A "college for the people" was the vision of Iowa's pioneers. Years have brought changes to the sprawling campus, once a barren, windswept prairie. A past history marked with notable accomplishments sets the stage for a future of progress.

1858 . . .

One hundred years ago a nation began moving, searching for new land, for new ideas, for new dreams – dreams that might become realities, not only for the generation of 1858, but for the numerous generations of people who would follow in the footsteps of stalwart, foresighted pioneers.

And with a new hope and strong conviction a magnificent idea in education was conceived. There were to be “people’s colleges.” Education on a higher level was to be the right and opportunity not only of those preparing for the learned professions, but also for those who would till the soil and man the growing industry of the land. The vision was bold; the achievement of reality, difficult.

As early as 1848 citizens of Iowa sought a school of agriculture and requested the site and buildings at Fort Atkinson for such a purpose. Emphasis was placed on a college of scientific agriculture, stressing research and instruction to increase production and improve rural life.

On the snowy night of Feb. 4, 1858, the plans for a State Agricultural College and Farm began to flame in the hearts and minds of three men, Benjamin Gue, Robert Richardson and Ed Wright who met to draw up a bill proposing such a college to be connected with the entire agricultural interests of the state.

The bill met opposition from certain legislators who felt such a venture would be a squander of money on an untried dream. With a deep belief and enduring hope in the success of such a project, Gue saved the day for the bill, and Iowa State College became a reality, at least in name, on March 22, 1858, when the governor of Iowa signed the measure.

And to provide for the establishment of a State Agricultural College and Farm, with a Board of Trustees which shall be connected with the entire agricultural interest of the State of Iowa.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa that there is hereby established a State Agricultural College and Model Farm, to be connected with the entire agricultural interests of the State.

Sec. 2. Said College and Farm shall be under the management of a Board of eleven Trustees, and the Governor the President of the State Agricultural Society and the President of the State Agricultural College, who shall be ex-officio members of said Board.

Sec. 3. That W. W. Robinson of Des Moines County, Dimey Dugg of Van Buren County, John D. Wright of Union County, G. W. Sherman of Woodbury County, W. Duane Wilson of Polk County, Richard Davis of Jefferson County, and Foster of Muscatine County, J. M. Anderson of Linn County, W. Leonard of Boone County, C. W. Williams of Clayton County, C. B. Day of Story County, are hereby appointed and constituted the first Board of Trustees of the Agricultural College and Farm, who shall hold their office as may be determined under the provisions of the third section of this act.

Sec. 4. This act shall be in full force and effect its publication in the Iowa Farmer, the Iowa State Journal and the Iowa City Free Press.

Stephen D. Vincenty
Speaker of the House of Representatives
Wm. Farrell
President of the Senate

Approved March 22 1858.

March 22, 1858 marked the founding of Iowa State College when Gov. Ralph P. Lowe signed a bill establishing a State Agricultural College and Model Farm. Soon after, $10,000 was appropriated for purchase of land and improvements.

In 1859 the Board of Trustees selected Story County as the site of the new agricultural college. The original college farm consisted of 648 acres purchased from five different owners. In addition to voting a $10,000 bond issue to aid the struggling educational venture, citizens of Boone and Story counties pledged private gifts to bring the total to $21,355.

A second effort to prevent establishment of the college was attempted in 1860 when legislators who still saw the great dream of a new education for a new age as only a meaningless burden on the taxpayers, sought to repeal the original act signed 2 years before.

Early buildings to be completed were those on the college farm. The cattle barn, above, Farm House and first unit of Main Building were the only physical structures on campus when students arrived in 1868.

Help came at last in the form of the Morrill Land Grant Act passed by Congress and signed by Pres. Abraham Lincoln in 1862. The national measure poured fuel on the fire of hope for the foresighted architects of education by providing lands of the federal government to the states in furtherance of instruction in agriculture and mechanic arts. In accepting the terms of the plan Sept. 11, 1862, Iowa became the first member of the Land Grant family.

College—on a windswept prairie

Landmarks were few on the windswept prairie land where the "college" stood. First building to be erected was the Farm House, a structure now standing almost in the middle of the expanding campus. Farm buildings and barns comprised the remainder of the physical structures for the first 10 years.

In 1868 the first unit of the Main Building was completed and plans began crystallizing for the opening of the college on March 17, 1869. Students were admitted and the Main Building dedicated that day.

Adonijah S. Welch, a dignified, precise man, trained as a lawyer and at the time serving as a United States senator, became the first president of the new college in inauguration ceremonies the opening day of school.

Curricula limited for early students

Curricula in agriculture and mechanic arts comprised the original courses of study for the first class of 173 students, 136 men and 37 women. In the coeducational classes students studied rhetoric, landscape, gardening, German, algebra, arithmetic, bookkeeping, geography, analysis and instrumental music.

In 1861 the Farm House, first campus building, was erected. For many years the residence of superintendents of the Model Farm, the house is presently occupied by the Dean of Agriculture.

1861–1865 War between the States in the United States.

1863 Lincoln issues the Emancipation Proclamation.

1866 Atlantic cable is laid.

1867 The first volume of Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" is published.

1869 Driving of a golden spike in the plains of Utah marks completion of the first transcontinental railroad linking the coasts of the United States. Suez Canal is opened.

1876 Alexander Graham Bell's telephone is operated successfully.

Eleven years to the day after passage of the bill in the House establishing the college, the institution opened its doors to the first class of 173 students enrolled from 55 counties. The first graduating class, 24 men and 2 women pictured here, received diplomas in the spring of 1872.

Forerunner of today's widespread extension program was the first farm institute conducted by President Welch in 1870.

Domestic economy is offered for college credit

Domestic economy, taught by the wife of the president, was offered in 1872 as Iowa State became the first land-grant college in the nation to offer college credit for this work. The importance of correlating technical class work and practical application was felt more strongly when the college adopted the motto "Science with Practice."

I. C. Sororsis, organized in 1877, was the first national social sorority on campus. The group adopted the Greek letters Pi Beta Phi in 1888.

Higher education was generally appealing and from the beginning capacity enrollment of boarding students was met. Although tuition and rooms were free, books and board were at cost, and railroad fares were reduced, early students were workers. Rising at 5:30 a.m., the students worked in the fields, tended the grounds, prepared meals and built new buildings as well as attended classes. Money for the next term was earned during the winter vacation when students turned to school teaching.

As the college expanded to include more physical structures, telephones were installed between offices in 1878. The same year the Ladies Military Company was organized, a voluntary group headed by Carrie Chapman Catt.

1879 marked a significant first in education with the organization of the School of Veterinary Science, first in the United States and presently one of the five college divisions.

1879 Edison invents the incandescent electric lamp.

Ibsen's play "A Doll's House" gives impetus to the feminist movement.

1880 William Booth organizes the Salvation Army in England.

1882 The Triple Alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary is completed.

1884 Rayon is invented.

1886 Hertz demonstrates existence of electromagnetic waves.

Coeducational classes like this botany lecture section, were typical at Iowa State, the first land-grant college to be coeducational from the beginning. Large classes were common, even in the 1890's.

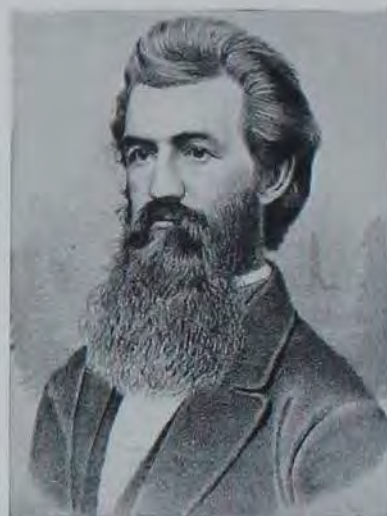

Building and expansion were important facets of the early 1880's as halls and housing units were constructed to accommodate rising enrollments and growing departments. In 1884 electric lights were first installed on the campus in the Main Building. Compulsory student manual labor, in effect since the beginning of the college, was discontinued in the same year.

Student activities came to the fore in the 1890's through publications, literary societies and athletics. The College Clipper, forerunner of the Iowa State Daily began publication on June 18, 1890; the first Bomb was published in 1892; the YMCA and YWCA were organized in 1890. Popular activities were the literary societies to which almost all students belonged. Designed to bring social and intellectual improvement to the students, the first society, Philematheans, was organized in 1868 and continued to be active until the 1920's. Rugby football with Dr. Ira C. Brownlee coaching, had its beginning in 1892.

D days of progress under William Beardshear

A practical, energetic man who would assure the college of leadership and progress was William M. Beardshear who became president in 1891. In the first year of his administration fraternities and sororities headed to a slow death following riots between fraternity and nonfraternity students which resulted in no student being allowed to join a secret college fraternity. The ban remained in effect until 1904.

College colors, silver for engineering; yellow for agriculture; and black for veterinary medicine, were chosen. Physical education for men took preliminary form through the Field Days program started in 1891. And 2 years later 13 acres west of Morrill Hall were set aside for an athletic field. Glen "Pop" Warner who developed the double wing back coached the football team for a few weeks each year from 1895-1899.

Benjamin F. Gue, a joint sponsor of the bill which created the college was one of the early trustees who helped guide the college in its first ventures.

Influential in the early organization of the college was Peter Melendy, a member of the first board of trustees and the man who selected the acres of land to be used as the site for the college.

Women students participated in military life on the campus from 1878 to 1897 as members of Ladies Military Company G organized by Carrie Chapman Catt, '80. In drill sessions the "troops" assembled in front of Main Building, predecessor to Beardshear Hall.

The official seal with the inscription: "The Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts — Science with Practice," was adopted in 1898.

Excursion Day, a special day of entertainment, open houses and instruction, began in 1898. With special rates offered by the railroads, more than 6,000 attended the first show; 12,000 came in 1905, date of the last festival.

The bells of Iowa State rang out for the first time in 1899 when the Campanile was erected at a cost of $5,885. A carillon of 10 bells manufactured in England was installed in the tower.

1890 The Pan American Union is organized.

1895 The first book dealing with psychoanalysis is published by Sigmund Freud.

1896 Marconi obtains the first patent for wireless telegraphy.

1897 Electrons are discovered. Diesel engine is invented.

1898 The Curies discover radium.

1899 The First International Peace Conference is called at the Hague, the Netherlands.

1903 Orville and Wilbur Wright make the first successful flight in an heavier-than-air machine.

1904-1905 Japan establishes herself as a major power following the Russo-Japanese War.

1905 Einstein publishes his formula for conversion of mass into energy.

1907 France, Russia and Great Britain enter the Triple Entente.

1908 Boy scout movement begins.

In 1891 the Dinky steam motor line came into existence marking the end of the horse-drawn accomodation bus. After 16 years the Dinky line was discontinued in 1907.

Classes in domestic economy began in 1872 under the direction of Mrs. Mary B. Welch. With "modern conveniences" of 1904, students above prepared a recipe of riced potatoes.

Legendary figures in the history of Iowa State sports are the original "Cyclones", the football team of 1895. A sportswriter nicknamed the team after watching it whirl past Northwestern 36-0.

The school calendar was revised at the turn of the century with classes beginning in September rather than March.

State legislature grants educational support

A definite educational support of $25,000 annually was granted to the college by the State Legislature for the first time in 1900. Previously, appropriations of the legislature were made for buildings only and operational and educational costs were covered by the income from the land grant.

Smoke, flames and bright light reached to the sky when the north wing of Main Building burned Dec. 8, 1900. The south wing, all that remained of the building, burned to the ground on Aug. 14, 1902.

The fifth division, the Division of Science as Related to the Industries, became a part of the college's educational organization in 1904. First headed by Pres. A. B. Stroms, the name of the division was shortened to Division of Science 35 years later.

In 1904 youth clubs which became 4-H clubs were started in Iowa; Cardinal Guild, student governing body was founded; a year later Alpha Zeta, honor society for agriculture upperclassmen, was the first honor group installed on campus.

Agriculture was one of two major curricula offered when classes began in 1869. Students in Farm Dairy Industry classes in the early 1900's used wooden churns and equipment to prepare butter.

By 1914 enrollment of the college had reached 2,800 at which time the entire student body assembled for a "class" picture, filling the lawn of central campus and overflowing on the steps and out the windows of Beardshear Hall, built in 1906.

1909 Peary reaches the North Pole.

1911–1912 China is established as a republic.

1911 Amundsen reaches the South Pole.

1913 The Rockefeller Foundation is established.

1914–1918 World War I. The United States enters fighting in 1917.

1914 The Panama Canal is opened facilitating world travel by cutting off the route around South America.

1916 Einstein establishes the theory of relativity.

1917 Revolution takes place in Russia. The Communist regime begins.

Student festivals were of great interest in the early days of the 1900's. In 1907 the Women's Athletic Association began May Day to honor senior women; St. Patrick's Day was originated by students in civil engineering in 1910; and the first Ag Carnival was held in 1912. All were absorbed by Veishea in 1922.

Athletics, scholarship emphasized

Importance of athletics and scholarship was emphasized through developments beginning in 1908. In that year the first intercollegiate basketball game was played at Iowa State against a present traditional rival, the University of Kansas. Kansas won! Later in the year the college became a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, withdrawing in 1928 to become a charter member of the Big Six.

Phi Kappa Phi, senior scholastic honorary, was installed on campus in 1911; and 2 years later Omicron Nu, home economics honor society, was introduced.

Home economics became a division in 1912 under the direction of Catherine MacKay, 1916 marked the beginning of "practice homes" used by home economics students. The year was another in the chain of "firsts" when Leslie A. Kenoyer in the Department of Botany received the first Ph.D. degree.

A spot of beauty, placid and refreshing, is Lake LaVerne, a gift to the college from LaVerne Noyes '72, who donated $10,000 in 1916 for landscaping the campus and constructing the lake which now bears his name.

Parading on its way to a picnic celebrating the semi-centennial of selection of the site for the college in 1909 is a group of officials led by Dean Charles F. Curtiss, left.

Highlight of spring was the May Day Festival begun in 1907 to honor senior women. Day's events reached their climax with the coronation of a queen.

Widespread war in Europe brought anxiety and mobilization to the nation's college campuses. Drills for all able-bodied students, Red Cross and conservation projects for women, technical training through special schools and induction of about 1,700 men into the Student Army Training Corps, were contributions of Iowa State students and faculty to the war effort.

W O I leads the way to improved communications

Advances in communications began to increase in 1921 when a transmitting station, later to use the call letters WOI, was built by the Department of Electrical Engineering. Four years later the station outgrew its experimental function and was reorganized as part of the college. 1921 marked the beginning of publication of the Iowa Homemaker. A chapter of Sigma Xi, scientific research honor society was installed the same year, the second to be established at a separate land-grant college. In 1925 the College Library building was completed at a cost of $626,474.

Resources and facilities of the college were organized and utilized to meet the demands placed on educational institutions with the advent of World War I. Special schools concerned with such problems as telegraphy were set up on campus to train students in technical "war" skills.

Stars Over Veishea, 1925 version, was a song, dance and comedy affair. Known as Veishea Night Show in the beginning, this scene portrays a part of the show "Going Down."

An early Veishea float from the Division of Home Economics depicted departmental curricula available and pointed out highlights of divisional class work.

Radio had its early beginnings on campus in the 1920's when a transmitting station was built which began operating under the call letters WOI in 1922.

1919 Communists found the Third International.

Peace conference meets at Versailles following the end of the war.

The Eighteenth Amendment is passed giving women throughout the United States the right to vote.

1920 The League of Nations meets for the first time.

1922 Mussolini seizes control of Italy.

1927 Charles Lindbergh wins wide acclaim following his solo flight across the Atlantic.

1928 The Pact of Paris is signed outlawing war as an instrument of national policy.

A spectacular blaze in 1922 left the college Armory in skeleton form. Destruction was $260,000. A second building, similar in design, was constructed the following year on the same spot.

Engineering in the '20's included practical experience working with "new" model automobiles. The machine shop pictured here was part of the Department of Mechanical Engineering.

Fashion-conscious coeds appeared for gym classes in 1926 attired in the latest middie blouses, knee-length pleated skirt and long black stockings.

From small beginnings in 1922 to the largest student-managed festival in the world in 1958, grew Veishea, originally planned to avoid having each division hold a separate celebration. Name of the festival was chosen by Frank Paine, a professor who used the first letter of the divisions as they were named at the time, to form the word Veishea.

Emphasis on activities and scholarship continued in the student body with installation of Mortar Board in 1925 and Cardinal Key in 1926. The first Honors Day was held in the latter year to honor students for achievement in these areas.

A memorial to war service becomes the hub of campus life

An outstanding memorial to the place of the college in the past world war, a memorial which has become a present day reflection and expression of interests and values in modern college life, is the Memorial Union. Construction of the building began in 1927 through the efforts of students, alumni, faculty and friends of the college who made the financial contributions. Col. Harold Pride was named first director of the Union in 1930.

A second campus memorial received attention in 1929 when 26 bells were added to the 10 bells of the Stanton Memorial Carillon.

In 1932 the Twenty-Year Program Survey was made to improve the college program and estimate future developments and needs. The Alumni Achievement fund was organized; a director was appointed 17 years later in 1949, and since that year the group has made outstanding contributions to scholarships, research, student activities and special projects.

Two present-day campus "landmarks" began as college traditions in 1935 and 1937 when Veishea Central Committee presented the swans, Sir Lancelot and Elaine, and the fountain in front of Memorial Union to the college.

The heart of the campus—Memorial Union. Hub and central point of college activity, the Union was started in 1927 and completed the following year at a cost of $958,584. A fifth addition to the building is presently in the stages of completion.

An organized drill team on horses was started in 1931 as the college Cossacks Club. The group grew out of the Monkey Drillers which began in 1928.

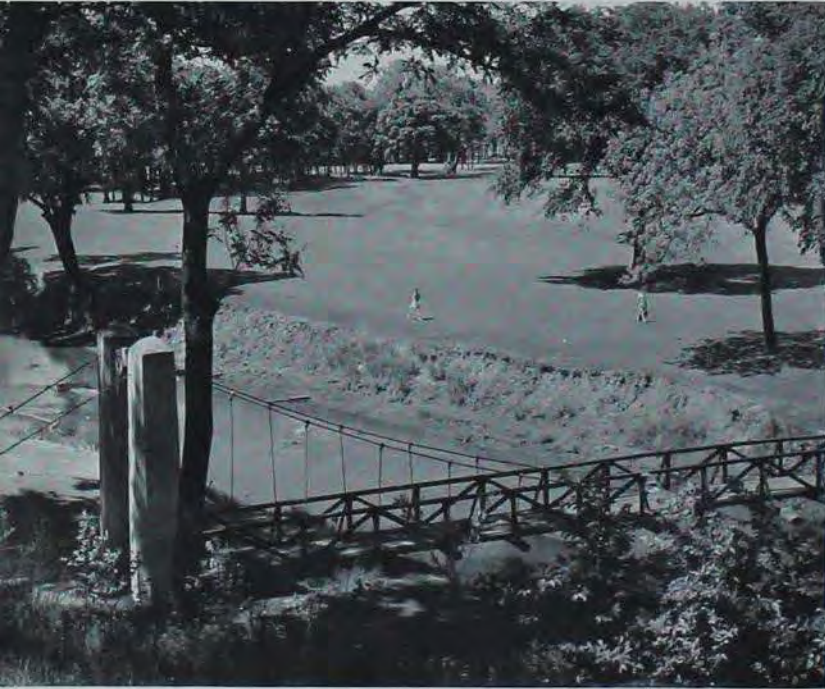

1929 Stock market crash in the United States marks the beginning of world-wide depression.
Penicillin is discovered.

1932 E. O. Lawrence invents the cyclotron or atom-smasher.

1933 Hitler comes to power in Germany. President Franklin D. Roosevelt announces his Good Neighbor policy.

1936-1939 Generalissimo Franco becomes dictator of Spain following the country's civil war.

1938 Hahn and Strassman split the uranium atom.

Twenty years ago the college golf course, complete with arching bridge over the creek, was constructed with WPA and Athletic Council funds at a cost of $122,373.

The Gables, built by President Welch, was the home of several college presidents. Passed down through generations, it finally became the property of Iowa State College in 1928 at which time it was renamed the International House.

Well-known for his statuary in areas of the campus is Christian Petersen, artist-in-residence. He modeled figures for the Home Economics and Memorial Union fountains, the Library and Veterinary Quadrangle.

In the late days of the '30's all was quiet in the United States while dark clouds of war hung once again over Europe. Months of depression in the early part of the decade were followed by intensive construction projects on the campus. Friley Hall was built in 1939, 12 years following construction of Hughes men's dormitory; the two are now joined. In addition came Oak Hall, South Wing of Memorial Union, the Women's Gym, Collegiate Press Building and Library Storage Building, all constructed in '39 and '40. A transmitting tower for WOI-AM, located about 1,000 feet north of the Service Building in Pammel Court, was built. Streets on the campus were named in 1941 but no street signs were put up.

Friley-Hughes Hall, sprawling men's dormitory on the west edge of the campus, was built in 1939. Additions to the building in 1942, 1950 and 1954 brought total investment to $2,587,665.

Another war brought a remobilization effort to the campus. Students in the Naval Training program were among those who received special training to aid the student effort in World War II.

Parties continued on the campus during war years; however, the military life was not forgotten as students wore uniforms to dances and the American flag was hung in Great Hall.

1939 World War II begins with the Nazi invasion of Poland.

1945 Yalta Conference.

Franklin D. Roosevelt dies.

The United Nations Charter is drafted at San Francisco.

1946 The Philippine Islands are given independence.

1947 2,200-inch telescope is put into operation at Mount Palomar, California.

In 1942 quiet on the home front was disrupted when the nation again prepared for war and the college mobilized to aid the all-out defense effort. For research and scientific development on vital materials as uranium, Iowa State became the site of essential war work.

Essential contribution to World War II

Training schools began again with students wearing uniforms everywhere on campus. The army sponsored a specialized training program while the navy operated schools to teach the essentials of electricity and even cooking and baking.

Projects such as the separation of rare earths are part of the exhaustive research studies carried out at the Institute of Atomic Research.

An influx of married students following the war led to a separate housing section named for L. H. Pammel, long-time professor of botany.

Despite confusion, activity continued on all sides of the campus. "A History of Iowa State College," by Earle D. Ross, was published in 1942; 12 stained glass windows were added to the Union the following year; the Institute for Atomic Research, headed by Frank H. Spedding, began work in 1945.

Married students increased enrollment and created need for Pammel Court, "temporary" student housing project. Many original buildings still stand in the Court and expansion is taking place rapidly.

OPERATION RAINBOW

Operation Rainbow starts today! Yesterday afternoon a group of 55 students met to initiate this project. Briefly, Operation Rainbow is the code name for a student body project to express the student's appreciation for the long and devoted service of Dean Helser to Iowa State College.

A high student tribute to a respected educator was the presentation of a Cadillac to Dean M. D. Helser in a special ceremony of Veishea 1955. "Operation Rainbow," as the project became known, acknowledged Dean Helser's 23 years of service to the college.

Telecasting was added to the WOI radio station in 1951 when the first live broadcasts were transmitted. President and Mrs. Eisenhower visited with Ed Wegoner of the studio during a stop on the campus in 1952.

1948 The Marshall aid plan is adopted.

1950 The Korean conflict begins.

1951 A commercial color television broadcast takes place for the first time.

1952 General Eisenhower is elected president of the United States.

1955 Salk polio vaccine is proven effective.

1957 Russia launches the Sputnik I as the race for exploration and control of space begins.

Pres. James Hilton congratulates John Granson, right, chairman of the Alumni Achievement Fund, following receipt of a citation from Time-Life in 1955 for excellence in direct mailing campaigns.

As years progressed celebrations were held for anniversaries of note. The Division of Home Economics acknowledged 75 years of work in 1947, and the college celebrated the 90th anniversary of its founding the following year.

Many present-day administrators and organizations now familiar to Iowa State students were unknown 10 years ago. Dean Floyd Andre became head of the Division of Agriculture in 1949; Dean Helen LeBaron of Home Economics and Dean I. A. Merchant of Veterinary Medicine in 1952; Dean Richard Bear of Science in 1957; and Pres. James Hilton and Provost James Jensen became heads of the college administration in 1953. MRA and WRA were established in 1949 and 1953 respectively.

Continually striving in research and development, WOI-TV became the first educationally owned and operated television station in the nation on Feb. 21, 1950.

Modern facilities combined with a professional outlook have made the veterinary medicine school one of the top in the nation. Organized in 1879, it was the first state veterinary college in the country.

Increased student enrollment through the years has brought increased need for dormitory construction. The newest residence for men, Helser Hall, was built in 1957.

"Little Ankeny," an unimposing structure which served many purposes, became a place of world-wide interest during World War II as a leading producer of uranium. Total operations in the building resulted in production of more than 2,000,000 pounds of ore.

Number 20 has become a legendary figure to basketball fans who watched Iowa State's first all-American Gary Thompson in action. Following selection to basketball's team-of-teams Gary appeared on the Ed Sullivan television program.

"Hilton's Dream," a plan for the future development of the college was explained to members of the state Interim Committee, from left, Raymond Gillespie, George Scott, George Paul, Lawrence Putney, W. J. Johannes and Casey Loss, by Pres. James Hilton.

The junior college, part of the educational organization since 1903, was discontinued in 1955, and the office of Director of Student Affairs created.

Development of the campus has meant further construction of modern buildings to house students and classrooms. Hawthorne Court, an addition to Home Economics Building, Helser and Linden Halls are among the projects built in the last 2 years to meet the needs of a growing campus.

Realization of this dream, shown here in a scale model, will mean expansion and growth in the continuing development of Iowa State College.

Displays of past history of the college were constructed to portray the important events and the changing scene in the past one hundred years.

Happy birthday to you! Celebrating the centennial complete with cake to mark the occasion, guests at the Founder's Day party sang to the college under the direction of Dr. Tolbert MacRae.

Modern technology and complicated research led to the beginning of work on a high-speed digital computer in 1956. Building of the "Cyclone" is under the direction of Dr. Robert M. Stewart, Department of Physics. A grant of $135,000 was made last fall to provide a house for this electronic brain.

The past is history

Thus with honor to the past . . . and vision for the future, the college participated in the most important event of its existence, the celebration of its centennial. On hand to mark the occasion, to extend congratulations and offer a critical view of today's world were outstanding educators from outstanding institutions of learning across the country. Founder's Day, March 22, was observed with an academic procession, conferring of honorary degrees and speeches from Dr. James Morrill, University of Minnesota and Dr. Virgil Hancher, State University of Iowa.

