campus. And no Iowa State girl can traditionally become a coed until she has been kissed under its darkened arch at midnight. Across from the union on the other side is Lake LaVerne, in the winter a place for ice skating and in the spring a residence for the two swans, Lady Elaine and Lancelot.

Familiar sights grow into traditions and become imbedded in memory

College of Agriculture

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTS take many architecture courses but are distinguished from other architects in that they also study soils and trees to equip them for landscaping jobs.

Graduates of the College of Agriculture are prepared to accept positions not only in increasingly complex farm management, but also in the fields of research, industry, and public service, including education and extension. The curricula provided in agriculture affords students an opportunity to study in one or more of the nineteen separate departments of the College. Nine of these departments participate in the two-year program leading to a certificate in technical agriculture. The six months of practical experience required of agriculture students is administered by the various department heads. Federal and state funds and other grants and bequests for research, extension and instruction in agriculture and related sciences enable the college to make effective use of the experimental fields, special buildings, processing plants, gardens and orchards as laboratories for practical investigation, as well as for instructional purposes.

DEAN FLOYD ANDRE directs policies in the College of Agriculture to provide continued expansion in the programs.

The flavor of international affairs accented programs begun this year in the College of Agriculture. A cooperative program with Peru in land economics involves the re-distribution of land holdings. Iowa State agriculture specialists cooperate in programs of the Uruguay contract at National University, the University of Trabajo, and an experiment station in Uruguay. The Center for Agricultural and Economic Adjustment, organized in 1957, continues to coordinate and concentrate research, extension, and teaching activities to aid in overcoming agricultural problems in the United States. Activities at the Center this year included a conference on Goals and Values in American Agriculture and the Third Annual Farm Policy Review Conference sponsored jointly with The Agricultural Policy Institute at North Carolina State College. This increase in foreign interest is noted through the 146 agricultural staff members who have served in 46 foreign countries. In the past ten years, 1757 foreign visitors have viewed the complex organization of the College.

College of Engineering

DEAN of the College of Engineering, Dr. George Town completes his fifth year of directing the activities of the largest engineering college west of the Mississippi.

The College of Engineering, which began with only four departments, now has eleven major areas in which Bachelor of Science degrees may be earned. Architecture and architectural engineering are five year curricula leading to specialized degrees. Construction, electronics, and mechanical technology are administered by the technical institute and lead to an Associate in Applied Science certificate. Cooperative Programs in various departments allow the student to receive practical experience in his chosen field, motivation for greater interest in his studies and a substantial degree of financial return. In addition to its regular instructional work in engineering, the College is also active in research and extension work implemented through the Engineering Experiment Station and the Engineering Extension Service.

Business, management, and construction were combined to provide formal training for the construction program begun this year within the framework of the department of engineering operations. Sixteen men were enrolled fall quarter in the program sponsored by Master Builders. The Center for Industrial Research and Service was organized to increase engineering service to Iowa industry in terms of extension. International development of the College was increased in association with the Mid-America State Universities Association which conducted inspections at foreign universities. This year Iowa State participated in inspections of Egypt and Peru to evaluate the program, faculty, and facilities of the universities to determine how financial support can be maximized.

AN APPLIED ART student creates her own textile design by block printing.

Education for professional opportunities and for the development of students as citizens and family members are the objectives of the College of Home Economics. The freshman student is oriented with a general understanding and background in both Home Economics and liberal arts. During her sophomore year, the Home Economics student selects her major and concentrates in this field of study. Majors are offered in the departments of applied art, child development, food and nutrition, home economics education, home management, household equipment, institution management, physical education for women, and textiles and clothing. Due to the nation-wide reputation of this college, qualified professional graduates have a wide selection of job opportunities in a variety of these fields. Students in the college are encouraged to participate in the activities of any of the seven departmental clubs. The Honors Program offered by the College provides the opportunity for students of high scholastic ability to pursue independent study and obtain special educational experiences not available in the regular degree programs.

DEAN HELEN LEBARON this year participated on a twenty-six member national committee created by Sec. of Education Ribbicoff to evaluate existing vocational legislation.

Constant revision keeps the College of Home Economics abreast of a changing world

The dynamic and ever-changing nature of the field of Home Economics is under constant revision to keep abreast of the needs of our progressing times. A Cooperative Restaurant Management Department was established to meet the needs for supervisory positions in the rapidly growing restaurant industry. Men are eligible for a certificate in restaurant management by completing six quarters of university classes alternated with four quarters of on-the-job training. The Child Development Department expanded to offer an elementary education major, and the cooperative program whereby a student can study at another college for two years and then transfer to Iowa State without the usual formalities to complete her education was extended.

TECHNIQUES of fencing are practiced in this class introduced into physical education for women last year.

PART OF HOME MANAGEMENT classes include study of insurance, credit systems and social security, here studied by Carol Brindley, Deanne Stenstrom and Dan Larew.

The College of Sciences and Humanities, by giving the student a broad science and humanities education, provides him with an understanding not only of his own intellectual concerns, but also those of others. Basic requirements in seven fields of study give a broad, liberal education while also allowing the student to specialize in his major and minor fields in the College.

Besides supervising its own undergraduate curriculum, conducting instruction supporting the curricula of all other colleges in the university, and preparing students for admission into graduate schools, the College has special study programs for outstanding students. These Honors Programs encourage individual work by increasing flexibility in the academic program.

COLLEGE OF SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES

DEPARTMENT HEADS

Front Row: Schrampler (industrial administration), Walker (English), Tauber (zoology and entomology), Matterson (history), Hussey (geology), Layton (psychology). Back Row: Lorch (speech), Orr (library), Carlson (metallurgy), Bancroft (statistics), Hinrichsen (associate dean), Keisler (military science), Bortle (assistant dean).

Front Row: Kihlenbeck (modern language), Hart (music), Vinograd (mathematics), Lockhart (bacteriology), Goetz (chemistry), ZaBarano (physics). Back Row: Kenkel (sociology), Sage (air science), Harwick (naval science), Roy (dean), Chalmers (men's physical education), Bragonier (botany), Grant (student health service).

The goal of the College of Sciences and Humanities is not only education in the formal sense, but also the individual's intellectual, emotional, and moral growth. This growth, through a constant reshaping and reexamination of the individual, can be gained through the never ending process of learning. The development of the student's ability and desire to learn is one of the purposes of formal education. Through formal education, educational institutions maintain an environment and foster programs which encourage students to discover the need and the means of individual fulfillment that they may go on to enrich and strengthen society. These goals of education lead to the student's discovery, not just of a body of knowledge, but the fascination of learning.

FORMERLY head of the geology department, Dr. Chalmer J. Roy became dean of the College of Sciences and Humanities spring quarter.

Growth is key word for the College as it enlarges classes, classrooms, and its academic program

Facilities of the College were expanded with the opening of a new classroom building for use fall quarter. The new facilities were a special boon to the Modern Language Department because they included a language laboratory which will allow greater emphasis to be placed on the audio-lingual approach to languages. The new space also enabled the speech department to expand its speech therapy program and the English Department to increase the size of its remedial reading program. Besides generally easing the strain on classroom space the expansion also made it possible for office space to be expanded as several former classrooms in Beardshear were converted to offices. In addition to the changes in the physical accommodations for the College there are constant changes in the academic programs offered. Evidence of these changes is the laying of plans to extend the metallurgy department, now present only on the graduate level, to an undergraduate major next year.

DEAN I. A. MERCHANT heads and directs the oldest College of Veterinary Medicine in the country.

COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

The location of Iowa State University in the center of a great agricultural area provides the student in the College of Veterinary Medicine with an excellent opportunity to gain practical experience and to observe an established veterinarian. The students gain experience and knowledge through the Veterinary Medical Research Institute, the Iowa Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, and the College hospital and ambulatory clinics. The Ames Federal Animal Disease Eradication Laboratory is important as a research center at the graduate level of the College. The College, the oldest school of veterinary medicine in the country, includes the departments of anatomy, hygiene, medicine and surgery, obstetrics and radiology, pathology, and physiology and pharmacology. The student who seeks admission to the four-year curriculum in Veterinary Medicine must first complete two years of pre-professional training. Careers in research, public health, general practice and governmental agencies await the graduate. United by personal and professional respect, veterinary medicine students form a very close-knit group within their college.

The College of Veterinary Medicine strives to satisfy the increased demand for veterinarians

The Colleges of Veterinary Medicine and Engineering collaborated to establish in 1957 the biomedical electronics program at Iowa State University. This is the world's first formal academic program in this interdisciplinary field. The program includes facilities, research and training programs, all of which are administered jointly by the two colleges through a permanent administrative committee. Its goal is the design of equipment for detecting biological changes, the improvement of present instruments and the evaluation of results by quantitative methods. The program offers training for veterinary medicine students specializing in advanced methods of using modern instruments for the solution of medical research problems, and for engineers training is afforded in advanced methods of designing instruments for biomedical measurements. The research and training program is supported by grants and University contributions.

The increasing trend toward higher education to meet today's standards is reflected in the Graduate College of Iowa State University. The Graduate College enrollment last year was 14 percent higher than in the previous year. This is double the national average growth rate of colleges and universities. Iowa State ranks seventh in the United States in the number of doctorates awarded in the biological sciences and 11th in doctorates in the physical sciences. Iowa State enjoys a world wide reputation for its fine graduate programs and this year had students enrolled from 68 countries. Due to a lack of available classroom and laboratory space, housing, research support, money for scholarships, as well as the rigid application of admission standards, 60 percent of the applicants to the Graduate College this year were denied admission. Graduate students may either teach or do research in one of the 53 departments in which graduate work is offered at Iowa State. Through the practical application of their contributions to knowledge, the graduate students of ISU will take their place as leaders in an age of scientific accomplishment.

Seven research agencies are in operation at Iowa State to develop new knowledge through basic and applied research. These agencies are the Agricultural Experiment Station, the Engineering Experiment Station, the Institute for Atomic Research, the Industrial Science Research Institute, the Statistical Laboratory, the Computation Center, and the Veterinary Medical Research Institute. The National Animal Disease Laboratory near Ames, an agency of the USDA, cooperates closely with the College of Veterinary Medicine in research on highly communicable animal diseases. The Institute for Atomic Research also has national responsibilities as one of its functions is to operate the Ames Laboratory of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

DETERMINATION of the strength of materials at high temperatures occupies the research time of Tom Marcinik, assistant in engineering.

LEWIS BARTEL, graduate assistant in physics, is determining absorption spectra of single crystal of rare earth ethyl sulfates by means of a Littrow-Echelle spectrograph.

The Institute for Atomic Research is a research division of the University and is concerned with basic research in fields of atomic energy and the supporting sciences. One of its functions is to operate the Ames Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission, which is located on the campus and which devotes itself to pioneering and basic research in atomic energy. The Ames Lab is a research center employing 800 persons, including over 200 graduate students in the physical sciences and 60 undergraduate students. While students have the opportunity to earn M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in the various departments, they are employed in the Ames Lab to carry on research, usually in the same fields as their thesis work. The Lab, a $15 million facility, devotes much of its time to materials research, developing new methods for producing pure metals, alloys, and ceramics, and studying their properties, particularly at high temperatures and pressures. Emphasis is placed on phases of chemistry, engineering, metallurgy and physics which apply to nuclear processes.

The atomic energy program began in 1941, soon after the discovery of nuclear fission had launched a new era in scientific research. With several promising processes for producing uranium developed at Iowa State University, the project here was enlarged to the pilot plant stage and full-scale production of uranium metal was soon in progress. The Lab, one of seven major, basic, integrated research laboratories of the AEC, now conducts research in the Institute Office and Laboratory Building, the Metals Development, Metallurgy, Research, and Synchrotron Buildings. A large research reactor is presently under construction and will be completed in 1963.

RUSS MAHAN, extension specialist in human development and family life, provides information regularly to families through WOI-TV and other Iowa television stations.

Iowa State University provides available off-campus education to all Iowa people through the Cooperative Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics and the Iowa Engineering Extension Service. These educational programs are based on specific needs of individual families and broad public works in Iowa. The Cooperative Extension Service today focuses attention on problems growing out of a rapidly changing social and economic environment. Included in its program are short courses, workshops, and other methods of organized education dealing with public affairs, community welfare, agricultural production, and its relationship to agribusiness, efficient marketing and buying, and conservation of natural resources. Methods used convey knowledge of basic principles of technology. In its youth program the Cooperative Extension Service is placing special emphasis on career exploration and understanding of scientific principles. The trend in the Engineering Extension Service is toward longer, more informative and extensive programs associated with the needs of certain industries. There is statewide participation in the refresher courses and industrial training programs offered by the Service for individual engineers. The eight sub-divisions of the extension service are emphasized in the visual aids programs, lectures, short courses, and the distribution of publications.

A PROBLEM in industrial electronics presents a challenge to three engineers enrolled in a Marshalltown adult evening school. These evening courses are one phase of the programs provided by the Iowa Engineering Extension service.

An old member approaches an outstanding man on campus, slips a gold cord with a red key over the head of the man, and a new member has been officially tapped into Iowa State University's highest honor society, Cardinal Key. Cardinal Key is a senior Honor Society which offers membership to men who have been outstanding leaders during their college careers at Iowa State University. The purposes of Cardinal Key are to promote the Cardinal virtues of leadership, service, character, and scholarship among all students. Highlight of spring quarter each year is the Men's Leadership Day and the tapping of new members for Cardinal Key. The men's Leadership Day convocation features an outstanding national speaker who stresses the Cardinal virtues and the evening banquet honors the junior and senior men who have displayed the Cardinal virtues. The tapping of new members comes during a special ceremony at Veishea time.

Tomahawk

Tomahawk is a national honorary for independent sophomores who have achieved a grade point of 2.25 or better. Members are selected during winter quarter by active members on the basis of activities, grade point, and attitude. The purpose of this organization is to further the leadership ability of its members, to be of service to fellow students, and to be a stimulus to freshmen in activities. In order to do this, Tomahawk members conduct a baby-sitting service, usher at university functions, and try to set a good example by contributing their loyalty, service, and co-operation to Iowa State. Members were able to contribute $120 dollars to the Iowa State Center fund last spring by holding a car wash. Tomahawk members also provided a good will service for visitors on the campus during Veishea last year by setting up and conducting information booths.

EARL HOLTZ, president, leads one of the monthly business meetings of Alpha Kappa Psi, the professional business fraternity.

Alpha Kappa Psi is ISU's professional business fraternity. Membership is open to all male students in industrial administration who have a grade point of 2.00 and who are recommended by faculty and student members. This year there were 70 active members. Thirty members went on a field trip to Chicago where they visited marketing, transportation, finance and accounting firms. Ted Hollander received the Alpha Kappa Psi scholarship key for the highest male cumulative grade point. Mr. Max Banschaf, Advertising, Promotion, and Public Relations Director of Armstrong Cork Company, was made a honorary member of the chapter. The national annual efficiency rating listed Iowa State's chapter among the top third in the nation. Service projects included compiling of a speaker's booklet of 300 speakers from the university and Ames community, ushers for RIL Week, Veishea display, and co-sponsorship of I.Ad. Banquet.

Mortar Board

University pride and individual leadership are two features encouraged by Mortar Board. This is done partly through the sponsoring of the Women's Induction Service and the selection of a senior-woman-of-the-month. Mortar Board also holds study meetings every month. Outstanding women leaders with a fairly high grade point are eligible and the new members are tapped each Veishea after their selection by current members.

Alpha Chi Sigma

A safety program in the chemistry and chemical engineering departments was introduced by members of Alpha Chi Sigma this year. Members also constructed a bulletin board in the Chemistry building and instituted a scholarship program. This professional fraternity selects members from chemistry and chemical engineering majors who strive for safety and the advancement of Chemistry as a science and profession.

Phi Kappa Phi

High scholastic achievement and encouragement for those students who are capable of superior scholarship are the purposes of Phi Kappa Phi, a national high scholarship honorary. Students from all the colleges, have equal opportunity for membership. Besides the upper one-sixteenth of the graduating class, the upper one-tenth of the graduate students, one alumnus, and several faculty members who have made outstanding contributions to scholarship are selected each year.

Alpha Zeta

The "tall corn" award is presented each year by Alpha Zeta to a professor who has shown devoted service to agriculture. This national professional agriculture fraternity tries to initiate standards of scholarship, character, and leadership among its members as well as creating a spirit of good fellowship. Alpha Zeta members are selected on the basis of scholarship and activities.

Delta Phi Delta

The Iowa State and Drake University chapters of Delta Phi Delta, presented an exchange art exhibit spring quarter. Iowa State members also displayed their work during Veishea. The actives of this national honorary art fraternity select new pledges each October from persons who are in the upper thirty-five percent of their graduating class and who have high grades in their art major.

Epsilon Pi Tau

Research on current issues concerning industrial arts was conducted this year by thirty-seven members of Epsilon Pi Tau. A newsletter is also published and sent to all members with information about campus activities. This International Honorary is concerned with industrial arts and vocational education. It appoints new members from the upper twenty per cent of juniors and seniors.

Eta Kappa Nu

Electrical engineers in the upper one-fourth of their junior class and upper one-third of their senior class are invited to a smoker each fall by Eta Kappa Nu. This national electrical engineering honorary then votes secretly to select new members. Visitors to Veishea may have their questions concerning EE answered at the Eta Kappa Nu information booth or may take in their display.

Gamma Epsilon Sigma

Outstanding scholarship, and a good record of leadership, character, and achievements are the requirements for membership in Gamma Epsilon Sigma, a national honorary for juniors and seniors in industrial engineering. The organization's goals are to foster high ideals and qualities of leadership and responsibility among future engineers, as well as to spread interest and information about the industrial engineering department.

Knights of St. Patrick

Junior and Senior Engineers who have been active in engineering, the college community, or residence activities are eligible for membership in the engineering honorary, Guard of St. Patrick. This national honorary was founded on the Iowa State Campus in 1917 and 35 knights were selected for membership this year. Highlight of the spring activities was the March 17 initiation and the annual St. Patrick's Day Dance.

Lamos

Lamos is a local Science College honorary organized in 1953 to recognize outstanding men and women in the college of Sciences and Humanities. Active members select four to seven seniors and four to ten juniors each year from persons in the upper one fourth of their junior or senior classes who have shown outstanding leadership ability, scholarship, and character, and who have contributed service to the college.

Omicron Nu

Omicron Nu, a Home Economics National Honorary, selects members who promote scholarship, leadership, and research in the field of Home Economics. Omicron Nu awards a $25 scholarship each year to a deserving member of Omicron Nu who indicates need and professional interest in Home Economics. During Winter quarter, it held a sophomore recognition tea to honor Home Ec. sophomores with a high grade point.

Phi Eta Sigma

PLANS for giving an award to the residence with the greatest scholastic improvements are discussed by Phi Eta Sigma members.

Organized in 1923, Phi Eta Sigma is a national freshman men's honorary whose purpose is to promote and encourage high scholastic achievement during the freshman year. To be eligible for membership, the student must have a grade point of 3.5 at the end of his first quarter or a cumulative 3.5 at the end of the second or third quarter's work. Prospective members are invited to a fall smoker and this year ninety-four prospects joined. Initiation takes place at a banquet held during spring quarter. Meetings are called only when the president feels they are necessary. Phi Eta Sigma plans to give an award to the residence with the greatest scholastic improvement. Phi Eta Sigma also contributed $300 to the Iowa State Center.

Pi Mu Epsilon

Students who have achieved distinction in a mathematical science compose the membership of Pi Mu Epsilon, a math honorary. Members are selected by a committee during spring quarter. Undergraduates are eligible for this national honorary if they have maintained a "B" average in college math courses for two years and are in the top half of their class. Graduate students and faculty members are also selected.

Pi Tau Sigma

Members of Pi Tau Sigma, a mechanical engineering honorary, are selected from the top twenty-five per cent of the juniors and the top thirty-five per cent of the seniors in mechanical engineering. Pi Tau Sigma stimulates interest in the department and coordinates activities within it. The outstanding features of the year include the selection of new members and a banquet which honors old members.

Psi Chi

Psi Chi, the national psychology honorary, presents lectures and programs dealing with areas of interest to students of psychology. Psi Chi was founded to advance the science of psychology and to encourage and maintain scholarship in academic fields. Members must have a major or a minor in psychology and must academically be in the upper one third of the psychology students.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Musicianship, participation in musical activities, a faculty recommendation, and a 2.5 grade point, are the requirements for membership in Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music fraternity. Members are hostesses at faculty and guest recitals and welcomed delegates to the state music convention held at Iowa State. The organization sponsors Sor-Dor, the group singing contest for women's residences.

Sigma Delta Chi

Sigma Delta Chi is a professional journalism society for men. The purposes of this organization are to serve and assist its members in acquiring the principles worthy of a journalist. In conjunction with Theta Sigma Phi, Sigma Delta Chi publishes the "Petticoat Pamphlet". Each year it sponsors a high school writing contest and invites the winners to a press day during Veishea.

Theta Sigma Phi

Students who reap the benefits of the "Petticoat Pamphlet" should give their thanks to Theta Sigma Phi for its help in the preparation. Theta Sigma Phi is a professional journalism and communications organization for highranking upper-class women who have intentions of making journalism their profession. The chapter also honors Ames women at the annual Matrix Breakfast.