One hundred years of high accomplishments, unequalled leadership, service to a community and a nation are past. The history book bulges with memories of notable works. A century is past, but a new day begins tomorrow, a day to consider the honor of the past and to work for the progress of the future.

Opening event of Founder's Day, March 22, was an academic procession to the Armory where assembled guests and faculty heard an address by Dr. James Morrill, president of the University of Minnesota.

To commemorate the centennial, Dr. Earle Ross, college historian, wrote and published his second book, "The Land-Grant Idea at Iowa State."

Pres. James Hilton and Dr. Morrill confer before the procession. Dr. Morrill, a leading educator, was keynote speaker for Founders' Day ceremonies.

Iowa State today this year is distinctive.

Yet it will join other years to make up a tradition beginning its second century. With honor to our noble past our vision now turns to the future served by Iowa State College.

At first the freshman sits a bit bewildered to watch the campus life whisk past him. But soon he, too, becomes familiar and joins the stream of life which proceeds at a maddening pace at Iowa State.

Iowa State wakes up each fall to welcome a new crop of freshmen who soon will be absorbed into its teeming life.

Rain-slick sidewalks reflect the image of a coed rushing to class—Iowa autumns offer most any kind of weather imaginable.

Brilliant autumn sunlight filters through the branches which form an arch above the bridge where dorm women cross many times a day on their way to class. And now and then they take a moment to enjoy the beauty there.

Cars overflowing with college necessities leave Lincoln Highway west of Ames and head toward campus residences... first evidence of life... fall quarter 1957. Flustered parents, impatient students rush madly from car to room, burdened with boxes, suitcases, bedding. New roommates peer at each other for a first time over their bundles. Upperclassmen have a whole summer's experiences to relate.

... complex yet friendly

Traditions, customs . . .

Books are scattered about the ground before ROTC men do double time to be prompt at the practice field for marching.

Fall quarter started with new friends, new classes, new resolutions. Freshmen often found themselves lost in the search for buildings, overwhelmed at the size of everything. Newcomers found themselves welcomed by the friendly smiles which are Iowa State.

Activities resumed their usually feverish pitch. Enthusiasm and spirit hit a new high. The Cyclones were once more in the winning columns and their efforts were rewarded by the cheers of appreciative fans who welcomed them back to the campus.

The campus turned golden and the sidewalks and paths were heaped with crackling leaves. But the snow came early to chill the campus and give it a pastel quality.

New classrooms and residences eased growing pains, provided modern facilities. But problems were still present—the perennial parking tangle and a new one, the Asian flu, which took its toll of classes.

These freshmen coeds soon learn the requirements of an ISC student include comfortable walking shoes.

Greeks hold celebration

Greek Week officially opened on Friday, Oct. 4, with the unhooding of 29 initiates into Honor Greek. At these same kick-off ceremonies, Darlene Mote and Chuck Manatt were crowned queen and king. Kappa Sigma, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Nu, and Delta Delta Delta held open houses later that evening. Saturday the Greeks worked together on campus-improvement projects and attended discussions held at 21 fraternity houses. Woody Herman and The Third Herd made music for the dance that evening.

Dancing was in order for 1957 Greek Week as four houses invited guests to stop in and take advantage of varied combos. Space limitations didn't seem to stop dancers one bit.

Gigantic letters announcing the Greek Week Dance dwarf Sally Peterson who is completing work on decorations.

Homecoming 1957—cold blast fails to chill festivities

Newly-revived football spirit reached a new pitch when Homecoming hit the Iowa State campus. Card section stunts, half-time ceremonies by the band and peppy cheerleaders honored returning alumni at the climaxing game. Homecoming Queen Cathy Olson and her two attendants, Linda Sloan and Jo MacDonald, reigned over the celebration.

Red and gold Homecoming buttons and brilliant mums added color to the grey, cold weekend. The stadium was packed with chilled spectators but the "no class Monday" hopes faded as Kansas State overpowered the Cyclones 14-10.

ISC welcomes alums, guests

Homecoming was a result of the efforts of an entire campus. Residences worked late into the night completing lawn decorations. Behind the scenes, Homecoming had been in the making since spring.

And for two days excitement ran high. Classes were dismissed and students joined guests and alumni in the series of events. Activities were varied—from the screaming crowds who honored Coach Jim Myers and his football players to the sophisticated crowd who danced to Ralph Marterie.

Two alumni stop to reminisce. The years have changed Iowa State considerably, but it still retains the appearance and traditions they remember from their college days.

"Leon the Peon," Beyer House's winning Ugly Man on Campus entry, haunts the walk between Beardshear and the Book Store to gain votes in the form of donations for Campus Chest.

Student participation activities dominated late fall quarter. Student reviews gave their impressions of several best-sellers during the Books and Cokes program sponsored by Sketch. The engineers sponsored an evening of variety and fun with their Engineers' Carnival . . . booths offering games of chance and skill, a girlie show, and the annual jitterbug contest. Campus residences sold services at an all-college auction and sponsored their ugliest members in the Ugly Man on Campus contest for a worthwhile cause . . . Campus Chest. The week's series of events netted the charity drive $8000 and everyone got into the act.

Honorary initiates and campus cops take brunt of jokes

Not to be outdone by the engineers, Block and Bridle Club and the agricultural students sponsored Little International. It, too, had its displays and contests. Representatives from women's residences competed for the Milkmaid Trophy by demonstrating their techniques at milking a cow.

Campus honoraries began their choices of new members, often accompanied by appropriate initiation stunts. And the inevitables of Iowa State were still around. The ever-present campus cops handed out their share of tickets and seniors faced a final hurdle before graduating... senior English exams.

Christmas comes to Iowa State . . .

Festivities lighten final weeks of fall quarter

The Iowa State Singers presented a program of unforgettable Christmas music as their offering to the Christmas Festival of Music. The band, orchestra, Modern Dance Club and Players also contributed to this high point of the holiday season.

Christmas came to Iowa State on the heels of Thanksgiving vacation, bringing with it traditions which pushed final week preparation to the background. Colored lights competed with glistening stars as Pres. Hilton lighted the Christmas tree on central campus to officially open the season. Songs by the Iowa State Singers and the audience and a carillon concert added to the occasion. Tinted Christmas trees, stars and mistletoe gave a gala holiday mood to the Christmas Ball. The Christmas Festival of Music climaxed the season with its offering of music, narration and dance to thrill an audience which overflowed the Armory.

In keeping with the season, snow frosts every pine branch to lend a silvery touch in true Christmas card fashion.

A favorite tradition at Iowa State...the Christmas season opens officially with the lighting of a giant Christmas tree on central campus and a suitable seasonal serenade by the Iowa State Singers.

The 1958 Bomb proudly presents

Publisher and TV personality Bennett Cerf chose the four Bomb Beauties from pictures sent him of the eight finalists chosen by a local panel.

On these pages the 1958 Bomb honors Iowa State's most beautiful women, chosen from hundreds of coeds who are more than just pretty.

Preliminary nominations for the contest came from all campus residences. These candidates were interviewed by a board of judges at a tea in Memorial Union and the difficult task of choosing 25 semi-finalists set in. Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity was the site of the final tea attended by carefully-groomed, radiant beauties whose nervousness was known only to them.

Excited squeals echoed through the residences of the eight finalists when they were notified of their selection. Then came the pictures and a long wait for Bennett Cerf's choices...four more contestants for Veishea Queen of Queens.

You wake up one morning to find the campus turned silver by the season's first snowfall. Life seems to be hushed and otherwise harsh lines take on a softened, pastel outline. The frozen leaves crackle under your feet and snow falls from the heavy boughs with every breeze.

Blizzard or not... classes still go on... sometimes slightly behind schedule as foot or mechanical transportation finds the going rough.

"Why does it have to decide to stall on a night like this?"... a picture of frustration in the chill, driving snow.

Sir John Falstaff delighted "Henry IV" audiences with his hilarious antics. Prof. Ralph Towne created this memorable character in the Iowa State Players production.

Falstaff and Sakini visit Iowa State

Henry Percy, better known as Hotspur, is involved in a plot against King Henry IV and his son, Hal. Hotspur emerges one of the production's most memorable figures.

Falstaff entertains Poins and Pete with an example of his self-centered humor which relieves a tense situation involving the fate of the crown of England.

Iowa State theater-goers were treated to two humorous campus productions fall quarter, "Teahouse of the August Moon" by Patrick and Shakespeare's "King Henry IV."

"Teahouse" expressed the idea that people at opposite ends of the world are basically much alike. Movable sets created an authentic Okinawan village background for the unforgettable Sakini.

The comic Falstaff rollicked through a period of English history in "Henry IV" which portrayed a famous struggle for the throne.

The Iowa State College Theatre was responsible for both productions.

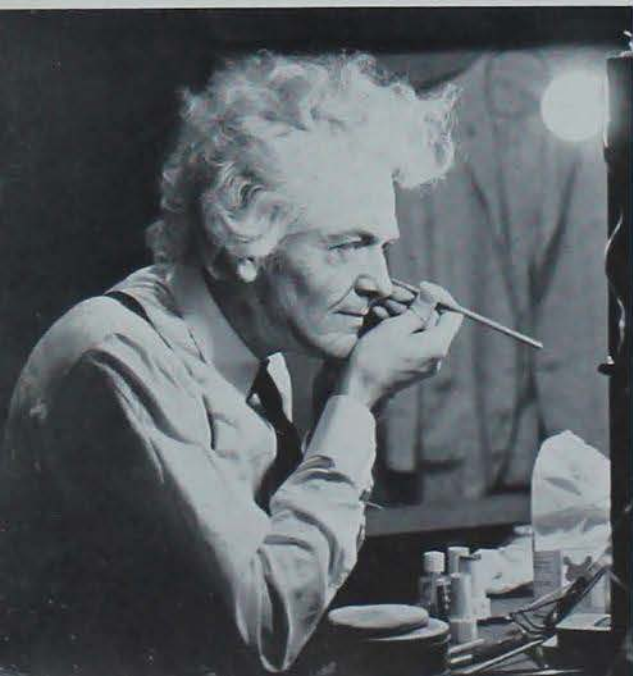

Sakini accumulates several passengers and an excess of baggage to accompany Captain Fisbie to the Okinawan village he has been assigned to "Americanize."

Sakini's humor is unforgettable and his philosophy teaches that people are basically alike. The Oriental interpreter charmed audiences with his first appearance.

Hal Holbrook not only impersonated Mark Twain—he “became” Mark Twain thanks to several hours of painstaking make-up and careful study.

“An Evening with Mark Twain”

Social Bureau brought to Iowa State audiences an unforgettable American literary figure—Mark Twain impersonated by Hal Holbrook. Twain’s timeless humor was coupled with his observations on life and selections from his most famous works. Authentic makeup and practiced interpretation brought Mark Twain to life in the person of a young performer.

“An Evening with Mark Twain” turned into a delightful occasion as the crowd was whisked down the Mississippi with Huck Finn and his friends. Social Bureau sponsored the skillful characterization by Hal Holbrook.

Maurice Good and Brania O'Shannon strike a romantic pose in a scene from the Dublin Players' production of "Arms and the Man."

The Dublin Players presented a series of plays in Curtiss Auditorum under the sponsorship of Social Bureau. Included was George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

Guest artists expose Iowa State students to culture of varied sorts.

Iowa State students have excellent opportunities throughout the year to attend outstanding lectures and musical and dramatic productions. These appearances by internationally-famous personalities are sponsored by the Artist Concert Series, Lecture Series and student organizations.

Iowa State was on the Dublin Players' itinerary for the fourth year. The group from Dublin's Irish Theater presented Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" and Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

Variety in piano artistry was displayed by Leonard Pennario. Other musicians included the Festival Quartet and Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. And concerts by the band and orchestra featured outstanding guest soloists.

Leonard Pennario's keyboard artistry delighted Iowa State's music enthusiasts at his winter quarter performance in the campus concert hall, State Gymnasium.

Spectacular costumes and stage settings combined with memorable music and an appealing story for an enjoyable evening at "La Traviata."

Enthusiastic student audience applauds NBC Opera Company'

roduction of Verdi's "La Traviata."

Over 4,000 people enjoyed an evening at the opera in Iowa State's Armory as the NBC Opera Company presented Verdi's famous "La Traviata."

The four-act opera was sung in English by a cast of 120 accompanied by a 40-piece orchestra. The story of a frivolous French play-girl featured Elaine Malbin as Violetta. As Violetta fell in love with Alfredo, played by Kirk Oreste, the plot turned into a sad love story when Violetta was persuaded to leave Alfredo to prevent a family scandal. Discovering the plot led by his father, Alfredo rushed to Violetta to find her dying in a small Paris apartment.

Members of Iowa State Players worked behind the scenes, assisting the opera cast and crew with costumes, scenery and production details.

Dr. Niels Bohr, Nobel prize winner and recipient of $75,000 Atoms for Peace Award, spoke on "The Unity of Knowledge" at the third annual John Franklin Carlson Lecture fall quarter.

Allan Kline, former Farm Bureau leader now turned philosopher and statesman, was on campus in January to participate in the initial "Voice of Experience" program. He spoke on what the future would bring to the field of agriculture.

Sec. of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson labeled farm laws out of date in a speech before 750 at the All-Agriculture banquet.

Varieties . . . show place of student talent

Mike Steffenson acted as master of ceremonies to keep the second Varieties performance running smoothly with chatter and jokes to fill the spaces between skits.

The Sig Ep quartet sang a medley of familiar songs for its in-between-act contribution. And Jerry Vajgr's combo played some listenable numbers as the crowd filled Great Hall.

Alpha Gamma Delta won a first-place trophy with a modernized version of a children's classic . . . "Oz A-Comin." Representatives of basketball teams traveled with Dorothy to visit the Wizard.

Iowa State thrives on residence participation and Varieties is one of the all-time favorites. During winter quarter series of Friday-evening programs, fraternities, sororities and dormitories compete for trophies with ten- to twelve-minute skits interspersed with in-between acts and remarks by a witty master of ceremonies.

This year "Syncopated Sound" was the general theme and each night's performance opened with a dance by Freeman Hall's Variety Girls. The final performance was climaxed by the presentation of Christian Peterson's sweepstakes trophy to Kappa Alpha Theta for a music and dance fantasy "Wouldn't It Be Elegant." Varieties is sponsored each year by Union Board.

During Religion In Life Week each winter the campus takes on a thoughtful atmosphere as students consider topics important to their lives.

Religion-In-Life Week and Women's Day brought significant speakers to Iowa State.

Women leaders in campus activities were honored at a banquet during Women's Day when Iowa State's feminine minority ran the campus for a day.

Mrs. Robert Gunderson addresses a feminine audience during the morning's convocation. She is Republican national committeewoman from North Dakota.

Iowa State's International House sponsored an exhibition of student paintings during a Homecoming week-end open house.

Campus Chinese students meet at the home of Dr. Chan at one of their regular get-togethers. Dr. Chan is known for his work on Promise, Inc., which aids the people of the Far East.

Another Players production, "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" told the story of an ingenious gentleman who was temporarily successful in maintaining two families unbeknownst to each other.

"Barjhe," Modern Dance Club's annual production, featured a variety of moods in "The Dance Has Many Faces." Numbers ranged from the rollicking can-can to a more serious interpretation of lurking death.

Local and imported talent contribute to campus entertainment to round out a busy winter schedule.

The Iowa State Players production of "Dr. Knock" introduced the campus audience to French comedy at its best.

The Dukes of Dixieland provided an enthusiastic Iowa State audience with rhythmic selections during their concert appearance.

Winter quarter brought accelerated activity to already-busy Iowa State. Besides weekly Varieties, Women's Day and Religion in Life Week, events from athletic to cultural crowded the campus calendar.

The Iowa State Players displayed their talents in two productions. "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" left the audience smiling while "Dr. Knock" introduced new production techniques in a famous French comedy.

Modern Dance Club climaxed long months of rehearsals with "Barjche" and Naiads followed suit spring quarter with their underwater extravaganza "C'est Paris."

And there was the usual array of guest artists from the Dukes of Dixieland to the Minneapolis Symphony which ushered in the spring quarter. The campus musical organizations presented concerts and Cyclone basketball, wrestling and swimming teams were treating fans to a generous portion of thrills.

Senior class officers who guided the activities of the 1958 centennial graduating class are Jerry Ladman, president; Pam Briggs, secretary; LuAnn Cooper, treasurer; and Logan VanSittert, vice-president.

Action Party candidates, Bill Jahn and Bruce Thatcher, and Alliance Party candidates, Gene Havens and Tom Phelps, debate platform issues before election day which decided the next student body president.

During the course of Iowa State's first nominating convention enthusiastic supporters rose to their feet to accompany demonstrations with thundering applause when a favorite candidate was introduced.

Alliance Party supporters maintained a round-the-clock row-boat watch on Lake LaVerne from the party caucus Sunday afternoon until voting booths closed Wednesday night.

When they weren't enjoying the jam session in the Trophy Tavern while voting results were announced, interested observers crowded around the tables of the ballot-tabulators.

Cardinal Guild members devoted most of the night to counting the ballots for the full slate of student officers which came before the voters.

The crowd forgot the gloomy weather and enjoyed Veishea nevertheless. The participants weren't the only ones who received a drenching as rain clouds threatened the competition.

Veishea . . . undaunted by rain.

Spring means Veishea at Iowa State as the campus launches into frenzied preparation for the nation's largest student managed festival. Each year tens of thousands of high school students, alumni, parents and friends converge on the college for the mammoth spectacle.

Veishea has something for everyone . . . comic canoe races on Lake LaVerne, light-hearted Vodvil, an impressive array of show horses, two name-band dances, campus-wide open houses, a world-spanning parade, and a tribute to student talent in "Stars Over Veishea." Iowa State's outstanding students are tapped for Mortar Board and Cardinal Key at opening ceremonies and Veisheathon brings an outstanding speaker to the campus.

Reigning over the three-day carnival is the Veishea Queen of Queens, chosen from all queens selected during the year. This year Virginia Stuck Dorn was honored royalty of Iowa State's $30,000 showcase.

A colorfully regal float, "Pomp and Circumstance" brought the Delta Sig's a mammoth sweepstakes trophy, tangible reward for weeks of work.

Veishea Queen of Queens Virginia Stuck Dorn charmed thousands of campus visitors as she filled her week-end with appearances at all Veishea events . . . a gracious beauty.

Five Tri-Delt beauties illustrated different parts of the country for their "American Beauty" float theme. The all-American girl was seated in the petals of a crimson rose.

A religious theme from Veishea "World Wonderland" was successfully portrayed on Kimball House's float, "This Wonder Never Ceases."

Veishea trophies are awarded

Two fearful dragons guarded the stairway leading to a gilded Buddha in Sigma Alpha Epsilon's "Oriental Mysteries" Veishea float.

Showmanship takes different forms at Veishea. Residences compete for trophies by spending hundreds of hours building elaborate floats for the parade which this year carried the "World Wonderland" theme.

And, in a different category, top house showmen groomed their horse show exhibitions. Entries from all over Iowa and neighboring states competed in seventeen classes including western and English saddle horses, harness horses and children's ponies.

June Brandmill, queen attendant, presents a trophy to a proud winner in a Veishea horse show event. In all, 18 trophies and $2100 in prize money were awarded the winners.

All-American basketball player Gary Thompson received the Athlete of the Year Trophy at Veisheathon ceremonies.

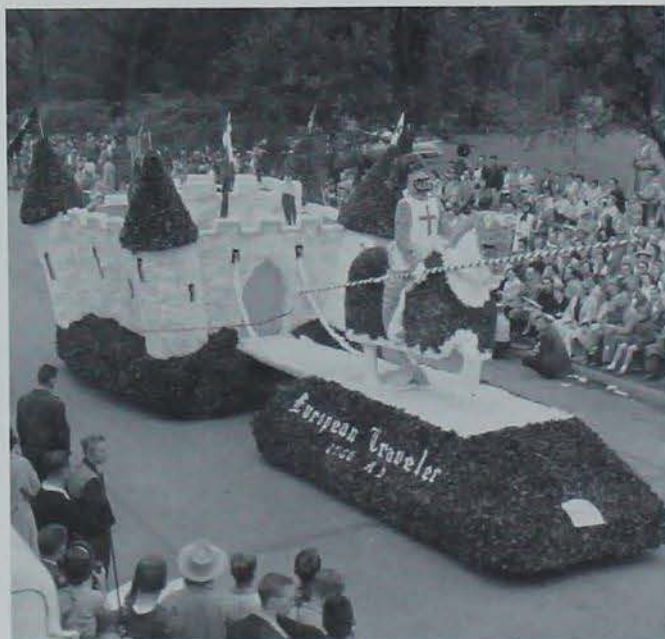

Colorful Roman chariot races added a novel historical touch to the horse show. Instead of a Roman Coliseum the setting was a parking lot bordered by a cheering crowd of high school students and other visitors.

A colorful "World Wonderland" moves along crowded parade route.

The Veishea parade attracts high school bands from all over the state for an opportunity to display musical and marching ability and enjoy a week-end at Iowa State.

Sigma Phi Epsilon won a trophy in the fraternity division of the float competition with their skillfully-constructed medieval castle and mounted crusader.

Regardless of the weather, the Veishea parade route is crowded with observers who arrive hours early to claim choice spots. "World Wonderland" was the theme chosen for the 1957 Veishea parade and float entries depicted scenes from around the world. The floats were judged on the basis of originality, appropriateness, draftsmanship, public appeal, beauty and design. Twelve trophies were awarded for the best entries in each of the residence divisions and the winning float by Delta Sigma Phi received the mammoth sweepstakes trophy.

Twenty-seven Iowa high school bands and the Iowa State Marching Band added global music as the world passed by. Gov. Herschel C. Loveless served as grand marshal of the panorama and Queen Virginia Stuck Dorn reigned from the 30-foot queen's float.

From his high platform the camera man brings the Veishea parade to the TV audience in their homes across the state.

"Stars Over Veishea" presents "Round-up" under rainy skies

"Stars Over Veishea" is more than a huge, colorful production. SOV is a spirit—the result of hundreds of hours of work by the cast of 145, 250 singers, 40 instrumentalists and hundreds of crew members.

And this spirit spread out into the audience as thousands sat for two hours in a chilly driving rain to witness this year's production "Round-Up." Lights went up on a sunlit ranch where East met West in the vacation atmosphere of "Round-up Ranch." College students added life and cowboys, an authentic "Old West" touch. The cast of a Broadway show moved in for rehearsals and threatened to disrupt the harmony but all differences were resolved in a spirit of understanding.

The original script incorporated musical favorites in song and dance and was completely student written and produced.

The polished SOV dances were the result of hundreds of hours of practice. Amazingly enough, antics like this resulted in almost no casualties.

"On the sunny side of the street . . ." and these coy misses dashed off the stage. They were a part of the series of "Street Numbers" presented by members of Modern Dance Club.

Eastern visitors to the western dude ranch join the cowboys around the campfire for a series of songs and dances about the old West.

The college students working at the dude ranch let off their pep and steam in a lively "Collegiate" number.

The last strains of the overture die out, lighting creates a golden sunrise, and dancers and singers begin a day at "Round-Up Ranch" in the opening scene of a memorable production.

Spring . . . a state of mind at Iowa State

Spring comes to Iowa State suddenly, unexpectedly. The campus takes on a sun-bathed green brilliance and walking to eight o'clock classes becomes almost enjoyable. Convertibles get their tops rolled down, picnics win out over studying and Veissha preparation takes a feverish climb. A "spring quarter" atmosphere colors everything.

President James H. Hilton

Outstanding educators have been responsible for Iowa State's growth into a nationally-respected institution. As the college begins its second century, Pres. James H. Hilton continues this tradition of fore-sighted leadership. Completing his fifth year as executive head of Iowa State, Pres. Hilton has the college's problems during a period of rapid expansion foremost in his mind. Yet he is a warmly human person, recognized by the entire student body for a friendly smile and an enthusiastic interest in student affairs. As a graduate of Iowa State, Pres. Hilton is clearly mindful of its heritage and tradition as well as its responsibility to this crucial era of education.

Herschel C. Loveless, governor of Iowa, helped Iowa State celebrate its 100th anniversary as a leader in education.

Iowa State is governed

As a state educational institution, Iowa State is governed through the State Legislature by the State Board of Regents. The nine committee members are appointed for six-year terms by the governor with approval of the Legislature.

Though immediate control of most college policies is delegated to the president and administration, the Board approves all appropriation requests, requests a budget from the Legislature and appoints a permanent finance committee in Des Moines for the five state-supported schools. The group also approves plans for building expansion and improvement, curriculum changes and staff appointments.

The State Board of Regents forms another bond between Iowa State and the citizens of Iowa.

Agriculture . . . Iowa State's reason for beginning

Today's agriculture majors face a major decision in regards to their future...will they farm or enter one of the rising new related agricultural fields?

Jerry Klonglan, rural sociology senior, finds that agriculture is more than livestock and crops.

The balconies of Curtiss Hall, agriculture administration building, become very familiar to ag students through daily contacts.

In 1858 a bill was passed "to provide for the establishment of a State Agricultural College." The task of this first division was to convince the dubious farmers that extended "book learning" could be useful to them.

Today, with more than five hundred distinct occupations in the eight major fields of agriculture open to them, graduates in the division are fully aware of the importance of college education in agriculture. Early emphasis on agricultural research made Iowa State a natural for federally-supported experiment stations. Emphasis is still on increased productivity but it has encompassed farm management and how to get the greatest return from labor and capital.

Veterinary Medicine

... first division of its kind

Woody Davis evaluates the healing process in a fracture which has been repaired with a stainless steel plate.

Object of these Vet Meds' attention is an anesthetized canine undergoing examination with a laryngoscope.

The Division of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State College is the oldest in the nation. In 1879 the Vet School began as a two-year course with a small bedroom in the president's "old house" for a laboratory and the front parlor shared with botany students for a classroom.

By 1903 Vet Med had become a four-year course and in 1912 the Veterinary Quadrangle was completed. Since 1948, two years of training have been added to the curriculum, making a total of six years required for the D.V.M. degree. Seventy-five years of leadership in the profession influenced the United States Department of Agriculture to select Ames as the new site for its animal disease research laboratory now under construction.

Dr. I. A. Merchant is dean of the nation's pioneering Division of Veterinary Medicine which makes significant contributions to the expanding field.

The "patients" treated by students in the Vet Med Division include a large segment of the animal kingdom... from bulls to lambs.

Veterinary Medicine students receive thorough background training in anatomy, diagnosis, surgery, pathology and other specialized fields associated with a respected profession.