Sigma Gamma Tau

In its tenth year under the name Sigma Gamma Tau, this organization is the highest honorary for aerospace engineers. By contributing to their profession by outstanding scholarship and active interest in aeronautics, upperclassmen gain consideration for membership. New members are selected during their junior or senior year, and membership is held throughout graduate school.

Tau Sigma Delta

Tau Sigma Delta, emphasizing scholarship and character, is a national architecture honorary for men and women. Tau Sigma Delta's purpose is to reward with membership those students who attain high scholastic standing in architecture and allied arts of design. To be eligible for membership, a person is required to be in the upper 20% of his class and have an all-college average of 2.8.

Tau Beta Pi

National honorary for all engineering students is Tau Beta Pi. It was organized in 1865 to honor students in engineering who excel in scholarship, character, and service. Sixty members were selected from the top one-fifth of the seniors and the top one-eighth of the juniors fall and winter quarters. These members are selected at smokers and they undergo a pledgship which consists of wearing Tau Beta Pi robes and mortar boards for a week. During this week they also serenade the campus during the noon hour from the steps of Beardshear. The organization established the bulletin board in Marston Hall for listing honor fraternities and posting the names of its own members. Members also conduct a tutoring service for freshmen engineering students.

COLLECTION of other members' views on the farm financial report is one of the advantages of belonging to Ag. Bus. Club.

One outstanding meeting of the Ag Business Club last year attracted over one hundred-fifty people. This was the night that the president of the National Farm Organization spoke. All meetings, held monthly, feature a speaker and include a coffee hour afterwards. The club has sixty members who must be enrolled in an ag business curriculum. Its purpose is to give students a wider acquaintance with ag business and to foster a spirit of cooperation among students. The members also elect a committee which interviews outstanding farmers and then selects the "Outstanding Farm Manager of the Year." The winner is then honored at the annual spring banquet. Last spring J. Merrill Anderson received the honor. The secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau also spoke at the banquet. Marketing management was emphasized by the club's Veishea open house display.

Agricultural Education Club

Orientation for new members, freshman initiation, and selected programs were highlights of the Agricultural Education Club. The club works to improve professional interests and to develop an understanding of the problems of agricultural education. The senior trip to the National Future Farmers of America convention in Kansas City was sponsored by the club. Scholarships of $25 were presented to Erwin Johnson, freshman, and Ron McClurg, sophomore. The Agricultural Education Veishea open house received second place honors in the agriculture division. Members published a quarterly newsletter which was sent to the 99 members of the 1962-63 club.

Organizing early, six Agronomy Club members attended the national club meeting at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York last summer. Local president Bill Klein served as national recording secretary and received third place in the national speech contest. Jim Tiedje, junior representative, was elected national vice-president and the Iowa State Agronomy Club was placed in charge of the contest for next year. Organized to give agronomy students a chance to learn more about agronomy and to give them leadership experience, the club sponsors members' participation in speech, essay, crop, and soil contests. Last fall the club compiled a fertilizer manual to guide various companies and individuals. Social festivities included a fall steak fry and a spring picnic.

SOIL MONOLYTHS are studied by club members in preparation for a soil judging contest sponsored by the club.

FRESHMAN THROUGH SENIORS can be found working in labs on design courses, an important part of the curriculum.

A new feature of the American Institute of Architects this year was the addition of a mixer-coffee during fall quarter to give the freshmen an opportunity to get acquainted with the faculty and upperclassmen. The AIA actively carried on a year-long program presenting aspects of the architecture profession to its members. These included demonstrations and meetings on office work, study abroad, historic preservation, and art and architecture. The Iowa State Chapter of AIA held an exhibit of prints imported from Japan by a Minneapolis firm and was also co-host at the regional convention held at the University of Nebraska. AIA is a national professional club, open to all interested students, which strives to promote interest in architecture through pertinent programs.

American Institute of Industrial Engineers

The American Institute of Industrial Engineers captured first place in the 1962 Veishea open house displays in the engineering division. The winning display included a computer display and a three-dimensional graph concerning the economy of automobile operation. Purposes of AIEE are to provide contact for students with professional industrial engineers and to promote interest in the industrial engineering curriculum.

American Ceramic Society

Information about developments and opportunities in the field of ceramics is provided to members by the American Ceramic Society. The society's membership is all ceramic engineering students. The group's activities consist mainly of regular meetings at which recent papers on ceramic engineering are read, but some social functions are held. This year a picnic for members and ceramic engineering faculty was held at the Ledges.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

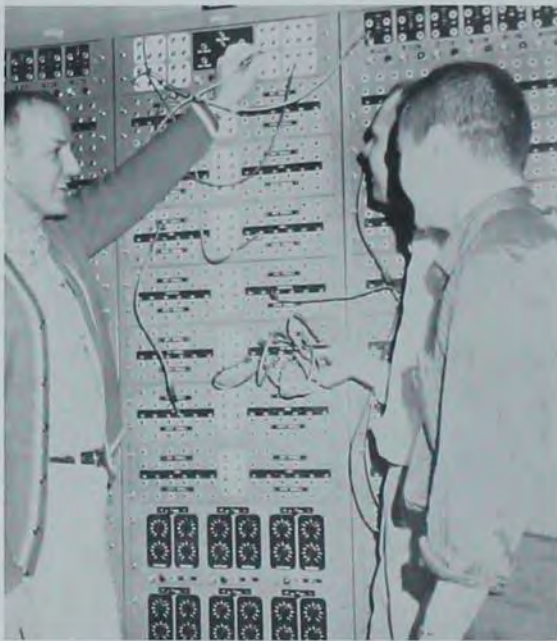

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers is a national professional society whose purpose is to inform chemical engineers of activities and announcements concerning college engineering. The sixty members sponsored the annual chemical engineering banquet and devised their Veishea open house display. Chemical engineers also held an open house during orientation to acquaint freshman with the chemical engineering program.

American Society of Agricultural Engineers

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers is a professional organization for those in an agricultural engineering curriculum. Highlights of their program were the spring picnic, a skit night, and a banquet for students, parents, faculty, and alumni. The Society also published the "Slide Rule Quarterly," a magazine explaining Agricultural Engineers activities. It is sent to parents, prospective students, and other schools.

AFTER A MEETING, IEEE members pause to contemplate and, possibly, confuse one of the computers in the EE building.

During Fall quarter about forty members of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers attended the National Electronics Conference in Chicago. At this conference, the electronics industry showed new products and presented technical papers telling about new advances in the electrical engineering field. The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers sponsored the electrical engineering picnic at Brookside Park last spring, as well as the annual banquet. Electrical engineering seniors and faculty presented skits as entertainment at the banquet. Also last spring, several IEEE members went on a field trip to Collins Radio Company in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Highlights of the trip were a tour of the plant and a banquet. The organization is open to any student who is in electrical engineering.

Institute of Aerospace Sciences

As its main objective, the Institute of Aerospace Sciences works to acquaint students with their field and to point out opportunities available to them. Speakers from various industries, faculty members, and informative films are all combined to help accomplish this purpose. During Veishea open house, visitors were allowed to operate the newly purchased wind tunnels, which were the highlight of the IAS display.

American Society of Civil Engineers

The American Society of Civil Engineers is a departmental club working to promote professional growth through close association with fellow students, faculty members, and practicing engineers. This local professional society had 115 members this year. The biggest annual event is the tug-of-war with the foresters which is held fall quarter at the west end of Lake LaVerne. They also sponsor the civil engineering Veishea display.

American Veterinary Medical Association

OPERATIONS CONDUCTED UNDER SUPERVISION enable students to gain practical experience and exact training in actual cases before graduation. Junior and Senior students are required to work in the clinic for this experience.

RADIO connections to the mobile unit are checked out by Edward Dunham. A quick call on this set will send the ambulatory clinic to wherever it's needed.

Long hours of study and work on the same subjects helps encourage veterinary medicine students to stick together. This natural tendency is furthered by the student chapter of AVMA. The student chapter, besides providing an opportunity for a friendly spirit to develop among the students and faculty of the veterinary medicine department, makes available to the students the professional information obtained by contact with the parent American Veterinary Medical Association. The special projects of the organization are planned and scheduled by the student Veterinary Medicine Council which is composed of the executive officers of the organization. Responsibility for the completion of most special projects such as Veishea open houses, smokers, and banquets is usually delegated to the separate classes.

BACTERIA under observation are compared with their pictures by Frank Havlik. Sophomore hygiene lab gives students first hand information about animal disease-causing-organisms.

AVMA's calendar of activities and events included a semi-formal dance, a stag picnic, a homecoming luncheon, and a fall banquet. The spring semi-formal for AVMA members and faculty guests was held in the South Ballroom and Sun Room of the Memorial Union under blue Hawaiian skies and the theme of the 50th state. The stag picnic was held spring quarter for faculty and student body at Brookside Park. The last meeting of AVMA during spring quarter was awards night and a $300 dollar scholarship, a new award from Walnut Grove, was presented to Al Droivold for his winning essay. At the awards banquet the newest members of Phi Zeta, AVMA honorary, were announced and introduced.

A constitutional amendment was passed establishing a committee to aid the Faculty Counseling Committee in counseling pre-vet students. Under the amendment, a program was established where a member of each class worked with the faculty in advising and helping Freshmen and Sophomore students. Veterinary medicine students planned a "Welcome Home" luncheon for alumni during the Homecoming weekend which was well attended by alumni, faculty, and students. Highlight of the winter season for AVMA was the annual Christmas party where the Junior vet med students were hosts to members of the faculty, the student body, and the families of AVMA members.

HISTOLOGY, or microscopic anatomy, is the immediate interest of Loren Appell and Steve Meier, first year students in the Vet Med curriculum. This study of cell tissue is opposed to the more commonly known gross anatomy of organs.

TRYING TO PREDICT their futures, Carter Kudrle, George Robinson, and Rich Stauffer, M. E. seniors, study the board which lists job offers seniors have received.

Background for a career as a professional mechanical engineer is the objective of ASME. The Club tries to present information from practicing engineers to its members in order to interest them in and prepare them for different phases of life as professional engineers. It is hoped that members carry the perspectives learned in the club to their professional career so that a closeness among mechanical engineers is perpetuated. As an immediate purpose, the club strives to acquaint members with each other and with the faculty. Membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is open to any student enrolled in the curriculum. The program for the year includes, besides the regular meetings, a spring banquet and a special initiation of new members.

Botany Club

Botany Club captured the all-University sweepstakes trophy for Veishea with the display "Knowledge of the Leaf Presents the Opportunity for Action." Highlight of the display was the "Leaf Room" which was built to resemble the actual interior of a leaf. Lighting and other sensory effects created the atmosphere of walking through the inside of a leaf. Estimated time to complete the 1962 Veishea display was 2,000 man hours.

Sigma Chi Tau

Inspection trips, speakers, and closer contact with faculty members all helped give members of Sigma Chi Tau more practical experience in their field. The club, in its second year, has fifty members, all of whom must be enrolled in construction technology. Another purpose of the club, besides the presentation of a broader view of the curriculum, is the formation of closer ties between members of the technical institute.

Block and Bridle Club

Judging teams, an integral part of the Block and Bridle Club, represent Iowa State at intercollegiate contests throughout the country. The biggest activity for Block and Bridle Club was the 43rd annual Little International Show. The central features of the show are a showmanship contest and a judging contest for Iowa 4-H and FFA members. The club also annually sponsors an accredited Horse Show in the spring.

Business Students Association

This year the Business Students Association began a departmental newsletter, "Triad," which is published quarterly. The club, open to any student registered in Industrial Administration, was organized to further the students' comprehension of the business world through programs which are highlighted with presentations by highly successful businessmen. Monthly meetings, a banquet, and a Veishea display rounded out club activities.

Campus 4-H

Campus 4-H is a co-educational organization that gives former 4-H workers a chance to continue their interest in 4-H in an organization on a college level. Purposes of the organization are to develop leadership, to provide social opportunity for members, to acquaint members with the aspects of the state and national 4-H program, and to interest members in extension work as a career.

Campus 4-H holds three educational meetings each quarter with some type of recreation included at each meeting. Social events of Campus 4-H included a winter campout at the state 4-H camp, tobogganing, and a spring picnic. For service projects, they had a work day at the state camp, a Christmas tree growing project, and held recreational training schools in nearby counties.

Dairy Science

Dairy Science Club is an agricultural organization which strives to help the student develop his leadership abilities. In September the club sponsored a statewide 4-H and Future Farmers of America judging contest at the University Dairy Farm. About two hundred contestants were present. The club also co-sponsored the Little International at the dairy farm with the Block and Bridle Club.

Dairy Industry

The biggest project for the Iowa State Dairy Industry Club was their 1962 Veishea display. It showed the process of cheese making; members sold cheese, ice cream, milk, and orange drinks to visitors. The Dairy Industry Club was created to promote interest in the dairy field and is open to any student majoring in the dairy industry or dairy plant operation curriculums.

EXPECTATION of officers' elections results in the gathering of club members at their January meeting. Meetings usually feature special speakers, but elections show an exception.

Fifty-five of the one hundred and thirty members of the Farm Operations Club set out on a club-sponsored tour just as the sun was rising one morning last October. Included in their itinerary were the Roswell Garst farm, the Ralston Co-op Elevator, and the Ray Fischer Swine farm. These well managed farms made the trip informative as well as interesting. This departmental club is striving to provide farm-op students with participation in extracurricular activities, to develop fellowship among members, and to help build and maintain a large enrollment in the farm operations curriculum. Parents of the members were invited to the winter quarter banquet in January. An outstanding speaker entertained and awards were given to leading members of the club.

Forestry Club

For the second year in a row, the foresters won the annual tug-of-war with the civil engineers across the west end of Lake LaVerne. Forestry club also sponsored the annual fall and spring forester's day where members spend a day competing in chopping and sawing contests and then top it off with dinner and a fireside. The forester's Veishea display was a scale model of a forest and display of the operations and tools involved in forestry.

Ames Forester

The Ames Forester is a student publication to inform faculty, alumni, and students of the latest phases in forestry techniques and the applications of these techniques. This annual publication also hopes to keep readers up to date on alumni news and on the activities of the forestry department at Iowa State. The club is organized solely to publish the magazine and selects new members through application to the editor.

A MEETING OF THE BOARD takes place as members of the Ames Forester staff discuss and plan features for publication. Most staff members are also members of Forestry Club.

Geology Club

A new program for the bi-weekly meetings of Geology Club was instituted winter quarter. This was the conduction of undergraduate seminars in conjunction with the meetings. The annual Easter field trip of the club was taken to northeastern Iowa and next year's is planned to cover the northwestern part of the state. The club works with the geology department to publish a magazine containing alumni, student, and faculty news.

History and Government Club

Any student who is interested in or wishes to become better acquainted with government and history is welcome to join the Government and History Club. The club provides a professional meeting ground for the students to discuss history-related topics. The big feature of the year is inviting a well-known speaker to present a program at one of the meetings, which are regularly held every three weeks during the year.

Horticulture Club

Adoption of a revised constitution enabled Horticulture Club to limit its membership to the students who have a genuine interest in the club. This revision requires interested students to apply for membership and states that if they don't attend a certain proportion of the meetings they are dropped from membership. Tropitine was the theme of this year's Horticulture Show which was held in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Iowa Chemistry Society

The Iowa State Chemistry Society is an affiliate of the National American Chemical Society. Membership is open to all students majoring in chemistry or chemical engineering. Purpose of the society is to foster a professional spirit among its members and to give its members experience in preparing and presenting technical material to a chemical audience. This was partially carried out by explaining projects to Veishea visitors.

PROFICIENCY IN SHOP WORK, such as this using of a metal spinning lathe, is necessary for I.Ed. majors who will be transmitting this proficiency to students in both school and industry.

A two day field trip, consisting of tours of industries and high schools, was again taken by interested members of the Industrial Education Club. The annual student-planned project included tours of Minneapolis and St. Paul industries. At the annual spring banquet the club honored the outstanding senior in the Industrial Arts Department from Ames High School. Work on their Veishea open house display and the annual industrial education picnic also helped to fill up spring activities for the club. Santa Claus made his appearance at the Christmas potluck, giving gifts to the children present. The Industrial Education Wives Club works jointly with the regular club on this affair. Members also publish a club pamphlet, Shop Savings, which summarizes the year's activities and suggests plans for the future.

Landscape Architecture Club

The year's program for the Student Society of Landscape Architecture Club consisted of bi-monthly meetings, picnics in the spring and fall, a spring banquet and Christmas party, and construction of a Veishea open house display. The club was organized to promote interest in landscape architecture and to discuss the problems of undergraduate landscape architects.

Mathematics Club

The aim of the Mathematics Club on the Iowa State Campus is to promote an interest in mathematics among all undergraduate students. Monthly meetings are planned with a program to help the student get acquainted and to introduce students to different careers in math. Math Club normally invites a speaker to each meeting to help members "broaden their knowledge in all fields."

Physics Club

Research on the Iowa State Physics Club cyclotron was the major project of members of Undergraduate Physics Club. Members also met to discuss the various fields of physics among themselves, as well as to get acquainted with fellow physics majors and physics instructors. The only requirement for membership in the organization is that the member be a physics major.

Poultry Science Club

Members of Iowa Turkey, Poultry, and Hatcheries Federation and other colleges and universities receive copies of "Cock's Crow," the publication of the Iowa State chapter of Poultry Science Club. This publication not only insures contact between the club and the other organizations but provides recognition of the accomplishments in poultry science of Iowa State students and faculty.

Over 300 students joined the Pre-Veterinary Medicine Club this year. The purposes of this pre-professional club are to arouse interest in veterinary medicine and to acquaint members with the different aspects of the Vet. Med. College and with the veterinary medicine faculty. Career and College opportunities available to veterinarians are also studied by the club.

Almost all purposes of the club were covered when the members took a tour through the veterinary clinic during fall quarter. Members used the knowledge they had gained about veterinary medicine to construct their open house display during Veishea. Veishea also gave members a chance to replenish the club treasury by maintaining a concession stand.

Science Women's Club

This fall the Science Women's club sold candy to raise money for a scholarship presented each spring to a deserving member of the club. The club made tray favors for the Ames Nursing Home and held panel discussions with members of clubs and honoraries in the college of Science and Humanities in addition to regular bi-monthly meetings. The club strives to bring women of different sciences together.

Society of American Military Engineers

The Society of the American Military Engineers was organized in the interest of national defense. SAME meets once a month to discuss general topics of over-all interest to military engineers and to present and discuss developments of special interest to students in an engineering profession. Annual activities include field trips where students can get a look at special field problems first hand.

Vacancies of the ten member Student Properties Board are filled through interviewing the applicants. The board furnishes equipment for any campus organization that requests it and uses any funds it collects to repair and replace materials. Emphasis this year was on the securing of new and different objects that have been requested in the past by campus groups.

Zoology Club

The Iowa State Zoology Club is open to anyone who is interested in zoology. In early March, its members took a weekend field trip to the Missouri River to observe the goose migration. They also planned several field trips around the Ames area. The purposes of the club are to provide entertainment while increasing knowledge about zoology and to study things of interest as a group.

The Government of the Student Body started off the 1962-63 school year with a new name, a new constitution and renewed enthusiasm. Formerly Cardinal Guild, the name was changed to the Government of the Student Body of Iowa State University and the constitution was revamped and approved in an all-university election. The government of the Student Body consists of a legislative branch, the senate; the administrative branch, the president and cabinet; and the judicial branch, the supreme court and the traffic appeals court. Under the new constitution, which went into effect this year, the size of the senate was decreased. There is now one senator from each residence association, one from each college, and three senators at large. A change was also made in the Freshman Government of Student Body constitution. This change combines ward system, Pammel Court, and unaffiliated students into one group and requires six meetings of the Freshman body.

Agriculture Council

EVERY club in the College of Agriculture has the right to send a representative to the meetings of the Council.

"Gone With The Wind" was the theme of this year's Autumn Cotillion dance sponsored by Agriculture Council. Tony Marterie provided entertainment for the formal affair with which Agriculture Council tried to return to the idea of a formal college dance. Ag Council also sponsors a Freshman reception, an all ag banquet, a Veishea open house display, an annual recognition party, and an annual picnic. Council meets semi-monthly to study problems of the various clubs and to present solutions for the betterment of the agriculture division through the combined efforts of the council members. Ag Council is composed of two representatives from each department of the division of agriculture, one representative from each club in the division of agriculture, two Government of Student Body senators, the editor of the "Agriculturist," and a faculty adviser.

THE LATEST issue of the IOWA ENGINEER gets close scrutiny by the members of the Engineering Council who represent each branch of engineering in the College of Engineering.

Engineering Council

All of the clubs in the College of Engineering are represented on the Iowa State Engineering Council. The council strives to organize the activities within the College of Engineering and to promote the interests of the engineers, the engineering college and the university. The council helps clubs plan their programs and provides speakers and activities for the various groups. Meetings are held twice a month to discuss business, problems, and to plan engineering events and aid the engineering faculty. Membership on the Engineering Council is open to juniors and seniors in the College of Engineering. Members are selected by the various departmental clubs. Social activities included Engineering days during winter quarter which this year featured a dance and a concert sponsored by the Engineering Council.

Home Ec Council

The Home Economics Council at Iowa State represents one of the largest home economics clubs in the world. It is affiliated with the national Home Economics Council and was organized on the Iowa State campus to strengthen and co-ordinate college club activities. This club also aims to help students feel they are a member of a professional group, to create interest in the field of home economics and to financially assist students in home economics. During winter quarter the club sponsored seminars on the "International Interest of Business and Professional Women." A United Nations tea for foreign students, a sale of cookbooks filled with the recipes of the favorite food of faculty members, the sponsoring of three scholarships for home economics students, and the preparation of the annual "Dames Daze Dance," were four of the numerous projects undertaken.

OUTSTANDING MEMBERS of the College of Home Economics are given recognition at the annual Recognition Dessert sponsored by the Home Economics council.

MEMBERS of Science Council relax at an informal dinner in the Memorial Union following their regular meeting. Science Council aims to promote unity in the College of Science and Humanities and to coordinate the activities within the College.

Science Council

The Iowa State Science Council acts as a liaison between the students in the College of Science and Humanities and the college faculty members. The Council is composed of thirteen members and faculty advisor, Dr. Keith Hussey. Each fall Science Council sponsors a reception during the Freshmen Orientation Days. It also sponsors faculty firesides each quarter. During spring quarter the Council sponsored a banquet for the departmental club presidents and outstanding members of the clubs. At this time the three most outstanding club members were recognized and given awards.

Veterinary Medicine Council

The Veterinary Medicine Council is the executive council for the student chapter of American Veterinary Medical Association and most of its work centers around plans and programs in connection with AVMA. The Council meets monthly to select committees who prepare the special events in the College, and to plan and coordinate the activities of AVMA. Annual activities of the AVMA include a homecoming luncheon for all alumni, a winter smoker, a fall banquet, a Christmas party, and the spring dance. The council decides on the eligibility of applicants for membership in the AVMA and selects recipients of AVMA awards and presentations.

WITH SANTA CLAUS, candy, Christmas trees, and lots of cheer, the American Veterinary Medical Association entertained their families at the annual Christmas party.

The provision of recreational, social, and civic programs for the residence area for married students attending Iowa State is the service performed by Pammel Community Council. A mayor and nine councilmen make up the council. Five permanent advisors and nine judges also serve on the council. They are elected by the adult residents of Pammel Court and their chief job is to function as a residence government. However, members also initiate innumerable projects for the physical improvement of the community of Pammel Court. During this last year the council suggested fluoridation of Pammel water, effected the improvement of community streets, sidewalks, and recreational areas, and sponsored a program of increased cooperation and communication with the Government of Student Body, residence, university, and city officials.

SOCIAL functions, such as the spring dance, are sponsored by the Council for Pammel and Hawthorne residents.

"CY" the largest and most enthusiastic member of Iowa State's Pep Club, aroused enthusiasm and led cheers at the football games and pep rallies during the year.

"Give me an I. Give me an O. Give me a W. Give me an A. Iowa State!!" One of the aims of the Iowa State Pep Council is to promote enthusiasm and support for the athletic teams of Iowa State. They also coordinate the activities of the band, cheerleaders, Varsity I, and the students. Generating enthusiasm, Pep Council conducts pep rallies and coordinates the card stunt section at football games. A new stunt initiated by Pep Council this year was moving designs with the cards. Highlight of winter quarter was a sports banquet for the wrestling and basketball teams. A new position on Pep Council this year was a representative elected from each residence. The representative attends meetings and obtains information about Pep Council activities and relays the information to his respective residence. Pep Council also sponsors Iowa State's mascot "CY."

NEWS FORUM held winter quarter in the Gallery of the Memorial Union was one of the most popular events sponsored by Union Board. Prof. Schwartz, journalism, discusses one of the major news issue of the week.

EACH DAY dozens of coffee cups, saucers, and dishes are placed on the new conveyor belt which was installed in the commons of the Memorial Union to aid in cleaning up.

Union Board

Interviews and an all college election is the method used to select members of the Memorial Union Student Board. Members are elected whenever a vacancy occurs and usually serve until graduation. The purpose of the board is to serve Iowa State students since the group represents the student body on the Union Board of Directors. The board attempts to provide activities of interest to everyone. A news forum was held winter quarter and several other types of forums also took place. Summer vacation finds many students packing their suitcases, checking passports and boarding planes and cruisers for a summer abroad. For these lucky travelers and anyone else who wishes to dream along, the union sponsored a Travel Forum providing hints and information on foreign travel. Students and Ames residents who have traveled themselves were the main speakers.

SPEAKERS at the Religion and Life Week events spend time after the program meeting and talking with their audiences.

MR. LEE PHILLIPS of Prairie View A & M University was the opening convocation speaker for Religion in Life Week.

Student

INFORMAL youth fellowship get-togethers are encouraged by the SRC in addition to their all college programs.

The Student Religious Council's largest project highlighting each year is Religion in Life Week. This year SRC embarked on a new year-long program of Religion in Life. Parallel programs were scheduled during the entire nine months of the school year and were split into different topics for emphasis each quarter. This year's topic was "Man's Quest for Peace." During fall quarter the religious point of focus was "Man's Quest for Inner Peace." With the beginning of the new winter quarter, the focus changed in scope to "Man's Quest for Peace in His Community." Spring quarter stressed the idea of "Man's Quest for Peace in the World." The actual religion in Life Week of 1963 provided concentration in all three areas for a brief time. Mr. Lee C. Phillip of Prairie View A&M, Prairie View, Texas, presented the opening convocation for Religion in Life Week.

Together, members of the YMCA and the YWCA sponsored discussion groups for the University community. Discussion topics ranged from "World Trouble Spots" to "Men and Women in the Twentieth Century." The International Gift Fair sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA is an annual affair where students may purchase articles from foreign countries and meet foreign students that are attending Iowa State. The YMCA and YWCA also sponsored the International Christmas Party which introduces an American Christmas to foreign students and a foreign Christmas to American students. Other social activities included a Woodchopper's Ball in the fall and mixers between the YM-YW groups. The spring conference is also attended jointly by the YM and YW. Y members maintain the "Dugout" in the basement of Alumni Hall. One of the more informative and interesting projects carried out jointly by the two groups is the Tennessee Valley Authority Tour held during fall quarter break. Spring quarter break is the time for the Y sponsored Washington-United Nations Seminar.

About fifty students from the Westminster Fellowship of the Presbyterian University Center have participated in the weekly deputations to churches and church groups in Iowa this year. Topics used by these groups included such themes as "Youth in This Troubled World," "Freedom to Know," and "The Church in Different Parts of the World." In addition eighteen Iowa State students attended a work camp at Birch lake, Minnesota, and twelve students went to the Inter-collegiate Council retreat held in Cedar Rapids which emphasized "Roads to Peace in an Atomic Age." As a Christian Student Movement, this group is part of the local, regional, and national united Campus Christian Fellowship. Fund-raising projects such as a pancake supper and work days have been carried out under the direction of the group's faculty adviser, Dr. Charles Hutchcroft, and their spiritual director, the Rev. Charles G. Workman.

Members organized a University Forum to provide cultural and social activities for the members of the Iowa State Christian Science Organization. Activities included bowling, dances, Sunday evening meals, and informal meeting on the Christian Science Monitor. Members of this group met each Tuesday evening to listen to readings and to discuss Christian Science as applied to campus life.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

The members of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship and members of the Drake Fellowship group spent a weekend during the fall on a retreat at the 4-H camp. The organization also sponsored a hayride with Drake students. A regular years' program consisted of Bible study, discussion groups, conferences, prayer groups, Evangelistic breakfasts, and weekly meetings.

SONG FESTS, and other social events gives members of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship a chance to meet and get to know people of different denominations other than their own.

Evangelical United Brethern

The Trinity Fellowship of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, is striving to relate young people to the total program of the Church through leadership, service, study, fellowship, and worship. This active group took a big interest in trying to share in the joy of giving as a part of the Christmas Spirit. One weekend was spent at the Riverside Bible Camp making Christmas favors for hospitals with caroling later.

FIFTY STUDENTS were members of the Baptist Student fellowship. The fellowship has been in existence and open to all students since 1898.

Baptist Student Fellowship

A Leadership Training Workshop was a main feature of this year's Baptist Student Fellowship group. Promotion of the Christian faith was the object of many activities. Freshmen were introduced to the Fellowship last fall at a reception. Social activities included a hayride attended by 25 couples who were entertained at the "Flying W" Ranch with refreshments and singing around an open fire.

THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST meet for the usual Sunday discussion groups and highlight their year with social action trips and work week ends.

A journey to Austin Texas to view the Faith-In-Life community was the main social action tour this year for the members of the Disciple Student Fellowship. The Fellowship, student organization of the Christian Church, a program of social action, study, and worship. Members made social action tours to the state mental hospital in Minnesota and spent work week ends in Des Moines with an urban renewal area.

Quarterly week-end retreats, an annual canoe trip to northern Minnesota, and a social action trip during spring quarter break were all part of the fun had by members of Frisbie Fellowship. Frisbie students also did volunteer work in Anoka State Mental Hospital. Behind these activities of the United Church Campus Center group is the purpose of good fellowship and religious study.

Frisbie Fellowship

FRISBIE HOUSE, on Lincolnway near the campus, provides a convenient meeting place for the fellowship members who go to the Congregational Church in downtown Ames.

Wesley Fellowship

Three main groups are combined to form the Wesley Foundation. These include the Wesley Fellowship for undergraduate students, the Graduate Fellowship for single grad students and four sections of married students. Worship, study, and action units are formed from these groups. One type of study group is the Community of Lay Scholars which are groups of four to eight people who gather for worship, study, and fellowship. Two Methodist service fraternities, Kappa Phi for women and Sigma Theta Epsilon for men, make themselves useful to the community and the campus throughout the year.

Canterbury Club is organized to help provide recreation, fellowship, worship, and learning for the Episcopal college students. However, any student is invited to attend. Twist parties are especially popular for the Canterbury members. Music supplied by Bob Scott and the Vanguards has been heard pouring from the church lounge where the students can be seen enjoying an evening of "relaxing" twisting. On Sunday evenings the students set aside time for an inspirational period spent in prayer. After these devotions, dinner is served. With appetites replenished and temporarily satisfied, speakers and group leaders guide the students in discussion and thinking on various thought-provoking topics. During fall quarter one weekend was set aside for fun, worship, and learning at the Madrid 4-H Camp. Father Douglas Haviland is the chaplain for St. John's.

Gamma Delta is the Lutheran Student Organization which aims to provide a program of Christian fellowship based on Christian knowledge. The threefold purposes, of religious, educational, and social activities, are extended each week to approximately 60 members. Vespers are held each Sunday evening followed by supper and a program. Gamma Delta's main fund raising project of the year is the operation of a concession stand during Veishea. Part of the profits realized are sent to the international Gamma Delta mission project. Social activities included a Rosebud Banquet, a mixer held the first Saturday night during fall quarter to introduce new students to the fellowship, and an ice cream freezer party the first Sunday night of fall quarter. Many members of Gamma Delta took advantage of several retreats, workshops, and conventions that are sponsored by the group during the year.

Newman Club

Construction of the new St. Thomas Aquinas church was the biggest project undertaken this year by the Catholic Student Center and the Newman club. Members had a penny barrel in their lounge to collect money for the new building project and were aiming for a goal of one million pennies. The Newman Club is the national Roman Catholic student organization on college campuses. Highlighting the social scene of the year for the Newman Club was the semi-formal dance held winter quarter, featuring the music of the Don Hoy Orchestra. The Newman club also sponsors an international night where students of other countries present a program showing customs and traditions of their native lands. Sunday evening suppers were prepared each week and were followed by a program of entertainment.

Music at Iowa State echos forth from four main sources. The 120 members of the marching band make their appearance at all home football games. The group also appears at some road games and made a journey to Minneapolis last April. Some members of marching band also compose the small pep band which is heard at basketball games and pep rallies. Practice three times a week keeps musicians in the concert and varsity bands in top shape for formal concerts, the Christmas Festival of Music, and other campus ceremonies. Symphony orchestra is made up of both students and members of the community. It gives concerts and makes a small tour presenting the best in classical and symphonic music. Vocal music is produced by the Iowa State Singers at such events as Homecoming Barbeque and Christmas festivities.

REHEARSAL three times a week results in the precision drill performances of Frank Piersol's marching band at all home football games. The group also takes part in the Veishea parade.

ONE of the Iowa State players teeters on top of a ladder to dismantle the scenery in Shattuck Theatre so it can be moved to Curtiss Hall for one of the Players productions.

GIANNI-SCHICCI, a lab theatre production, was produced by the cooperative efforts of Players, the music Department and interested faculty members.

Iowa State Players

Lab Theatre, Iowa State Players, Children's Theatre, Theatre 324, and Film Theatre are the five theatre groups which are open for student participation at Iowa State. Both Lab Theatre and Iowa State Players present one performance per quarter. Players use only student actors and actresses and produce popular well-known plays. Lab Theatre uses student talent combined with outside talent and experiments with productions of opera and eighteenth century comedies. Iowa State Players is a student organization made up of all the members of the Iowa State Theatre. Eligibility for membership in Players requires completion of work on two major productions.

Iowa State Debaters

At the nationally recognized Missouri Valley Forensic Association Tournament, the Iowa State Debaters took first place in oratory and second place in debate. This active and informally organized group not only gathers for its own purposes but acts as an asset to the campus and the community in many ways. The Debaters present weekly radio discussions over WOI and provide various community programs. On campus, their interests are even stronger. Speaking experience is given in the all-university Extemp Contest open only to non-members of the Debaters. Debates between the presidents of the Young Republicans and Young Democrats, between the MRA and IFC presidents, and between GSB senator-at-large candidates are planned by Debaters.

SECOND PLACE in the Missouri Valley Forensics Association tournament was taken by debate team, Grosland, Pease, Sumner, and Spencer.

Sketch and Writers' Roundtable

An outlet for undergraduate writing as well as an incentive for more of it is the purpose of Sketch magazine. Sketch is the student operated quarterly publication which contains short stories, poetry, and art work selected from material submitted by Iowa State Students. The purpose of Sketch board is to perpetuate this literary magazine and to choose the creative material that goes into it. Sketch board sponsors Books and Cokes during the spring and fall quarters. Here, members of the faculty or students review a book each week at the Union. Thirteen members and apprentices of Writer's Roundtable meet bi-weekly to discuss and analyze the writings of the other members. Many of the writings that are discussed at the meetings are submitted to Sketch.

"BOOKS AND COFFEE" features faculty book reviewers while the spring quarter "Books and Cokes" is completely a student effort.

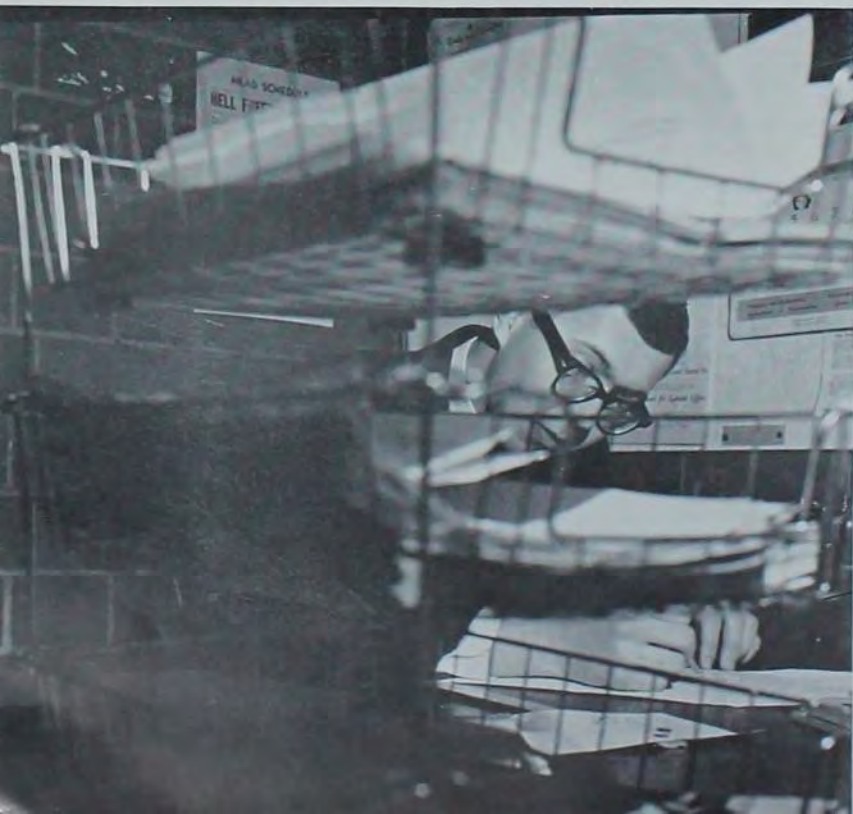

JERRY KNIGHT assumed the duties of editor at the beginning of spring quarter succeeding Nancy Anderson who held the position since spring '62.

CHECKING COPY, posting beat sheets, and digging up stories are some of the varied jobs of Dave Nilsson, assistant managing Editor during winter and spring quarter.

BEHIND the "copy in" and "re-write baskets, Jerry Knight who was managing editor fall quarter and night editor winter quarter checked all of the copy that was to appear in the Daily.

IT'S ALL IN A DAY'S work as the day gets longer for Kathy Jacobson, managing editor, who finds herself wearily checking the last minute copy and layout sheets for tomorrow's Daily.

Iowa State Daily

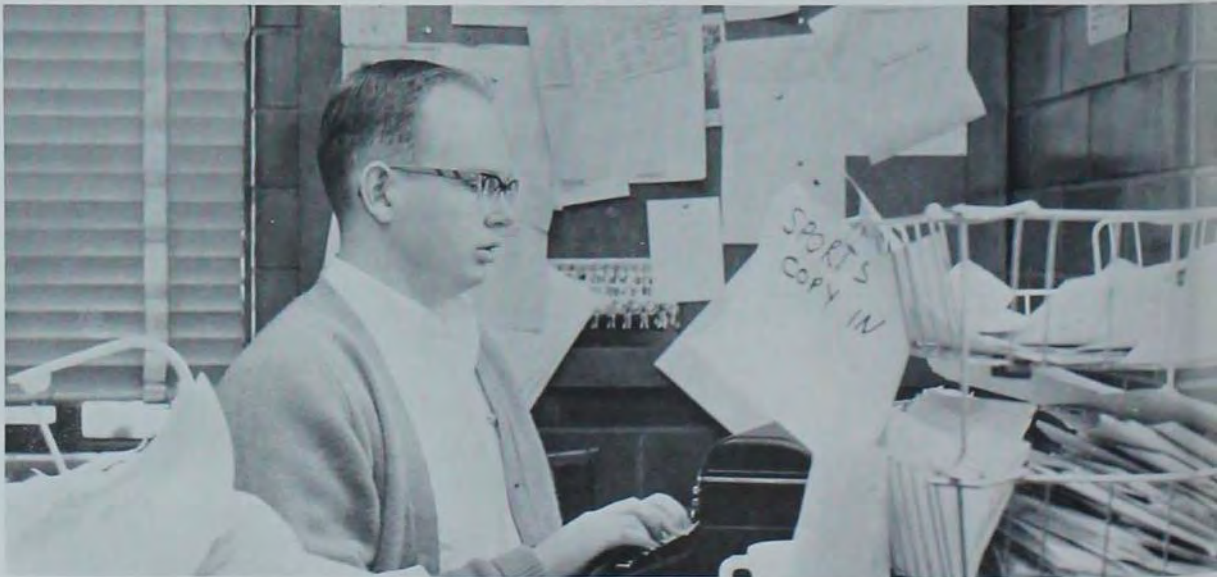

ALL-ROUND Dave Buck moved from the position of sports editor fall quarter to associate editor winter quarter. He was succeeded by Steve Dreeszen.

The clack of the teletype is silent. The pounding of the typewriters is still and the flurry and hurry of the last minute deadlines are finished for another day. A half eaten sandwich rests in the "Copy In" basket, a smouldering cigarette guards the rim, and a coke bottle reigns supreme surveying the general havoc. Chairs are askew and the inner office is quiet now. The Iowa State Daily has gone to press! The Daily serves the University Community telling news of Iowa State and is distributed on campus and the surrounding area five mornings a week — Tuesday through Saturday. The editor, sharing an office with associate editors, lives in a world of deadlines. Amid a pile of papers and "extraneous" reference, a potted green vine, and lots of noise, the editor-in-chief, sets up the editorial policy, selects letters to the editor, writes editorials, lays out the editorial pages, and chooses editorials from other publications to be reprinted in the Daily. The business-like piles of paper on the desk just outside of the editor's door shows the work is completed, in the process of completion, or needs to be started. The managing editor who is at this desk hides behind the copy baskets systematically checking the "Copy In" basket, the re-write basket, answering the telephone, and typing ideas for new stories.

ADVERTISING provides half of the cost of publishing the Daily. Max Schnepf was business manager for the Daily this year.

PINCH-HITTING in the slot of sports editor during winter quarter was Don Johnson who kept the University informed of Cyclone action.