Engineering . . . division expands in response to nation's demand

The term "engineering" at the time Iowa State was founded referred primarily to military engineering, or the beginning of the present civil engineering curriculum. Engineering emphasis has expanded through the years until for the past 20 years the demand for graduates has far outstripped the supply.

Iowa State's Engineering Division is one of the nation's ten largest. In 1904 the State Assembly, at the suggestion of Anson Marston, first engineering dean, established the Iowa Engineering Experiment Station. Iowa State was the first school in the nation to organize its engineering research activities as an experiment station. The biggest job of the division today is the training of large numbers of engineers to meet the demands of a nation which leads the world in technological advancements.

Iowa State's engineering buildings house an impressive array of scientific apparatus such as this newly built distillation tower being used by chemical engineering seniors.

Acting Dean M. S. Coover guided the administrative functions of the Division of Engineering which each year provides the nation's leading industries with technical experts.

Student surveyors from the Engineering Division are familiar objects on the Iowa State campus each fall and spring.

Home Economics

... nation's first, largest and foremost department

Dean Helen LeBaron heads Iowa State's world-famous home economics division, the largest in the country.

Iowa was the first state to develop the study of home economics in its land-grant college. As in agriculture, there were no texts or organized program so Iowa State coeds of 1869 received a practical education by working in the college kitchen, dining hall and laundry.

The curriculum expanded under the direction of Mrs. Mary B. Welch and in 1875 the Board of Trustees established a department of "cookery and household arts." The division grew rapidly from its humble beginnings, expanding into ten departments.

Rapidly increasing enrollment has resulted in an almost-continuous facilities-expansion program. In 1958 Iowa State College supports the country's largest home economics program, respected from coast to coast.

The Textiles & Clothing Department stresses the study of design and textiles as well as techniques of tailoring, draping and construction.

In foods & nutrition, students learn the basics of nutrition, meal planning, preparation and experimental cookery.

Home Economics Education majors gain theory and practical experiences in teaching at different levels. Here a panel of students conducts an adult education class in intelligent consumption.

The emphasis is on children and their growth and learning processes in the child development department which conducts a daily nursery school.

Science . . . from technical to liberal

During much of its first century, Iowa State regarded the sciences primarily as background material for agriculture, home economics, engineering and veterinary medicine. Science graduates were expected to teach in high schools and colleges.

Wars and the threat of future conflict altered this concept. Following World War II the United States Atomic Energy Commission established a major research installation on campus to strengthen scientific emphasis.

The demand for scientists in industry has promoted tremendous expansion within the division and recent emphasis on broadening the liberal side of education at Iowa State has resulted in further strides.

Dean Richard S. Bear served his second year as head of the Science Division, a diversified curriculum at Iowa State.

Rocks and mineral samples provide interesting subjects for identification and study in the geology curriculum.

Graduate College . . . devoted to advanced research and study

Iowa State College had its first graduate student in 1872, but a graduate college was not fully established until 1919 when Dr. R. E. Buchanan was appointed its first dean.

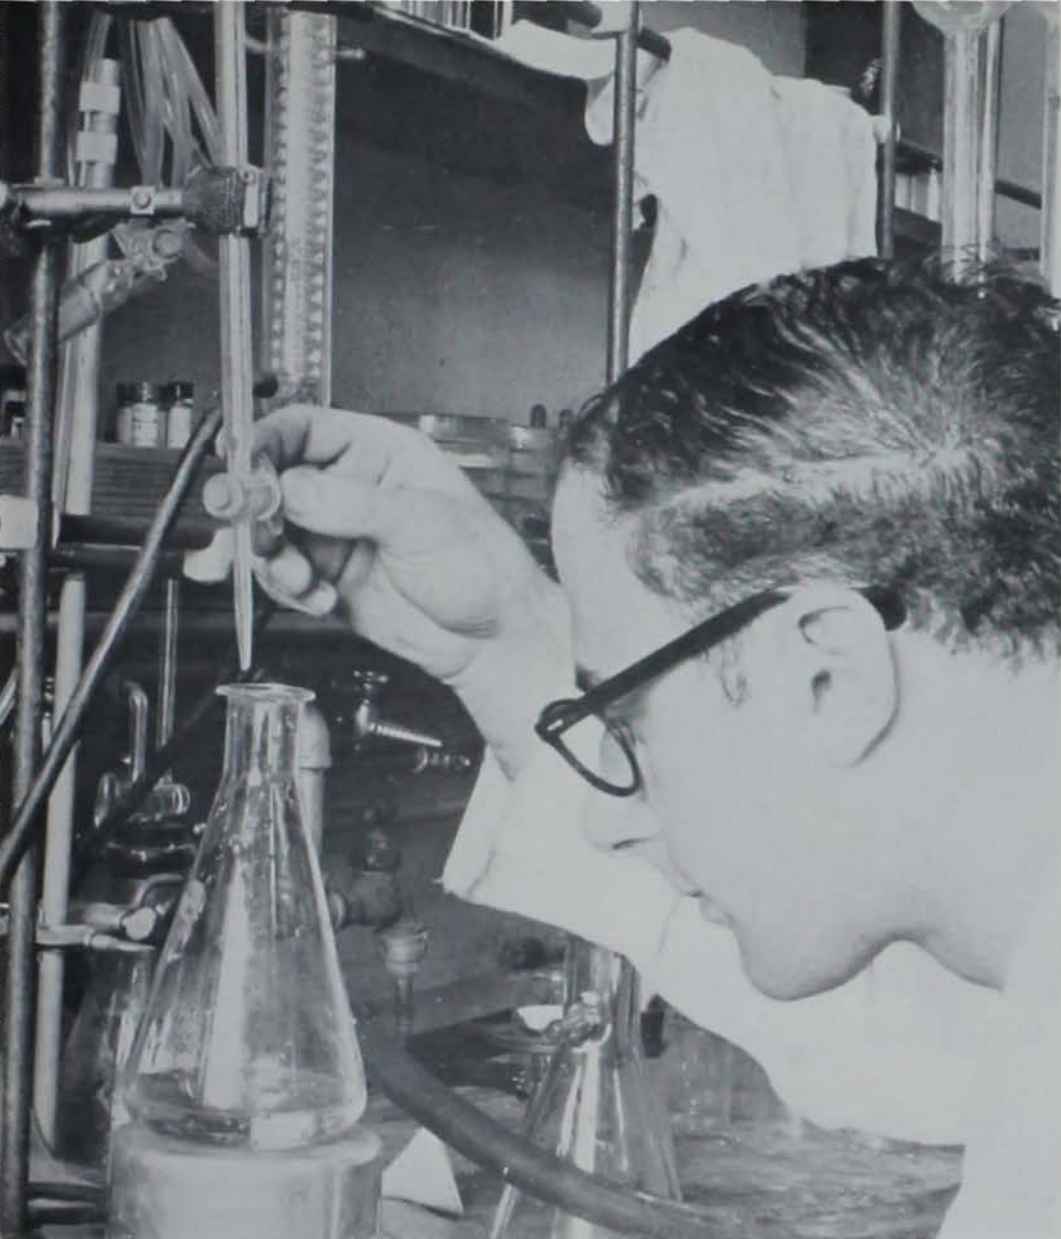

Students working in the graduate school are enrolled in all five divisions, conducting research projects and advanced study in specialized areas. Iowa State ranks high among technical institutions in the awarding of advanced degrees. Each year it awards approximately 125 doctorate degrees and more than 200 master of science degrees. This number has been increasing each year with mounting emphasis on advanced education in scientific fields. It is certain that the future will bring still more graduates to Iowa State for advanced study.

Heading Iowa State's graduate college, a leader in the awarding of advanced technical degrees, is Dean R. M. Hixon.

The modern trend toward "miracle" fabrics and finishes provides significant research material for textile & clothing graduate students who often work with the country's leading textile companies.

Advanced chemical research is responsible for many things we take for granted in our modern scientific society. These miraculous discoveries come through the hard work of brilliant minds.

Another chemistry graduate student checks the intricate synchrotron control board which is involved in vital atomic research.

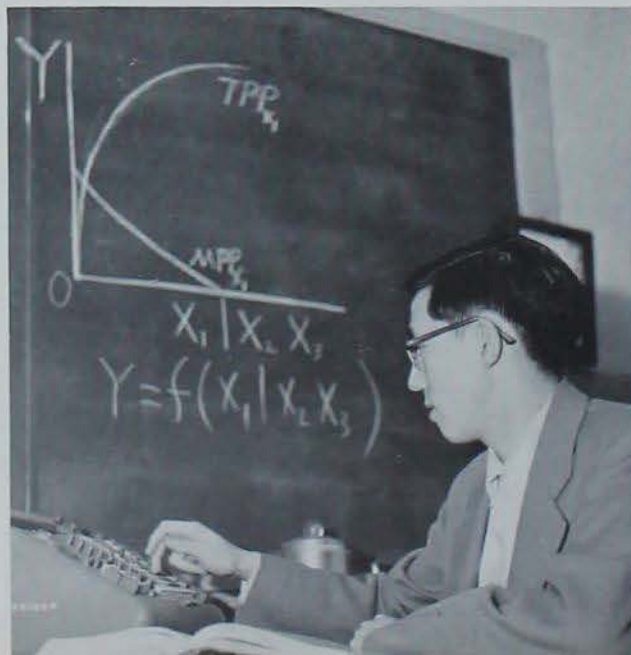

In the Home Ec. Building's "rat lab", nutritional research is conducted on cooperative white furry creatures.

Graduate students take their research, study and teaching seriously, yet take time out for culture and fun.

Martin H. Yeh of Formosa studies computations for his graduate thesis on fertilizer usage in the United States which will bring him a Ph. D. in agricultural economics.

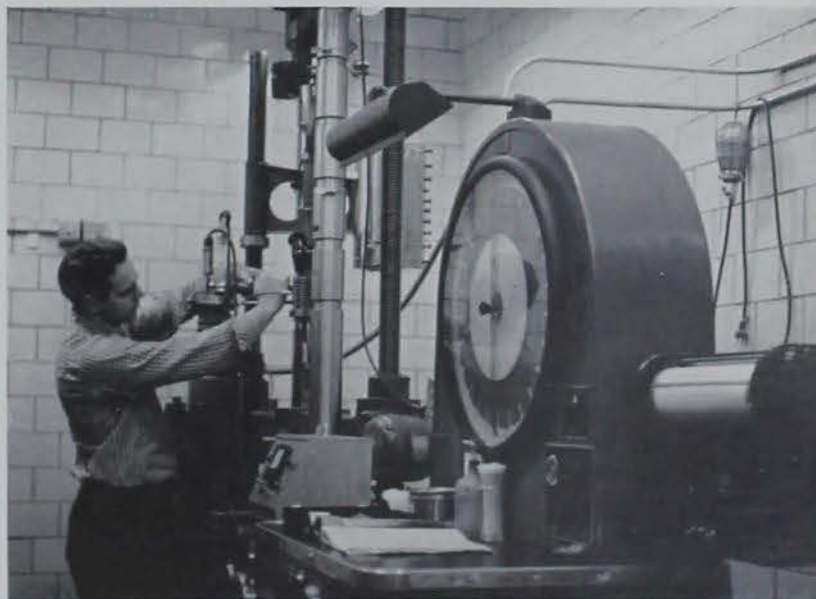

Rats are valuable assets to research experiments in bacteriology leading to the understanding of microorganisms which plague animals directly and through their food and environment.

Remote control "hands" are a must when handling highly radioactive material involved in atomic research in the Ames Laboratory sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The facilities of WOIT-TV were used for the presentation of the "Challenge to Iowa" series produced by Dallas McGinnis, left, and narrated by Wallace Ogg, extension economist. Kinescope recordings of the broadcast were sent out for use on seven other Iowa TV stations.

Story County extension director Jim Christy and home economist Mrs. Ardyth Laursen discuss a specific problem with a young farm couple, using one of the 100,000 "fact sheets" sent out by the extension service as reference.

Facts behind the current farm problem and possible solutions are clearly explained to a group of 4-H'ers and their parents by Story County Extension Director Jim Christy.

Extension

... college for millions of Iowans

The most up-to-date communication media carry education demonstrations to thousands of homes simultaneously.

Robert Pincher (center) state youth leader, and Charles Donhove, district extension supervisor, interview an Iowa State student applying for an extension trainee position.

Extension personnel realize that the brunt of agricultural adjustment will fall on the shoulders of today's farm youth. Here Jim Christy talks things over with one of his 4-H'ers as a part of the counseling programs for rural youth.

Iowa State has long believed in communicating its acquired information and research to the people who can best use it, people often far-removed from campus facilities. From this concept developed the college's Extension Service which Iowans have learned to depend on for information in agriculture, home economics and, more recently, engineering.

Pres. Welch early conceived the idea of sending faculty members to hold agricultural institutes in various parts of the state. The first such meeting was held in 1870. Mrs. Welch laid the foundations for home economics extension with a pioneering home economics class in Des Moines.

Today 100 country agricultural extension districts function in Iowa, 90 of which employ county extension home economists. Extension information reaches its audience through various media—newspapers, magazines, radio, television and personal visits and meetings. The extension program is the responsibility of a professionally trained staff employed jointly by the district, Iowa State College, and the United States Department of Agriculture.

College-operated services expand Iowa State's influence

the campus and state.

Whether it's the flu, chest x-rays, or military check-ups, every student at Iowa State meets the College Hospital sooner or later during his career.

A college community must provide more than academic facilities and Iowa State is certainly no exception. While many of these services and facilities are concerned mainly with the student and faculty personnel, others spread Iowa State's influence throughout the state and nation.

The enormous film library maintained by the Visual Instruction Service offers educational and entertaining films on a wealth of subjects. The influence of the Bulletin Service and Iowa State College Press are extended throughout the world with the issuance of millions of printed items. And Iowa State hosts short courses, conferences and conventions which take advantage of college facilities and authorities.

Directing their services toward the students are the College Hospital Library and testing bureau to name only a few.

Films taken and processed by the Visual Instruction Service joint the huge library of reels covering subjects of a wide variety.

Iowa State's Bulletin Service, operated by the Extension Service, forms a link between the college and the state and nation with the millions of pieces of information issued each year.

Conventions, conferences and short courses are common occurrences at Iowa State's Memorial Union. These cover a vast range of subject matter and usually claim state or national significance.

An indispensable part of an academic community—the Library. Here students and faculty find valuable sources of information and an atmosphere which promotes study.

Research . . . toward a better way of life

Iowa State's important research program has made significant contributions to the state, nation and world.

The new Agricultural Adjustment Center has helped focus attention on basic farm problems. Engineering research developments include the Cyclone, a high speed digital computer. Re-evaluation of human energy requirements and mothering patterns on child personality development have received emphasis in home economics research.

Advanced work in the Veterinary Medicine Division includes study of heart circulation and viral and bacterial immunology with a cobalt 60 radioactive unit. The advent of Sputniks I and II have provided additional stimulus for emphasis on scientific education in the Science Division.

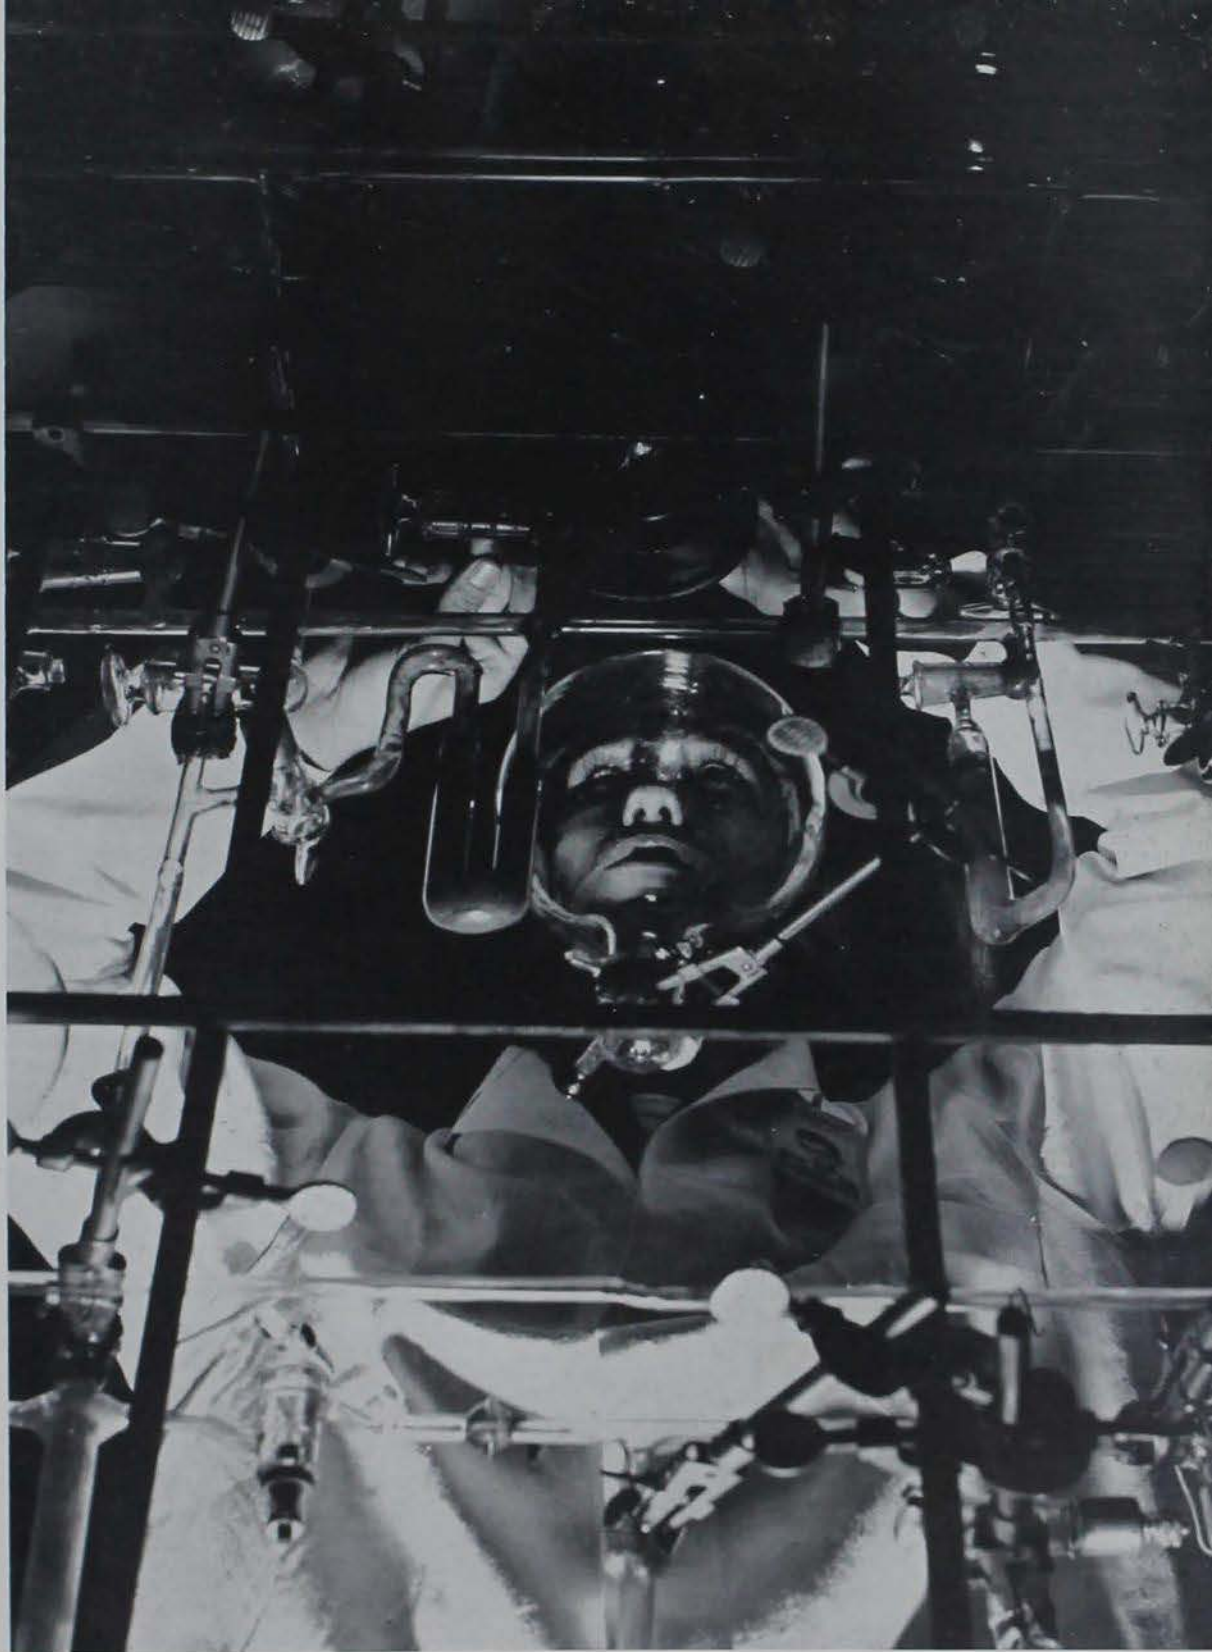

Dr. George Christensen is director of the veterinary medicine heart research project studying comparative functional anatomy of coronary vessels.

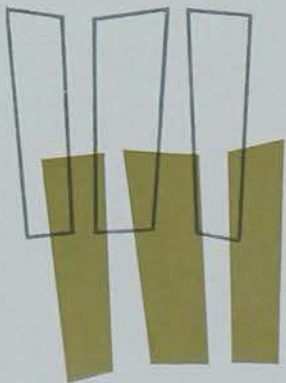

In their search for better plant varieties, breeding experts direct experiments in the agronomy greenhouse which often take several years of crossing different strains before the desired results are achieved. In a jungle of alfalfa, Dr. C. P. Wilsie carefully removes the petals from one of the experimental plants.

Dr. R. M. Stewart, director of the Cyclone building project, and Ralph Schaver, electrical engineering instructor, check one of the myriad of circuits in Iowa State's digital computer, the Cyclone. This year it will be added to the Statistical Laboratory Computing Center.

An intricate network of glass tubing and bubbling chemicals lead an aura of fantasy to bluntly realistic research in Iowa State's Atomic Energy Commission laboratory.

Cardinal Key, Iowa State's highest honorary for men leaders, announces its pledges at Veishea's opening ceremonies. This year eleven undergraduates and three faculty and administration members were honored. Cardinal Key chooses its membership on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership and service to the college.

Recommendations from faculty members, ministers and campus leaders begin the long, thorough process of selecting junior and senior men to be honored. Following their pledging, members wear symbolic keys until the initiation banquet.

Cardinal Key's services to Iowa State include the sale of graduation announcements and the Leadership Day banquet in the spring.

The agriculture honorary at Iowa State College, Alpha Zeta, is open to selected students enrolled in agriculture and in the upper two-fifths of the class. The organization recognizes outstanding character, leadership, and personality as well as high scholarship.

With Tom Dille as president, the honorary planned a yearly program of varied meetings. It awarded the "Tall Corn Award" to an outstanding professor in agriculture. In the academic field, it honored students in the field of agriculture as well as trying to find a solution for the cheating problem.

Throughout the year outstanding men from various walks of life spoke to the Iowa State chapter. A banquet closed the year's activities.

The Iowa Alpha Chapter of the national engineering honorary, Tau Beta Pi, recognizes engineering students who have shown high scholarship and outstanding leadership.

In December, 1957, the fiftieth anniversary of the chapter was celebrated with a banquet for student and faculty members. Several national officers were on campus for the celebration.

To be eligible for membership, a junior must be in the upper eighth of his class, and a senior must be in the upper fifth of his class.

Tau Beta Pi sponsors two awards during the year. The Kopke Award is given to a senior college student in the Division of Engineering who has shown high scholarship, prominence in musical activities, and leadership in college life. The honorary also awards $5 to the freshman engineer who has the highest scholastic average at the end of two quarters.

Tau Sigma Delta

Tomahawk, an activities honorary, gives recognition to independent sophomores for outstanding work in activities and organizations.

The group serves to provide leadership training, to stimulate freshman interest in student organizations, and to coordinate the interests of the independent students in activities.

The honorary meets bi-weekly and discusses plans for its all-college service projects. The annual activities include these service projects, an initiation banquet, and the national convention.

Membership in Tomahawk is offered to independent sophomores who have been outstanding in their contributions to the college through their service, loyalty, and cooperation, and who have an all-college grade point of 2.25.

Ag Business Club

The Agricultural Education Club at Iowa State provides an opportunity for students interested in the teaching profession to develop their personality and leadership qualities.

Throughout the year over 200 members participated in an extensive program. Fall quarter a field trip was planned to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City. During winter quarter a demonstration of parliamentary procedure was given to all interested groups. The Agricultural Education Banquet, the Veishea Open House display, and the spring picnic were the main activities during spring quarter.

The Club also awarded two $50 scholarships and gave outstanding member awards at their annual banquet. Members published the Ag Ed News each quarter.

American Institute of Architecture

American Ceramic Society

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers serves as a departmental club for all students enrolled in the Department of Chemical Engineering.

Different topics in chemical engineering are discussed at the bi-monthly meetings. Speakers at the meetings talk on the connection of chemical engineering with technical and current affairs. Colonel Harold Dye spoke to the group on the role of the engineer in the military.

The club function is to acquaint the undergraduate with his fellow students, professors and chosen field of activity.

The civil engineers are proud to cite their record of winning the Veishea Open House Sweepstakes award four of the last seven years. They are also represented at the Engineer's Carnival each year.

The Iowa State chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers presents speakers from all fields of civil engineering. They bring problems and stories that may help students decide on a particular field.

Some of the speakers were representatives from Portland Cement, the Asphalt Institute, consulting engineering firms, and instructors and graduate students at Iowa State.

Juniors

The American Veterinary Medical Association had one large project each quarter last year — a fall banquet, a Christmas program for the children of chapter members, and a spring quarter dance. During Veishea the organization sponsored a concession stand, an open house display, and a Veishea float.

The student chapter of the AVMA was organized at Iowa State College in 1884. The chapter draws its members from regularly enrolled undergraduate students in the Division of Veterinary Medicine and selects honorary members from the faculty and alumni.

The group meets once a month to help its members find additional opportunities to gain professional knowledge and provide informative programs.

Block and Bridle Club sponsors the Little International Livestock Show each fall quarter, with ISC students grooming college livestock and competing for honors. The organization is also in charge of the freshman and sophomore livestock judging contests during spring quarter.