Tips for stories come from all over the university . . . professors, students, publicity chairmen for various groups, and reporters. The actual production of the day's issue of the Daily begins early in the morning when the managing editor posts the beat sheet on the east wall bulletin board, next to the critic sheet, lab reports, photographers notes, re-writes, phone call messages, and a bevy of left-over information. The society and sports editors also post their beat sheets early in the morning. Beat sheets are the list of reporting assignments with that day's assignment and "creative" notes concerning previous assignments. Volunteer reporters and students of the technical journalism classes check the "beats" before classes and pursue that story for the day, checking all angles writing, rewriting, and collecting all information for the article. All day telephones in the Daily office ring bringing news and information to be included in the next issue. The hum of activity reaches it highest tempo about four in the afternoon, when the presses are starting to roll and "dead line" comes closer.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR fall and winter quarter Kayleen Honeck had a hand in every issue of the Daily and could often be found on the rim editing copy.

"SPORTS ILLUSTRATED" . . . what else for the sports editor of the Daily, Steve Dreeszen, who snatches a few minutes from a busy schedule to catch up on the latest sports news.

REPORTER Carol Jensen puts the final touches on her story. Daily reporters come primarily from journalism 222 classes.

THE "BACKSHOP" puts the Daily into its final form. Late deadlines sometimes keep pressmen working 'til midnight.

The issue editor or the night editor positions the stories and pictures on the layout pages prepared by the advertising staff. Headlines are written and each story is checked. The headlines and pages are assembled and sent to the "backshop" downstairs. The sports editor and the society editor furiously make a last minute check of the "herd" book to make sure that a name is spelled correctly and their pages are also sent downstairs. As the layouts are sent down, the pages are readied. The proof readers read the galley proof and the page editors make the final approval of their pages. The corrections are made, the page proofs are ready and the "Daily" is returned to the backshop and goes to press. The presses roll and tomorrow's Daily telling of the university community will be available to students and subscribers. A final check of the issue hot from the press and the staff heads home for some sleep.

CHIEF HONCHOS for the Ag, Ron Patrick, Vic Pierott, Ron Kiewiet and Jim Grunig, managed to hit an all-time high record for getting the issues out during their respective months.

The voice of the College of Agriculture, published by the students in agriculture, for the students in agriculture, and about the students in agriculture is the Iowa State Agriculturist. Under this year's editors, Ron Kiewit and Jim Grunig, the Agriculturist went to press eight times during the school year. It offered information to the students in agriculture which they could not get from an ordinary farm magazine. It tells what the College is doing and relates agriculture at Iowa State to agricultural activities outside the University. This year the Agriculturist was the recipient of several awards in a contest sponsored by Agricultural College Magazines, Associated. They awarded the magazine second place on the "cover award" and first in "general excellence" for the magazine as a whole. The "Ag" also received the First Place Award for Non-Fiction Writing from Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society.

Iowa Engineer

The Iowa Engineer is the publication of the engineering college which tries to acquaint students with developments in the engineering field. Under the 1962 editor, James Altorfer, the Iowa Engineer was distributed each month to students in the College of Engineering. The magazine is edited, written and managed by students in engineering in order to give those interested in writing an "extra" which is not included in the engineering curriculum. The Iowa Engineer is a member of the Engineering College Magazines Associated. Featured in each issue are an "editorial" which offers thought provoking ideas to the students; "The Dean's Page" which shows the College of Engineering as reflected in the eyes of the dean; an "Engineer's Girl" chosen from the campus coeds; and the "Old Dog Sez" which is a page of jokes. Each issue also has stories related to the latest developments in the field of engineering.

The Iowa State Scientist is the official publication of the College of Science and Humanities. Students cooperate to meet the monthly deadlines from October through May to bring information of interest to students in the Science and Humanities College. Introduced in the magazine this year was a new feature, "The Scientist's Lab Partner." The month's "lab partner" is selected from Iowa State coeds. Staff members completely publish the magazine, selling all of the ads, making the layouts, writing the stories, editorials and taking the pictures. The Scientist each year presents a special award to best all-round article appearing in the Scientist, which may be either fiction or fact. Jim Livengood was this year's editor; Jim Stephens was associate editor; and Larry Gruel was managing editor. The Faculty adviser for the Scientist is Mr. Rodney Fox, technical journalism.

With a bustle and a hurry of activity, students enrolled in veterinary medicine publish the three issues of the Iowa State University Veterinarian. The magazine is distributed to students of veterinary medicine, veterinarians throughout the United States, and veterinarians in over 30 foreign countries. Students, as well as veterinarians throughout the world, may submit manuscripts for publication. The writing, editing, and publishing of the Veterinarian serves both the staff and the readers and gives students experience in preparing manuscripts for publication. As it is the official magazine of the Iowa State Veterinarian Alumni Association news of the college of veterinary medicine is published. The magazine also contains a wealth of information on recent developments in the Veterinary Medicine profession for practitioners and researchers.

BOMB

Pressure increases in March when two weeks remain to get the Bomb printed and to the bindery, but the job of putting the book out is an all year effort. Late in winter quarter the new editor and business manager are selected. Spring is occupied with the receiving of bids and signing of contracts for senior pictures and engraving. At this time space is allocated. The layout is planned during the summer. Fall begins the push to get pictures and by December some of the 16 page units known as dummies are due at the press. At the end of March all 480 pages must have been completed and proofread three times and sent on their way to the bindery. Then there are only tag ends to tie up and the May distribution to get out of the way on that book while work on the next year's book has already begun.

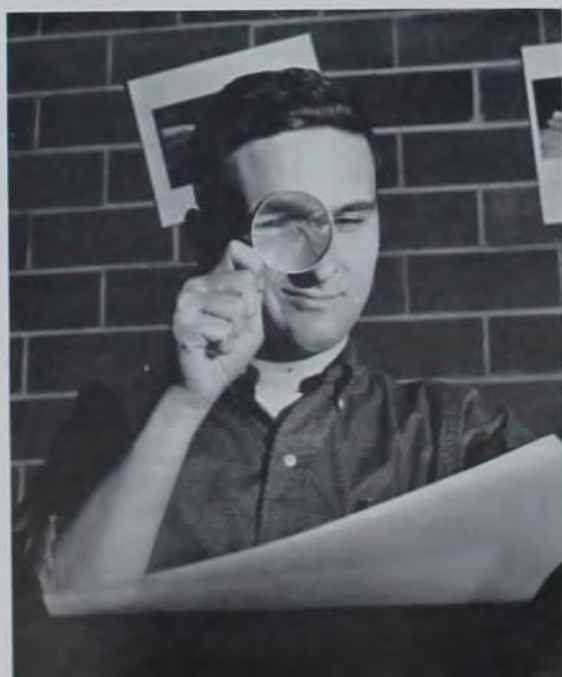

RELIANCE on Bill Cox, head photographer, was not only for meeting picture crises, advising the photography staff, and keeping the darkroom in order but also for finding new places such as under the enlarger in which to snooze.

DENNIS BROWN, managing photo editor, wields a magnifying glass when picking pictures from contact sheets. The main part of Denny's job was making the layouts for the book.

EMERGENCY replacement, Gary Murphy, took over one of the biggest jobs, Managing copy editor, a quarter and a half late and brought the copy into order.

ONE TRANSFER matched another and resulted in Larry Hermann taking over the vacated seniors editor position. Prior to coming to Iowa State Larry edited two college yearbooks.

Everyone has his place and seldom was anyone in it. The managing photo editor's main job was making layouts so it was perfectly natural that he should spend a whole afternoon typing residence active and pledge lists. This sort of incongruity was not only not out of place, but often was the saving factor for the Bomb. The staff was recurrently caught short-handed. Fall quarter started with the loss of a sports editor. This was followed by the transfer of the senior editor, the resignation of the managing copy and photo editors. Most of the positions were filled by shifting staff members and moving up new recruits, but the position of copy editor was unfilled for the final two quarters.

INDEXING the indentifications for all the pictures in the book was Mary Cord's responsibility. Mary will be editor of the 1964 Bomb.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY is taken up by Shirley Bailey, features editor, to counteract the effects of struggling to find a way to show an overall picture of Iowa State activity.

DONNA VAUGHAN, sports editor, and Carolyn Campion, academic editor, debate the value of one of the sports pictures.

COLLECTION of information sheets and organization of copy writers, were the responsibility of Cathy London and Sandy Gowan, activities and residence editors.

BRENT MITCHELL, assistant business manager, dictates a letter to Marty Hackenberg, secretary. Much paper work is involved in the letting of contracts for cover, engraving, and photographs.

BOMB PHOTOGRAPHERS gather to give aid to a fellow photographer in trouble. The new printing machine was a great time saver. It turned out finished prints in half a minute — ties and shirt cuffs usually took a little longer.

A yearbook for 10,000 people is of necessity a big job requiring much help. Interested, but inexperienced people are given copy writing, typing and indexing jobs. The editorial staff consists of these workers plus a core of ten titled and official staff members. The photography staff usually consists of about eight people. The number of photographers varied from two to ten, but there were never enough of them, and equipment seemed to be even scarcer. Friendly relations with the other publications provided sources of aid in a pinch, and the University Information Service's picture file frequently was mistaken for a fairy godmother.

Pershing Rifles

The selection of a coed as honorary cadet commander is one of the highlights of the year for Pershing Rifles. Pershing Rifles is an honorary which strives to develop interest and ability in leadership, drill, and command. Annual activities of this club include a banquet, regional drill contests, invitational drill meets, and performances at various athletic contests. Only those enrolled in ROTC are eligible for membership.

Scabbard and Blade

Re-introduction of the Military Ball was the biggest project undertaken this year by Scabbard and Blade, a military honorary. The last military ball was held in 1959 as an all-University dance, but this year it was limited to the military. The dance was used to promote interest and recognition for the military and to establish unity among the three services. Members are selected from the top one-fourth of their respective military class.

Advanced Artillery Cadets

The social aspects of being a military officer are the topics handled by the Society of Advanced Artillery Cadets. The club is a local professional and social honorary with seventy members. Monthly meetings are held to acquaint the members with the social side of the service. Members also had a Veishea open house display on artillery equipment and presented a public demonstration on the use of a "Bishop" trainer.

A.F.R.O.T.C. (Rifle)

The Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Rifle Team is organized to promote sportsmanship and good riflery. Approximately 20 members meet Thursday evenings in the Armory for a 2-3 hour practice. Members competed in rifle meets with Kansas University, Oklahoma State, and in Iowa League matches with State University of Iowa and Drake University. They also received first in the Iowa area of the National AF match.

Arnold Air Society

Arnold Air Society is organized to advocate support of air power, to further the tradition of the Air Force, and to create a closer relationship within the Air Force Reserve on campus. Arnold Air's formal dance was held at the Ames Country Club spring quarter. The Veishea 1962 project was a concession stand in front of the Armory. Arnold Air also sponsored an auto-safety program along with the Ames Chamber of Commerce.

Angel Flight

Under the sponsorship of Arnold Air Society and Major Clarence Anderson, Iowa State's O'Neil Squadron of Angel Flight was organized last spring. The squadron consists of twenty-three pledges chosen through application and interview, plus the charter members. "Angels" wear their uniforms every Tuesday. They function as a service organization to promote the Air Force usually by serving as hostesses.

CYCLONE Captain Jim Clapper meets the Drake captain to begin another year on the gridiron.

The Iowa State Cyclones, 1962 edition, opened the season against Drake, the traditional first-game foe. The Cyclones began the season in fine style winning 14 to 7. This game provided several firsts in Iowa State football history. The team averaged 207 pounds making it the heaviest ever fielded here. The new single-wing "T" was used for the first time by the Cyclones. It was installed by Coach Stapleton in order to provide a more balanced running and passing attack. Twenty-two thousand people watched the game, becoming the largest crowd ever to visit Clyde Williams Field. Visiting Oregon State as the underdog, the Cyclones lost a real heartbreaker 39-35. With 1:27 left to play, the Beavers recovered the ball on their own 36 and the widely acclaimed Terry Baker took over and passed for a touchdown to erase the lead that Iowa State had held for most of the game.

Football

Dave Hoover's fine running and Larry Switzer's passing arm were put to good use throughout the season as they backed up Dave Hoppmann at tailback and quarterback. Hoppmann, showing the stuff that made him an All-American tailback as a junior, alternated between the quarterback slot where he showed skill in running the team and kept the defense on their toes with the ever-present threat of the long pass, and the tail back position where he ran with the slashing style that has ranked him among the all-time greats at Iowa State University. Other backfield standouts were Tom Vaughn, Ozzie Clay, and Dick Limerick. Vaughn provided a running punch at fullback and turned in a magnificent job on defense. Speedster Clay showed some flashing speed as the safety man. Wingback Dick Limerick was on the receiving end of many passes and scored on several.

DAVE HOOVER'S one-arm handstand adds a few more vital yards to a close victory over Drake.

DAVE HOOVER demonstrates the blocking skill shown by all Iowa State backs while another Dave (Hoppmann) fires one of his completed passes.

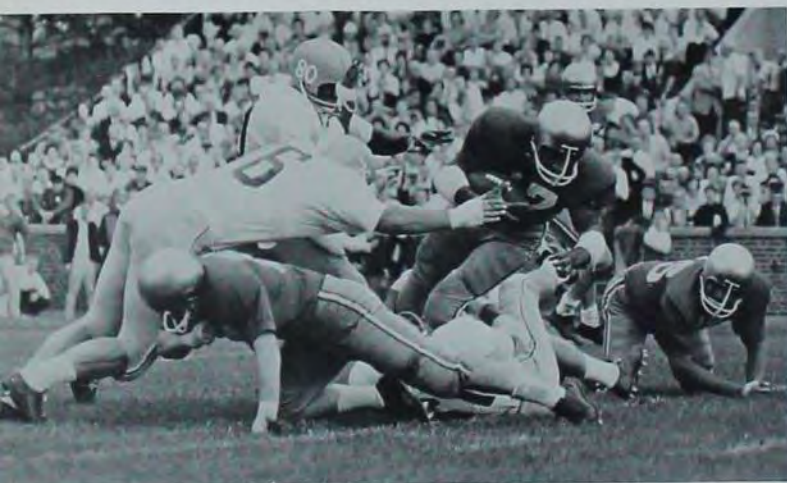

Nebraska's rampaging Cornhuskers proved to be a little too much for the Cyclones in their conference opener. The lone bright spot was the smashing blocks and powerful running by fullback Tom Vaughn. The color and pageantry of Homecoming greeted the visiting Kansas Jayhawks but failed to awe them enough to help the home team. Iowa State fell before KU and 23,000 fans by a score of 29-8. A wildly cheering Parent's Day crowd helped spur the Cyclones to a 57-19 rout of the Buffaloes of Colorado University. An offensive show as this never fails to make oldtimers think back trying to think of similar feats in the past — the consensus was that there were not too many Saturday afternoons that could rival this one.

IT WAS a long afternoon on the bench as a tough Oklahoma team makes up for two consecutive losses to the Cyclones.

Hoppmann breaks Cyclone yardage record

One of the finest efforts of the year reaped only six points against Missouri while the Tiger football machine ground out twenty-one points using sheer force. The Cyclone invasion of Stillwater, Oklahoma State's baliwick, proved to be highly satisfactory. Randy Kidd starred in the line and Tom Vaughn and Dave Hoppmann carried back-field honors. Vaughn played the entire 60 minutes and made his presence known. Some of his bone-jarring tackles could be felt in the twentieth row. Hoppmann broke a school record held by Dwight Nichols for most total yardage. Later in the game the Big Eight career yardage record also fell to Durable Dave. The 34-7 victory raised spirits in the Cyclone camp and set the stage for the reviving Oklahoma Sooner's visit to Clyde Williams Field. Bud Wilkensen's troops came in seeking vengeance they had, 41-0.

TACKLE Bruce Grasser blocks a Kansas lineman as Ozzie Clay takes the ball for a five yard gain.

Iowa State	31-22	Ohio University

The Cyclones closed the season with two straight wins. The Wildcats of Kansas State fell 28-14 and Ohio University was on the short end of a 31-22 score. While the 5-5 record was a disappointment to many, there were several high points during the season. Dave Hoppmann set six school records and broke the conference career total yardage mark. The team set a school mark of 57 points in a conference game. Looking back, there was some fine football played and some that was not so fine. The season might best be ended by saying "Wait until next year."

GOAL KEEPER, Chris Saccopoulos, stops Charleton from racking up another goal.

Loss of experienced players and addition of several new players made forecasters at the start of the season wary of being optimistic, but confidence would not have been ill-placed. Although they did have a loss to bring their longtime record to three losses in four years, the soccer team finished admirably with a 2-1 record. The season started fast with a 5-1 victory over Dubuque University and closed with a victory over Grinnell College. The one blot on the record was a close defeat (2-3) at the hand of Carleton College. This was due to a scoreless second half for ISU.

Five returning seniors gave the 1962-63 Cyclones a basketball team packed solidly with experience. With these five forming a fully experienced starting team and with the addition of promising new reserves, Iowa State fans were justified in looking forward to a successful year and perhaps even a Big Eight championship. The starting five consisted of center Rich Froistad, forwards Vinnie Brewer and Gary Kleven, and guards Dave Groth and Marv Straw.

The Cyclone season ran in streaks with the club playing errorless and seemingly unbeatable ball at times and then going through stretches where nothing would go right. Slumps toward the end of several games, including losses to Illinois and Oklahoma State, also plagued the Cyclones and probably cost the team the opportunity to have one of Iowa State's most outstanding seasons. The season opened with two victories which included an impressive conquest of Indiana which was then eighth in the nation. However, Drake stopped the Cyclone surge so thoroughly that the club was rocked into its first slump. The boys still looked impressive against Big Ten Champion Illinois but fell in overtime to an Illinois rally. Apparently shook, the club then went through a West Coast trip, the Big Eight Tournament, and the first two games of the conference season with little or no success. The record showed four losses in a row and a zero and two conference record when the team started to jell. Vince Brewer looked like his old self and Marv Straw continued his hot shooting as Drake suffered the Cyclones revenge victory. Six straight conference wins followed and Iowa State was second in the Big Eight. The string of seven in a row appeared to be an almost sure eight before Oklahoma State started a rally and stopped the Cyclones 54-50. All was not dead however, and the best game of the season saw nationally ranked Colorado go down to defeat in the armory.

PROTEST from the crowd attests to the difficulty of the referee's job of seeing everything at once.

CYCLONE STAR Dave Groth tries the sneaky approach in a victory over Oklahoma.

With only four games remaining four teams were still contending for the Big Eight title, and the Cyclones' chances depended on two straight road games. The club drew a blank on the trip however and after losing a close final game at home they settled into their third place position. A review of the season however shows several outstanding individual performances which will go down in Cyclone history. Vince Brewer started the season slowly but soon again became the club's number one scrapper. Battling against men several inches taller, he set a Cyclone career rebounding record.

SENIOR FORWARD, Gary Kleven, adds one of his 62 free throws. Gary was high scorer for the season with 207 points.

AN INTENSE DESIRE to win put the Cyclones on the long side of the scoreboard against some of the nation's best.

Brewer, Straw move to 2nd and 6th in Cyclone all time scoring

Vinnie also upped his career scoring to over 1,000 points, making him the second highest scorer in Cyclone history. The transfer of Marv Straw to guard probably helped the club more than any other move as Marv opened up from outside and led the club in scoring. He also led the team in free throw percentage and saved several games with his coolness at the line when the pressure was on. These feats helped bring Marv the most valuable player honor, a first team all conference position, and an invitation to play in the East-West game. Gary Kleven not only led the team in rebounding, but acted as leading scorer through the first few games. Dave Groth performed as the top defensive man and due to his spirit was named next year's honorary captain.

A FEW MINUTES REST and a strategy conference mark the all too short half-time break.

Captain Joe Frank led the matmen to a successful season in which only one team could claim victory over the tough Cyclones. Injuries to key personnel were no real difficulty as teammates moved to higher classes and still did the job. A third place finish in a tough conference was only a clue to the action which took place in the N.C.A.A. meet. With five men in the semi-finals the Cyclones ended up three points short of the title as Virgil Carr (157), Gardon Hassman (167) and Veryl Long (147) took third places and Larry Bewley (137) and Lowell Stewart (115) came through with 4th places and points.

Gymnastics

Led by Captain Bob Stewart the fledgling gymnasts surpassed expectations to finish third in conference competition. With only one year of gymnastics the Cyclones swept their first two meets with Kansas and Kansas State. Against tougher teams the gymnasts ended up on the short side but their determination and continuous improvement made them a force to be reckoned with. Outstanding individual performances were turned in by Hatfield (floor exercise), Selby (trampoline), Stewart (parallel bars) Westburg (side horse) and Wiggers (high bar and p. bars). Wigger's 100 points was the years' high and Selby's consistent high placing in national competition won him the Most Valuable Player award by team vote. His 6th place in the N.C.A.A. gave the Cyclones 20th place out of 42 entries.

After a 2-2 indoor season the thinclads hit the cinders to run undefeated in dual competition during the outdoor season. Grinnell succumbed easily as the Cyclones opened. Minnesota proved tougher, but the Gophers also fell as Larry Eilert went 6'6" for a new meet record in the high jump and Dave Chipman cleared 15'5" in the pole vault. A real team effort pulled a surprise upset on Drake. Despite a fall in the mile relay and a pulled muscle which sidelined Morgan Langston after three wins, the Cyclones couldn't be stopped as they took 9 of the 16 events and were assured of a win with three events to go. Dick Pilgrim and Norm Johnston were double winners as S.C.I. went down. South Dakota State made it 5-0 as the cindermen took 29 out of 44 places. Beginning the season with a decisive victory over Drake the Cyclone linksmen, led by lettermen Clayton Arnold and Jim Merchant, traded win for loss most of the season. The first loss to Oklahoma State was followed by a win over Kansas State and a loss to Oklahoma. In a setting of a Parisian sidewalk cafe, members showed the girls the various activities of the WAA. These activities include intramurals and interesting club programs. Intramurals are open to any girl. Teams for various competitive sports are formed within residences. The club program bases membership upon skill, and the WAA clubs offers a chance for fun and relaxation in a variety of ways. The WAA is governed by a cabinet and by the various club presidents. This year the officers traveled to Lincoln, Nebraska for a general conference. At this convention they gained new ideas concerning membership drives, awards, and sports days. Althea Gibson was the principle speaker for the convention. The WAA Veishea display included club demonstration showing the basic skills and new skills that members learn.

Seventeen different sports are included in the intramural program. The main sports are team efforts such as touch football, volleyball, basketball, and softball. In these: the presence of former high school stars makes the competition quite keen and keeps the games exciting. Individual sports including billiards, horseshoes, golf, and others makes the program well rounded. Champions in each sport are decided in each of the four classifications (M.R.A., Fraternity, Ward, Grad) and then an all-university champion is usually decided from the four champions. Coeds also have a limited intramural program which gives them a chance to get together in friendly competition. They participate in such sports as tennis and deck tennis.

About the only way for the average student to get any exercise after coming to college is through participation in intramurals. Iowa State probably has one of the better organized systems for keeping its students in shape. The four groups of the intramural program combine in a year to produce more than 1600 teams which include over 12,000 participants. Students must participate with the organization with which they are affiliated, but the wide coverage gives all students an opportunity. The only persons prohibited from playing are varsity athletes whose sport is in season at the time.

Gaining physical co-ordination and fencing experience is the primary function of the Cyclone Sabres, Iowa State's fencing club. The Sabres was organized in 1958 by Rev. E. W. Remley of Collegiate Presbyterian Church and Capt. William Thomas, Army ROTC, both enthusiastic fencers. They organized people who could already fence, and later started a fencing course for men's physical education. A few months later, women demonstrated an interest and the club was opened to them. Many members are in the Iowa division of the Amateur Fencing League of America, AFLA, which competes with members over the state. The main reason for participating in the club is for older members to gain experience from strong competition and to coach younger members. The club is attractive to its women members because their opportunities to compete in sports outside the University are scarce. Many female members think the sport is too difficult and drop out, but those who remain become enthusiastic fencers.

RESIDENCE

Organization is the key to the existence of Ward. This was discovered throughout the year whenever efforts were made to plan social functions for the students living in off-campus housing. The real impact came during the all-university convention when Ward arrived with 170 representatives too many. The crux of the problem was who constituted a Ward member. The ensuing battle resulted in representation of dues-paying members only. The center for off-campus activities is the Ward office in the Union. Members can go to this office between classes to socialize, study, and dodge People-to-People officers. Activities and notices to Ward members are publicized by posting them on the Ward bulletin boards located on the ground floor of Beardshear and by the Westgate entrance to campus.

Women's Residence Association

This year, in hopes of creating a sense of identity, the Women's Residence Association adopted a Crest, consisting of a red rose and the colors red and white. Increased interest in the WRA has been demonstrated in voting participation of over 82% in the WRA elections. The WRA now gives recognition to an outstanding coed for service to the WRA, to her own residence hall, and to other campus activities. Cathy Coed serves as social hostess for the WRA and is featured in the newly revised Q's for Coeds. Last year the Women's Residence Association worked with the Residence Department, the Office of Student Affairs, and Panhellenic Council to extend Women's hours. The Women's Residence Association has led discussion groups on freshmen orientation and belongs to both the Association of College and University Residence Halls and the National Association of College and University Residence Halls.

MARGARET GAFFNEY, WRA president elect, declines her nomination at all-university convention for the position of student body president.

East Linden Hall

STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE for leaving the dorms after 6 p.m. is signing out at the office desk.

So girls don't play football! East Linden girls quickly disproved this theory when they put themselves up as a football team at the '62 Blast auction, were bought by Adelante, and then tied them 18-18 in the final play-off. On the more serious side of dorm life, to enlarge the opportunities for reading and reference in the dorm, each graduating senior class donates a book to the E. Linden library. The WRA, Mortar Board, Tomahawks, and Autumn Cotillion Ball crowned girls with high honors, while twirling artist Joyce Rice again exhibited her professional ability at various campus sports functions. Participation in Sor-Dor provided music lovers with a wonderful chance to sing and enjoy themselves. Their clever entry in Veishea, in participation with Livingston House, brought the girls a third place trophy.

Birch Hall

WHAT WHO LOOKS LIKE is checked out by Birch Hall girls for one of the girl's visiting parents.

The transformation from ping pong tables to a Christmas scene occurred in Roberts Rec Room and was instigated by the girls of Birch Hall for their Christmas party. Birch Hall was also the sight for numerous teas and open houses including ones for Freshman Days, Homecoming, Parent's Weekend, and Veishea. Along with Alumni Hall, they worked on their Veishea float "Gone With the Wind." The girls joined together in teams and participated in intramurals including softball in the spring and volleyball during the fall. "Hobo Holiday" was the name of their Blast booth which was done in combination with Livingston House. "No Room for De-feet," their Homecoming display, won 2nd place in the WRA division. They worked on their display with the men of Lange House. Election of individuals into honoraries added more to house pride.

Green pine, candles, a warm fire, and a large Christmas tree set the mood for Elm Hall's Christmas Cotillion at the Nevada Country Club. The Skylarks played soft music for the couples and candy cane favors were given to the dates. Also during winter quarter twenty Elm Hall girls assembled and sang in the Sor-Dor chorus under the direction of Jean Kramer. Spring quarter saw Elm Hall and Dodds House industriously working on their float for Veishea, "Peter Pan." At this time Sue Phillips received honors as high average girl in bowling club. Elm girls eagerly took part in all phases of intramurals during the year. Fall quarter was highlighted with the Blast and Homecoming. Working with Harriman House on their booth, "Tip the Bottle," they won the Pre-Blast Publicity Trophy. Fairchild was their Homecoming partner in building "Pluck the Jayhawks."

NOURISHMENT is one of the important things in life. Opportunities for getting nourishment were increased in the women's dorms by the installation of ice cream vending machines.

INSIDE, where it's warm and the television set is turned on, is a logical place for Freeman women to spend a winter Saturday.

Letting their imagination run wild, the women of Freeman Hall greeted 1962 Homecoming visitors with a colorful and well-coordinated open house theme: "We 'Plan' to go to the Orange Bowl." In addition to all doors and rooms in the dorm bearing clever decorations, the bushes and trees in the front were adorned with bright orange balloons to simulate real oranges. Originality continued through the year as the Freeman women joined the men of Norman House in "Blastille" for Campus Chest in late October. Their effort and work was well rewarded when they received the trophy for selling more tickets than any other Blast booth. The "something for everyone" idea came through once again as song-loving Freeman girls organized an ensemble and began practice for the annual Sor-Dor competition.

Bedecked in brightly colored roses, the Oak Hall dining room and recreational room served as the scene of their spring dinner-dance "Majesty in Roses." A southern plantation and a minstrel show carried out the theme. The singers of Oak Hall survived the eliminations of Sor-Dor and entered the finals. Donned in black sheaths and white gloves, they sang excerpts from "Flower Drum Song." The talents of the Oak Hall women were again put to use with those of the men of Carpenter House as they presented their Blast booth, "The Missing Goose." In the course of the evening, 36 dozen eggs were broken over the heads of Oak Hall girls. This past year also saw many members of Oak Hall tapped for campus honoraries. Tomahawk, Omicron Nu, Theta Sigma Phi, and Delta Phi Delta all chose their share of Oak Hall girls to become pledges.

Roberts Hall

CURRENT EVENTS can be boned up on in the Roberts parlor as Roberts, like most of the residences, subscribes to several magazines and newspapers.

Gay music and happy voices are an often heard sound in Roberts Hall when the girls gather for an after-dinner songfest. This informal practice paid dividends as Roberts won first place in Sor-Dor. Veishea found Noble House forming the other half of a combination float depicting the "Greatest Show on Earth." "Cy" was a Homecoming visitor to the Roberts lawn as he prepared to tear the Jayhawks to bits. Traditions are an important part of any residence. The Christmas Fireside is no exception. Other Christmas activities found the girls caroling and giving gifts to a Des Moines children's home. In 1962 several girls from Roberts were honored. Mortar Board tapped one, two were selected for Tomahawk, and six were selected for Beacons. Barb Mosher was one of the finalists for 1962 Homecoming Queen.

A NEW STEREO, dedicated to former housemother, Mrs. McCanon, brightened the leisure hours for Welch Hall.

Welch Hall

Top scholarship is only one of Welch Hall's many achievements this year. The girls of Welch combined their vocal talents well enough to capture the runner-up trophy in the dormitory competition of Sor-Dor. On the intramural fields they became softball champions and took third place in basketball. The Beacons honorary tapped four sophomore girls. A Welch Hall freshman, Audrey Chown, was chosen as a runner-up in the milkmaid contest sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club. Welch worked with Caine House to construct their Blast booth entitled "Fag and Fiend." The firesides and teas held at Welch were made more enjoyable through the addition of a new stereo which was dedicated to their former Housemother, Mrs. Byrde McCanon. The formal dinner and dance sponsored annually by Welch was given this year under the theme of "Carousel."

OFFICERS of West Linden discuss plans for "Spice on Ice" the winter quarter dance held at the Sheldon Munn Hotel.

With open doors and friendly smiles, the girls of West Linden made floor parties a popular idea this year. Colorful and fun themes were chosen and the rooms decorated accordingly. Refreshments made the get-togethers especially inviting and provided that often-needed late evening snack. Moving out of their dormitory world into campus life, the West Linden women enjoyed a variety of exchanges, ranging from miniature golf and old-fashioned hayrides to working on the Homecoming display or relaxing in front of a friendly warm fire. Cleaning rooms and cooking a spaghetti dinner were two of the tasks the girls were hired to do at Blast. Amidst all the fun, the importance of scholarship was not forgotten as several girls achieved the perfect 4.0 for their quarter average. Homecoming and Veishea open houses and a Parents' Day tea were used to show the dorm off to parents and other guests.

Men's Residence Association

PRESIDENT Craig Davis was overseer for all the MRA organizations and coordinated the activities of the organization.

Programs and services providing leadership, recreational, social, educational, and special skills development are originated, financed, and administered by a student government whose foundation is forty Houses of approximately fifty-five men each. From a small, pioneering effort in 1946, the MRA has grown to an organization composed of 2,200 men and will increase by another 400 next year when the new Helsler addition is occupied. Coordination of the activities of this confederation of houses was handled by the Executive Council headed by MRA president Craig Davis. Members are elected by all-MRA vote.

Main Cabinet establishes policies; sets up group to interpret laws

Law enforcement among the men is officially carried out by house conduct committees but the creatures known as head residents carry the main brunt of the order keeping job. The HR's are employees of the Residence Department and are responsible for taking care of the physical facilities, and are personal counselors for the men. As advisors the HR's stay in the background and leave the running of the house to the elected house officers. Besides providing rules and regulations for members and supporting the development of special interest clubs, the MRA plans special programs. One of these is an orientation program for freshman. This program includes tours organized by the MRA and special house freshman days programs. The MRA also sponsors quarterly dances. At the spring dance recognition is given to outstanding men in the form of tapping for Chessmen, the MRA honorary.

Vice-presidents of the forty houses compose Main Cabinet the legislative body for the MRA. This cabinet determines association policies, establishes by-laws, and approves administrative appointments. This year Main Cabinet changed the rates for rebates to houses building Veishea floats and Homecoming displays, established a group to interpret MRA rules, and passed an attendance requirement act for itself. Executive Council and Main Cabinet are the two main governing bodies for the Men's Residence Association.

Growth of the MRA is being accompanied by growth of the MRA services and clubs. The MRA library has been expanding regularly with the purchase of new books provided for in their budget of almost $400. This money comes from the fund left for the library by past President Friley and from an annual allocation from MRA funds. Fall quarter of 1963 the library will be moved into new and larger quarters in the new addition to Helser Hall. Accompanying this move will be a name change for the library. It will become officially the Charles Friley Memorial Library.

MRA growth accompanied by growth of internal organizations

WEIGHTLIFTERS' CLUB is composed of 350 men who benefit from membership by attending monthly meetings led by Pete Veller, pres., and using the work-out room in Hughes Hall.

PRINTING SERVICE improved its service to MRA houses and members by purchasing a new press which produces greater quantity and better quality work.

Changing the transmitter system topped the program of improvements for MRA radio station KISU. This change was undertaken both to comply with the Federal Communication Commission's regulations and to improve reception. Other improvements include the purchase of a new tape recorder, a new control board and new turn tables. KISU covered campus events such as Veishea and athletic events, the all-university and MRA nominating conventions and President Hilton's speech to GSB.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS of the MRA include quarterly dances at ISU and exchanges with Drake coeds and Des Moines working girls.

PLANNING the program for the day as well as all technical and broadcasting work is done by the forty-five students working at KISU.

MRA continues to sponsor special events: KISU maintained as "voice"

NEWLY ELECTED MRA President John Nelson speaks at the inaugural banquet held annually for all new officers.

D. J. DARYL RAY does his part to keep KISU, MRA radio station, broadcasting til 1 a.m. daily. Programs of show tunes, classical and jazz music are regular features of the station.

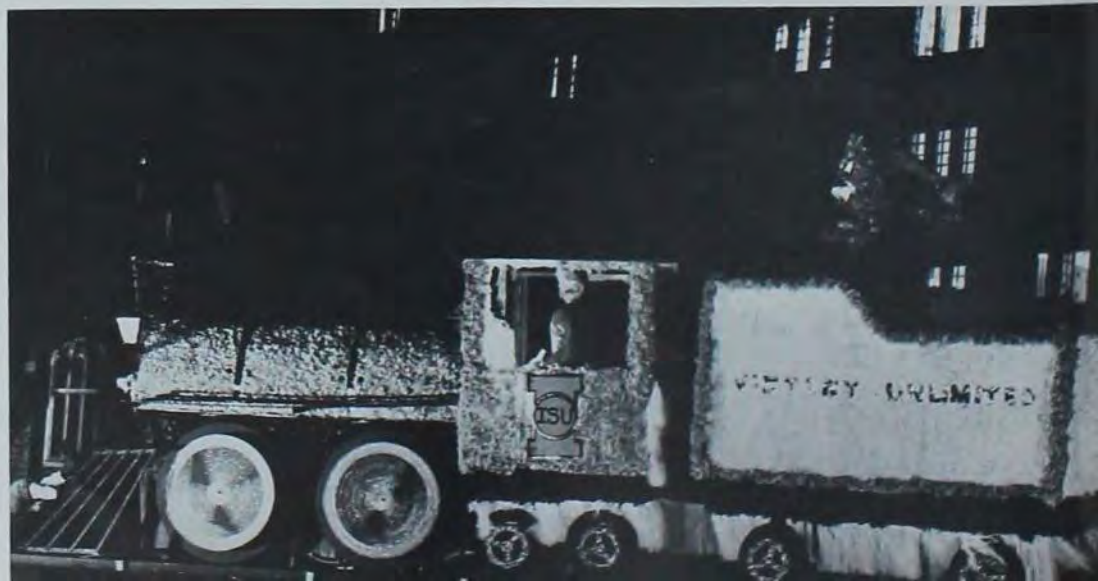

Houses compete in all-university events

SECOND PLACE in the Veishea float MRA division went to Baker House's entry. Each residence group is ranked in a division by itself for Veishea float judging.

LAWN DISPLAY BUILDING and Veishea float construction is encouraged by the MRA. A $35 rebate of dues is given to each house participating in such work.

HOMEcomings LAWN DISPLAYS occupy the time of members of about fifteen houses. The decision as to whether or not a house should build a display is made by each house.

Recognition of outstanding house achievement was accomplished this year by awarding one Sweepstakes trophy and four trophies for honorable mention to all around outstanding houses. Previously, trophies have been awarded to each of the houses most outstanding in one of the four areas, scholarship, intramurals, activities and service. This year Lange House won the top award, and Beyer, Dodds, Harriman, and Pearson Houses received honorable mentions.

A 100 per cent increase in membership in the MRA Camera Club was made possible by the club's expansion into another room. This expansion included an increase in equipment. A new print dryer, an enlarger and other less expensive equipment were purchased. The Toastmasters Club also doubled in size, but no accompanying increase in facilities was necessary and the weekly meetings continued as before. Additions were also made to the entertainment facilities for the MRA men. These additions, besides including the usual intramural equipment replacement, included two aluminum canoes and car carriers for them, and several pairs of ice skates for rental. The intramural board also purchased jumper cables which were available to members during the cold winter weather. Proof that entertainment is a big business for the MRA is the fact that the Intramural Board's expenditures approached fifteen hundred dollars.

Canoes and ice skates added to intramural equipment

BLAST BOOTH construction was also done by MRA houses. Many times it is the same houses which participate in these projects. The MRA's change in awards system was designed to encourage a slightly more balanced diet of activities.

TOASTMASTER'S CLUB meets weekly to give members a chance to practice speaking.

CAMERA CLUB doubled in size with the acquisition of more space and new equipment. The MRA did supply some money for the expansion, but usually the various clubs support themselves on dues.

TEMPORARY HOUSING

An over-supply of men and an under-supply of rooms results in the formation of a temporary housing group. These men live in the basement of Friley at the start of fall quarter. By the end of the quarter the normal drop-out relieves the space shortage enough so that by winter quarter all the men are permanently housed in one of the regular Men's Residence Association houses.

CONSTRUCTION of an AM-FM receiver kit attracts a full squad of kibitzers in Bennett House.

The men of Bennett House have made a name for themselves during the past year as intramural champions. Such championships seldom are mentioned on big time sports but nevertheless, to the men of Bennett, a volleyball championship and the gutterball league bowling championship brought great pleasure and collective satisfactions. The Bennett House boys were on hand at Veishea and after many hours of planning and building, came up with a float, "Madame Butterfly". The graciousness of this house was shown by the tea held for the Sweetheart's Ball Queen candidates. The spring formal, "Festival of Lanterns", gave the men of Bennett another opportunity to show their lady friends a fine evening. Held in May at the Motor Inn, this dance was based on an oriental theme.

Gung-ho about football and forming their own little traditional cheering section, Beyer House won third place in the MRA for their Homecoming display "On the Way to Miami." At Veishea they won second place in the MRA for the float "Hansel and Gretel." In order to keep up to date with Iowa State coeds, Beyer House held seven exchanges throughout the year. Winter quarter they held their annual steak fry, and a month later was the house party "Avalanche Inn" at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge. Spring quarter the men took dates to a picnic at Pine Lake. Intramural wise, Beyer House won honors in both softball and bowling. As their special project, they collected money for the Iowa State Center. They also enlarged the den to make room for homecoming displays and Veishea floats, as well as informal parties.

Caine House rounded out the year with good success in intramurals. They garnered two trophies in bowling and the first place trophy for Class B softball. In addition, they were runnerup in Class A volleyball. Lack of success in swimming was not the fault of several members of the house. These men began swimming practice early in the fall at Ledges State Park. Perhaps, though, their spirits were dampened by the fact that they were not given any forewarning about the impromptu swim session. This practice took place at a stag picnic where most of the house members were satisfied with football. "Fag and Fiend" was the theme for the very successful Caine House Blast Booth. Welch Hall was their partner in this enterprize and much of the success of the booth was due to the cigarettes and coke dates which were given out as awards.

The harvest moon was no doubt one of the items for the Cessna House fall dance, "Moonshine and Roses". It was late in the season for roses but no doubt this refers to the coeds who added so much to the atmosphere of the party. The center of attraction was a still, used to carry out the theme. There was no report regarding the activity of this part of the decorations, but it certainly must have added atmosphere. The traditional cider and doughnuts rounded out an enjoyable evening, along with dancing and the music of Jed Stelter. Cessna explored further the world of dance during Veishea when they produced a float entitled "Hey-Let's Twist". This required a continuous twist for the length of the parade route. Jello lovers in the house were probably eager participants in their Blast booth, "Catasplat", where jello was catapulted at house members.

A GLASS WALL is installed as part of the remodeling work on the Cessna House den. Dens in Friley-Hughes Hall are being remodeled at the rate of two per year.

LAKE LAVERNE IS READY, and the men prepare to make sure that Chamberlain is represented in the ranks of the ice skaters.

The men of Chamberlain House are justly proud of their intramural record. In the fall of '62 they won the Class B football championship. In the winter of '62 they captured the MRA total points trophy and also won in the MRA bowling league. In the spring of '62 they were Class C volleyball winners and first in tennis singles and doubles. How's that for a record! However, the dancing shoe refused to take a back seat to the gym shoe. Chamberlain House held a dance at the 4-H Camping Grounds, an orientation Day exchange, plus a hayride. A barbershop quartet, "The Chambermen" upheld the family name in Varieties competition. The men enjoyed many hours of fellowship as they built a "Moby Dick" float for Veishea and a booth entitled "Chamberlain Water Festival" for Blast. An activity within the house, namely scholarship, is being encouraged through an awards system.