During winter quarter the Block and Bridle Club held its annual banquet with Allen Robinson of Edinburgh, Scotland, as the featured speaker. Another activity of B&B members is helping to plan and produce the Veishea Horse Show.

Block and Bridle Club is a charter member of the national organization and was established at Iowa State in 1919. It offers those students enrolled in animal or dairy husbandry the opportunity to become better acquainted with their professional field.

Showmen work feverishly to put the finishing touches on their hogs before showing the animals before the critical judges.

Harvest Ball Queen Karen Johnson and Little International Chairman Bill Short award the trophy to the show's grand champion showman.

One of Little International's most popular events is the Milkmaid Contest in which contestants from all campus women's residences compete and hope for cooperation from the cow.

Business Students Association

Speakers from such companies as General Motors, Minneapolis Honeywell, and Maytag were presented to members of the Business Students Association at its bi-weekly meetings during the year. Through these meetings the organization strives to promote a closer affiliation between industry and the business student.

During spring quarter the BSA received honorable mention in Veishea Open House competition.

Dairy Husbandry Club

Members of the Dairy Husbandry Club select an Outstanding Dairyman of Iowa each year and bestow an honorary membership on him at the club's annual winter banquet.

Last year the club was awarded second place in the outstanding divisional club contest of the Division of Agriculture. Other honors were received as the club placed fifth in the agriculture open house contest during Veishea and fifth in the nationwide college team competition in the Hoard's Dairymen judging contest.

Dairy Husbandry Club gives students in the curriculum a chance to further their knowledge and interest in dairying and helps promote student-faculty relations.

Dairy Industry Club

Horticulture Club

The Geology Club at Iowa State affords an opportunity for students interested in geology to become better acquainted with its many unusual aspects.

A special committee is in charge of collecting and distributing samples of Iowa rocks and minerals for high schools in elementary science courses.

The organization's 45 members hear speakers and participate in group discussions for club meetings. Throughout the year the club sponsored such projects as the publication of the "Varve," Veishea Open House and the annual spring picnic. This year an additional open house was held in October for over 200 local Boy Scouts.

The Farm Operations Club took first place in the Division of Agriculture's portion of the 1957 Veishea Open Houses. The club also received honorable mention in the departmental club contest at the All-Ag Banquet.

The annual Farm Op dance, with the theme of "Autumn Serenade," was held during fall quarter.

Through these activities the club strives to develop fellowship and leadership and to provide a means of participation in extra-curricular activities for its members. It also helps build and maintain a satisfactory enrollment in the farm operations curriculum. The Farm Op Club, organized in 1950, now claims a membership of 240 students.

Forestry Club

Members of the Forestry Club compete with lumbering teams from four other midwestern schools at their annual conclave. A traveling trophy is awarded to the team compiling the most points in traditional lumbermen's contests as log rolling and tree felling.

This sort of competition is carried on within the club during Veishea when the Forestry Club sponsors "Paul Bunyan Days."

The club is responsible for management of the Holst State Forest, donated to them in 1938. Other activities are the annual game banquet, Christmas tree sale, and management of the "Ames Forester."

The Forestry Club, begun in 1904 with the formation of the Horticulture Club, now has nearly 80 members. Its objectives are to foster a spirit of comradeship among Iowa State foresters and to help create an interest in topics related to forestry.

Forestry students turn lumbermen as they dress in typical foresters' attire for the day's field trip at summer camp.

Prof. Renaud supervises the truck load of Iowa State foresters leaving for a day of work in North Carolina forests.

With feet propped up for a few minutes of relaxation, one of the foresters goes native for awhile at the freshman forestry summer camp in Asheville, North Carolina.

Freshmen arrive at the annual summer camp to learn about forestry methods in the national forests.

Home Economics Club

The 1200 members of the Home Economics Club make the Iowa State chapter the largest home economics club in the United States. Divisional clubs meet regularly to promote professional opportunities and to stimulate interest in the various fields of home economics.

One of the special projects is the recruitment program to encourage high school students to enter home economics. Home Economics Council, governing body, sponsored the United Nations tea, the Home Economics Banquet, the Home Ec Ball, and a cooking school for all interested Iowans.

Members of the recruitment committee present their "Harriet Homemaker" program for high schools over the state of Iowa as a project for Home Ec Council.

The Home Ec Club membership drive kick-off carried a space-age theme, featuring the ultra-new in each field. Marg Hoehn, Textiles & Clothing Club, models a campus revival, the racoon coat.

These home economics majors await the welcome and grace at the annual Home Economics Banquet in Great Hall, Memorial Union, sponsored by Home Ec Council, Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu.

Institute of Aeronautical Sciences

Sigma Gamma Tau

American Institute of Industrial Engineers

3rd row: Philippott, Lamp, Moore, Rider, Detrick (treas.), Talley, Jones, Henson, Myers.

The Iowa State chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers placed second in last year's engineering contest of the Veishea Open Houses. It also won first place at the Engineers' Carnival with a "Harry the Fairy's Rat Shoot" theme.

The spring "tea party" picnic at the Ledges State Park is a favorite annual event with the club members.

The AIIE promotes a professional attitude among its members and furthers the interests of industrial engineering at Iowa State. During regular meetings students are offered the opportunity to meet representatives from industry who can explain the functions of industrial engineering in a variety of organizations.

The Iowa State students chapter gained national affiliation with the AIIE in 1957.

Iowa Chemical Society

The Iowa Chemical Society unites students of chemistry and chemical engineering. Throughout the year meetings and programs included such speakers as a representative from the Atomic Energy Commission engaged in research.

The group took a tour through the Ames Laboratory, and the first week of spring quarter an annual field trip was taken to a chemical laboratory firm.

Other projects included placing a "Chemical of the Week" in a chemistry building showcase, complete with description and facts about the chemical.

During Veishea the society prepared the chemistry open house.

Science Women's Club

To unite the women in the Division of Science and present speakers of interest to the 100 members is the purpose of Science Women's Club, which meets bi-weekly.

Programs throughout the year included Max Harriman who demonstrated hair-styling, Colonel Harold Dye speaking on the truce meetings in Korea and threats of Communism, and other faculty speakers.

Sandwich sales were held periodically for raising funds for a new scholarship to be awarded annually to a senior woman in the division.

Activities for the group also included a spaghetti dinner, Christmas party, and picnics.

Poultry Husbandry Club

The Sociology Club (science) was organized in 1940 "to promote an interest in sociology and a sociological approach to a consideration of social problems."

Among its activities are an annual field trip to Chicago for a tour of prisons, welfare agencies, criminal courts and large industries. The club's Veishea open house display includes a popular "Socio-Quiz" exhibit which dramatically illustrates some of the interests of sociologists. The club also sponsors special field trips to nearby institutions of sociological value.

The Rural Sociology Club (agriculture) was organized as a distinct group in 1956. Its program is similar in purpose to that of the Sociology Club with special emphasis on rural sociological problems.

The purpose of AIEE-IRE is to acquaint electrical engineering students with industry and to present to the students a picture of the applications of technical training to industry.

During this year the members actively participated in the publication of "Short Circuit," the electrical engineering department's newspaper. The Engineers' Carnival was given during fall quarter, and the group prepared for Veishea Open House spring quarter.

Iowa State's student journalists devote time and talents to publications, radio and TV and have a personality all their own.

Publications

The print and pictures which make up the Daily are laid into place by a skillful worker whose inky fingers label him as a member of the "backshop."

Iowa State's publications are printed "at home" in the Press Building. Student stalls are constantly reminded of this with grinding presses under them and repeated cries of "Get that copy downstairs."

Iowa State students have opportunities for practical training in many areas of communication including WOI radio and television.

Each Daily is the product of many hours of planning, writing and editing. Here Bonnie and Fred decide what will claim first importance in the next issue.

Bomb

The 1958 Bomb joins in the celebration of Iowa State's centennial with a special enlarged edition. The staff has tried to make this edition truly representative of the students, events and activities of this special year.

The Bomb Publication Board composed of representatives of each division in the college, supervises the $42,000 business located in the east end of the Press Building. In the Bomb's three office rooms, typewriters keep up their constant chatter while photographers process pictures to meet the ever-present deadlines. The business staff is concerned mainly with subscriptions, distribution, contracts and keeping the editorial staff in line with their budget.

As you look through this book, you'll praise some features and criticize others. We hope you'll find the story of a significant year at Iowa State.

Mary Gerard, editor of the 1958 Bomb, came to call the Press Building "home" during a year marked with tension when deadlines loomed and satisfaction as 512 pages rolled off the presses.

Selling and distributing Bombs, handling contracts for pages and keeping income and expenditures in balance are jobs which involve members of the business staff such as secretary Karen Kidney.

Gene DeKoster, business manager, handles a budget over $40,000 which the editor is always too willing to exceed.

Fall quarter Daily editor Dick Jacob emerges from his editorial office to help out with the inky job of proofing an issue as the night wears on.

Iowa State Daily

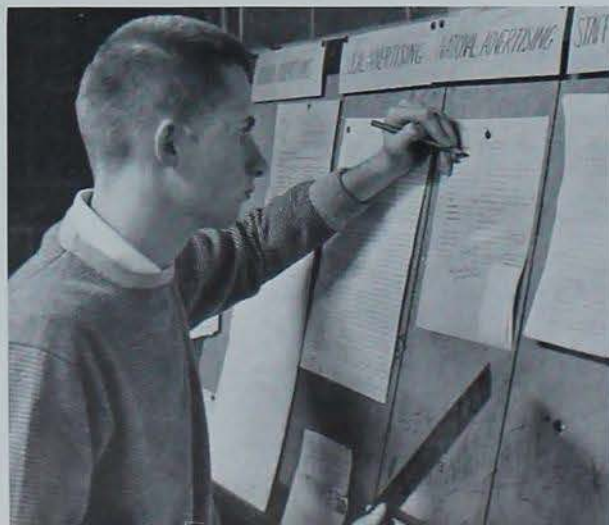

If you were to drop into the Daily office some afternoon, you would hear typewriters pounding and phones ringing and see people dashing down-stairs to the backshop with pages of copy or rushing off to advertisers with yellow lay-out sheets. All this is only a small part of the activity behind the production of the most widely-circulated campus publication.

Published Tuesday through Saturday, the newspaper is managed, written and edited by student journalists under the direction of the Daily Publication Board. Regular late hours in getting the paper ready for the press and the pressure of meeting deadlines are balanced by the excitement of watching a good story develop.

The Daily takes its share of criticism along with the praise which lets its staff know that the campus depends upon its reporting and interpretation of Iowa State news.

Sandy Hammerand occupies the "slot" for an evening's stint as issue editor. She and those on the "rim" are responsible for copy editing and headlines.

Nick Pierce keeps a close check on Daily advertisers to see that student ad salesmen keep the inches coming in.

Cliff Ganschow, editor of the Daily winter and spring quarter, takes the brunt of campus criticism and guides the staff in determining policy and content.

Managing editor Bonnie Rollins in a moment of deep concentration—"There just must be another way of doing this."

"Sass" editor Velma Van Dyke's long lists of pinnings and engagements claim some of the Daily's highest readership. She also keeps the campus posted on parties, fashions and personalities.

Jim Champion is entrusted with the sizeable job of keeping Daily financial status in the black. Among his worries are printing costs, advertising income and distribution.

Advertisements in the Daily provide contact between Ames merchants and the campus population as well as financial support. As advertising manager, Cecil Hunt sees that the ads keep pouring in.

Jim Stayner and Ron Lauen, Daily ad salesmen, go through the mat service files for appropriate illustrations to use in the ads they will sell to Ames merchants.

"Wonder what they'd do to us if we ran this head!" Fool play helps relieve the tension around the Daily office when tempers flare and everything seems to go wrong.

Ames Forester

The Ames Forester is a yearbook of graduating seniors and a technical journal combined. It also features departmental activities and an alumni directory. The Forester is the only departmental annual at Iowa State.

Organized in 1913, the Forester is edited annually by forestry majors interested in the magazine and journalism. Besides being an asset to the department, the magazine promotes interests and relations between alumni and the department.

Prominent men in the field of forestry and related sciences write feature articles on both technical and non-technical subjects for each issue. The district Foresters' Conclave, forestry summer camp and Forestry Club functions receive full coverage. The Forester is distributed to all forestry schools in the country, all major forestry libraries and a large percentage of forestry alumni.

Editor Gil Comstock and assistant editor Jim Ficke examine layout ideas for a future issue of the Ames Forester.

Agriculturist Editor John Taylor presided over the staff whose job was to keep up with developments in one of the nation's leading agricultural colleges.

Iowa Agriculturist

The Iowa Agriculturist is a student-run magazine published each month to keep students in agriculture abreast of the latest scientific methods and acquainted with news in their field. Started in 1902, the publication was at first combined with the Iowa Homemaker. Since 1920 the two magazines have been separate publications, each with its own staff.

The editors work with the staff to maintain high-quality editorial content. Evidence of their success in this area are the awards won by the Agriculturist. It has captured top honors in general excellence in national competition six of the past eight years.

Members of the Ag staff are now working on modernizing their magazine with the use of more pictures and color. Their primary aim is still to carry significant news from the Division of Agriculture.

The Iowa Engineer staff remains in the campus' engineering sector to carry out details of its publication.

Iowa Engineer

The Iowa Engineer, written and published by engineering students, provides stories on all fields of engineering, spotlighting new developments. This year popular articles included a resume of the new 1958 cars.

Published monthly during the school year, the magazine provides valuable editorial and managerial experience for technically-trained engineers. The Engineer staff works in its own facilities on the engineering side of the campus.

Editor Ron Christensen and the 40-member staff sponsored a trip to the Engineering College Magazine Convention at Northwestern this year. Each spring deserving staff members receive journalism keys at the annual publications banquet. Monetary rewards are presented to the writers of the year's best articles at this same time.

The editorial staff meets to plan the content and general lay-out of a new issue of the Engineer while the old one is barely off the presses.

Iowa Homemaker

The Homemaker received a face-lifting this year with modernized lay-outs and a greater use of photographs. The issue themes also explored new fields and gave wider scope to items of interest to home economists.

For the first time an entire issue was devoted to children. Other issues followed themes of symbolism, creativity, crossroads of home economics and woman's changing status during the past 100 years.

The Homemaker, published by home economics students, grew from two pages in the Agriculturist. In 1921 the Homemaker came into its own.

When they're not concerned with getting out the next issue, Homemaker staff members find time to redecorate their office and entertain home economics department heads at tea.

Betty Gregory, editor of the Homemaker, directs the publication of one of two home ec. students magazines in the country.

Iowa State Scientist

The Scientist, a divisional magazine published eight times a year, includes articles on research findings, recent scientific developments and the application of science to other fields.

The magazine is run by students who want to couple journalism with the science curriculum. In addition to regular scientific articles, the students present other campus items of interest to all the students.

The Scientist publication board helps coordinate the magazine and oversees the work of the student staff.

Iowa State College Veterinarian

The Iowa State Veterinarian marks its 20th anniversary this year. Since it was first published, it has gained national and foreign recognition. Dr. George Fowler has been the advisor since it was founded and has contributed much to the success of the publication.

Any student in the Division of Veterinary Medicine and interested in journalism may work on the magazine, and thus become eligible for the ISC journalism "I." Articles are especially written for pre-vets and veterinary students.

A Veterinarian staff member is chosen each year to represent Iowa State at the AVMA convention.

Editorial staff members gain experience in writing and interpreting highly technical material for the Veterinarian.

Green Gander

The Green Gander staff, shown below in a typically reserved and constructive mood, produced an unprecedented "sell-out" year in 1957-1958. Every issue of the Gander was sold out the day it hit the newsstands.

A new record in circulation was set with the Valentine issue, not only locally but nationally, as the Gander became the nation's largest independently retailed college humor magazine.

The Gander is owned jointly by Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, men's and women's professional journalism fraternities. Part of the Gander sales income goes yearly to sponsor three scholarships for undergraduate students majoring in journalism.

Sketch

As Iowa State's literary magazine, Sketch presents student writing of fiction, prose, poetry and exposition. In the field of spacial arts, each issue of Sketch has four pages devoted to student art ranging from abstract to pictorial.

Sketch, a quarterly magazine, is completely run by the students with the help of faculty advisors in the Department of English. Sketch aims to liberalize the student thinking at Iowa State.

"Books and Cokes" is sponsored by Sketch fall and spring to bring student book reviews to the college audience. Here chairman Fred Kammeier introduces the reviewer for the week.

Radio Workshop

Working in cooperation with Station WOI, members of Radio Workshop receive practical training in radio production. The students write, direct and produce their own shows to give a complete product over the air.

Radio Workshop is directed by a member of the Department of English and Speech. The major requirement for membership is a keen interest in radio production.

In their Service Building studios, members of Radio Workshop gain experience with news, variety shows and program production techniques.

TV Workshop

Both TV majors and minors spend many laborious hours at WOI-TV getting practical experience in this relatively new field.

After writing, producing and directing their own TV shows, they are broadcast over WOI-TV. Class work is often conducted on a "closed circuit."

The TV Workshop is under the direction of Dr. Joseph North.

Iowa State Players

Iowa State Players serves as a laboratory to give students the opportunity to experience dramatic and theater work by participating in the many Players productions.

To become a member of Players, a student must work on two major Iowa State Theater productions for two consecutive quarters.

Three major plays were presented during fall and winter quarters—"Teahouse of the August Moon," "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," and "Dr. Knock." The nationally-popular "Teahouse" was the story of the American occupation of Okinawa. Mr. Pennypacker was indeed remarkable keeping his two separate families unknown to each other for a long time. And "Dr. Knock" portrayed a French lampoon on the medical profession.

Other shows assisted by Players were "Stronger Desire," "Bird's Carol," and three one-act plays for the speech classes.

The expert touch of a make-up artist turns Arlen Hanson into Sakini—supporting crews as are important to Iowa State Players productions as are the actors who appear before the public.

This figure, representative of dramatic arts, finds a permanent place in the Iowa State College Theater where it watches players come and go with campus productions.

Okinawan culture was hilariously portrayed in "Teahouse of the August Moon" when U. S. occupation forces tried to impose American standards on the natives.

Singers herald in the Christmas season with a series of favorite carols sung from the steps of Beardshear during "Tree Lighting."

Iowa State Singers

Whether voices fill the Armory's capacity, ring through the rafters of Morrill Hall or echo between Beardshear and Curtiss at Christmas time, the Singers bring vocal musical entertainment to many campus events.

Under the direction of Prof. Robert McCowen, the Singers and festival chorus presented the Christmas Festival of Music for the second year. The 300-voice group of Singers also adds the background music for Stars Over Veishea, presents an annual winter concert, sings for the Religion-in-Life convocation, Homecoming and the Christmas tree lighting.

Each spring a select group takes a 3-day tour to one section of Iowa to reach 7500 people with light and serious melodies.

Symphony Orchestra

Seventy-five musicians—among them Iowa State faculty, students and residents of Ames and surrounding towns—bring the strains of orchestral music to the campus and Iowa.

The Iowa State Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Alvin Edgar, presents a formal concert each quarter featuring a guest artist. The orchestra, practicing with all instruments twice a week, also participates in other campus activities such as the Christmas Festival of Music.

An annual fall tour presents the orchestra to Iowa citizens. This year the northwestern Iowa area was visited on a 2-day trip. The group also went to Omaha, Neb., for a concert.

Requirements for membership in the orchestra are an interest in music and the ability to play standard symphony music.

Dr. Alvin R. Edgar conducts the Iowa State Symphony Orchestra in its fall concert which offered a sampling of musical masterpieces.

Concert Band

The Concert Band lends another phase to the music at Iowa State with its classical and popular concerts throughout the year.

Director Frank Piersol guides the group of musicians in other activities of Religion-in-Life Week, Club 2000 and formal concerts. The Concert Band also joined with the Singers and Orchestra to present the Festival of Music.

New manuscripts and compositions are sent to the Concert Band immediately as they are published. Some even come in handwritten form before publication.

The Concert Band members tour Iowa and the surrounding states annually. The traditional tour took the band to parts of Iowa and Nebraska this year.

Iowa State's marching band often became a running band when it came to propelling a river steamer down the field.

Marching Band

Music to watch a football game by — that's the nervous tempo of a marching band. And the band with the "floating ISC" supplies the accompaniment for those football Saturdays.

As the marchers whip through ingenious half-time formations, it might look easy — but it isn't. For the 100 men in the scarlet coats, it means some hard practicing on a limited three times per week schedule.

Under the direction of Prof. Frank Piersol, the band is part of the cast for the afternoon's performance, just like the team and cheerleaders.

The brass section marches past in perfect formation during a typical football afternoon's half-time activities.

Arnold Air Society

Members of the AFROTC with good scholarship and leadership ability are chosen to become members of the Arnold Air Society. The organization's purpose is to further the purpose, mission, tradition, and concept of the United States Air Force.

Throughout the year the chapter sponsored many activities. Among these was the steak fry fall quarter for the members, dates, detachment officers and wives. Spring quarter the group sponsored a Veishea Open House display, a concession stand, and a field trip.

With crossed sabres forming an arch the length of the Armory, members of Scabbard and Blade presented their traditional queen at the Military Ball. This year a thrilled 10-year-old accepted the title for her sister, Donna McCoy, who was confined to bed with rheumatic fever. The formal ball is sponsored annually by members of the military honorary.

Scabbard and Blade is formed of outstanding members from the three branches of military service. Its aim is to raise the standards of military education and bring a closer relationship among the departments.

Scabbard and Blade also works to encourage the essential qualities of efficient officers and promote friendship among cadet officers. Its Buck Week activities include a round-the-clock honor guard in Gold Star Hall, Memorial Union.

Social Bureau brought Hal Holbrook with his impressions of Mark Twain to the eyes of Iowa State students this year as part of its sponsored events.

Social Bureau, which provides and supports activities for the students, consists of members elected from each class and one member elected from each residence organization.

The bureau also sponsored the Dublin Players, the Lord's Puppets, trips to KRNT theater in Des Moines and dances after football games throughout the year.

Joint Social Council

Coordinating the social programs of all the residence groups on campus is the function of Joint Social Council. The social chairmen from the different residences become better acquainted through meetings and thus can do a more effective and thorough job of planning exchanges and arranging blind dates.

A project of Joint Social Council is "Dames Daze." For one weekend during winter quarter, the women turn the tables on the men and entertain and foot the bill. The Pammel Court baby sitting program is also set up by the council.

This year one of the Council's biggest projects was the motion they placed before Cardinal Guild concerning the extension of women's hours and out-of-town late cuts.

High point of the Union's winter quarter activities is Union Varieties. Kappa Alpha Theta won the sweepstakes trophy with "Wouldn't It Be Elegant."

Memorial Union

Student life at Iowa State revolves in and about the Memorial Union, considered the "heart of the campus." The student body is represented on the Union board of directors by the Student Union Board.

Whether it's the Commons with its "Union coffee," the Trophy Tavern and dancing to the juke box, or the bowling alleys, pool tables and ping pong tables, Union facilities are allocated to benefit the maximum number of students.

The Union Board sponsors events from the beginning to end of the school year. Open House during Freshman Days, the registration dances at the beginning of each quarter and the Christmas party in the Commons are all a part of Union life.

The unforgettable winter quarter Varieties, the jazz concerts with Les Brown and the Dukes of Dixieland, and the free series of "Reel Reviews" also provide further activity for students. Besides these specific events, Union Board arranges dance classes, news forums, game parties and bridge classes.

Another of the Union facilities is the barber shop located across from the Commons—always a busy place.

Student body vice-president Jack Rossman and president Chuck Manatt guide the activities of Cardinal Guild and the campus.

Cardinal Guild

The 29 members of Cardinal Guild, representing divisions and residence groups, meets bi-weekly to cope with the problems and situations arising in the educational community.

Guild formulates policies for Iowa State students to follow. It also serves as a means of campus leadership and training to those who are members.

The three branches of Guild are the legislative or Student Senate, administrative, and judicial. Guild strives to promote cooperation among the groups represented in the college community.

One of Guild's larger undertakings was the formation and promotion of the all-college nominating convention during winter quarter.

Another new program set up by Guild in the last year was the Student Opinion Survey. SOS has been able to give valuable assistance to campus organizations and is beneficial for student training.

Student Religious Council

In only three years, the Student Religious Council has become a well-known organization on the Iowa State campus. It has done outstanding work to coordinate and promote religious activity of the student body and provide for the administration of all-college religious activities. The council has also encouraged the development of understanding among various faiths represented on our campus.

Its membership includes students from religious organizations, divisional councils, residence councils, and Cardinal Guild.

During the year, the Council sponsored a Leadership Workshop and an SRC clothing drive, both held during spring quarter. Religion In Life Week, also under its sponsorship, was held during the first week of winter quarter. The theme was "Tempted by Truth."

This year a committee of the Council worked on the possibilities of receiving college credit for sectarian religious classes in the various church centers on campus.

To strains of "Holy, Holy, Holy," members of Iowa State Singers file into the Armory for their musical additions to the convocation.

Dr. Otto Paul Kretzmann, president of Valparaiso University, was guest speaker for the Religion In Life Week Activities. At the convocation he spoke on "Tempted by Truth Because It Is the Truth."

The Iowa State Armory, site of wildly cheering basketball crowds, took on a different atmosphere as thousands of students gathered to consider the week's topic "Tempted By Truth."