Anyone for intramurals? The men of Converse House engage in everything from basketball to bowling, track, swimming and even a mean hand of bridge. These stalwarts shared a toboggan party with Birch Hall girls, picnic at the Ledges with Elm Hall, and a dinner exchange with Welch. Also on the schedule were a hayride and various impromptu exchanges to basketball games. An open house was held for parents and friends after the Homecoming game. Veishea float theme was "Around the World in 80 Minutes" (needless to say, this engineering feat was not accomplished in 80 minutes). Three traveling scholarship trophies proved a stimulus for Converse House men. These trophies were for highest grade point, room with highest grade point, and greatest grade point improvement. Men in Converse like to sing and several are members of campus singing groups.

WHEN PROBLEMS COURSES raise their ugly heads it never hurts to have a few fellow housemen sweating for the same answer.

Contrasting climates created the atmosphere at parties sponsored by the men of Dodds House. With the help of Stanton and Godfrey, they presented "Wonderland by Night" last December at the Nevada Country Club. Moving from the snow and cold of winter to the sun and warm sand of a Hawaiian summer, Dodds decorated the Holst Hotel in Boone with Vanda orchids and invited their guests to a Hawaiian cruise. Favors consisted of china statuettes of hula girls. The several other parties that took place included a picnic at Ledges State Park, a roller skating party, and a post-Drake game party. The men also left their racks early one morning for a breakfast exchange with Elm Hall. Peter Pan battled Captain Hook aboard a pirate ship on their Veishea float built with Elm Hall.

When the intramural teams at Iowa State are on the field or on the court, Fairchild House is represented. Whether in team sports or individual competition, Fairchild was there many times and often up among the winners. This was especially true in track and field events last spring. This spirit of competition tended to weld together this group of men. A Homecoming display and participation in the Veishea canoe races were house contributions to all-university activities. Fairchild House has revived one of its traditional social activities, "The Final Fling", a house dance held the weekend before finals. This gives the boys a chance to forget for a moment the trials of the quarter and help them prepare for the struggle ahead. This last relaxation is usually held at the Val Air in Des Moines.

PREPARATIONS are made for the "Playboy Party" which Fairchild and two other houses held in the recreation room.

AN ADAPTATION of the space needle from the World's Fair served as the Homecoming lawn display for Franklin House.

Franklin House continues its enviable scholastic record. Its nickname, "The Pinnacle of the MRA", must relate to the standing of Franklin House when quarterly averages are announced. Franklin House men are not only recognized collectively but also individually as shown by three members having been tapped for Phi Eta Sigma, freshmen scholastic honorary. At Homecoming, study was put aside briefly so that a replica of the Seattle World's Fair space needle could be constructed as the Franklin contribution to house decorations. "Observing a Victory" was the appropriate title. The spring formal found the house in a gay mood for a "Hawaiian Holiday". A fine dance band and the singing of "The Chambermen" gave the men a chance to show their ladies that scholarship is only one of their interest; they also believe that all study makes Jack a dull boy.

The men of Godfrey started the year with enthusiasm and kept it action packed throughout. In the fall they chose one of the college students' favorite comic strips and featured Charlie Brown and Snoopy in their Homecoming display. Come winter, they went inside with their winter formal "Wonderland by Night", held at the Nevada Country Club on December 2. Melody and mood for the evening were furnished by the Skylarks. The men were active in all intramurals throughout the year, but put the big push on in spring. Here, they battled down to the wire, finally losing in the class A softball semifinals. Godfrey men also allotted some time to loosening up their vocal cords and exhibited the results of this well spent time in Sinfonia. Here Godfrey was selected as a finalist in the MRA division.

DISPLACED from his normal roof top position, Snoopy stands ready to serve the men of Godfrey as part of their Homecoming display.

WALL-TO-WALL carpeting adds a distinctive and unique touch of elegance to the Harriman House den.

"Tip the Bottle" became a winning idea as Harriman House joined with the women of Elm Hall to create the booth which earned them the pre-Blast publicity trophy. From this successful venture, the men of Harriman went on to plan a Homecoming open house. A prominent feature was the display of 1961-62 MRA scholarship trophies, including a first place for fall and spring quarters. High scholarship in Harriman was balanced by numerous relaxing activities. House tournaments in bridge, pool, ping-pong, cribbage, chess or checkers provided needed recreation. The men enthusiastically engaged in basketball, volleyball, and softball intramurals. An annual date party at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel included entertainment provided by a guitar player and short skits given by men of Harriman house.

Kimball House started out the fall in a wild manner by opening a Gambling '62 Kimball Klub. The club included all the fixtures of a gambling hall, even sharp dealers in red vests. A quiet spot for dancing was provided for those members who went "broke". Switching the scene completely, the men of Kimball went "Hawaiian" for their semi-formal spring dance. Several exchanges were also interspaced among the social events of the year. At Veishea time, Kimball combined with Freeman Hall to construct a "Keystone Kops" float. In spite of all this activity members still found time to hit the books and did it so well that Kimball won first in the MRA for increase in grade point. Intramurals also drew attention and two individual winners were produced, placing two trophies in the newly added trophy case.

BALANCING THE BOOKS seems to be the problem at hand as members of Knapp House get the latest word on house finances.

Pleasure and profit were combined by the men of Knapp House last spring quarter by holding an auction to raise money for the house. Besides this annual function, a special all-house supper is held each quarter. Other special activities included dances during winter and spring quarters, one of which was set with a Valentine's Day theme. More informal was their twist party which took place after the Drake-Iowa State basketball game last winter. Not only were the men of Knapp House avid spectators of Iowa State sports, but they also were active participants in intramurals. Such interest won the Class B bowling title for them winter quarter. Activities continued into this fall quarter with the construction of their Homecoming display. This display, "Roll 'Em, Cyclones", won second place in the MRA division.

Interest in the stock market proves the Lange House men to be up to date. During the winter Quarter of 1962, Richard Karstens and Mike Herrian organized the Lange House Investment Club, an official corporation, the main purpose being to teach the members about making investments. This is the only club of its kind on Iowa State's campus. Twenty financially minded men are members of this organization. The original share is five dollars and only one dollar a month is needed to retain membership. Upon graduation membership can be sold or retained. The club has files for over three hundred companies' stocks. Lange House has also received its share of scholastic honors. They received first place in MRA scholarship in the winter of '62 and second place for their spring quarter efforts.

SATISFACTION is manifested in smiling faces as some members of Lange house admire their hard earned trophies.

EITHER PREPARATION for bomb shelter life or an attempt at a bunk bed sitting record might be the motive behind the formation of this casual crowd of Lincoln men.

"Friley's Fourth Floor Utopia", known by non-members as Lincoln House, may have to begin thinking about purchasing a new trophy case for their intramural awards. With the acquisition of a number of freshmen athletes, Lincoln House succeeded in capturing the Class B intramural trophies for football, bowling and volleyball. When not engaged in sports, the busy men of Lincoln found time to organize parties. Included among these were two dances held at the 66 Motor Inn. The first of these, based around a winter festival theme, took place last winter quarter with the "Four Knights" providing the dance music. Black cats and broken mirrors added atmosphere to their Friday the 13th party held during the spring. Laurel Reed's Combo swung out with musical contribution.

Second place in spring intramurals in the Men's Residence Association was copped by Lindstrom House. This feat topped off a full and successful year in intramurals which included possession of the runner-up team in class B softball. The men of Lindstrom also preferred the out-of-doors when it came to social events. Hayrides highlighted the fall, inspite of some interference due to rain. Next, they braved the snow and cold in order to tackle the sport of tobaggoning. Several exchanges were arranged to help raise enthusiasm for the sport. More warmth was added to the fight against winter weather when Lindstrom journeyed forth on its Christmas caroling tour of the campus. The men of Lindstrom pride themselves on being able to fill in any spare time with impromptu functions among which were several picnics.

EARLY SKIT practice results in reward. The Meeker House skit qualified for the Varieties preliminaries.

Athletics and social activities highlighted the past year for the men of Meeker House. Football is a common word within Meeker House since it is the home of three Cyclone hard noses, Dave Hoover, Ray Steffey and Tom Postak. Another popular sport among Meeker men is bowling. The Meeker "Keglers" captured a bowling trophy with Larry Clark finishing fourth in the MRA roll-offs. Deserving top billing in the social line was the presentation of the MRA award to the men of Meeker for their outstanding achievement in social activities. Social activities included exchanges, parties, a fall hayride and a winter formal. Dancing, boating and volleyball served as entertainment at the Meeker spring party. The men and their dates ate "high on the hog" with T-bone steaks cooked beside Pine Lake.

Accompaniment on an old-time piano served to make Niles House unique in one of its annual functions, Christmas serenading of the girls' dorms. Throughout the year, the piano provided additional fun for the fellows. With the Kansas University team to defeat for ISU Homecoming, the Niles men created a display following the theme of "Clip 'Em" in which Cy was coming to clip the wings of a KU Jayhawk tied to the goal posts. Winter quarter, Niles migrated to Nevada for their house party. The theme, "Glacier Blue", was carried out with the construction of a large glacier on the dance floor. Varying shades of blue succeeded in giving the party room a relaxed and casual atmosphere. An active interest was also shown in intramurals, resulting in a class C bowling championship for Niles House.

"WATCH OUT ASTRONAUTS" is the warning issued by members of Noble as they harmonize during a study break.

A waterfront scene composed the background for the Noble House winter party of '62. The semi-formal dance was held in Ankeny, Iowa. Dance music was provided by the Don Van Ploeg Band, while decorations consisted of crepe paper with angel hair draped over lights. The Nobel House Pennant, containing blue background, white hat, cane and gloves, adorned their front yard at Homecoming. Intramural awards won by the men of Noble include a bowling trophy and a place in the Class A basketball playoff. The honor of being in charge of the MRA Inaugural Banquet belonged to Noble House for the fourth consecutive year. It was their job to plan the decorations and the menu, take care of the invitations, and provide everything else that goes into making it a highlight of the year for the MRA.

Pearson House purchased a new trophy case in hopes that there would be many more trophies to add to it. These hopes were soon realized when the men of Pearson House succeeded in placing first among the MRA displays for Homecoming 1962. The theme of their display was "Cyclone Express". Cy ran the engine of a train complete with flashing lights and moving wheels along the victory track. They also placed first among the MRA floats for Veishea, winning another trophy for the new case. A two unit float related the story of Moses and The Commandments. Blast for 1962 was also a success. Along with the Gamma Phi Betas, they ran a sweepstakes winning "Golden Belle", an imitation riverboat, complete with a dixie band, chorus line, master of ceremonies, and a featured singer, Sandy Gowan.

CONSTRUCTION JOBS may be an obsession with the men of Spinney. At least it is obvious that King Tut had nothing over these confident members when it comes to building pyramids.

"Chaos" shook the ballroom of the Sheldon-Munn Hotel on February 24, 1962. The event was the Spinney House winter party. Blue and white crepe paper streamed from the ceiling as pink and blue lights carried through the chaotic impression. Al Sharon's Sextet rang out with swinging music. Other entertainment was provided by folksinger Jed Selter, and Larry Moeller presented a monologue. Other activities included the building of a Veishea float "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and the construction of a "Blast Memorial Clinic," featuring "Dr. Ben Crazy". Athletics is a big activity for Spinney with one or more teams entered in each MRA intramural contest. Two unique features of Spinney House are the "Man of the Week" and "Shaft of the Week" awards which are presented to outstanding members.

This past year proved to be quite an eventful one for the men of Stange House under the capable direction of their president, Tom Bettin. The term was kicked off with their clever Homecoming display, "Monorail to Victory." No year is complete without exchanges, and for Stange House they were numerous, including a football game. Veishea saw their team qualify for canoe races, and they were not without intramural awards. They claimed the title of class "C" softball champs and also actively participated in bowling, football, wrestling, and track. To provide for spare time the men purchased a television set for the house. They also made good use of the Ledges State Park for their very successful house picnic. The year came to a close for Stange House with their spring dance Roman Holiday.

"HANDS OFF" is the idea expressed by Darol Heineman as he opens a hole for Stange ball carrier Harold Meyer in a Men's Residence Association intramural game.

Winter raged inside as well as outside for the men of Stanton House last December. A country snow storm served as the theme of their party "Winter Wonderland". Christmas decorations, including a tree, stars and a winter evening sky, carried out the theme of this semi-formal dance which was held at the Nevada Country Club. Entertainment was provided by the Stanton House singers. The Christmas season was also welcomed by a song fest. In the fall, the men of Stanton collaborated with the women of Roberts Hall to build a Homecoming display. Stanton House also held an orientation picnic and exchange during the fall, had a post-football game exchange and two roller skating parties. The men also took part in intramurals and had a qualifying team in the Veishea canoe races.

Stevenson House started the year off by welcoming twenty-eight freshmen into the house via picnics, exchanges, and informal recreation. Next, Stevenson made use of the wonderful fall weather to organize the "S. S. Stevenson Shipwreck" which occurred on a sandbar at Ledges State Park. Shrimp, prepared in boiling river water over burning drift wood, kept those stranded alive until they could be rescued with canoes. Instead of constructing their usual Homecoming display, Stevenson devoted its time to a Christmas lawn display. The display portrayed the nativity scene and was lit up at night for the benefit of Lincoln Way travelers. Veishea saw a battle between two mounted chargers atop the Stevenson float, "Ivanhoe." Stevenson also kicked off MRA contributions for the Iowa State Center.

DREAMY MUSIC seems to be the mood as a few members of the house lean back and listen to some high class sounds.

Dances, exchanges and intramurals were only a few activities engaged in by the men of Carpenter House. Carpenter, Louden and Woodrow collaborated on their winter dance, "Carlouwood Capers". The Sun Room of the Memorial Union was decorated with a colorful back-drop and multi-colored lighting. Insignias from the three houses served as favors, and dancing was done to the music of the Squires Combo. Iowa snows furnished the perfect setting for the bobsled exchanges held with various women's dorms. "The Absent-Minded Professor" was created by the women of Welch and men of Carpenter as their Veishea float. Construction of "The Missing Goose", their Blast booth was aided by Oak Hall. The athletes of Carpenter House brought home the second place trophy in MRA volleyball.

When the girls of East Linden were scheduled to meet the Adelantes in a football game, the men of Foster House willingly consented to coach the girls. After six practice sessions, including teaching the girls the number of players on a football team and how to kick, Foster House cheered the girls on to an 18-18 tie. A toboggan party held at the 4-H Camp in Boone on December 15 brought snow-covered dates and much fun inspite of the snowball fights. The lodge was open for dancing and refreshments. Even Santa Claus came to the party. Actually, Santa was one of the more jolly members of Foster House. The girls of Birch Hall sold themselves as slaves to Foster House and went over expecting an afternoon of hard work. The amount of work accomplished, however, probably failed to exceed the good time had.

MORE BOOZE for us seems to be the plan of a couple of Foster men as several projects take place in the wreck room.

THE BEAT of the bongos adds effect to folk songs during an extemporaneous session in the Fulmer lounge.

Dates of men of Fulmer House were startled when they received their favors at the "Jungle 66" party. A shrunken head was presented to the girls as they entered. Palm trees, grasshuts, and the renowned masks of witch doctors furnished atmosphere along with the jungle costumes worn. Coconuts and bananas were included in the meal while a skit and dancing furnished entertainment for the evening. Winning the Class B intramural football and basketball championships brought recognition to Fulmer House. Helping Campus Chest and themselves along, the men of Fulmer House bought the Oak Hall girls as slaves at the Blast. Building a Veishea float with West Linden Hall called "Song of the South" was more fun than work. However, third place in MRA scholarship pointed out that life in Fulmer is not all play.

A Man of the Week award and a house forum system to bring special speakers to house meeting were two new innovations begun by the men of Halstead last year. Making use of college living, the men of Halstead House scheduled several unusual exchanges. Christmas caroling with the Theta pledge class, and miniature golf and bowling exchanges proved to be fun for all. A fall hay-ride, spring picnics and a Hawaiian theme party filled out their social calendar for the year. A house dinner in the fall honored their Homecoming queen candidate, Karen Orton. When their housemother, Mrs. Martin, decided to retire, a special dinner was held to show their appreciation for the years she had spent with them. Blast saw the men of Halstead accomplishing their annual cleaning by hiring the women of East Linden.

PLENTY OF HELP is available as members of Jones house pitch in on some construction in the house den.

Social events occupied a high place in the life of the men of Jones House this past year. Selection of their nominee for Homecoming Queen, Kay Kolosha, came as a happy addition to Homecoming weekend. Jones House had previously served as the MRA residence site for a Homecoming Queen's Tea. New acquaintances were made and old ones renewed through a dinner exchange with Oak Hall and dance exchanges with the Chi Omega pledge class and Broadlawn's student nurses. However, social life was overshadowed by activities as during winter quarter, Jones House placed first in the MRA for activity points and second during spring quarter. Individual honor winners included: Dave Boyd, Phi Mu Alpha, Tomahawk; Doug Hiland, Eta Kappa Nu and Tau Beta Pi; and Jon Meyer, FGSB President.

Students who were shocked to see hobos wandering around campus should not fear that ISU standards are lowering. The hobos were only a part of the pre-Blast publicity for the Livingston House booth, "Hobo Holiday." A house auction also added more money for Campus Chest. Veishea saw the men working hard along with the women of East Linden on their combined float, "Alice in Wonderland." Their efforts proved to be worthwhile when the float was awarded third place in overall competition. Participation in bowling, volleyball, swimming and other intramurals was also enjoyed by house members. Campus exchanges were held frequently by Livingston men, as well as a dance exchange with Drake. Lynn Fuhrer Lodge was the scene of the Livingston House party this past year.

ENROLLMENT INCREASE may have caused such a space shortage that the walls of Friley are bursting, or is it that outsiders have realized that Loudon House is the place to live?

The social events of Loudon House were highlighted by their big dance held winter quarter. In collaboration with Woodrow and Carpenter, Loudon presented "Carlouwood Capers." Entertainment was furnished by house members while dancing and swinging music added to the fun of the evening. Socializing was also found in the form of exchanges. Football and coke each served as the theme for an exchange, while bridge was the main form of entertainment for both a party exchange and a dance exchange. In the true spirit of Christmas, the men of Loudon sponsored a party with gifts for needy families. In the field of athletics the men of Loudon were runners-up in Class A softball and participated in most other sports. An individual honor came to Jim Hayward when he became the MRA social chairman.

Professional and amateur entertainment was found at the Merrill House spring formal "April Showers" held at the 66 Motor Inn. Dance music was provided by the "Four Knights" while a trio from the house sang during intermission. The dates were given umbrellas to protect them from the "April Showers" on their way home. Water was the password during Veishea for the men of Merrill as they participated in the finals of the canoe races and called upon "Popeye the Sailor" for their team's theme. The women of Roberts Hall joined with Merrill in presenting "The Blue Lantern," their Blast booth during Campus Chest Week. All those who enjoyed twisting were invited to enter and "twist the night away." House competitors in intramurals were led by the Merrill gridders who took a second spot.

ROYAL BEAUTY waits while the men of Norman House make one final check of the Queens' float they built.

While attending the Blast for Campus Chest, many unhappy people found themselves dragged away from their dates and thrown into the "Blastille". The men of Norman House and the women of Freeman Hall were responsible for this predicament. After the fun of building the jail and running it, their prize for selling the most tickets made their efforts completely rewarded. The men of Norman House were proud to be the builders of the Queen's Float for the Veishea parade. Also, Norman was picked as one of the MRA houses to be in the Veishea open house tour. The Road Runner and Wylie Coyote provided a theme for their Homecoming display for '62. They are justly proud of members Stan Nollen and Don Meyer who were elected respectively as senator-at-large and MRA Junior representative to GSB.

This past year found the men of Richey enthusiastically interested in intramurals. Swimming received the most emphasis as they participated in it winter, spring and fall quarter. When awards were given and first places announced, Richey was right there to collect its honor for being the Class A softball champions. A second award was made when they received the most total points per man during spring quarter. Parties were another house highlight and in honor of the Christmas season, "Winter Wonderland" was staged at the 4-H Camp in Boone. Pirates and seamen were the guests at their "Pirates Party." The guests, after being entertained by extemporaneous speeches by the house members, left the party with cups bearing the skull and crossbones to remind them of their night of mutinous activities.

"STRICTLY STAG" steak fry, with the steaks paid for by the house, brightened the October bill of fare for house members.

The Lynn Fuher Lodge was the scene of the Stalker House Homecoming party "Holiday." The lodge was effectively decorated with corn stalks and pumpkins and activities included games and dancing. The Boone 4-H Camp housed the Valentine party "Cupid's Capers," and favors were decorated paper hearts. Stalker House had a tea for their former house mother, Mrs. Martin and held an open house for visitors and relatives during Veishea. Intramurals proved fruitful this year when they captured the track and bowling titles and also claimed several finalists in individual events. Their residence proudly boasts a new AM-FM stereo won in a cigarette wrapper contest during the spring. Other new additions to the house include a large outdoor house sign, a piano, and a hand tooled leather house crest.

Picnics are always fun, but even more fun when it's a beautiful day and the company is compatible. These requirements being fulfilled, the Woodrow House spring picnic proved to be a big success. Before the picnic supper at Inis Grove Park, everyone played volleyball and softball. The Class D intramural basketball tournament was a hard fought battle in which Woodrow House came out on top. Wrestling, volleyball, bowling and bridge were some of the other tournaments in which members of Woodrow House participated. Each year the MRA Camera Club sponsors a Veishea print contest and last year the honor of entering the sweepstakes photograph went to Mike Wei, a member of Woodrow House. A new addition in the form of a television set has brought hours of pleasure to the men of Woodrow.