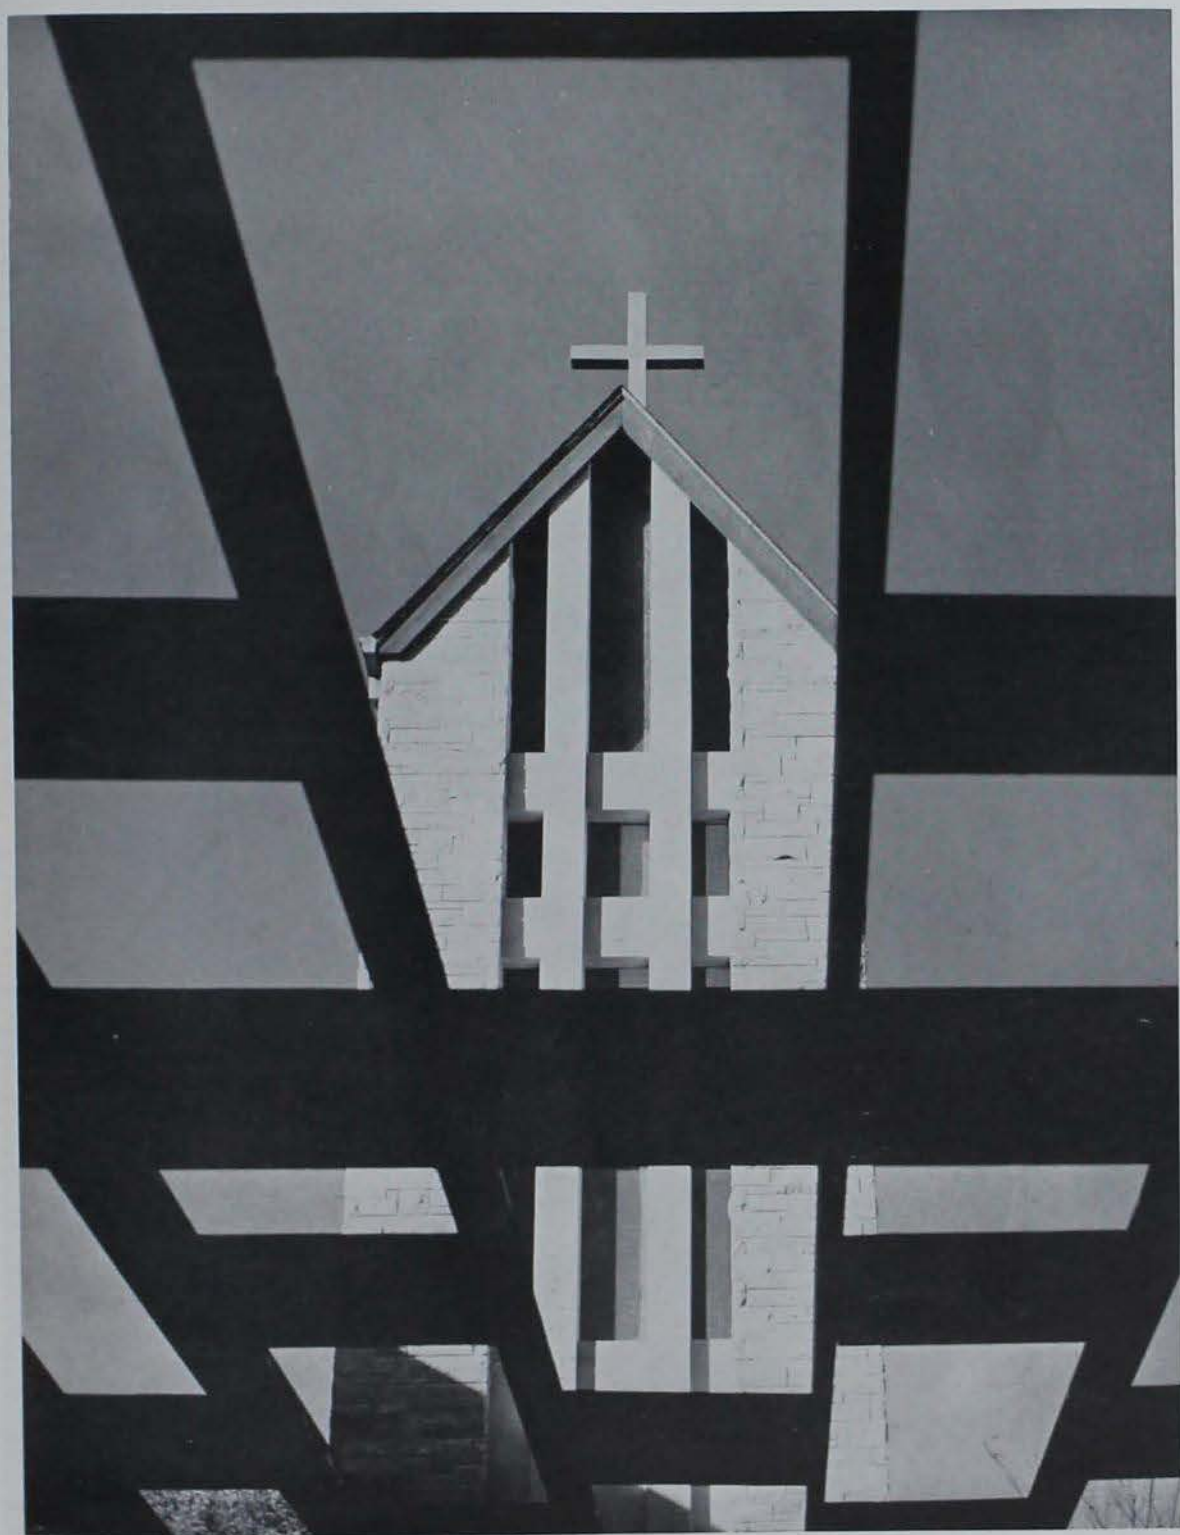

As its contribution to Religion In Life Week, Philosophy Forum considered "Our Gods In Classrooms and Commons" in a panel discussion.

Matins and Vespers conducted in the Memorial Union chapel started and ended each day of Religion In Life Week in a mood of quiet thought and meditation.

Students jammed the Armory's bleachers to hear Dr. Kretzmann's message at the all-college convocation which climaxed the annual observance of Religion In Life Week.

Lutheran Student Association

The Lutheran Student Association, on the Iowa State campus since 1923, provides the students with the opportunity of strengthening their faith in Christian ideals and for cultivating true friendships.

All students who express a preference for the National Lutheran Council Church or who take an active interest in its mission are welcomed.

Throughout the year the LSA members participated in a varied program. In both October and April, weekend retreats gave each member the opportunity to participate in close fellowship with other Lutheran students. On each Sunday, evening dinners were followed by a short vesper service and a program. Many discussions resulted from the interesting LSA programs.

One of the most enjoyable parts of a Sunday evening's fellowship is informal singing around the grand piano in the comfortable lounge.

Gamma Delta

Gamma Delta provides students an opportunity to further Christian knowledge and education and to encourage Lutheran fellowship among its members.

With the new facilities at the Memorial Lutheran Church, some 150 members of the International Association of Lutheran Students participate actively in the varied programs. Besides the weekly Sunday evening meetings the organization sponsored a Veishea stand, a Christmas banquet, a foreign night during winter quarter, and a spring banquet for graduating seniors.

There is also an opportunity for students to get to know each other better during the informal coffee hours every afternoon at four in the student lounge. The dedication of the new church and student lounge was held during fall quarter of this year.

A group of Newman Club members indulge in a private discussion before one of their meetings.

The Newman Club offers an opportunity to foster the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of the Catholic students of Iowa State. Founded on this campus in 1911, it has increased its membership to 1300.

The club sponsors daily coffee hours and Rosary, Sunday breakfasts and dinners, lectures on religion, art, education, and religious and educational trips. Its special project is regular trips to Woodward, site of the state mental hospital, where the members entertain the patients. A special party was planned for them during the Christmas season.

At least once a year, Newman Club members raise money for their budget with a car wash. Throughout the year the students had an opportunity to make true friends at the large Catholic student center.

Wesley Foundation represents the Methodist youth with 2600 Methodist-preference students at Iowa State. It includes undergraduate, graduate, and married student groups in areas of worship, study, recreation, religious drama and service.

The purpose of Wesley Foundation is to be a "church away from home" for the student. It seeks to educate him in the church's history, in the meaning of Christianity, what Methodism stands for, and the church's problems and opportunities.

Along with his education, it seeks to stimulate the student to express himself through leadership, participation in discussions, speaking engagements on deputation teams, and through social relaxation and broadened personal contacts.

Wesley Foundation strives to help college men and women grow spiritually as they advance academically and combine church leadership with civic responsibility.

"To understand Christ by study, worship, and service, and in His spirit to serve our fellow men on the campus, in the nation, and throughout the world" is the purpose of the YMCA.

During the year, the 250 members directed their efforts toward a variety of activities including the annual preschool Freshman Camp at Boone, Freshman "Y" Club, All-College Mixer in the fall, retreats at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge, international student parties, Washington-United Nations Seminar and fireside discussions. At the "Y" a student finds an opportunity for companionship and help in college life.

Iowa State Debaters

The Iowa State Debaters do more than debate. In fact, their year is filled with activities related to speech and others for strictly social reasons.

Speech activities are divided into sections on oratory, poetry, extemporaneous speaking and parliamentary procedure. Eight to ten debate teams make about the same number of trips each year, competing with teams from other colleges across the country.

The Debaters also make frequent appearances on campus. The all-college debate between candidates for student body president and vice-president came under their control. A parliamentary procedure session spring quarter attracted participants from 15 to 20 colleges. The organization also sponsors high school and college debate tournaments.

On the social side, the Debaters enjoy each other's company at a banquet, picnic and two parties. Membership is open to all students.

The Pammel Court Council establishes rules and regulations for the governing of Pammel Court and acts as a liaison group between Pammel Court, the college authorities and campus organizations.

The ten councilmen are elected from even numbered zones in the spring and odd numbered zones in the fall in order to stagger new membership. Their terms last one year. Other members of the Council are the Cardinal Guild representatives and the Pammel Court sheriff. Standing committees on the council are concerned with streets and housing, playground activities, and the recreation hall.

The council tries to sponsor some recreation such as free dances, tournaments, and athletic teams for the young married couples living in Pammel Court.

The young married students who inhabit Pammel Court constitute a community in themselves with their own government, recreation facilities and social get-togethers.

... a tribute to coaches and teams*

Football . . . 1957 squad sparks hope after

Four victories, five defeats and one tie. If one were to confine the story of the 1957 Iowa State football season to one agate-line of type, this would be it.

However, the real story goes much deeper than this. It tells of the revitalization of a squad that looked quite dismal in collecting only two victories in ten outings during the previous season. A complete summary of the season should describe in detail just how our Cyclones tied Syracuse — the team that had been the pride of the East the previous season.

Tailback Dwight Nichols uses his blockers to good advantage in this play from the Kansas game at Lawrence. Here Nichols starts around end for an eventual 10-yard gain during a Cyclone scoring march. State won 21-6.

Seasons Record—4 wins, 5 losses, and 1 tie.

Captain Jack Falter charges through paper "I" as Coach Jim Myers' single-wing team is introduced to fans for the first time against Denver. State won 10-0.

est grid season in 10 years

The story wouldn't be complete without mentioning how the Cyclones ended an 11-year loss to our neighboring rival, the University of Nebraska. Also, the manner in which the Iowa State football squad always carried the fight to its opponents merits a detailed account, but there isn't sufficient space here to do it justice.

Twelve seniors depart from that squad. They will all be missed, but they can take pride in the fact that they helped start a new tradition at Iowa State.

There will be more new Cyclones next fall anxious to continue the precedent set by the 1957 unit. Because of this, the football picture looks brighter at Iowa State than it has in some time.

The founder of State's single-wing attack—Jim Myers.

Call him a traitor, turncoat, hypocrite or any other non-glorifying adjective that comes to your mind if you wish, but after thinking a while, even Jim Myers' most caustic critic will have to agree that Myers deserves much of the credit for the upswing in Iowa State football fortunes last fall.

Myers coached in the old Tennessee tradition, which was started by the coach all Tennesseans insist was the greatest. That was General Bob Neyland, who had Myers on one of his great Tennessee teams.

The Neyland philosophy calls for a lot of work on the practice field. The fun comes later when you can destroy your opponent on the following Saturday afternoon.

Myers followed this philosophy to the hilt. Anyone who saw Iowa State in action last fall will tell you this philosophy brought results.

When Myers decided to pull out of Iowa State for Texas A & M, much criticism was hurled at him. Whether or not all the criticism was justified is immaterial; Myers has left and will never return.

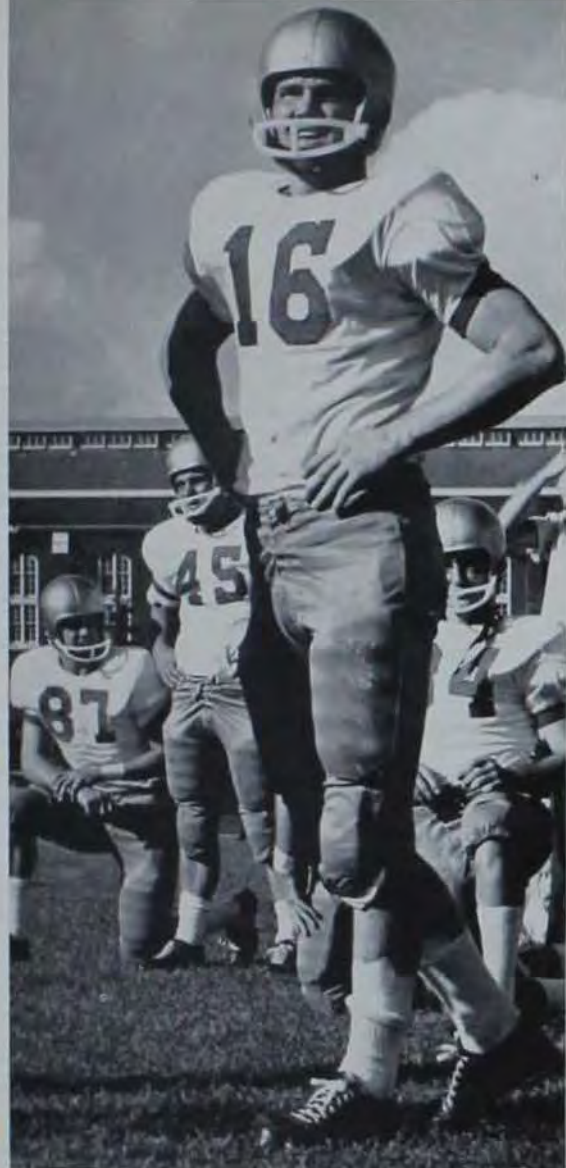

However, the Athletic Council didn't waste much time in selecting Myers' successor. Again, the selection was a Tennessee graduate. He was Clayton Stapleton, who had been an assistant at Oregon State.

Stapleton, too, follows the Neyland philosophy. So perhaps Cyclone football will continue to move upward.

Team

"Mo" Nichols

The primary reason for the initial year success of the new single-wing offense installed by Jim Myers was the emergence of sophomore Dwight Nichols as tailback.

Nichols not only led the Iowa State offense; he also gained sufficient yardage to rank third in the nation in total yardage gained. He led the Big Eight Conference in passing, and was the only sophomore selected for the all-conference team. Nichols handled the ball on 311 offensive plays for the Cyclones, which was tops in the nation in this category. Hardly the rugged type, Nichols stands only 5-9 and weighs 168 pounds. But the 23-year old Navy veteran had the stamina and poise to keep the Cyclones in contention during every game on their rugged schedule. Great things are expected of Nichols during the next two years.

Coaches

It's a warm afternoon, but even the heat didn't stop this Cyclone fan from donning his coonskin coat for the big game.

Iowa State 10, Denver 0

The football situation at Iowa State took on a brighter face after the Cyclones romped over Denver in their opener 10-0. Playing under a new single-wing attack proved to be the big factor as the well-conditioned State team scored on a field goal in the second quarter and a 62-yard touchdown drive in the third.

Iowa State 6, Syracuse 6

State's 6-6 tie with mighty Syracuse went down as one of the major upsets of the season. The big Orange of Syracuse was rated as one of the strongest teams in the East and many fans looked to Iowa State as a mere scrimmage. Little did they know the determination of Coach Myers' charges and his staff.

Iowa State 14, Oklahoma 40

Capitalizing on several State fumbles early in the game, national champion Oklahoma got off to a running start as they jolted the Cyclone's single-wing attack 40-14. The loss did little to dampen Cyclone spirit though, and Coach Myers praised his team for its fine play. This game saw Iowa State scoring more points against Oklahoma than a Cyclone football team has for many years.

Rough and tough football and a determination to win exemplified the 1957 Cyclones under Jim Myers.

On the receiving end of many of Dwight Nichols' passes last fall was lanky end Brian Dennis. Brian is only a junior and will be back in action next fall.

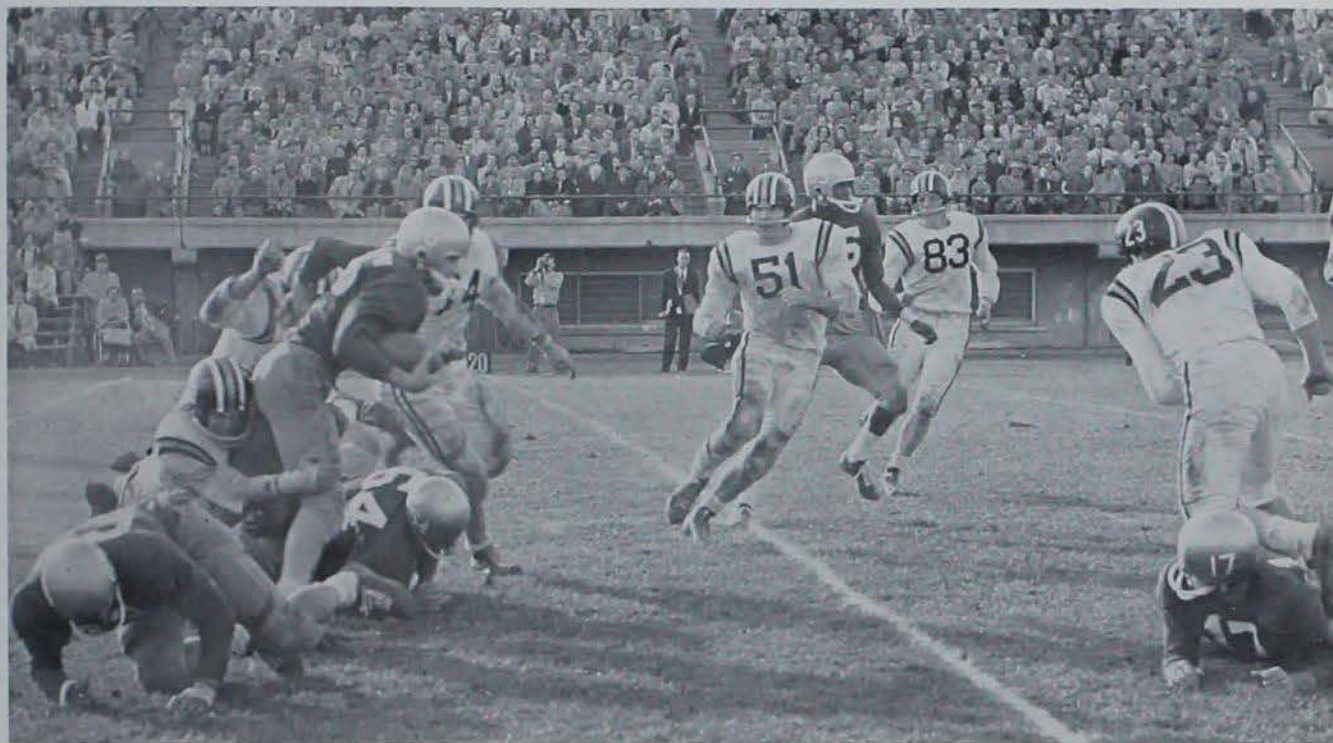

Iowa State 21, Kansas 6

Kansas became victim number two as Iowa State rolled over the Jayhawks for its first conference win 21-6. A rugged ground game saw State scoring in the first and second periods to defeat the favored Kansas team.

Iowa State 13, Missouri 35

A terrific passing attack by the Cyclones' Dwight Nichols kept State on a par with Missouri for the first half, but the Tigers exploded in the second for 29 points as they rolled to a 35-13 victory. Nichols scored first for State on a desperate fourth down dive for the flag. Center Jack Falter recovered a Missouri Fumble in the end zone for State's second TD.

All-conference back Dwight Nichols fights his way into scoring territory for the Cyclones against Missouri. State lost to the Tigers 35-13.

Time out for a breather

Iowa State 0, Kansas State 14

Homecoming fans saw Iowa State play its most disappointing game of the season — a 14-0 loss to Kansas State. The sharpness that had prevailed in all other games was at a low ebb, and this, coupled with penalties and fumbles, proved a fatal blow to Myers and his charges.

Iowa State 0, Drake 20

The Drake game still remains as somewhat a mystery to many Cyclone fans, but the final whistle ended the event with the Bulldogs out front 20-0. Drake's terrific passing attack not only threw State for a loss, but it also earned them a berth in the Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Texas.

Iowa State 13, Nebraska 0

Hard hitting action was the big factor in Iowa State's 13-0 win over the Nebraska Cornhuskers—the first in 12 years. The victory brought a three-game losing streak to an abrupt halt for the Cyclones. Coach Myers' nucleus featured a strong defense and an unstoppable aerial attack as tailback Dwight Nichols' passing arm found home many times for the Cyclones.

Iowa State 33, South Dakota State 0

Twelve seniors played their last home game of the season for Iowa State as Coach Myers' chargers scored 33 points against South Dakota's scoreless attack. It was a Cyclone victory all the way as South Dakota's Coyotes went howling for home after their worst defeat of the season. Sophomore Dwight Nichols set an Iowa State rushing record as he ran his total to 600 yards.

Iowa State 21, Colorado 38

Iowa State closed out its first season under Jim Myers and his single-wing type of football when the team lost to Colorado 38-21. The Buffs picked up 576 yards in the encounter to assure them the Big Eight offensive title. Iowa State's record for the season stands at 4 wins, 1 tie, and 5 losses—the best in several years.

All eyes are on the pigskin as State's passing attack explodes into action against Nebraska.

"A tense moment for the Cyclones."

Even the young ones cheered for Iowa State's high-spirited Cyclones.

"We like Myers," and they did.

Myers gets his first look at the material around which he built State's 1957 attack.

Basketball . . . Well-balanced attack—State tie

Iowa State's 1957-58 basketball team had another successful year under the guidance of Bill Strannigan.

With Big Eight competition the toughest in history, the Cyclones finished in a tie with Kansas for second place in the final league standings. The success came despite mid-season injuries to the two Johns — Crawford and Krocheski, keeping these dependable performers at half-speed for several games.

Balance was the factor in the season's success. When Crawford, the team's leading scorer, was out, someone else would come through with just a few more points — usually enough to compensate for John's absence, and produce another victory.

Two giants reach for ball in Iowa State-Colorado tilt. Cyclones won 71-44.

Crawford, along with fellow seniors Lyle Frahm, Don Medsker, Dick Farwell, and Al Lowery, won't be back next year. However, Bud Bergman, who pulled the Cyclones out of the fire several times with some spectacular shooting, will return along with four other lettermen. Also, Coach Strannigan will have the finest group of sophomore prospects coming up that he has had since coming to Iowa State.

It may be hard for next year's Cyclones to duplicate the fine record compiled by the 1957-58 aggregation, but with Bill Strannigan in command, you can rest assured that some interesting basketball will be played at Iowa State.

Ron Baukol whips ball into action for the Cyclones against K-State. State lost 64-54.

Iowa State 62, Drake 55

The 1957-58 opener with Drake found Iowa State without the service of all-American Gary Thompson for the first time in three years, but this didn't stop the Cyclones as they edged the Bulldogs 62-55. Lanky John Crawford, who predominated as a rebounder during the Thompson era, paced the Cyclone attack with 27 points.

Iowa State 66, Minnesota 67

Minnesota was second on the Cyclone's schedule, but this time the tide turned — even though Coach Strannigan praised his cagers for their fine play. The game was a nip and tuck affair with a last minute bucket sewing up the victory in favor of the Gophers. Lyle Frahm played one of his best games of the year as he netted 22 points, 15 in the last half.

Iowa State 54, Brigham Young 45

Brigham Young became victim number two for the Iowa State cagers as they downed the highly-rated western team 54-45. Coach Strannigan's team used a well-balanced attack in winning their second game of the season.

It's a close contest — and Coach Strannigan and Asst. Anderson know it!

Lyle Frahm lets fly from out front with one of his popular long shots. The senior from Manning was the major playmaker of the Cyclones.

Iowa State 72, Wyoming 51

A tight zone defense and a blazing 89 percent on free throws enabled Strannigan's cagers to overpower his old alma mater, Wyoming, 72-51. The Cyclones were in front 38-19 at half time, and Lyle Frahm scored 14 points after intermission to lead State's scoring attack.

Iowa State 68, Illinois 60

Previously undefeated Illinois fell to the Cyclones 68-60 in a game that saw John Crawford hitting 21 points in the last half. The Cyclones' human pogo stick was so busy grabbing rebounds the first half that he didn't have much time for scoring, but even then he led all scorers with 28 points.

Iowa State 51, Michigan State 57

Nationally-ranked Michigan State had to go into an overtime to edge Bill Strannigan's crew 57-51 in a game that saw the Cyclones once leading by six points. Ron Baukol entered the game with 10 minutes of the first half gone — but his fiery shooting led the Cyclone attack with 18 points.

Iowa State 61, Montana 62

When a high-strung Montana State team invaded Ames, they found the Cyclones without the service of their leading rebounder and scoring ace — John Crawford. Crawford was out of action with an injured ankle, and the cagers from Montana took advantage of this break to edge Iowa State 62-61.

Iowa State 62, Missouri 55

The conference opener with Missouri found the Cyclones breaking a jinx that had plagued them in the last five season-openers with the Tigers — the score was 62-55 in favor of Iowa State. A full court press aided the Cyclones' win, which saw Missouri pull within one point of State seven times.

Iowa State 63, Drake 42

Drake's pride and joy, Red Murrell, was held to seven points when Iowa State traveled to Des Moines for its second encounter with the Bulldogs. Coach Strannigan's crew again employed a full court press to win its sixth game, with Crawford sitting this one out with another ankle injury.

Iowa State's human pogo stick, John Crawford, dominated the boards in this game that saw State swamp the Nebraska Cornhuskers 78-63.

Ron Bankol slips between two Colorado players to lay up two more Iowa State points. The Cyclones lost to the Bulls 71-44.

John Krocheski goes high in the air to score for the Cyclones against Colorado. State won 71-44.

Bud Bergman, a newcomer to Strannigan's team this season, added much to the Cyclone's scoring punch. Here he flips in another two-pointer against Colorado.

Iowa State 57, Nebraska 52

Nebraska provided Iowa State with its second straight conference win, but not before the Cyclones played their best game since the Christmas holidays. Crawford had returned to action and with Don Medsker controlled both boards for the win.

Iowa State 36, Colorado 45

When a team finds themselves hampered by frigid shooting and a rugged defense, things usually don't look too promising. This was the case against Colorado when the Cyclones lost their first conference game by a nine-point margin.

Iowa State 54, Kansas State 64

"We faced one of the finest forward walls in the country," said Coach Bill Strannigan after his Cyclones had dropped a hard-fought 54-64 game to the No. 1 team in the country — Kansas State. The game, viewed by 8,000 "validated" fans, found State unable to penetrate the Wildcat defense.