HIGH INTEREST in intramurals resulted in the formation of a bowling team as well as teams for basketball, volleyball and wrestling.

FINALS CAN GET BAD for members of Baker house and this member tries on an escape route just in case.

Informality is the key to the relaxed and pleasant atmosphere found in Baker House. At any time of the day, members of Baker House can be found sitting in their lounge talking or playing cards together. Their annual Christmas party was also an informal get-together which included a gift exchange. Informality was quite apparent in their fall house party which was a hayride. A casino was the setting for their spring dance. Appropriate decorations adorned Westgate Lounge for the evening. Participation in intramurals involved many of the men of Baker House. This activeness led the way to their championships in Class B volleyball and bowling in the spring. The wide spread relaxation may be one of the underlying reasons behind the fact that they raised their grade point average to seventh in the MRA.

Boyd House members found that working on Homecoming displays was twice as much fun when there were girls helping. They also enjoyed caroling, sleigh rides, and picnic exchanges. An informal dance spring quarter, entitled "Spring Swing," was held March 30, 1962 at Westgate Hall. One of the more unique and inspirational parties co-sponsored by Boyd House was the one held in honor of its retiring custodian. A picnic at the Ledges and a canoe trip down the Des Moines River helped bring the men together. A volleyball exchange with Freeman Hall warmed the men up for intramurals and they came in second in volleyball in the fall quarter. In bowling they proved to be greedy, winning championships both winter and spring quarters. They also took part in semi-final contests in Class A of softball and basketball.

CUBA had better beware, according to the looks of these Griffith house rebels. Perhaps it's only an antischolarship talk though.

Griffith House had no doubt the most demanding and unusual contribution to Campus Chest. David Wilson and Doug Drake, two of the braver house members, agreed to walk from Des Moines to Ames if the house could raise fifty dollars for Campus Chest. It was decided to hold an auction to raise the money. It was pretty funny when a bundle of old love letters went up for sale and, needless to say, the legal owner outbid all other contenders. However, it was soon evident that all items for sale had recently been taken from desks and halls of Griffith House. The astonished owners were quite generous in ransoming back the assorted items and fifty dollars was soon raised. Nine hours and seventeen minutes after leaving Des Moines, the two men arrived in Ames, resolving never to open their mouths again.

Freshman students who were fortunate enough to be placed in Sage House had no need to feel lost at college. Sage prepared a full orientation week for the newcomers, including a picnic at Ledges State Park in Boone. Softball and volleyball games helped the new men to get acquainted and feel welcome. Participation in these sports was continued throughout the year as Sage put in a full intramural schedule with better than average success in spring volleyball. The informality and friendliness of the Sage men demonstrated during orientation week was also evident in the exchanges and spontaneous get-togethers which took place all year in Sage House. The lack of pressure on Sage men make them the envy of all other members of Westgate who probably all desire to retire to Sage when their studying days are over.

ALUMNI HALL

HOUSING for the meeting rooms of the YMCA and the YWCA as well as for the men of Alumni Hall is provided by Alumni Hall.

An Eiffel Tower in the middle of Iowa? Why certainly! Alumni Hall went French for their February party "Caprice en Hiver" at the Boone Country Club. For entertainment the house dancing team performed. Other events on the social calendar for the year included dances, work exchanges, and picnics with sororities and women's dorms. Alumni Hall entered and won first place in the small group competition in Sinfonia. The men combined talents with Birch Hall girls to enter the Veishea float competition using "Gone With the Wind" for a theme. A large pile of junk adorned the front lawn of Alumni Hall at Homecoming. It was topped by a sign reading "Dump K.U." The men did well in intramurals, capturing the Class B basketball first place award. They also entered football, bowling, and track intramural competition.

CRIPPLED AND RETARDED CHILDREN benefit from the Christmas tree money collecting project of the Kappa Alpha Thetas.

Efforts are made to improve Greek-Independent relations

EXCHANGES among the sororities improve relations within the system. The Alpha Chi's entertain the Kappa's and the Theta's at such an exchange at the Alpha Chi Omega house.

Two delegates from each of the twelve sororities on campus comprise the membership of Panhellenic Council, the governing body for these sororities. Panhel officers: president, vice president, secretary, are elected on a rotation basis. Once every twelve years each chapter selects a girl for these positions. This group adopts and enforces policies governing sorority activities. Each year trophies are awarded to the active chapter and the pledge class with the highest scholarship rankings. Kappa Alpha Theta received the active award and Alpha Gamma Delta received the pledge award. Junior Pan-Hellenic council was re-instated on campus this year to give pledges experience and acquaint them with the council's purposes. A $100 scholarship was established to be given to any women student on the basis of need scholarship and character. Emphasis was placed on the improvement of relations between the sororities and independents by the encouragement of exchanges between sororities and residence halls.

Living in a new house is reason enough to have a party and the ALPHA CHI OMEGA's didn't pass up the chance. An open house for faculty, parents, and students from other residences kicked off the social life of the house. The girls continued to take advantage of their new surroundings by holding both their spring formal and their fall party in the house. Floor length formals, tuxedos and the general air of elegance of the spring formal was changed to a gay and childish mood for "Babes in Toyland," the fall party. For this the house was decorated with a Lollipop tree, cotton candy machine, and balloons. The Alpha Chi's collaborated with Tau Kappa Epsilon to build the Veishea float which received the "Purple Shaft Award." Another combined effort, this time with Sigma Alpha Epsilon, resulted in presentation of a Varieties skit which was a satire on astronauts.

KAREN HUBBY and Marcy Aldinger are ready for the spring formal. The idea of having the spring party formal went over so well that the Alpha Chi's decided to make it traditional.

A twisting contest during parents weekend found daughters paired with their fathers. The fathers were rewarded for their efforts by being given the ALPHA DELTA PI house for the night. After entertaining their parents, the girls themselves were entertained by the pledges. The house was turned into a ski chalet. Popcorn, apples and hot chocolate satisfied the non-skiers appetites while dancing and fireside singing served as entertainment. Dancing served another purpose when the A D Pi chorus line performed as Varieties girls for the Cyclone Review at Veishea. The girls were also occupied at Veishea time with the building of a float, "Babes in Toyland." They were aided in this project by FarmHouse fraternity. The last fling of the spring was the formal dance at the Wakonda Club in Des Moines.

A LARGE VOCABULARY is handy for everything from explaining why you're breaking a date to giving a reason for handing your paper in late. A thesaurus helps the A D Pi's brush up on how to say what you mean five hundred different ways.

POPULAR GIRLS are the Alpha Gams — so popular that the tele-phones obviously has to work above and beyond its capacity.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Alpha Gams get waiters from Office of Student Affairs; lease Acacia house for overnight

Journeying to Des Moines, ALPHA GAMMA DELTA based their spring formal around a "Pearls and Mist" theme. The pledges took over party planning for winter quarter as they turned the chapter house into a nightclub with "Tables for Two" complete with champagne glasses. Blast was a successful and fun time for the Alpha Gams this year. Their purchases included the acquisition of employees of the Office of Student Affairs as waiters for their Halloween party and a one night lease on the Acacia House for an overnight. Another deal was made with the Acacians when they bought the girls for a pizza party. Scholarship is one of the main achievements stressed at 2118 Sunset. In recognition of its grade improvement, the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority received the Panhellenic Scholarship Improvement Trophy. Individual achievements also highlighted the year as three members of the Veishea Central Committee were Alpha Gams.

The DELTA DELTA DELTA house this year was not only home for the Tri Delt's, but also for a foreign exchange student. Rigmor Anderson, from Norway, spent the year with the Tri Delt's and received not only an Iowa State education but, a display of sisterhood in action. The Tri Delt's had their share of parties and included "Club 21" which was one of the four parties held during Greek Week. The scenic view from the Des Moines Golf and Country Club was taken advantage of for the spring formal. The Christmas party used the theme "Crescent Christmas." Phi Gamma Delta worked with the Tri Delt's on their Veishea float with the theme, "We're Off to See the Wizard." Veishea also saw Marty Hutchinson and Judith Clause sharing honors as they were both tapped by Mortar Board.

Winter quarter is a time for formals. The DELTA ZETAS entitled theirs "Crystal Shadows." Large glittering snowflakes were suspended from the ceiling of the DZ house to add to the atmosphere. Originality was achieved by giving live turtles in sail boat shaped bowls for their spring party, appropriately named "Beach Party." When Veishea arrived the D Z's combined with Pi Kappa Alpha to build their float "Cleopatra." But Veishea meant more than just building floats: two DZs were tapped for Motarboard, two for Gamma Gamma, and one for Lampos. The girls ranked high in athletics and were 1st in intramurals for the year. Scholastically they rated third among sororities. With the coming of fall came the annual "DZ Man" party. Each year a pin mate or fiance is awarded a trophy which bears the names of all former "DZ Men."

GAMMA PHI BETA

Beautiful flowers, cooperative weather and hard work aided GAMMA PHI BETA in capturing the second place Veishea trophy for combination floats. Other rewards of the project done in collaboration with the Delts included many lasting friendships. For Varieties the Goo Phoos borrowed farm clothes to present Iowa Annie's escapades in her search for her true love, Clem. Gamma Phi beauty reigned over Greek Week as Judy Wilkins was crowned queen. The Gamma Phi's built a house boat, "The Golden Belle," with the men of Pearson House and presented a river show for Blast. Their efforts were well rewarded when they returned home with the Christian Peterson Sweepstakes trophy. Activities represented in this house include Lamos, Omicron Nu, Phi Kappa Phi, and Sigma Alpha Iota.

This year proved to be another successful one for KAPPA ALPHA THETA. The Blast saw the Theta's auctioning their house for a Friday night work session while Pat Hildebrand was honored as "Miss Legs." Fall's regal beauty came in the form of Kay Kolosha, 1962 Homecoming Queen. Last spring, along with Sigma Alpha Epsilon they won the Queen's Trophy for their float "Water Babies" for Veishea. Of course, the Theta's are not without their special projects, their most important being the little Greek girl they adopted through the Foster Parents' Plan. They also have a new addition, a white poodle named Yankee which they presented to their housemother Mrs. Pooley at Christmas. Despite an activity filled year, the grade point didn't seem to suffer as they were first among sororities in scholarship.

It is traditional at the KAPPA DELTA house for each class to have a fireside. Last spring the senior's contribution was a Mardi Gras party held on the patio of the K D house. Balloons and lights were strung overhead to add to the gala atmosphere. A combo was set up on the lower terrace with plenty of room for the twisters. Also in the spring, the KD's won second place in the 26th annual Sor Dor Sing under the direction of Louise Thompson. Among their selections was "Kappa Delta Garden of Dreams." This fall the K D's actively took part in Sigma Chi Derby Days and received the Participation Award. During the annual Campus Chest Auction, Jones House bought a Kappa Delta party for $71.00. The theme was "Fun in Sun Valley" and included skating and tobogganing to add outdoor winter fun.

The letters B.D.O.C invaded the KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA house, meaning it was time for a Big Dads on Campus weekend. Putting aside their own activities, the girls welcomed their fathers in grand style, furnishing them with striking beanies with "Kappa Dad" on them, and reserving a special section for the Dads at the Basketball game. This week end also gave the Kappa's an opportunity to show off their newly decorated living room and card room. A special project for members provided entertainment for the children of Ames alums. This came in the form of a Valentine's Day party at which about twenty-five children filled the Kappa recreation room. The main feature on the Kappa social agenda was the traditional Monmouth Duo with the Pi Phi's, celebrating their founding.

PI BETA PHI

Pi Phi's play hostesses to Grand National President; welcome new housemother, Mrs. Stevens

"Royalty" paid a visit to the PI BETA PHI house in the form of the Grand National President of Pi Phi. Special reports and a chocolate hour were given in honor of the girls' guest. A more permanent visitor welcomed warmly by the Phi Phi's was "Mother Jennie" Stevens, their new housemother. During the spring, the Pi Phi's spent many of their evenings working with the Beta's on their Veishea float. The long nights of labor paid off when "Flower Drum Song" was awarded the first place trophy for combination floats. Several projects helped the Pi Phi chapter earn money for its national project, the Gatlinburg school in Tennessee. Excitement was always running through the house as different girls were awarded honors. Three girls were tapped for Mortar Board, while others became queens or Bomb Beauty finalists.

Homecoming, Veishea, Sor-Dor and Blast kept many of the SIGMA KAPPAS away from their books. The crowning achievement was no doubt the winning of first place in Homecoming displays. The front yard of the S K house was covered by a huge argyle sock kicking a Jayhawk and depicting the theme, "Argyles'll Sock Um." Veishea found Sigma Kappas winning the costume award at the canoe races. The Sigma Kappa vocalists advanced to the finals of Sor-Dor. A chapter house with a new coat of paint and a yard with new shrubbery greeted those who returned in the fall. But all was not work. The spring formal, "A Legend in Lavender," and the fall formal, "Witchcraft," were the highlights in their social life. In the area of philanthropy, the S K's made stuffed animals for their Maine Sea Coast Mission.

RAY SEBASTION, center, newly elected IFC President discusses the use of some of the office equipment with a couple of fraternity men.

Interfraternity Council

NOMINATING CONVENTION for IFC took place on January 19 in the Great Hall of the Memorial Union.

THE NUMBER of combination floats in the Veishea parade continued to increase as more fraternities and sororities collaborated on their floats this year than ever before.

INTRAMURAL competition is a big enough concern to give almost every fraternity man a chance to use his athletic abilities.

The Interfraternity Council provides an organization which represents and serves the member fraternities and the fraternity system at Iowa State University. Their Preamble has set the goals in the two words, "represent" and "serve," and it is the responsibility of each of the IFC officers to strive for effective representation for the fraternity system and worthwhile service to the members of the fraternities, to the University, and to the community. Mr. Ralph Daniel, executive secretary of Phi Kappa Psi, addressed the IFC and IFC Nominating Convention presenting nine specific points concerning a fraternity and its responsibility to educational, to social, and spiritual training of its members. Another subject, expansion of the Greek system at Iowa State, was being considered by three national fraternities. Chi Phi, Triangle, and Phi Sigma Kappa are the three being discussed by IFC.

IFC helps the Ames Fire Dept. enforce safety regulation

Greek housing is given an aid by the I F C Fire and Safety Committee which sponsors a seminar with the Ames Fire Department as well as inspections of the fraternities and sororities. Houses also receive benefits in printing and in material for their alumni relationships. Individuals are honored through their selection into Gamma Gamma, the local Greek honorary. Scholarship, character, and service are the basis for the selection of members. No more than one per cent of the total undergraduate Greek population is chosen each year for active membership. These persons have exemplified the qualities of leadership and service through their activities within the Greek system, within their own chapters, and on the campus as a whole.

THE IFC party for children

MR. RALPH DANIEL, executive secretary for Phi Kappa Psi, addressed the IFC nominating convention. The subject of his address was the responsibility of the fraternity system.

"Operation Lifeline," the Limelighters, and Ray McKinley's band received top billing in an outstanding Greek Week for 1962. Besides the service project and the concerts which were open to the public, four of the Greek houses were selected to house parties after the Limelighters' concert. Other I F C activities included a greater expansion of the Fraternity Buyers Association in both increased participation and in the amount of services offered to the members such as increased savings. Members were also given benefits through the organization of the Fraternity News Service used to coordinate I F C communication.

Pledge members of the fraternity system are represented at the Interfraternity Pledge Council which seeks to promote cooperation among pledge classes and encourages development of leadership in new members of the fraternity system. Main project of the year for the fraternity pledges is the IPFC dance. This year the group collaborated with Junior Panhellenic Council in presenting "Greek Gardens." Candidates for pledge princesses were selected from sorority pledge classes, with one coed chosen to reign over the dance.

GOLDEN AGERS' are hosted by the Kappa Sig's at a dinner. This is an example of the service projects encouraged by IFC.

This past year ACACIA pledges and actives both ranked second in scholarship for three quarters. At the summer National Conclave they accepted the national scholarship trophy which is presented to the Acacia chapter with the highest grade point. It was the third year for the Iowa State chapter to receive this honor. "Ports of Call," based on different seaports, was presented during winter quarter. Spring was the time for the Black and Gold Formal held at the Ames Golf and Country Club. Earth and hell comprised a duel theme for their "Suppressed Desires" party in November. First floor of the Acacia house was decorated as earth with various nature settings while the basement was turned into hell with a sin and corruption theme. The men of Acacia continued their philanthropy projects this past year by holding a Christmas party for the underprivileged children of Ames and washing windows for the Eastern Star Home for the Aged in Boone.

Lack of numbers proved to be no deterrent to the men of Adelante on the intramural field. The fiery spirit of the members resulted in championships in basketball and ping pong and runnerup awards in football and softball. This lust for battle in athletics was carried over to their parties via a Viking theme. The Adelante house became "Valhalla," complete with spears and other Viking weapons. The Adelantes then moved to the other side of the world in order to carry out their theme for the spring formal. "Oriental Dreams" were brought to life, especially for Miss Judy Innes who was named "Lady of Adelante." A third phase of life at the Adelante house is the Scholastic one. Members never fail to excell in this field and the house always ranks among the top few residences in grade point.

ALPHA CHI RHO

Crows celebrate 30th anniversary, remodel house, and get new console stereo

This year marks the thirtieth anniversary of Alpha Chi Rho at Iowa State University. The "Crows" were treated to a complete interior remodeling of the first floor and basement and to a new console stereo as an "anniversary present." Intramurals rated high on the activity list with Alpha Chi Rho winning first place in Class D football and in Class B bowling and runnerup in Class B volleyball. An unusual but effective activity of the Crows was the holding of work sessions for the Ames Children's Home and for local churches. Anxious to "show off" their recent remodeling, they held open houses on Parent's Day and on Homecoming. Adding to the glamour of Homecoming was their display, Dr. "Cy" working on a Kansas player to remove a football imbedded in his head, evidently by some Iowa State player.

Athletic awards, numerous parties and a case of remodeling fever made the past year a success for the ALPHA GAMMA RHO's. The men of AGR participated in all intramural programs and went on to become the Class B champions in volleyball and softball, as well as horseshoe throwing champions. Their flower, the pink rose, served as the theme for the formal as Donna Gingerich reigned as queen. A banquet in the Sun Room of the Union highlighted the Founders' Day weekend, after a reception was held the preceding night. The remodeling job given to third floor of the AGR house was only part of the additions made by the brothers. New furniture added to the recreation room also gives added comfort to the AGR's home. Veishea found the AGR's collaborating with the KD's to build their combination float, "Lady and the Tramp."

Christmas at the ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA house was celebrated with their winter party, "Snowflakes over Psi," held on December 16. The AKL house became a winter wonderland for the occasion and miniature pledge paddles were given as favors. For entertainment the men presented a take off on "The Night Before Christmas." Later in the quarter a sweetheart fireside was held and Mrs. Henry Bonnes was given the title of Sweetheart of AKL. During Homecoming the AKL's featured a lawn display with Cy plunging a toilet with a Jayhawk in it and with the slogan "Plunging to Victory." Scholarship played an important part this year and the actives ranked fifth and the pledges sixth among fraternities for winter quarter. Eight national awards are given by AKL and Psi chapter received two of them. They were for Religious Activities and Chapter Newsletter.

Mysterious characters could be seen lurking around the ALPHA SIGMA PHI house last fall. They arrived via a black cadillac limousine and entered the house through a window into a dark room to be suddenly surprised by bright flashing lights, loud buzzers, and a set of truck horns. This "Crook's Convention" was a big success. During winter quarter the Alpha Sig house took on the appearance of the backwood's of Tennessee for the "Still Stomp." The traditional "Black and White Formal" provided an enjoyable evening at the Wakonda Country Club in Des Moines for the Alpha Sigs and their guests. The Alpha Sig rush program netted 24 pledges this year who combined well with the active chapter to keep the house name in activities and to fill out spirited teams in almost all intramural events.

A QUESTION on plans for an upcoming house party stops president Gary Angle on his way through the living room.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

ATO's turn "beat"; informal entertainment enhanced by addition of color television and stereo set

Going modern, the ALPHA TAU OMEGA'S presented "Like, ATO." A coffee shop replaced the familiar surroundings of their house as beat-nicks dropped in from all over campus. Christmas is an extra special holiday at the Alpha Tau Omega house. Dinner consists of a large roasted pig served with all the trimmings amid the colorful decorations covering the house. The evening is closed with the singing of carols in front of the glowing fireplace. In the realm of athletics, the Taus won the trophy for highest number of points earned per man during spring quarter intramurals. Their founders' day was celebrated with a dinner at the Solar Inn on March 15th. With a color television set and new stereo, the ATO's should now have an unlimited amount of entertainment for the brothers and their dates.

The Gold Rose Formal in April featured gold rose decorations on tables and beams and the crowning of the Gold Rose Queen, Marianne Holland. "November Nocturne" set a quiet scene for the fall dinner-dance. Their Veishea float, "Cartoon Holiday" featured Walt Disney cartoon characters. At their Homecoming display Cy struck a mallet-bell device so that a Jayhawker's neck was stretched until his head hit a bell. Intramural strength was shown by winning the points-per-man trophy winter quarter as the basketball team won the class A all-college championship.