Lyle Frahm displays the clutch shot that helped bring State through many encounters.

"Yea team go - fight, fight!"

Iowa State 78, Nebraska 63

With Lyle Frahm and John Crawford blazing the nets for 24 and 19 points respectively, Iowa State had little trouble chalking up their third conference win - 78-63 over Nebraska. The Cyclones enjoyed an 18-25 point margin throughout the game as they hit 44 percent of their shots.

Iowa State 70, Kansas State 77

Despite the second loss to K-State, Coach Strannigan tabbed his Cyclones for their best play of the year. The loss dropped State to fourth place in the conference standings with a 3-3 record.

Iowa State 61, Kansas 90

There was a humiliated Cyclone basketball team after dropping a 61-90 game to Kansas. The loss saw Wilt Chamberlin tossing in 34 points for the Jayhawkers besides grabbing more rebounds than the entire Cyclone team. John Crawford tallied 18 points for State.

Iowa State 59, Oklahoma 56

One of the roughest games of the season saw Iowa State edge the Oklahoma Sooners in an overtime 59-56. The win, cinched by John Crawford's two free throws with 2 seconds remaining, put the Cyclones in strong contention for third place in the conference race.

Iowa State 48, Kansas 42

"We played a team that wanted to win more than we did," said Kansas Coach Dick Harp after his Jayhawkers fell to Iowa State at Ames. Kansas had previously jolted State with a 90-61 downing earlier in the season, but one would hardly believe it after the Cyclone victory. Coach Strannigan described his team as having a "perfect night."

Iowa State 71, Colorado 44

Paced by John Crawford's 22 points and 15 by Ron Baukol, State hammered home a sound trouncing to Colorado University 71-44. The victory was a reverse of an incident earlier in the season — State lost that one 45-36.

Iowa State 66, Oklahoma 55

At least a tie for second place in the conference was in the wind after Iowa State downed Oklahoma for the second straight time this season. The score was 66-55. A strong defense coupled with a balanced scoring attack meant victory for the Cyclones who were tied with the Sooners at half time 30-30.

Iowa State 63, Missouri 59

It took an overtime to do it, but State came out on top to gain a tie with Kansas for second place in the Big Seven Conference. Strannigan's crew was tied 54-54 with the Tigers as the game ended. In an overtime, controlled ball earned the Cyclones the all important victory over Missouri.

All-American Wilt Chamberlin stretches his seven-foot frame to block John Crawford's lay-up, but, despite height like this, State emerged the winner over nationally-ranked Kansas 48-42.

Cyclone swimmers second in Big Eight meet

Coach Jack McGuire's swimming team splashed its way to a 5-4 win-loss record and second in the Big Eight conference meet despite graduation losses that hampered the team.

The Cyclones opened the season with Michigan State, but the powerful Spartans, favored with a veteran squad, swamped State 76-29. The next meet saw Iowa State take on Minnesota, but a closely-fought battle ended with the Cyclones on the losing end—47-39. Nebraska provided State with its first win of the season, and then Colorado, Kansas, and Kansas State fell respectively in conference competition to the Cyclones. Then came the Oklahoma Sooners who walloped State 68-18 for the conference crown.

In the Big Eight meet the Cyclones held their own as they racked up 88 points for the runner-up spot behind the Sooners. Dale Wassmuth and Jerry Petkus provided State with two first place positions as the talented Cyclones captured the diving and 60-yard free-style events. After this it was third and fourth places that helped stack up the points.

Cyclone wrestlers overpower Oklahoma schools for Big Eight Crown—Second in national tourney

Eight years of Oklahoma dominance of Big Eight conference wrestling was ended by the Cyclone grapplers during the past season.

The Cyclones managed to come out ahead of both the Sooners and Oklahoma State in the 1958 conference tourney which was the closest in history.

Leading the Cyclones during the season was sophomore Les Anderson, who went undefeated and finished as national 130-pound champ. Ron Gray lost only once at 147 pounds and also finished as a national champion. Captain Frank Powell lost only in the national semi-finals.

The Cyclones finished behind Oklahoma State in the national tourney, but were undefeated in dual competition. Powell, Altman, Corner and Ketelsen will graduate, but Coach Harold Nichols has some good frosh grapplers coming up, so Iowa State should put up a good defense of its conference crown next season.

Big Seven champ, Les Anderson, came from behind to win this match with Oklahoma's Stan Abel. The 130-pound Cyclone ace also won his weight in the national tournament at Laramie, Wyoming.

Frank Powell displays the style of wrestling that won him first place in the 177 pound class of the conference meet. His record of wins was unmarred until yielding to Gary Kurdelmeier of Iowa in the national tournament.

Baseball . . . Best season in history—Big Seven

Iowa State's best baseball season in history climaxed its schedule with a third-place finish in the collegiate world series in Omaha after the Cyclones had won their first conference championship since 1936.

At the beginning of the season, it looked like Iowa State was going to suffer from a weak pitching staff. However, before the season was finished, several new pitchers had emerged in brilliant fashion to join steady veterans Gene Lafferty and Phil Groth to form an effective mound corps.

Iowa State compiled an 11-6 record in conference games to take the title.

After winning the conference crown, the Cyclones met the Bradley baseball team to determine the fifth district representative to the national finals. The Cyclones took two straight shutout victories which sent them to Omaha.

At Omaha, Iowa State beat Notre Dame in the first round, but dropped its next game to California, the eventual champion. Sophomore Jim Kudlinski kept the Cyclones in the meet with a sparkling two-hitter against Connecticut, but California eliminated Iowa State in the next game of the double elimination tourney. The Cyclones finished with a 17-10 record for the year.

The Cyclones' Dick Bertell is ready for the pitch—but the batter thinks differently.

This Iowa State player makes a desperation slide into third base—but not soon enough.

Coach Cap Timm—the Big Seven baseball crown along with coach of the year honors—a great season for Timm who has been at Iowa State more than 20 years.

Cap Timm's twenty-second year as Iowa State's baseball coach was an eventful one. His Cyclones took the Big Seven Conference crown and advanced to the National Collegiate finals in Omaha, where they finished third.

After this successful year, Timm was awarded the Knute Rockne award as the outstanding baseball coach of the year. Also, his coaching colleagues selected him as president of the American Baseball Coaches' Association.

Timm had a lot of help in achieving this success. Dick Bertell earned a spot on the all-American team along with Gary Thompson, who picked up all-American baseball honors to go along with the national acclaim he achieved earlier in basketball.

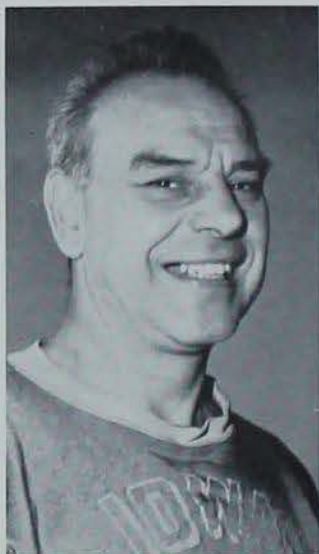

Also, Gene Lafferty was invaluable in pacing the Cyclone pitching staff. Lafferty was undefeated during the regular season's play. In fact, all of the Cyclones were instrumental in the success achieved.

But when an individual is to be singled out for laurels, you don't have to look beyond Cap Timm. If you have any doubts about this, just ask any of the baseball squad members.

Team

Coach Berry's track teams have made a fine showing for Iowa State, especially in the shot put and discus where the Cyclone coach has gained national recognition for producing outstanding weightmen.

A consistent winner in the shot put is Phil Delavan who is Iowa's greatest shot putter. Phil shattered dual meet records with ease last spring including a first place in the Kansas Relays with a put of 54 feet 6 inches.

The Cyclone cindermen had one of the strongest pair of weightmen in the conference, and their record-shattering performances will vouch for that.

Both Phil Delevan and Ralph Yoder blazed a trail of victory in the shot put and discuss respectively to gain many points for the Cyclones. Delevan has put the shot further than any other college weightman in the state of Iowa. Yoder has also topped all Iowa discuss records.

Coach Burl Berry's cross country team racked up third place in the Big Eight Conference meet for the second straight year, as they compiled a record of three wins, one loss and one tie during the season.

Although Coach Burl Berry's track team had one of its poorer seasons, a strong cross country team and a pair of outstanding weightmen helped make the year a successful one for the Cyclones.

The 630 Club is an athletic improvement organization which was formed at Iowa State following a 63-0 defeat by Oklahoma in the 1947 Homecoming game. The purpose of the club is to attract more and better athletes to Iowa State, raise athletic spirit and provide incentive to freshman and varsity athletic teams.

Each year 630 Club provides entertainment for Veishea's outstanding athletes, and luncheons are given for various high school athletes during the school year. At Veisheathon a trophy is presented to the "Athlete of the Year" who, in 1957, was all-American basketball great, Gary Thompson. The club is also responsible for honoring outstanding performers as "Athletes of the Week" throughout the year.

Membership consists of representatives from each organized residence. Next year 630 Club will merge with Pep Council for a new central athletic promotion organization.

Basketball has proven to be one of our most popular intramural sports at Iowa State. During week nights of winter quarter one will find a long list of teams waiting to use the courts.

The Union bowling alley is always crowded as students take advantage of another popular sport at Iowa State.

A fast game of ping pong—a wonderful way to let off that excess fension, and still participate in Iowa State's well organized intramural program.

6,000 male students active in Iowa State's intramural program

Competition at its greatest with nearly 6,000 students taking part summarizes the intramural program at Iowa State, which is one of the best organized programs of its type in the nation.

Twenty-three different activities are available for all male students, and the program is scheduled so all students may compete regardless of residence.

Sports offered in the program are: touch football, golf, handball, outdoor track, tennis, horseshoes, bowling, swimming, table tennis, volleyball, basketball, wrestling, indoor track, softball and bowling.

Through participating in the Iowa State intramural program, one not only enjoys active competition and a way of letting off excess steam, but one also receives an education in itself. Students learn the value of organization, leadership, behavior, and self discipline. Many of the sports have a carry-over value in enjoyment beyond college.

The intramural program also contributes to the intercollegiate program with prospective varsity material chosen every year by State's coaching staff.

Another special reward from the program is practical application and experience for physical education majors who run the entire program in coordination with intramural chairman from the college residences and organizations. Students are referees, timers, scorers, team managers and keep the program running smoothly.

Actually intramurals were the forerunner of the present intercollegiate program, and today the biggest athletic program in the world is played before just the participants themselves. Not all the interest in intercollegiate contests combined equal the scope of intramural sports — such as at Iowa State.

Annual picnic highlights women's intramural season

The women at Iowa State also enjoy a well-organized intramural program with basketball and swimming being the most popular.

Tournaments between the women residences invite a large participation in most of the events offered, and even here the competition is very keen.

Sports offered under the women's intramural department include swimming, archery, basketball, softball, badminton, tennis, golf, field hockey, and volleyball.

The women's intramural program is set up under a point system with so many points being awarded for first, second, third and fourth place positions in the various events. The residence with the most points is awarded a sweepstakes trophy at the all-women's intramural picnic held spring quarter of each year.

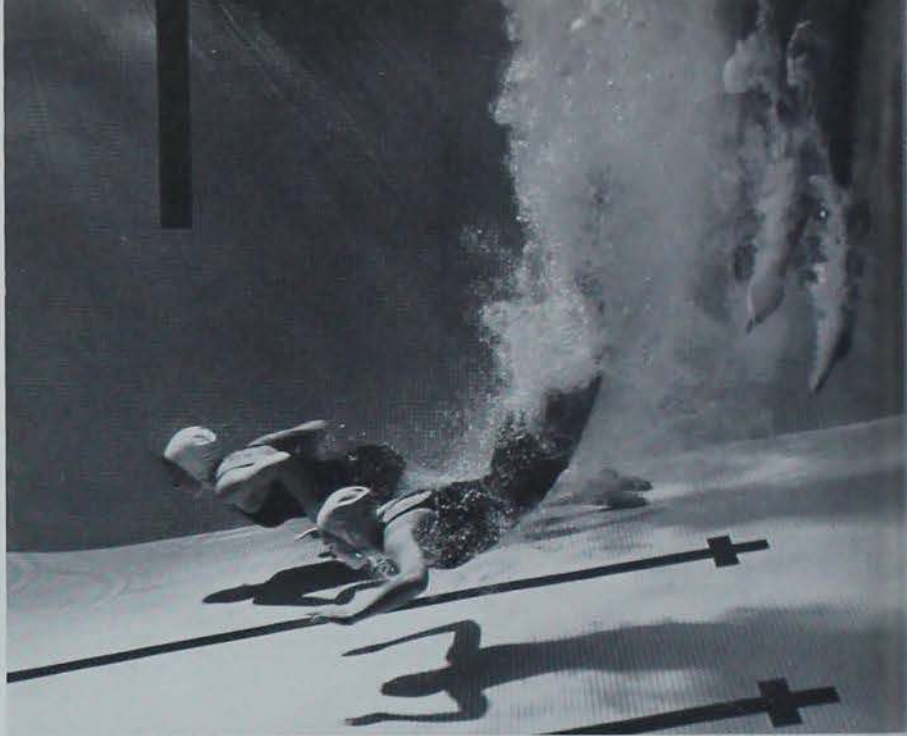

Another sport offered in the women's intramural program is badminton, and a popular sport at that.

Interfraternity Council represents and governs the thirty-one fraternities at Iowa State. Divided into administrative, legislative and judicial branches, IFC sets up rushing procedure, handles public relations and promotes activities for the Greek system. The newly-formed IFC Court handles disciplinary cases and the social board's function is to coordinate Greek social activities.

Interfraternity Pledge Council represents each pledge class. It sponsors the pledge dance each year and organizes the exchange system among fraternity and sorority pledges. The purpose of this group is to encourage cooperation among pledge classes and to develop leadership.

The recreation room, decorated to give a weird spiritual effect, served as a seance room. With cobwebs hanging from the ceiling and the windows boarded, the parlors resembled an old haunted Victorian house. A combo provided music for dancing and the couples visited the "great spirit" for fifteen breath-taking minutes.

The Acacian's won first place with their Varieties skit which entitled them to participate in the Veishea Vodvil show. However, they also took time to study and as a result were awarded the national scholarship trophy for Acacia chapters.

Two more parties highlighted the year for the Acacian's. About 120 people, including many college faculty members, attended the spring formal, "Moonlight Mist," which was held at the Boone Country Club. Also, Valentine Day festivities were celebrated by members and their dates at a "Sweetheart Party" held at the house.

Many of the members tried out their interior decorating ability during the summer by re-decorating the study rooms.

*Adelante's celebrate golden anniversary
... Remodel rec room and front of house*

Talking over fraternity events and life at the Adelante house are several Adelante's and the parents of a student.

The Adelante's celebrated their golden anniversary this year as Iowa State observed its centennial year. To commemorate the occasion, a banquet for alumni, members, and faculty was held in Curtiss Hall during fall quarter. A book sketching the history of the house from the time of its founding fifty years ago was made for the occasion. Approximately 250 attended the celebration.

An extensive redecorating job filled the spare time of many Adelante's this year. The basement was remodeled by lowering the floors and knocking out four walls to make a large recreation room. The remaining walls were paneled with knotty pine. The men also constructed a serving counter and installed a hi-fi music set. Along with redecorating the basement, they resodded the lawn and rebuilt the front of the house.

Every active member and several alumni were present for the formal, "Moonlight and Roses," held during spring quarter at the Marshalltown Country Club.

The Iowa State chapter was host for the 55th Alpha Chi Rho national convention last fall. Twenty-two chapters were represented at the convention which lasted three days. Undergraduate members also attended a training session for two days previous to the convention.

"Moonlight in Bermuda" was the theme for the "Crow's" annual formal held at the Boone Country Club during spring quarter. A backdrop typifying a south sea island scene added to the atmosphere of the dance, and stuffed tigers were given as favors to the dates.

At the beginning of fall quarter, Mrs. Carl Eby, formerly a sorority housemother at the University of Utah, became the new Alpha Chi Rho housemother. A tea was given in her honor on November 17.

Participating in activities as a group is typical of the Alpha Chi Rho's. As a result, their bowling team took the Class B championship winter quarter. The pledges also enjoyed working as a group as they helped in the spring clean-up of one of the local churches.

*AGR's bold Homecoming alumni dance
... Entertain with annual Farmer's Ball*

Two AGR's secure corn stalks which lined the sidewalk leading to the chapter house for a successful fall party which carried out the harvest theme.

Last spring quarter the AGR's presented their annual Farmer's Ball, which began with a barbeque supper. Over three hundred pounds of beef was served. A harvest scene, complete with saddles and bales of hay, gave the inside of the house a barn dance effect. A combo provided the music as the fellows and their dates danced in casual dress.

The Homecoming alumni dance held the weekend of Homecoming gave the alumni a chance to meet the new pledges and renew old acquaintances.

Many AGR's are active on livestock judging teams, agriculture honoraries, councils and clubs. The members of this all-agriculture fraternity are proud of their high scholastic standing and have two men on Cardinal Guild.

The "Pink Rose Formal" held during winter quarter was preceded by dinner in Boone. Then the boys and their dates went to the Sheldon-Munn Hotel where the evening was spent dancing in an atmosphere of pink roses and soft lights.

Black and white puppy dog favors were given to guests at the party. Decorations for the dance also carried out this black and white theme, as did the guests who came dressed in the same colors.

During fall quarter, the Alpha Sig's had a dance with their sister chapter, Alpha Chi Omega. It was held at Coe College in Cedar Rapids.

Other social events during the year included a Founder's Day banquet, a hayride, and many exchanges with sororities and dorms.

The Alpha Sig Parents' Day, held the week following Veishea, found members eating their fill at a picnic, which, they discovered, makes softball and horseshoe pitching quite an effort.

ATO's and dates spend many restful evenings absorbed in the goings-on of the TV world in the chapter house living room.

As Iowa State College became 100 years old in 1958, the Alpha Tau Omega's celebrated the 50th anniversary of their founding on this campus. Festivities for this event are being planned for Homecoming 1958.

Beachcomber clothes were in style at the Tau's "Calypso Party" held spring quarter. A large grass hut filled the room, and a South Sea Island atmosphere prevailed as members and their dates drank punch from hollow pineapples.

During the year the Tau's won many awards in both music and sports. They received first place in the 1957 Sinfonia Sing, which entitled them to participate in the 1957 Veisheathon program.

Sports also brought them several honors: first place in Class A volleyball and softball, first place and runner-up in Class A tennis, and second place in the spring track meet. As a result of these winnings, the Tau's were awarded the fraternity team point trophy for the most points-per-man for spring quarter.

*Lutheran fraternity redecorates house
... Gives pizza party and formal*

Wyatt Earp and other westerns draw avid weekly fans to the TV set to keep up on adventure. The Beta Sig's house-mother finds her "boys" as entertaining as the program.

The Beta Sig's and dates had "A Night to Remember" party when couples had dinner at Memorial Lutheran Church and returned to the house for dancing. Background decorations were designed to represent a New York skyline at night.

Pizza was the specialty when the men planned a party at the Ledges this fall. Couples had the pizza sent out and enjoyed the Italian food together.

The "Gold Rose Formal" was held at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel spring quarter. Picket fences and an archway decorated with gilted roses were part of the setting for the dance. During intermission the Gold Rose Sweetheart was crowned.

House improvements for the year included refinishing, painting all the rooms and other internal changes.

All members of the Beta Sig's are Lutherans, and several times a quarter the men have devotional services in the house. The men, who are members of both the campus Lutheran Churches, occasionally go to church as a unit.

Everyone gets into the act when the time comes to decorate the Beta house for Christmas. Here the housemother adds her artistic touch to the tree.

Beta's migrate to Clear Lake for Memorial Day weekend

The Spring Formal for the Beta's began on Friday night with a dance at the Sheldon Munn Hotel. Saturday morning the couples drove to Clear Lake for swimming, water skiing and sailing. That evening they had an informal party, and Sunday morning everyone took a final dip before returning to ISC.

The Beta house became a "speak-easy" of the 1920's for the annual pledge party. The dining room was the setting for a large water fountain (which accidentally started to leak during the evening).

This fall the men roasted pork for the annual Beta Barbecue. During the quarter the men and dates took part in the Miami Triad activities, held annually in commemoration of Beta's, Sigma Chi's, and Phi Delt's foundations at Miami University.

Each year the "Trowel Trophy" is presented to a worthy sorority girl, which makes her a member of their "Poor Girls' Mortar Board." Qualifications are camping at least once, she must be in activities, and not going steady, pinned, engaged or married to a Beta.

There's an art to the construction of a top-notch Homecoming decoration besides a tremendous amount of careful planning and coordination. Here the Beta's put their plans into action on a frigid fall afternoon.

Actives returned a party fall quarter by giving "Club 405" which was conducted with a nightclub theme. This time the house became a penthouse, with candles and Japanese lanterns for lighting.

Over twelve hundred clams were baked by the Delta Chi's and Teke's on their annual Memorial Day clambake. The banks of the Des Moines River provided the setting for the event.

"Carnation Fantasy" was the theme of the annual winter formal in Des Moines where the Delta Chi Sweetheart was crowned and presented with a bouquet of flowers.

Dogpatch characters lived on the Delta Chi lawn during Homecoming as the wooden figures in their theme of "Myered Down."

The fraternity was honored this fall when Chuck Manatt was crowned Greek Week king.

Throughout the year the social events included hayrides, firesides, and the Christmas party for Ames children.

These Delta Sig's don't know it yet, but the Homecoming display now in its most preliminary stages went on to bring their fraternity the sweepstakes trophy.

*Delta Sig's take Veishea sweepstakes

A colorful float depicting regal pomp and splendor won for the Delta Sig's a coveted award—the Veishea parade sweepstakes trophy—well worth hundreds of hours of building.

"Pomp and Circumstance" portraying a coronation parade with a carriage drawn by white horses, won the Veishea sweepstakes trophy for the Delta Sig's last spring.

Again this fall the men took first place in fraternity division for their 3-D Homecoming display of "Hairless Joe and Lonesome Polecat."

The house became a French sidewalk cafe for the Apache Dance this fall. Couples added a French flavor by wearing berets and sashes.

A live turkey roamed through the house during the pledges' dance, the "Turkey Hop," and later the fowl was given to one of the chaperones.

Other social events for the Delta Sig's included a date Christmas Party, hayrides, the Sailor's Ball, and the spring "Carnation Formal."

Making a final sweep of the cluttered hall in the Delt house is one of the Delt pledges finishing duties for the day while an active looks down to check the spotless hall.

The Delt house went Latin American for their "Fiesta de Case Delta" party fall quarter. The pledges decorated each room of the house to carry out the theme—bull fight, fiesta and an authentic harbor scene created by projecting slides on frosted windows. Delt's and their dates dressed for the occasion in colorful Spanish costumes and refreshments were served from a Spanish "refrescos" stand.

During last spring quarter, the Delt's had a "Four Poster" party. A huge four-poster bed was set up in one of the parlors to serve as decoration for this dance held in the house.

Spring quarter also brought a "Lucky Pierre" party with everyone attired in French costumes and French food was served for refreshments. A large French art museum scene provided the setting for the festivities.

A Thanksgiving Day dinner to which faculty members were invited was held to commemorate the annual holiday.

A moulded figure of Coach Jim Myers stands by ready to fire the cannon to beat K. State, in DU's original Homecoming decoration.

"Myers Fires - Wildcat Expires" won third place in fraternity competition of the Homecoming decorations for the DU's this fall.

Also on the schedule for the DU's were three major parties. Dinner at the Lincoln Tavern in Boone preceded the annual winter formal, "Blue Moon." Dave Wilder and his band provided music at the house for the men and their dates.

During spring quarter the DU's took over Larry Jo's Dude Ranch for a Saturday of riding horses, dancing and singing. A barbeque climaxed the ranch party.

This fall the DU Key Club opened for a one-night stand on November 9. Clothes of the golden era of the twenties were worn for the occasion, and many big-name gangster persons were in attendance to dance to the Mark Van Slyke combo.

A pedigreed Weimaraner dog, Koenig, became the DU's new mascot at the beginning of fall quarter.

Intramurals played an important part in the DU's schedule too. They won Class A football, Class B volleyball and horseshoes and placed second in golf and tennis to finish third in the point totals for the year.

FarmHouse wins scholarship cup for eleventh consecutive year

FarmHouse members and their dates take time out for a hayride. The only trouble is that the air is so crispy and cool that everyone felt "frozen stiff."

For the eleventh consecutive year FarmHouse was awarded the scholarship cup for the highest grade average over the year. This cup is given each year by the college to the men's residence with the highest scholastic average.

"Around the World" was the theme of this year's "Farmer's Frolic" fall quarter. For this party the house was decorated to represent many different countries, and the guests wore foreign costumes.

Dave Wilder furnished the music for the Farmhouse spring formal, "Starlight Memories." The men and their dates ate dinner at Lloyd's in Marshalltown before going to the Elmwood Country Club where they danced in an atmosphere of blue skies and stars.

The social calendar was rounded off with a steak fry at the Ledges State Park last spring. A variety program was presented for entertainment.

*Iowa State alum named national president
... Kappa Sig's bold "Dream Girl" contest*

An Iowa State alumnus, Allen Woodfield of Des Moines, was recently elected national president of Kappa Sigma fraternity and was honored with a banquet at the house this fall.

The Kappa Sig's also held a pledge-father, pledge-son banquet during fall quarter. Earlier in the year the men and their dates had a western dance in a barn east of Ames, starting with a barbeque.

Many hours were spent on the Homecoming display of "Cyclone Inferno" which was a series of six murals and a deep pit.

Lynda Scott, the Kappa Sig "Dream Girl," was crowned at the spring formal in Memorial Union. The candidates from each women's residence tested their qualifications by fitting a plywood silhouette form, beside their beauty and personality.

Winter quarter the men were busy planning the "Black and White Formal" held in Des Moines.

Much strenuous labor goes into the erection of a Homecoming display these Kappa Sig's find out. And it usually ends up with one guy doing all the work.

A miniature card section for the annual Phi Delta "Powder Bowl" cheers the sorority teams as they compete for top honors. These fans need not worry about precision in flipping cards and trick stunts.

Phi Delta's win first in fraternities for Veishea float—"Song of the South"

It happens every fall—Homecoming decorations—and the Phi Delt's spend many long hours involved in the various phases of construction.

The Phi Delt's became coaches for sorority football this fall in preparation for their annual "Powder Bowl." The Phi Delt marching band and cheering section led teams and spectators to the Intramural Field to see the Alpha Gam's take first place. An all-college open house followed the event.

"Song of the South," a colorful Veishea float with Uncle Remus characters, was a first place winner for the Phi Delt's last spring. The Homecoming displays for the house featured "De-Feet to Kansas" which was built in the form of a huge shoe.

Periodically the house has a tie exchange where the members bring old or unusual ties for trading. Unfortunately, pledges are last in line for the switch.

This year the Phi Delt's housed Antal "Tony" Borsa of Budapest, Hungary, who is continuing his work in architecture.

The fraternity combined with the Sigma Chi's and Beta's for the Miami Triad, and were a part of the Tri-Phi party with the Phi Gam's and Phi Psi's.

These Fiji's are splashing paint on the football player that is part of their Homecoming decoration while the others take a break in the cold, nippy fall weather.

The Fiji's and their dates dressed in brightly colored sarongs, grass skirts, and sport shirts for the "Grass Skirt" party. The house was decorated with tropical scenery and a 15-foot waterfall which cascaded down the wall into a goldfish pool. The traditional favors of orchid leis were given to the dates.

During fall quarter, fraternity members and dates took orphans from Ames and Des Moines to a game and back to the house for dinner.

Also during the fall, the "Purple Garter" party was given at the Waveland Country Club in Des Moines. Other parties included the Jeff Hop held annually with the Phi Psi's.

Fifteen Fiji's and dates filled a bus bound for the Kansas game and were entertained by the Kansas chapter during Migration. Tired but happy couples excitedly watched Iowa State's victory.

Last spring the Fiji's sold over 2,540 Veishea Souvenir Programs, to be the highest salesmen among campus organizations.

Three Phi Kap's complete mantle decorations at the chapter house in preparation for the Christmas season and its round of festivities.

The Phi Kap's fall party found guests clad in costumes from many countries. "The Fisheaters Brawl" began with a huge dinner of shrimp and was followed by dancing at the house.

Couples were also costumed when the house became a large pirate ship for the Pirates' Ball.

During Greek Week the fraternity played hosts to sorority and fraternity members who participated in a discussion of public relations.

The Phi Kap's take charge of Sunday breakfasts at Newman Club about twice a quarter and work in other church activities. Gabor Vajda, of Budapest, Hungary, lived at the house this year and received books and tuition through a project in conjunction with Newman Club.

Other fall activities included their Homecoming display of "Send 'Em Back Screaming" where a near-by tree was used as a destination for the wild-cat. The social calendar was further rounded out with a hayride, several firesides, and exchanges.

You don't have to be a football hero but it sure helps. Dwight "Mo" Nichols passes cigars at the Phi Psi house following Sunday dinner to announce his pinning to Mary Kay Nicholson.

Phi Psi's "Damn Sooners" takes Varieties sweepstakes and Vodvil

The Phi Psi's create their own locker room and schedules for the annual Sportsman's Party. With a can of paint, a brush, and some artistic ability, a winning player appears.

The 1957 Varieties trophy is now housed with the Phi Psi's after they captured the honor last spring with "Damn Sooners." The skit was a take-off on the stage show "Damn Yankees" with the scene changed to include the Oklahoma football team. The skit also won the Veishea Vodvil trophy.

Using the theme of "Moulin Rouge," the Phi Psi's and dates dressed in costume for the spring party. When fall rolled around, the house was decorated in a rustic sportsman fashion while the Phi Psi's held their annual "Sportsman Party" after the Missouri football game. Sawdust-covered floors and fish-netted ceilings added an extra touch of informality.

In celebration of the founding of Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Gamma Delta at Jefferson College, the two fraternities combine annually for the "Jeff Hop."

Phi Tau's entertain dates at Fantasy Ball and Larry Jo's Ranch

"Oh...what a birthday greeting," shouts this Phi Tau as unsympathetic brothers douse him in the cold water from the shower. Revenge will come...

Homecoming decorations in front of the Phi Tau house showed Cy with his tennis racquet, boasting "Well Put The Cats in the Right Racquet."

The men worked together once again to decorate the house like a haunted mansion for men and dates at the Halloween Party.

Also during fall quarter the Phi Tau's took over Larry Jo's Ranch at Boone and began a party with a chilly hayride. Hot chocolate and doughnuts were waiting for hungry guests who quickly gathered about the huge fireplaces.

Red and gold were used with a large Phi Tau crest as a backdrop for the band at the "Phi Kappa Tau Fantasy Ball" last spring at the Waveland Country Club in Des Moines. The couples dined at the Breeze House in Ankeny before the dance.

The Christmas season once again found the house hosts to a party — this time for tree trimming and holiday fun.

Potted palms and a large fountain in the dining room made the setting for the spring Pi K A "Hawaii" party. Orchid leis flown in from Hawaii were presented to the dates.

Also spring quarter the men created a Veishea float of a butterfly spinning silk, which followed the division Oriental theme.

The pledges gave the "Undersea Fantasy" party for actives and dates, and transformed the house into an underwater setting. Men and their dates dressed in either bathing suits, sailor suits or beachcombers' outfits. Each date received a bowl with two goldfish in it.

During the fall the Pi K A's gave a tea for all sorority pledges. The men also had a pizza party at Babes in Des Moines, and a fireside called "Campus Capers," which was presented on an Ivy League theme.

Pi Kap's win second in fraternities for Homecoming decoration

Relaxing after a good Sunday meal are several Pi Kappa Phi's looking over some of the unforgettable memories from the past year in their annual fraternity scrapbook.

Second place Homecoming trophy was awarded to the Pi Kappa Phi's for their display entitled "Rabbits Watch Our Score Grow in Hare-Raising Game." Later during the fall the fraternity decorated the house like a French restaurant or cafe and invited dates to the costume party.

Annually the Pi Kappa Phi's combine with the Pi K A's and Pi Beta Phi's for a pie-eating contest (these three houses being the only ones on campus beginning with the Greek "Pi"). The Pi Kap's were victorious in the festivities.

A steak fry at the Ledges began the week-end for the Pi Kap's "Rose Bowl" formal. On Saturday the men took their dates dining and dancing at the Nevada Country Club. During the evening the Rose Queen, Mahala Brown, was crowned.

During winter quarter the house was opened to the "Snow Ball" formal, and decorations centered about a winter landscape.

*Police capture dates and escort them to "jail" at SAE
"One Night in Bermuda" party*

Standing in line for the phone, one Sig Alph looks up a date's phone number as he patiently waits. Must be a long call judging from the pop bottles.

A "One Night in Bermuda" party suddenly turned into a night jail when surprised Sig Alph dates were escorted by policemen to the city hall, fingerprinted, booked and sent to the courtroom. Mr. MacKay, Department of English, acted as judge. The women were met in the courtroom by their dates and taken to the house for the rest of the evening.

Other parties for the Sig Alph's included the "River Party" held on a sand bar near the Ledges. The unique occasion began with a river ride on a large raft which was followed with a barbecued chicken dinner. Small paddles were given as favors.

The Minerva Mothers Club, mothers of the men, held an auction sale in the house to raise money for their project. Parents were further honored on occasions throughout the year.

During the spring work project the Sig Alph's laid concrete, spaded an acre of garden space, mowed five acres of lawn, and made internal improvements to the Polk County Juvenile Home. The fraternity is looking ahead to planning an addition to the house.

Tri Delt's found themselves in an oriental atmosphere when they entered the Sigma Chi house for a Wednesday night dinner exchange.

Sigma Chi's and Theta's combined for a fall party, "Pre-Exam Slam," and danced to combo music at the fraternity house.

Earlier in the fall the Sigma Chi's held a watermelon bust at Brookside Park for all sorority pledges. Housemothers also participated in competition in the seed-spitting contest, and pledges rivaled in such stunts as shaving the foam from a water-filled balloon.

Last spring the Kappa's and Sigma Chi's gave a "Greenwich Village" party. Admission was a finger-painted picture. Phi Delt's and Beta's also combined with the fraternity for the annual Miami Triad held in Great Hall.

A valentine theme was used and hearts were free for taking — paper ones that is, at the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Formal at the Boone Country Club.

The house took a second place Varieties trophy for their presentation of the story of the American Flag, and in sports Sigma Chi's won first place trophies in Class A bowling and basketball.

The Sigma Chi who gets to act as "object of affection" for the choosing of the queen as the "Watermelon Bust" is lucky indeed.

Something every good fraternity pledge must know – sorority pins! Two Sigma Nu actives put four eager pledges through the test.

Coeds get dunking in muddy pit during famous Sigma Nu relays

A fire surely feels good after spending hours freeing Sigma Nu cars from a snow-congested parking lot. But it'll just snow again and they'll have to repeat the whole process.

The Sigma Nu's brought home trophies and honors this year when they captured a first place trophy in Varieties for their take-off on the Ed Sullivan show, won the second place prize for Veishea floats in the fraternity division, and had a member tapped for the Greek honorary.

During spring quarter sororities competed in the annual Sigma Nu Relays which ended with the traditional tug-of-war over the mud pit filled with murky water.

The house was magically turned into a gambling den for "Arabian Nights" party winter quarter, where couples gambled paper money in the "Monte Carlo" casino.

Fall quarter parties for Sigma Nu's and dates included a taffy pull, tobogganing, and a non-date mixer and relaxer during Rush Week.

Dugan, the dalmation, deactivated this year and became a member of the Newton Fire Department in the capacity of mascot.

Two Sig Ep's begin the long job of stuffing the chicken wire frame of their Homecoming display.

Sig Ep's acquire Great Dane mascot and addition to chapter house

Thor, new Sig Ep mascot, is an enthusiastic and effective "call-boy" around the fraternity house. . . not many sleepyheads could resist this onslaught.

Sig Ep's returned this fall to find several additions to the House. Thor, a five-month old Great Dane became their new mascot, and a new wing was completed on the house.

In November the house became a western ranch house for the "Saddle and Gun" party. And holiday festivities included an overnight when the men moved out and let their dates take over the house. Each year the fraternity has an all-campus serenade to the accompaniment of Mrs. McKone's hand organ and a bass and snare drum.

Robin Hood and his merry men invaded the Sig Ep's "Castlerama" spring party. Couples came costumed as monks, barmaids, or Robin Hood's men, and entered the house, which was decorated like an English castle, over a drawbridge.

Winter quarter the Sig Ep's held their annual Queen of Hearts Ball in the Hotel Savory in Des Moines, and the sweetheart queen was crowned.

The Sigma Pi basement recreation room provides many advantages — especially the refreshment bar which all take advantage of.

Sigma Pi pirates paraded in the Homecoming Triumph March with a theme of "We've got our treasure, now you get yours," and returned with the second place trophy.

Fall enthusiasm continued when the entire house went to Kansas University for Migration and were the guests of the Sigma Pi's there.

Looking back to spring quarter, the "Orchid Ball" was held at the Boone Country Club, where couples danced in an orchid bedecked room.

Returning in the fall, the Sigma Pi's gave a "Back to School" steak fry to welcome members and their dates back to the house. Also during the quarter an October hayride was held, and a Christmas semi-formal fireside in December.

The "Emerald Quartet" of Sigma Pi kept busy during the year by singing for various banquets and parties.

Polishing trophies can become a sizeable job when the collection is as extensive as that at the Teke house. Pledges usually receive the honor of polishing the cherished possessions.

"Teke House of the November Moon" gives oriental atmosphere to fall party

Cold nights in equally cold dorm finds this Teke snuggled beneath myraids of covers. Fresh air is a "freezing" necessity with so many sleeping in a small area.

The "Teke House of the November Moon" was opened to a fireside this fall when the men and dates danced in a decorated atmosphere of Chinese lanterns and bamboo screens.

National honors came to the fraternity when Charles G. Henningsen was chosen as the National Outstanding Teke of the Year at the Bedford Springs, Pa., annual convention. The "Epsilon Chimes," was named the outstanding chapter publication. The booklet covers chapter activities.

Turkey, gifts and dancing highlighted the annual Christmas dinner dance. And during winter quarter the "Barroom Brawl" was held at the colorfully decorated house.

Teke's won second place in Sinfonia last spring, and the Phi Eta Sigma scholarship improvement trophy was awarded the house for achievements winter quarter.

In sports, the wrestling team brought to the Teke's the first place award in intramurals.

Mock marriage ceremonies set mood for "Hotel Theta Chi" party

When a bulletin board is filled you just have to pin things wherever you can find room. Most rooms at the Theta Chi house abound with a collection of party favors, Kim Novak and other delights of the fraternity man.

Mock marriage ceremonies were performed for Theta Chi's and their dates at the "Hotel Theta Chi" party. The "newly weds" signed the guest register after the mock wedding and danced in the hotel ballroom.

Other parties at the house found couples dressed as they might have been if the ship on which they were traveling suddenly sunk. Dates received Theta Chi sailor hats to wear during the evening.

Spring quarter the fraternity combined with the Theta Delta Chi's to give a formal at the Hotel Tall Corn in Marshalltown.

Christmastime in the house was celebrated with a fraternity party before final week, and the annual children's party for Ames youngsters.

In the sports field the Theta Chi's won the Class B bowling championship and the Class D volleyball award.

Roommates come in handy but they often get in the way—especially when they decide to read a passage from a textbook when you are typing madly to finish an assignment.

Theta Delt's play "big brother" to Lutheran Children's Home youngsters

Everybody is eager to help with work in the kitchen but this number often becomes too large to accomplish anything. And, as one by one they leave, someone gets stuck with the work.

The 1000th meeting of Beta Deuteron chapter of Theta Delta Chi was celebrated February 12 with a special meeting, dinner and the dedication of a plaque honoring the fraternity founders.

Theta Delt's play "big brothers" to children at the Lutheran Children's Home. They help their young charges with schoolwork two or three times a week and celebrated the Christmas season with a party in their honor. During spring quarter the youngsters were treated to a picnic followed by a series of hectic games.

A hayrack party and informal fireside made Homecoming weekend a big one for the Theta Delt's. The men entertained their dates at the Circle S Ranch in Ames. Following the chilly ride, hot cider and donuts were served at the chapter house. Singing and dancing contributed to the spirit of the evening.

The Theta Delt's colonial brick home at 217 Ash is the oldest permanent fraternity house at Iowa State.

Saturday finds several Theta Xi's casually observing the disorder left in their living room by the pledges as they left on a so-called walkout.

High point of last fall quarter at the TX house was winning the "Ugly Man on Campus" contest. The Theta Xi Pancake Mix where members played host to over 250 coeds, a Scotch auction, and a car-washing service helped raise the money that gave the men the right to claim "Darling Dale" Hoffman as the '57-'58 Ugliest Man on Campus.

A warm spring night was the background for the Theta Xi spring formal, "Under the Stars," held in the back yard of the chapter house. Climaxing the evening was the crowning of the Theta Xi Sweet-heart who was flown in from Brooklyn, N. Y. for her coronation as a surprise to her unknowing pinmate.

The house became an old English castle last fall for the formal held in November. Couples entered the house over a drawbridge spanning the sidewalk and front steps.

The present chapter of Theta Xi grew from a local engineering fraternity. Members are looking forward to celebrating their golden anniversary April 9, 1959 with dinners and special activities.

Sororities

Panbel guides campus sororities

... helps to sponsor Greek Week

Panhellenic Council, under the guidance of its advisor, Mrs. Vida Secor Benson, functions to serve and guide Iowa State's eleven social sororities.

One delegate from each sorority, two alumnae members, and the president are the voting members. Ten non-members from other campus organizations also take part in the Panhellenic Council meetings.

In conjunction with Interfraternity Council, this group sponsors the annual Greek Week activities and dance during fall quarter. The council also gives a Panhellenic Banquet for all sorority members of Iowa State and annually publishes a rush handbook.

Phyllis Burrell, president of Panhellenic Council, takes a breather from her duties as she climbs the stairs to her room.

Pledges participate in sorority activities in many ways... these pledges take up the cheering section duties to spur on actives playing in the Phi Delt Powder Bowl.

Junior Panhel sponsors parties for Lutheran Children's Home

The purpose of the Junior Panhellenic Council is to unify the pledge classes of the Panhellenic sororities on campus. Through this organization the girls learn to work together, as well as learning about sorority life and Senior Panhel. One girl is elected from each sorority pledge class to represent her group on the council.

Chocolate Hours, sponsored by this group during winter quarter, help the girls to get better acquainted with other pledge classes in an informal atmosphere.

Junior Panhellenic also sponsors three children's parties at the Lutheran Children's Home. The pledges tell stories, play games, and serve refreshments on three Saturday afternoons.

Anxiously waiting for their names to be called at mail call are these A D Pi's who like to get lots and lots of letters.

*A D Pi's win second in Sor-Dor
... first in Sigma Nu Relays*

The A D Pi's housemother, Mrs. Williams, contemplates how she could go up the stairs between these eager mail readers. Nevertheless, she catches the smiles of the group.

The A D Pi chorus, in good tune for Sor-Dor, came home with the second place sorority trophy in the singing competition.

Another award taken by the A D Pi's for the second year was the intramurals trophy for most points accumulated through winning events and participation. Athletic enthusiasm carried them on to first place in the Sigma Nu Relays.

Recognition of the individual A D Pi in each class with the highest grade point is given each quarter at a scholarship dinner.

Complete redecoration of the downstairs of the house brought many improvements. Rooms were remodeled and made larger, much to the members' satisfaction. Repainting walls in light shades and replacing rugs and furniture completed the new look.

Swimming and playing games preceded a steak fry at the Boy Scout camp near Boone, and dancing under the stars concluded their spring party. At the fall fireside, couples were costumed to represent titles of records they brought.

Dads were given the house on Saturday night of Parents' Weekend while the actives and moms went to hotels for the night.

Mahala Brown ekes past a would-be Theta tackle to score another touchdown and the Alpha Gam's were on their way to championship in the Phi Delt Powder Bowl.

Team co-operation and preparation through early-morning scrimmages led the Alpha Gam's to victory in the Phi Delta Theta Powder Bowl. Not only did the team receive the top award; the best player trophy went to an Alpha Gam.

Serenades by Cardinal Key and Mortar Board preceded the tapping of two Alpha Gam's for Mortar Board. Several other campus honoraries named Alpha Gam's to their membership.

Matching wallpaper and drapes in a gold print were the finishing touch to redecoration of the recreation room in the chapter house.

Santa Claus came to the Christmas fireside. Traditional Christmas decorations put everyone in the holiday spirit for singing familiar carols. At the spring "School Days" party given by the pledges, short dresses, hair ribbons and knee pants were appropriate dress. Couples enjoyed playing games and repeating other phases of their early school days.

These Chi O's get ready to relax for a casual afternoon as they stack up the latest record disks on the record player.

Chi O beauty royalty reigns over many campus functions

The study break finds these Chi O's catching up on magazine articles and the latest fashions. Or maybe it's the campus humor section, do you suppose?

Promoting international relations throughout the year, the Chi O's invited various foreign students to dinner at the house. Continuing in this spirit, the Chi O's sent clothing, gifts and money to Korea for an orphaned school girl. Her charming letters in return gave the house an insight into Korean life.

Chi Omega royalty reigned over campus functions. The Varsity I queen and attendants for Veishea, Homecoming, Varsity I, Navy Ball and Greek Week all wore their "pins of pearls."

Firesides, exchanges, picnics and formals were all on the social calendar. A fluffy white Christmas tree in the living room and glittering gilt stars on the ceilings set a traditional mood for "Carnation Christmas," the annual winter formal. Red Christmas socks filled with novelties and candies were given dates as favors.

Anne Booth, an ISC student, was presented the Chi Omega Social and Civic Service Award for her outstanding work in the social sciences.

lives with Tri Delta's during year*

Sharing a dryer is a great saving on laundry bills, but when it comes to sorting clothes afterwards, the job is not so easy, especially when all white socks look alike.

"Picnic Partners," portraying the discovery about the truth of the Iowa State male ratio, captured a second place title for the Tri Delta's in Varieties.

As the year continued, other memorable events included Parent's Day activities where the moms and dads were honored with a buffet dinner and open house after the Missouri game.

House athletes brought home the second place trophy in the Sigma Nu Relays, after hours of practice and fun.

An international student, Denyse Costa from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, lived with the Tri Delta's during her year of study at Iowa State. Exchanging ideas and customs between Brazil and the United States proved enriching to all.

A long-standing Tri Delta tradition is the Christmas formal in December. An old-fashioned Christmas atmosphere was set by frosty, gay decorations. Uniquely-decorated hats were the required admission to "Madhatter's Fireside," given by pledges winter quarter. Hanging Japanese lanterns lighted tables in the sunken garden for the romantic spring dessert party.

Piping hot popcorn pushes its way out from under the lid, as these D Z's salt and butter the kernels for a spread.

Veishea was a happy time for the D Z's — their president was tapped for Mortar Board and their float earned the second-prize sorority parade trophy. Carrying out the theme of France, the entry was a sophisticated black poodle with a jaunty beret and movable limbs.

Preceding the Christmas formal, the D Z's and their dates went to Boone for dinner. The house was festive with pine boughs for the dance, "Holiday in Pine."

The annual winter party, Pasquells' Place, saw the house transformed into an Italian cafe with soft candlelight and checkered tablecloths. For the spring semiformal, "Neptune's Kingdom," an underwater fantasy was created with sea objects and subtle lighting.

Couples took advantage of perfect spring weather later in the year for an informal picnic at Innis Grove.

Bundled up in warm jackets and sipping hot coffee are the Gamma Phi's while starting the construction of their winning Homecoming decoration "Catastrophe" in the sorority division.

Gamma Phi "Sun God" wins first in sororities in Veishea Parade

Mr. Pumpkin has his "innards" removed and a funny smile carved on, as he patiently allows the Gamma Phi's to give him a Halloween facial.

Capturing the top sorority honors of the Veishea parade, the Gamma Phi's were rewarded for the long hours spent on their float of a golden sun god with the motto "Remove Not the Ancient Legends."

Looking back on the year, the Gamma Phi's remember their Valentine winter formal where gay decorations of abstract heart shapes hanging from the ceiling, and modernistic playing cards representing the king and queen of hearts created festivity for the occasion.

Spring social life included a formal, "Azurte," given by the pledge class. Azure mobiles sparkling under the lights set a romantic mood.

Before Mom Dahl, Gamma Phi housemother, sailed for her Hawaiian vacation, an Aloha party was given in her honor.

Pledge life at the Gamma Phi's included a night when the actives moved out and pledges took over the house for a preview of sorority life. The pledges repainted the telephone booths and varnished pine name signs for various rooms to say a non-verbal thanks to their actives.

Summertime found several Gamma Phi's working in the summer camps for underprivileged children owned and operated by Gamma Phi Beta in both Colorado and Canada.

line first in Veishea canoe races*

A few minutes before dinner and a group of Theta's gather around the living room piano for some of their favorite "fun" songs and an exchange of the day's occurrences.

Celebrating a decade of chapter life on the Iowa State campus, the Theta's this year enjoyed a remodeled chapter room and recently-landscaped backyard.

Mothers and fathers of Theta's received special recognition on their days. Moms stayed with their daughters on Mom's Day in the spring. Dads escorted their daughters to a football game on Dad's Day in the fall and afterwards took over the house while daughters stayed elsewhere.

The Theta's found their places in many campus activities. First across the finish line in the Veishea canoe race was the enthusiastic Theta team. House entrants won second place in spring intramurals. "Y" and Freshman Home Economics Club were led by Theta's. Two girls were selected as Bomb Beauties.

Different faculty members came each Sunday to the house as special dinner guests.

Other social events found the Theta's at the Kirkwood Hotel in Des Moines for their spring formal. Guests at the fall hobo party came in appropriate costumes.

The camera peeks over the shoulders of these KD's as they take time out for the Homemaker just delivered.

During this centennial year, Kappa Delta actives, pledges and alumnae celebrated the chapter's fiftieth anniversary on the campus. The formal banquet and dance climaxing the mid-century observance had the sorority's national president as a special guest.

Members donned cheery ski sweaters for the fall fireside, a "Swedish Ski Lodge." Colorful braided rugs set the holiday atmosphere. Abstract geometric shapes in many hues decorated the Boone Country Club for the winter formal "Colorama." Perfect spring weather made the backyard party, "Mississippi Mud," given by the pledges, especially remembered.

Through united participation the KD's earned the sorority Dames Daze trophy. They tallied the most points during the week-end that the tables were turned and girls asked out the boys.

Kappa Delta supports work with crippled children's hospitals in Richmond, Va., and Omaha, Neb. Fellowships and loans are available for qualified students in orthopedics and research connected with crippling diseases.

Kappa actives and pledges top sororities in scholarship

These four Kappa's take pride in being hostesses to their dads during Parents' Weekend at the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house.

The Kappa's planned a busy schedule for their dads on Fathers' Weekend, including coke dates, bowling, and a dinner at the Fjord in Huxley. Dads took over the upstairs of the chapter house and at midnight were serenaded by their daughters.

The Kappa's proved their scholastic ability by placing first in scholarship among the sororities and by winning the pledge scholarship trophy. Four Kappa's were tapped for Mortar Board last spring.

But they took time out from studies for campus and social activities. The key and the arrow were emphasized in decorations at the winter formal given with Pi Beta Phi. This Monmoth Duo, first joint party of the two groups, was held at Boone Country Club. Finger painting at the Kappa-Sigma Chi "Anything Goes" spring party brought back childhood memories.

Several weeks before Christmas the Kappa's drew names for secret pals, to whom they gave favors and little gifts until identities were revealed at the Christmas party. Seniors traditionally decorate the Christmas tree for the party behind closed doors; unveiling the tree begins the Christmas festivities at the Kappa house.

All bundled up on a cold fall night are the Pi Phi's as they sing a sorority song during a Phi Psi pinning serenade.

Pi Phi's win Varieties with "Eloise" win first in Sor-Dor

"Eloise," a pantomime portraying the activities of a little girl who lived on the top floor of the Union, won the first night of Varieties for the Pi Phi's and appeared in Vodvil. The Pi Phi Quartette sang for Vodvil and Veisheathon.

The first-place sorority trophy in Sor-Dor repaid hours of diligent practice before the event. The Pi Phi's also took awards for house contributions to Campus Chest, tops over those of any other sorority, and the intramural swimming championship went to Pi Phi mermaids.

Couples danced at the Boone Country Club at the first "Monmouth Duo," winter formal with the Kappa's. A picnic at the chapter house preceded the "Fugiami Farewell" spring formal with a South Sea island theme.