Decorated like a bedroom? Why certainly! The BETA THETA PI's were having their annual pajama party. Can you think of more appropriate decorations? A complete change of scenery was present at "Twist at the Beta Bar-B-Q" which featured a twist band from Omaha and stuffed piglets as favors. Other social functions included the pledge party, an all house party, and the spring formal in Des Moines. Various exchanges included a dessert with the Chi O's, pool with the Alpha Gams, and football with the Kappas. Veishea saw the addition of another trophy to the Beta collection. Combining with Pi Beta Phi, they created "Flower Drum Song" which captured first place in the combination division. Another towering Beta display, "We're Be-head-ing for Victory" highlighted Homecoming.

Hobgoblins and witches haunted the scene of the DELTA CHI Halloween party last fall quarter. Elaborate decorations gave the house an eerie tone on Halloween night. Pledges used a similar theme to turn their living quarters into a haunted house for their party in October. Switching to a happier mode of make believe, the Delta Chi's presented "Carnation Fantasy" at the Hotel Fort Des Moines for their spring formal. Congratulations are in order for the Delta Chi's for their winning of the traveling trophy for the greatest improvement in scholarship. Two additions were made to the house this past year — a new housemother, Mrs. Ida Watson, and a new cook, Mrs. Mary Tripp. A tea in honor of Mother Watson spring quarter and a formal dinner for alumni during Homecoming were held.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Delta Sig's bold Greek Week chairmanships; nab first place at Homecoming

Betty MacQuacker, Gamma Phi Beta, reigned as DELTA SIGMA PHI Dream Girl at their spring formal "Carnation Ball." Along with the presentation of the dream girl and her attendants, individual honors were awarded to outstanding men of the house. Red was the dominant color at "Transfusion '62." The brothers turned their house into a hospital overrunning with interns and nurses. Various rooms became wards for surgery, maternity and out-patients. Cartoon characters helped the Delta Sig's to capture first place among fraternity Homecoming displays. Bugs Bunny and Yosemite Sam posed for "K.U. Ain't Got a Hare of a Chance." During Greek Week men of the house held the positions of co-chairman for the entire event, chairman for the Lime-liters concert and chairman for the house parties.

An orchid tree in the middle of Iowa was a significant feature of the DELTA TAU DELTA "Orchid Formal." The orchids were later picked and given as corsages to the dates. Joan Robinson, Alpha Gamma Delta, was chosen as the Delt Queen. Delt social life was also filled with numerous firesides and exchanges. Another house party, motivated by Christmas Spirit, was a Christmas party for the "Golden Agers" of the community. The Delts, working with the Gamma Phi's, captured the second place trophy for combination floats last Veishea. Members of the house also filled positions in campus honoraries including GSB, IFC court, Alpha Chi Sigma and Phi Eta Sigma. Added construction to the Delt house came in the form of sound proofing to the study rooms during Christmas vacation.

Homecoming was made a belated success for DELTA UPSILON this year when their display, "Hottest Brand Going" was awarded the Purple Shaft. The mechanized project showed Cy branding a Jayhawk with a sizzling branding iron. As Christmas rolled around the brothers again constructed a first place winning door decoration. Last spring was highlighted by a beach party held at the house. The appropriately chosen favors were large beach towels with DU on them, and a swinging guitar band tested the endurance of the DU's and their dates. Two of the most sought after honors in the house are the Chev Adams award which is given each year to the most outstanding senior and the Larry Jurgens outstanding pledge award given in honor of late brother Larry Jurgens.

FARM HOUSE backed up a successful year by again leading fraternities in grade point. Last year it also had the highest grade point for all residences for two quarters. Putting their brains to practical use, FarmHouse men devised a "Rome, Sweet Rome," satire on campus life and activities to win sweepstakes for Varieties '62. Their entry in Sinfonia was good enough to net them the second place award. On the social scene, FarmHouse left Iowa State students with the memory of the Stork Club, one of the four house parties held last Greek Week. The big house social event was the spring formal, entitled "Spring Fantasia." FarmHouse was also the site of the first tea for Homecoming Queen selections, and the host of such house events as Founders' Day and Parents' Day which was held at a different date than the school's Parents' Day.

THE RANCH with the brand Kappa Sig came to life again this year as the men and their dates donned their ten-gallon hats to attend the annual Western dance.

KAPPA SIGMA

Kappa Sig National gives scholarship award to ISU chapter; group honors founder

Another swinging KAPPA SIGMA year was christened at their annual Black and White Formal which was held at the Kirkwood Hotel in Des Moines. Two foot panda bears were given as favors. Winter quarter also brought a Pajama Party, which speaks for itself, and the Kappa Sig Peppermint Lounge which was one of the Greek Week functions. Aided by Dominic and the Dominoes, this was the most spectacular party given. Spring quarter saw the Kappa Sigs honoring Seaman A. Knapp, one of the founders, at a tea, and also capturing the Class A volleyball championship as well as a scholarship award from Kappa Sigma national. Fall quarter and Rush Week once again saw Dominic entertaining Kappa Sigs and their dates.

The era of the Charleston, flapper, and bath tub gin was recreated when LAMBDA CHI ALPHA had its "roaring twenties" party, "Sin and Gin," at the Boone Country Club. The favors given were black procelain bath tub ash trays. The Lambda Chi's celebrated Founders Day with a tea on March 22 and then housed the Greek Week Awards Banquet during last Greek Week. Christmas spirit ran high in the Lambda Chi house and motivated backing behind several projects. The chapter held a Christmas party for patients at the Woodward State Hospital and School and sponsored the annual Christmas Door Decoration Contest. The main emphasis of the chapter has been on growth and this has been accomplished quite well with a tripling of the membership in the past three years.

Out of 122 PHI DELTA THETA chapters in the nation, Gamma chapter at ISU received the Harvard Trophy Award for outstanding excellence. This is the seventh time Gamma chapter has received this award which is presented at the National Convention. The Phi Deltas boast many reasons for the winning of the trophy. Three members were tapped for Cardinal Key, and Tom Timm was elected president of the senior class. The Phi Delt social calendar also contained an impressive lineup of events. The Tri-House Party with the Sig Alphas and the Sig Eps was definitely successful as was the Spring Formal held at the Hotel Fort Des Moines. Sweepstakes for Sinfonia was presented to the Phi Deltas and the Queen's Trophy was awarded them for their Veishea float "When You Wish Upon a Star."

"Around her leg she wore a purple garter, she wore it for her Fiji who was far, far away." This seems to have been the inspiration for the annual PHI GAMMA DELTA Purple Garter party held this year at Des Moines Wakonda Club with purple garters as favors, of course. The Fiji year-round theme is "Fiji Island" which they successfully incorporate into many of their activities such as Homecoming, Veishea and the spring "Grass Skirt Dance". Speaking of the grass skirt, the Fiji's managed to create a tropical island in the middle of Iowa, quite a feat! Fall quarter was highlighted by a "Peppermint Lounge Party" held in collaboration with the Gamma Phi's. The earnings of a work day were put into a scholarship to the University of Mexico which will be put to good use by some lucky brother.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Phi Psi's feature water skiers at beach party and Veisbea show; place first in intramural baseball and track

Athletics is practically synonymous with PHI KAPPA PSI. A representation of both intramural and varsity champions can be found within this house. In the last year the Phi Psi's won first place in Class A softball, first in outdoor track and first in indoor track. Varsity squad members include five players on the football travelling squad, two first string wrestlers, and two baseball players on first string. Putting their muscles and brawn to good use, the brothers recently repainted all the upstairs rooms of their colonial style house. Among the parties engaged in by the Phi Psi's were an annual beach party held at Clear Lake last spring and a masquerade ball held at the house in the fall. The main attraction of the beach party was water skiing which was also the theme of their Veishea show on Lake Laverne.

From within the depths of an old lamp came the genies of PHI KAPPA TAU and Alpha Gamma Delta, who used their magic powers to build their Veishea float "The Wonders of Aladdin". The selection of Linda Hugen as dream girl was the highlight of the Phi Kappa Tau "Spring Fantasy" held at the Boone Country Club. Never being ones to overlook the novelty of the unusual, the Phi Taus arrived for their dates to the "Gas Light Club" party in horse-drawn carriages. Cy winging his way toward a stadium that represented the Orange Bowl, was the product of industrious efforts for Homecoming. Alumni Karl Johnson was honored for attending ISU's Homecoming every year for the last 42 years. The Central Office Operation Award was presented to the local chapter for management efficiency.

A victory in the annual Reformation Day football game with Beta Sigma Psi evened the series at one a piece for the PHI KAPPA THETA'S. The brothers also did well in intramural pingpong as they captured the class A championship. On the party scene, winter quarter is the time for the Phi Kappa Theta pirates. Each year the house is converted into a huge pirate ship complete with gang plank for those who fail to adhere to the "rules." "Time Out"! was the theme for their spring formal held at the Savery Hotel in Des Moines. A Hawaiian theme was the setting for the "Fish-eaters Brawl." The Phi Kap Blast booth, "Egg Nog," seems to have a self-explanatory title. A highlight of the year was the address given at their Greek Week banquet by Father McInerney, national scholarship chairman for Phi Kappa Theta.

According to the men of PI KAPPA ALPHA, the highlight of winter quarter was the Hawaiian Party when their house was temporarily transformed into a tropical paradise. Spring was made all the better by their "Dream Girl Formal" at the Wakanda Country Club in Des Moines. Pike dates will never forget the 70 ounce brandy sniffers, however, given as favors at their fall party "Roman Holiday." Besides being great party lovers, the Pikes are a brave crew. 70% of the house came forth and gave blood to operation lifeline for Greek Week. The Pikes showed their talent at the Blast by designing the largest booth which towered 28 feet. Probably the most important event of the year was the construction of their new $150,000 addition which will increase their capacity within the house to 77 men.

PI KAPPA PHI

*Pi Kap's go from snow to roses for entertainment;
use dual theme for Homecoming display*

"The Friendliest House on Campus," PI KAPPA PHI, swung out with many large parties last year. Snow was the appropriate theme for their winter house party "Sno-Ball." The theme of this semi-formal dance was carried out with favors of champagne bubble bath. Going from winter to spring and snow to roses, the brothers sponsored the "Rose Ball" during spring quarter. The beauty of the formals worn by the dates was matched only by the thousands of stars and budding roses which adorned the room. Miss Karen Knudson, Kappa Delta, reigned as the Rose Ball Queen. A dual theme of "Bowl 'Em Over" and "Cy Strikes Again" marked the Pi Kapps Homecoming display. A 25-foot Cy was shown bowling at Jayhawk pins. Strong intramural participation was shown with teams entered in all sports.

With the acquisition of two new large trophies, the men of SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON made 1962 a big success. In collaboration with the Theta's, they took first place in the combination division for their Veishea float "Water Babies." Sweepstakes for Homecoming displays then went to the SAE's for their display, "Beat Kansas," featuring some realistic beatniks. Jonnie Parizek reigned as queen for the Sig Alph winter formal. During spring quarter the brothers and their dates launched rafts in Tom Sawyer style down the Des Moines river. Upon finding a sandy beach, the travellers disembarked for dancing and a pie throwing contest. Mourning clothes were the apparel for the funeral of Paddy Murphy. An all university championship football team led the Alphas to the fraternity intramural trophy.

Crowning of Sue Rank as the fraternity's "sweetheart" took place as the final words of the famous song, "The Sweetheart of SIGMA CHI", filled the Wakonda Country Club. The occasion was the spring "Sweetheart Formal." Girls attending the "Undertakers Ball" were in for several novel experiences. First, they rode to the house in a hearse, and then, after going through a maze, each girl had to identify the sheet covered body of her escort. The men of Sigma Chi had no complaints about "refereeing" for their "Derby Days". Chi Omega captured top honors in the competitive events and a new "Derby Darlin'" was proclaimed. Interest on activities outside the house is evidenced by the fact that three Sigma Chi's served on the Central Committee for Greek Week and one was co-ordinator for Varieties '62.

Iowa farms and fields invaded the V.F.W. Hall in Nevada for the SIGMA NU "Sod-Busters' Ball", September 30, 1962. The brothers and their dates donned farmer-type clothing complete with the old familiar corn cob pipes. Entertainment consisted of dancing in-and-out between corn stalks, pumpkins, straw and hay. Al Capone himself couldn't have concealed a speakeasy any better than the Sigma Nu's did at their Roaring Twenties party during winter quarter. Spring quarter found the Sigma Nu's and their dates paddling down the Des Moines River from the Ledges to have a picnic dinner on the beach. Bugs were the main attraction at their Blast booth entitled "Roachill Downs" where contestants placed bets on the outcome of races run by six cockroaches on a specially constructed track.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sig Ep's build winning float, form two popular campus entertainment groups

"BAMBI" brought the Sig Ep's the first place trophy for the fraternity division in the Veishea parade.

The SIGMA PHI EPSILON house was again the scene of a whirl of social activities, projects, and other campus activities. The three annual house parties highlighted the social agenda. They included the "Saddle and Gun" which featured a Western type night club, the overnight party with its Christmas theme, and the "Queen of Hearts Ball" which filled the house with formals, tuxedos, and a new Sig Ep Sweetheart.

Strong volleyball, swimming, and wrestling teams helped the Sig Ep's to a lead in fraternity intramurals and to a final second place award. Two of the leading entertainment groups on campus come from the "Ep Lodge." These are the Varieties winning Sig Ep Trio and the Vanguards who provided twist music for The Memorial Union's Jazz and Java sessions, campus parties, and for the Sig Ep's themselves.

For the SIGMA PI's, a Valentine's Day dance and a Halloween party were the social highlights of the year. The dance was climaxed by the Valentine sweethearts taking over the house for the night and, in true feminine fashion, rearranging the furniture before the boys returned the next morning. The "Shocktail Party" at Halloween found the front yard turned into a graveyard and appropriate decorations to emphasize one entrance into the land of the departed. A fall hayride, more appropriate for the land of the living, helped round out the year's fun. Homecoming found the boys on North Hyland, burning the midnight oil for their display. Their efforts were rewarded when they received the second place trophy for fraternities with the display "K U's Headed for a Fall", featuring a working waterfall.

HOMECOMING '62 results in the construction of a real waterfall for K U's Jayhawk to plunge over.

Reward for building the float that should have gotten a trophy, but didn't, was given to TAU KAPPA EPSILON in the form of the Chi Omega "Purple Shaft" award. The float was "Ben-Hur" which the men built with the help of the Alpha Chi Omegas. To help celebrate Greek Week '62, the brothers sponsored one of the all-campus parties and provided dance music for the men and women of Iowa State. Intramurals proved to be one of their major interests. The Teke football team placed second in Class A football, and Tekes also became handball champions. Fall quarter found them winning the Class B volleyball and football championships. The pledge class of '62 was kept busy by constructing a new basketball court as an aid to the entertainment and physical activity of the whole house.

THETA CHI'S and their dates participated in a "Roman Holiday" during spring quarter. Dressing in togas, everyone in their costumes appeared as part of a picture of ancient Rome as they sat on cushions. Stone columns and a wine fountain added to the atmosphere. On another trip to Europe, the "Hotel Theta Chi" was established along The Iron Curtain in Germany. The hotel served as a way-station for refugees escaping from East Germany via an underground tunnel. The attire consisted of Old German style clothes and German beer steins served as favors for the dates. On April 20 at the Savory Hotel in Des Moines, Ann Lowe was crowned the Theta Chi sweetheart at the "Carnation Cotillion". Taking time out from their parties, the Theta Chi's earned the IFC award for scholarship advancement for 1962.

RESULT OF OUTSTANDING SERVICE in the field of foreign student relations is the Norman Hackett Service Trophy.

THETA DELTA CHI

Theta Delt's lead in Model U N, People-to-People, and organization of foreign student weekend

A new addition to the THETA DELTA CHI house is the Norman Hackett Service Trophy which they were awarded for outstanding service in the foreign student realm. They are leaders in the university Model United Nations and once a month hold a "foreign student dinner" and "bull session" which usually lasts about three hours. Other cosmopolitan activities include the International Weekend at Des Moines, Cosmopolitan club, and the YMCA. Theta Delt members also had leading parts in organizing the Foreign Student Weekend held on campus. Competition among rooms for scholastic recognition helps keep the house high in scholastic rankings. House parties included a "Roman Rampage" and a "Swamp Party" with the fitting decorations and dress, and the formal, "Carnation Cotillion."

Four hundred thirteen hungry coeds ate their way through all the pancakes they wanted at the THETA XI Pancake supper in the fall. Some of the fellows donned chef hats and took over in the kitchen, while others served as chauffeurs to transport the girls from the dorms. After two nights of flapjacks, fun, and fellowship, the boys turned in their $225 profit to the Campus Chest. As the girls visited the Theta Xi house and wandered by the trophy cases, they saw gold symbols of the boys' recent softball and volleyball championships. November 3, the house took on decorations of fleur-de-lis for the annual fall formal, which included the crowning of a Theta Xi sweetheart. March, 1963, marked the beginning of a new addition which includes a new rec room, chapter room, enlarged kitchen, and housemother's quarters.

Seniors Editor

Larry Hermann

Senior, you've spent four years or more hoping you'll leave Iowa State clutching a diploma, and at last it looks like you have a good chance of doing it. But there's more than the diploma, maybe you're also up for a commission and due for getting those bars pinned on your dress uniform. There are interviews, interview trips, and decisions to be made. This is your last look at ISU as an undergraduate part of it. Look with relief or with nostalgia, you won't change the fact that it is a way of living and a part of your life you are finishing. Look as you leave.

SENIORS

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

PLANNING senior activities and deciding on the class gift to the university is the job of the senior class officers. Handling the job this year were: Bill Murray, vice president; Karen Waggoner, secretary; Tom Timm, president; Keith Weber, treasurer.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

There is a great demand for men and women who are educated in agriculture at Iowa State University. As agriculture becomes a more complex enterprise, scientific programs, concepts, and training are applied to the many phases of agriculture. The demand is for the young graduate who has a thorough understanding of the basic concepts related to this more complex agriculture. Graduates with a degree in agriculture from Iowa State aim their training to many occupations including work in agricultural industries, farmers or farm managers, extension specialists and assistants, and communication directors. A curriculum in agriculture gives the student an opportunity to study the phase of agriculture in which he is most interested. Graduates of the college must have spent at least six months gaining practical experience in their chosen field before graduation.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

A slide rule. A log table. A math book. An Iowa State engineer can usually be found with one or more of the tools of his trade as he pursues his engineering studies at Iowa State. An engineering education aims to develop an engineer with a capacity for objective and analytical thought. An engineer is an individual trained to bring the finest and newest developments to industry and homes. A nuclear rocket is sent into space and the knowledge of an Iowa State engineer is at hand. Your home is heated by solar power and an Iowa State engineer figures directly in the research. A graduate engineer working for his PhD degree unravels a mystery for a new fuel and the prominent man is an Iowa State engineer. An Iowa State engineer is a man with a well-rounded education working to give his family, his friends and his nation a safer place to work and play.

VARIOUS YARNS and a floor loom allow Judy Clause to experiment with textures in a special problems course offered by the Clothing and Textile division of Home Ec.

STUDENTS in Home Ec. learn the art of serving a full course dinner while living in West Fisher Home Management House.

College of Home Economics

Child development. Education. Textiles and clothing. Home management. These are only a few of the many fields one can choose in the College of Home Economics. Graduates of the College of Economics may be found in these and many other varied walks of life all over the world. The college provides their graduates with a "liberal" education preparing the student as a person, citizen, and family member. From freshman days each student works closely with a faculty advisor who serves as a faculty friend, giving assistance in planning academic programs and counseling in all aspects of campus life. Graduates, found scattered all over the world, represent Iowa State training in industry as research technicians in the midwest, as buyers and designers for department stores in style-conscious communities, as teachers in many schools and as organizers in many of the nation's homes being excellent mothers and managers of their own families.

College of Science and Humanities

FINE MEASUREMENT is made on a physics research project. Research and Graduate school work await some of the seniors.

Variety. Depth of knowledge. Humanities. Expansion. These are only a few of the characteristics of the College of Science and Humanities. Variety is the key. Many majors and courses of study are open to the men and women who choose a career in this department. These choices may range from chemistry or English to physical education, naval science, or history and graduates may be found as teachers, laboratory technicians, office managers or research workers in industry. The College of Science and Humanities offers a great depth of knowledge for the science student. Core courses such as mathematics, history, and modern language, aim to develop the humanities area of a science student's education and helps a student to understand himself and others better. Growing is also a big characteristic of the College of Science and Humanities. The enrollment in the College equals the enrollment of the largest College, Engineering.

College of Veterinary Medicine

A checklist of the graduate of the College of Veterinary Medicine includes; twenty-one years of age, good moral character, good professional character, at least two quality points, and approval by all departments of the college. The most popular career for an Iowa State graduate of the College of Veterinary Medicine is private practice. Many of the vet med graduates are finding "small animal practice" in larger towns inviting and some maintain small private hospitals equipped for diagnosis and treatment of diseases of household pets. Other vet med graduates aim their careers to occupations with the Federal Government such as meat inspectors and in disease research. All over the nation, graduates of Iowa State's vet med department are found in positions of state and municipal governments, commercial work, public health service, and education and research.

AS A PART of routine requirement in vet med., Ray Morandi, x-ray technician for the day, examines a film after it has been developed.