The Pi Phi's responded to the call for Hungarian relief by holding an auction at the house to raise money.

Firesides for the year included the themes, "Around the World," "Mardis Gras," and "Jock Jamboree." Moms and dads were honored on respective weekends at the house.

The auctioneer reaches in her bag of white elephants and pulls out another item to be sold. The Pi Phi's respond to the merriment of the occasion with fantastic price offers.

The Sigma Kappa's find sitting around the fireplace in the chapter room a cozy place to discuss problems and daily events.

The newly remodeled Sigma Kappa house welcomed the active members back this fall with a redecorated living and dining room done in pale yellow and white, and new harmonizing furniture.

Actives and new pledges went to the 4-H Camp near Boone for a fall retreat before school started. Hikes, campfires, singing and a devotional service helped the group to feel closer to one another.

A 15-foot maypole wound with lavender streamers set the mood for their "Legend in Lavender" spring formal. Couples danced to the music of Lee Henningsen and his band at the chapter house.

The Sigma Kappa's sent pajamas and mittens to their national philanthropy at the Maine Seacoast Mission. The American Farm School in Salonika, Greece, received scholarship aid from the national group.

Campus activities kept actives and pledges busy. Membership rolls of Naiettes, Modern Dance Club, Singers and Home Economics Clubs all included Sigma Kappa's.

WRA

*WRA directs dormitory system
... sponsors dorm activities*

"To serve as a representative governing body for the women's halls of Iowa State" is the primary purpose of the WRA Executive Board.

In addition to this main responsibility, the twenty-four girls on the board endeavor to unify the government of the separate dorms, strive to establish standards of dormitory and college life, aid and supervise dorm activities, and act as an advisory board to individual dorms as the occasion arises.

The WRA sponsored a gala Christmas fireside including a tree-lighting ceremony in Dorm Court as one of its many projects during the year.

Helen Davison, president of the WRA, relaxes in her new Linden Hall room with the phone at her fingertips to answer questions about the dorms or executive council.

Barton combines freshman women and graduate students this year

Twenty-two Barton Hall freshmen lead a unique existence with three junior advisors and 45 graduate students. Since the freshmen are concentrated on the same floor, they early developed a close friendship which is reflected in their many spontaneous parties and get-togethers during the year.

A festive Christmas party brightened the holiday season and gave a much-appreciated relief before the push for a freshman's first final week. A Christmas tree glittered in the parlors and snow-covered boughs further carried out the wintry theme.

Birch Hall

"Romantic Spain," the Veishea float entry from Birch Hall, captured top honors in the WRA division. A large Spanish house with three children and a burro frolicking in front was portrayed.

Large sparkling butterflies and bees hanging from the ceiling and gay flowers grouped on the walls created a festive atmosphere at the Birch spring formal, "Fantasy in Springtime." Couples danced to the music of Gerry Asp's Quintette in Oak Hall's reception room.

A winter quarter tea and open house gave parents and friends an opportunity to see the inside workings of a woman's dorm.

Residents observed Dormitory White Breakfast the Sunday before Christmas. Each girl was dressed in white and carried a lighted candle to the dining room as traditional Christmas carols were sung.

Birch Hall was honored by having its president tapped for Mortar Board during Veishea.

These freshman coeds from Birch check over the library in the parlors of the dorm. All Birch trophies are perched on the top shelf of the bookcase.

Elm Hall

Elm's "We Panda Win" takes first in WRA Homecoming decorations

"We Panda Win" earned the first-place trophy for Elm Hall in the WRA division of Homecoming decorations this year. A huge black and white panda bear with a scarlet neck ribbon sat beside toy blocks spelling the motto.

Couples enjoyed a relaxing evening of games, dancing and refreshments at the Elm informal winter fireside scheduled during Dames Daze.

A new custom in Elm, gathering in the parlor each evening before dinner for a time of singing and fellowship, proved successful. Residents plan to make this time a traditional part of Elm Hall life.

Increasing word usage and vocabulary, these Elm Hall women have fun with a game of Scrabble.

Freeman Hall

Veishea Parade float entry wins second in WRA for Freeman

Enthusiastic Freeman women backed a winning WAA basketball intramurals team to a first place victory during winter and spring quarters. Throughout the year participation in the WAA sports kept an overall 60 per cent average in the dorm.

Hard work on the Veishea entry was repaid by the second place trophy awarded Freeman. "The Glory That Was Greece," depicted by the float, fitted into the international theme of the parade.

Corridor parties in Freeman helped the freshmen become better acquainted. Each floor held open house for the rest of the dorm; individual rooms were decorated to carry out a general theme.

The new recreation room, converted from the unused dining room, had continual use. Spreads, parties, studying and relaxation were common.

Freeman girls greeted their new housemother, Mrs. Marguerite Pike, with a fall tea in her honor.

Human statues supported a replica of a Greek temple in Freeman Hall's entry in the 1957 Veishea parade. "The Glory that was Greece" carried out the World Wonderland theme.

East Linden Hall

at winter open house of new dorm*

East Linden joined West Linden early in January for the formal open house of the new dormitory housing over 350 girls. Residents took pride in conducting guests through their newly completed colonial-style dorm.

The large recreation room was opened at "Winter Wonderland," the fall fireside given jointly by East and West Linden. Decorating the hall Christmas tree preceded going to dorm court for lighting the WRA Christmas tree. Couples returned to the wintry scene in the rec room for dancing and refreshments.

East Linden residents found active places in campus affairs. The Homecoming Queen, Kathy Olson, was a resident of the hall.

These East Linden girls utilize the end of this long, long table for studying and reading for their own enjoyment.

West Linden Hall

Girls moving into West Linden fall quarter found a modern dormitory in the final stages of completion. Before long, full closets, colorful curtains and crammed bulletin boards made the new rooms look friendly and "lived in."

Informal open house at Homecoming afforded friends the first official visit to the dorm. Invitations to a formal open house early in January brought visitors from all over campus. After having refreshments in the large dining room, guests visited rooms on the five floor levels in the hall. A full tour was conducted from the comfortable recreation room in the sub-basement to the contemporary lounge on the main floor and individually-decorated rooms on the top floors.

A busy round of exchanges was planned through the year. Dinners, tobogganing, dancing, and playing miniature golf were included as activities on the exchanges.

Oak Hall

Oak takes second in Sor-Dor . . . wins room-decorating contest

Frosted, glimmering decorations created a Christmas fantasyland for the winter formal in Oak Hall's recreation room this year. Also on the social calendar were dinner, football, dance and water-melon exchanges, and teas welcoming new residents to life in Oak Hall.

In the fall each floor held an open house. Hostesses dressed in costumes and decorated their rooms to carry out themes like a circus or travel.

Oak Hall choristers won second place in Sor-Dor competition.

Roberts Hall

Residents of Roberts Hall added several trophies to their collection last year. A whirling cyclone earned the WRA Homecoming decorations trophy. Roberts won the WRA scholarship cup for the freshman dorm with the highest scholastic average.

Diligent practice enabled the girls to win the Sor-Dor trophy for the second year. The Dames Daze trophy, awarded for most points earned by asking out fellows the designated weekend, came to Roberts for the third successive year.

Girls invited their dates to the Sadie Hawkins party during Dames Daze. Residents dressed in typical Dogpatch costumes, provided entertainment and took pictures, which were favors of the evening. Beautiful spring weather made another social gathering, an informal patio party, a remembered event.

The housemother, Mrs. Hall, was honored at a tea during fall quarter. Housemothers from the other residences were special guests.

Welch Hall

Welch captures third in Sor-Dor . . .

Valentine Tea welcomes many visitors

Welch Hall women donned pastel formals for the annual Valentines Day tea and open house held for parents and friends during winter quarter.

Other parties during the year included the "Cotton Ball," a semiformal dance held in the spring. On Halloween the fire-bell clanged and excited women rushed toward exits only to find that the advisors had beckoned them down to a dorm party.

The Welch Sor-Dor entry won third place in the dormitory division. The dorm was further honored by the serenade for Mortar Board preceding the tapping of the dorm's president.

Public Relations Council

...A couple silhouetted against the bandstand...
The annual "November Nocturne" highlighted the fall social season of the Men's Residence Association.

Communication within a living group as large as the MRA depends on careful coordination. Here the staff of the "Reflector" works late into the night to publish their weekly newspaper.

MRA works toward unity and cooperation in guiding largest campus residence group

The Men's Residence Association Council governs the largest group of men students on the campus. This year the council sponsored dancing lessons in the Memorial Union during fall quarter with about 300 participating.

And to take advantage of the new dance steps they had learned, the men sponsored three dances in the Union, "November Nocturne" on November 16, a "Frosty Fling" during winter quarter, and "April Fantasy" spring quarter.

To give the group greater unity and to provide a forum for the discussion of the various problems that arise in the men's houses, a leadership retreat for the house presidents is held annually at the 4-H camp near Boone.

Lights gleam from hundreds of windows as Friley Hall residents study late into the night for mid-terms.

Bennett House takes Class A football and bowling championships

Spinning the wax of the popular tunes, these Bennett House men take time out to drift and dream with music.

Appreciation of "fine" art finds the men keeping their favorite pinups posted for quick observation and approval.

Bennett House men combined with Elm Hall for a pizza party this fall. The fireside was held in Elm, and men ordered the taste-tempting refreshments.

Promoting unity, the men had an all-house dinner in a party room of Friley dining room. Miss Hittle, head dietician, was the guest speaker on the management of the dining hall and kitchen.

Class A championships were awarded to Bennett in both football and bowling. In the spring the men placed first in the track meet.

Beyer's "Li'l Leon" places second in Ugly Man contest for Campus Chest

"Li'l Leon," Beyer House's candidate for Ugly Man on Campus, placed second in the all campus contest held in conjunction with Campus Chest.

Maintaining a sports interest, the Beyer House team won first place in MRA Class C softball.

To add entertainment to their free moments, the men can now use and enjoy a new piano, television set and toboggan, which they purchased this year.

Harmonizing to the music of the guitar, these men get together to blend voices and sing some of the popular songs.

The "Ugly Moose" of the Campus Chest drive haunts Beyer House while his friend helps create his "ugliness."

Caine achieves highest grade point average in Friley one quarter

Many hours of fun and work went into Caine House's Veishea float, "The Land Down Under." Helping on the construction were some Welch Hall girls who participated in a work exchange.

During fall quarter a hayride date party was held, and the winter snows were just right for a toboggan exchange with Birch Hall.

Topping the list on total points-per-man and intramural points spring quarter, men of Caine House claim championships in Class B volleyball and Classes A and D softball.

But in spite of the athletic, social and college activities the Caine House men achieved the highest grade point average in Friley one quarter.

We could say this is a TV classroom, but it looks suspicious. These Caine House men decide that the set looks better on a desk than books, and is much more entertaining.

Cessna

Cessna men take impromptu excursions . . . win two intramural trophies

Impromptu Sunday excursions during spring quarter found Cessna House men and dates driving to such places as the Tama Indian Reservation and to Marshalltown to see a new housing expansion. These excursions have become so popular that more trips are planned this year, including a jaunt to the Grotto in West Bend.

Two championship intramural trophies were added to the Cessna House collection by winning the volleyball championship this fall and placing second in the championship swimming meet.

That sticky process of gluing letters onto Homecoming decorations goes fast with many Cessna men helping out.

"See fellows, I can do it too," says this Cessna House man as he demonstrates the art of ironing a shirt.

Chamberlain takes Class D football championship

... feature "Bones" act in Varieties and Vodvil

The Nevada Country Club was transformed into a spring atmosphere when Chamberlain House presented its annual house party, the "Easter Hop." Music was provided by the Oscar Hall band.

Sports was a field of enthusiasm for the men who succeeded in winning the Class D basketball championship of MRA and placing on the ladder of points-per-man scores.

The "Bones" act which was featured in both Varieties and Veishea Vodvil, was made up of two men from Chamberlain who previewed the other house members on the act by their practices.

House picnics, exchanges, and participation in Veishea and Homecoming rounded out the social calendar for the men.

"Sitting in classes all day just gets a guy out of condition." This man seems to be doing something about the situation.

Converse

Converse hosts Stalnaker Hall of Drake for spring picnic at Ledges

Converse House men played hosts to Stalnaker Hall of Drake University last spring with a picnic held at the Ledges.

But social activities such as exchanges and parties did not take up all the time, for the house placed third in the MRA scholastic standings winter quarter.

This year several men took part in the annual migration to Kansas. And during Homecoming the house constructed decorations showing "Cyclones Rip Kansas."

When a man is elected to a house or campus position he receives a pre-inaugural reception by being thrown in the shower.

"And so can we schedule that exchange for the first Friday night of winter quarter?" asks Converse's social chairman.

Dr. Grant of College Hospital speaks at annual all-house dinner

Dodds House men listened to guest speaker Dr. Grant, College Hospital head, at the annual all-house dinner.

Team and house spirit were encouraged with participation in intramural sports. Dodds House stayed in the running until the quarter finals of Class A football and the semifinals of the Class A volleyball tournament.

Adding a light touch to the year's program of events, exchanges with women's residences and sororities created new friendships and date life. Snow covered hills of the Ames Country Club were the setting for toboggan exchanges this fall.

Looking over the music for a current show, these four men practice together. An ad for the opera "Iolana" remains on the front of the music stand.

Records are a pleasant way to study or dream the time away, especially with just the right vocalist and music.

Fairchild

Fairchild men and dates have a "Final Fling" at Val-Aire before final week

Each week some unsuspecting Fairchild House man receives the "Red Badge of Courage" award which is presented for an unusual deed or event involving the award winner. He wears his badge for the week in appreciation of being chosen for the honor.

House spirit is further strengthened each quarter when the men and dates go to the Val-Air in Des Moines for a "Final Fling" the Saturday before final week.

All-college ventures include the Veishea float, "China Aloft," and the Homecoming display showing Cy whipping the K-State Wildcats.

The Wildcat gets a big "K" painted on his letter sweater, and hopes for defeat tucked inside, as Fairchild prepares for Homecoming.

Franklin

A nippy fall evening provides atmosphere for Franklin House hayride party

Franklin House men arranged a hayride date party last spring and returned to Friley TV Lounge for coffee, cider and doughnuts.

Trying their skill at miniature golf, Franklin men took Welch Hall residents to the golf course for an exchange.

Located on the fourth floor of Friley, the house uses the den for informal activity such as playing cards, reading the several magazines and daily newspapers to which the house subscribes.

Fifty-one men are housed in Franklin, and they meet together each Tuesday night for house-meetings.

A tired but victorious bowling team comes back to relate details of the game to Franklin House men. Bowling leagues, which compete in the Union, provide an opportunity for sports enthusiasts.

Godfrey

Godfrey residents turn athletic

... win in track and bowling

Several Sunday nights during fall quarter the men of Godfrey House gathered in the den for hot popcorn and cider. During the informal parties the men could watch programs on the new television set which was purchased this year.

Exchanges were held with various women's residences and a house hayride found the men and dates warmly dressed for the crisp air.

The house won the 880 yard relay in the track meet and placed high in softball and volleyball. Victories also included the Class C and D bowling competition.

These Godfrey students talk casually while gathering around the Coke machine during a study break on a week night.

This student is tacking up another picture on the bulletin board in Godfrey House to make sure no one is left out of the lineup.

A bullfighting scene was the theme of Harriman's "El Toro" Veishea float. It depicted a bull charging a bullfighter, a pert lady, with the amphitheater as the background. Harriman also won the all-college Veishea Canoe Races.

The men had a dessert exchange with Birch Hall during Freshmen Days, and an exchange with Roberts Hall at the Ledges. An exchange with the Drake Town Girls gave an occasion for dancing, games, and impromptu skits. And not to be forgotten is the fact that Harriman ranked highest in scholarship both winter and spring quarters.

"But, he just followed me home, so we'll just have to let him be a member of Harriman House," says the pooch's friend.

Kimball

Kimball House "promoters" back football team, bring Pizza House across street

Kimballites proudly took home the third place Veishea float trophy of MRA with their float based on the Americans and Mohammedans teaching their children of religion. Centered about the idea that men around the world believe in a supreme being, the scene was set in front of an open Bible.

A vote of confidence before the Oklahoma football game came from Kimball house when the men built a large sign on the front lawn of Friley reading: "Whether winners or losers you might be, you're still the team for ISC."

Several of the men from Kimball House claim the distinction of being instrumental in the promotion of pizza on the ISC campus by helping plant the idea of a need for a pizza house in "Dogtown" in the minds of businessmen.

Off for a nightly shower, this surprised student wishes he hadn't run into the photographer.

Knapp

Knapp House unity brings football trophy, builds float at zero hour

Bridge enthusiasts and kibitzers find themselves attracted to the card table placed too-conveniently in the house lounge.

Finals have a way of creeping into an otherwise peaceful year and now and then you have to struggle to keep your eyes open for an all-night "study marathon."

Lack of storage and construction space made it necessary for Knapp House men to unite and construct their Veishea float in the last 48 hours before the parade. The large blue and white structure was built to the theme of "NATO Defends Europe."

Athletic ability led the house to co-championship victory in the MRA football competition. Using sports in their exchanges with dorms and sororities, the men took their guests bowling, on a football exchange or tobogganing at the Country Club.

The Christmas season in Knapp House included a date party in the TV Room.

Lange

Lange House captures trophies for both Veishea and Homecoming decorations

About the time of graduation each quarter, you might see Lange House men transporting the unlucky seniors to the Union fountain where they receive their "cold" farewell.

The house united to take first place in the MRA division with their Veishea float built on the Olympic theme, and the Homecoming prime trophy with their display of "Cyclone Sends Wildcat Spinning."

During the summer months Lange housed women students who learned what life was like in Friley. Remnants of black footprints were painted up one wall, across the ceiling and down the opposite wall, were left in one room.

The main social event for the year was the winter costume ball.

Admiring their newest trophy addition, members of Lange House were rewarded it for their long hours working on Homecoming.

The lounge in Lange House is filled to the brim when it comes time to read the Sunday paper and new magazines.

Lincoln

Festive winter atmosphere backgrounds "Frosty Frolic" party for Lincoln House

"Frosty Frolic" was the theme of Lincoln's winter date party, which was held in the new TV Room. Red crepe paper covered the lights, giving soft light to decorated walls and to the ceiling, almost hidden by balloons. A crepe paper wall divided the room into one part for dancing and one for games.

Lincoln's well-rounded social system included fifteen exchanges and two large date parties. Lincoln also took the Lincoln-Pearson Trophy for having the most dates during Dame's Daze.

The men also turned out for bowling, basketball, and football, and entered two skits in Varieties.

Merry-makers capture and prepare this Lincoln House resident for his fate of a dunking in the shower, which is the usual treat for birthdays, engagements, or other special events.

Lindstrom

Pogo Veishea display

welcomes visitors to Lindstrom

Veishea open house visitors in Lindstrom found a Pogo possum display in the den, drawn by Chuck Watsabaugh. The display included two-foot figures of the animals in the swamp.

Lindstrom House, located on second floor of the south unit, housed women students during the summer sessions for a change in scenery.

The house entered the Homecoming Triumph March this year and helped Birch Hall with its lawn display during a work exchange, which made working hours shorter and more pleasant.

These men from Lindstrom are sketching funny faces in preparation for Halloween with jack-o-lanterns to complete the theme.

One of those favorite school past times for study breaks is playing chess as these Lindstrom men are.

Meeker

Meeker continues tradition . . . wins Homecoming trophy

"Hey alums, get your cat skin coats here!" announced the fourteen-foot Cy in front of Meeker House at Homecoming '57. The men continued their tradition of winning the display trophy . . . this Homecoming marked their third consecutive win.

Social events at Meeker include one all-house date party each quarter. During spring quarter, this was held at a Dude Ranch in Boone.

Meeker House is active in the intramural program, especially in volleyball and basketball. This active house also enjoys athletic exchanges such as horseback riding, miniature golf and bowling.

The fellows decide that working together on an assignment makes time go faster and understanding easier. Large desks in Meeker House are ideal also.

Glue, lumber, skill and patience help create the construction of this miniature building for a class project.

Niles

Niles torch bearers head Triumph March with Lady Godiva theme

Niles House, on the fifth floor of Friley, has had a hand in many of the ISC activities. During the Veishea canoe races the men won distinction—not in winning the race, but in having the only canoe to sink twice during competition.

Lady Godiva rode in manly charm on a white horse through the Triumph March as torch bearers headed the procession.

Christmastime at Niles is a time of varied fun with serenading and trimming of the Christmas tree in the house den.

Other activities for the Niles House men include an annual fall party for the men and their dates, and social exchanges.

Noble

Noble takes college hockey championship in Winter Carnival

He takes a break from studying to get refreshment from the fascinating coke machine which lowers a paper cup and fills it with the ease of a bar-tender.

Who knows — this would-be photographer with his rigged up box may someday be capturing world-shaking events instead of the adorned walls of Friley Hall.

The men of Noble House gained honor during the sports year by winning the all-college hockey championship in the Winter Carnival. The house also took time out for social life such as their annual steak fry and freshman watermelon bust.

Many enjoyable hours were also spent in the house den, redecorated this year with modern furniture. The men use the den for leisurely games of cards, gab sessions, and studying during quiet hours.

Pearson initiates "Big Brother" system for new houses in Helser

Party games played by the "mates aboard" provided entertainment for the Pearson House spring date party, held in the Friley-Hughes T.V. Room. Dancing was also on the agenda.

Spring activities included construction of Pearson's exotic Veishea float . . . "The Prince and His Harem" complete with lovely ladies representing several campus sororities.

As an indication of Pearson's intramural successes, the house acquired the MRA Class A bowling trophy, the points-per-man trophy, and the total points award.

The Pearson men initiated the big brother system with Halstead House, an indication of their "helping hand" extended to the new houses in Helser Hall.

This Pearson House resident has the job of keeping track of bids and payments for the conglomeration of items which fill his room.

"Going once! Going twice! Sold to the man in the grey sweatshirt for sixteen cents!" The men of Pearson get rid of excess belongings with a house auction.

Pearson

Spinney

Spinney's "A Peak at Australia" wins second in MRA in Veisbea Parade

Spinney House took second place in the men's dormitory division with its Veisea Float dubbed "A Peek at Australia." The float was decorated as a large map of Australia. A kangaroo carrying a live baby in its pouch, a koala bear, and other Australian animals were on the map. The house also worked up a display for Homecoming featuring "Peanuts at the Football Game."

The house had several exchanges — among them were football exchanges with Sigma Kappa and Barton Hall. The Spinney bowling team took third place in the pro league, while the volleyball team went to the finals. The Spinney men still found time to lead Friley in scholarship winter quarter.

The tape recorder proves an invaluable instrument for the Spinney House men when it comes to surprise recordings or taping a current play, radio show, or records.

Stange

Seniors get Union fountain dunking before June graduation

Stange House residents have a dunking in Union fountain to look forward to before they graduate . . . underclassmen see that every senior passes this test. Another tradition is the house stag party held each fall to have fun together before settling down to a year of studying.

Cy washed symbolic wild cats in a tub and hung them out to dry when Iowa State played Kansas State for Homecoming — at least according to Stange's lawn display.

These basement residents of Friley Hall also entered every category of intramural competition and ranked high scholastically.

A small working area just isn't adequate for an engineering drawing course, decides a Stange House man.

Studying is so much easier in the den of Stange House where you can relax on chairs and couches — and be responsible for keeping the next fellow awake.

Stanton

Stanton softball team wins MRA Class B championship

St. Nick was among the invited guests of the Stanton House Christmas Party held in the new Friley TV Room. During intermission Santa opened his sack and distributed gifts for the dates.

Stanton men spent many hours on their large Veishea float named "Dogpatch," which portrayed the Dogpatch characters of Lil' Abner, and one live pig! Sportswise, the men gained recognition by becoming the Class B softball champs.

Late nights of study are faster and more pleasant when this Stanton House resident curls up in a comfortable chair.

Stevenson

Stevenson rates scholastically, places high in Varieties

Stevenson House residents turn a variety of talents toward their Varieties entries. "SPROTC Patrol" won a second place trophy in 1957 Varieties with a take-off on military training in an inter-planetary age. Their quartet which sang for in-between acts also placed second in the Phi Mu Alpha quartet contest.

Winter quarter brought Stevenson the all-college trophy for scholastic improvement. Perhaps spontaneous snowball fights helped maintain energy for studying.

Talents turned to display and float-building for Homecoming and Veishea. "Cy Turns Wildcatter" pictured a Missouri Wildcat being tossed about atop a tall oil derrick.

"Those darn phone calls just never stop," decides this disgusted student. Phone messages take time, but are really appreciated.

Carpenter wins second-place trophy for Homecoming display

"What is it?" you say. Well, it will soon take shape as these boys from Carpenter House stuff chicken wire.

Still stuffing the sides of this animal, everyone chips in to help finish the Homecoming display in the wee hours of the last Friday morning.

The lawn display of Carpenter House pictured a Cyclone standing beside a real cool cat (seated on an ice-cube), and bore the title "Cyclones Cool Those Wildcats." The originality and craftsmanship of the men brought them the second-place trophy for their colorful display.

The men became familiar with many new faces after their dance exchanges, and date affairs which the house continued throughout the year with a hayride and house party.

In intramural sports, the football team participated in the Class A finals, and volleyball players combined skill and energy to bring the team to Class B finals.

Foster

Foster gets off to good start; captures "march" trophy

Foster House, a new MRA member, got off to a good start in activities by capturing third place in the all-college division of the Homecoming Triumph March. The theme of their entry was "Wildcat Skins for Sale." Men in white union suits portrayed wildcats that had been skinned and girls ran about the crowd selling sacks representing wildcat skins.

During fall quarter the house had four social exchanges and a house dinner party. Foster's fifty-five men represent the average size house in Helsel Hall.

A remnant of Foster House's Homecoming display watches over an after-dinner bridge game—the so-called silent kibitzer.

Three Foster men are laughing about the dormitory phone situation. But, after trying time and again, he got in!

Fulmer

Fulmer, new house, builds flashing Sputnik for Homecoming

Fulmer is a new house in a new dorm with an old and respected name. For over twenty years Prof. Fulmer taught in the biology department, and rose to be assistant to the director of atomic research.

Fulmer House started the school year with a huge exchange with Birch Hall—nearly 150 people were present. The men followed this with another exchange, a dessert-dance with East Linden. During fall quarter, Fulmer won Class C volleyball.

The entire house participated in building a Homecoming display which included a "Sputnik" circling a football. Few will forget the number of blown fuses needed to get the flashing lights on "Sputnik" working correctly!

The first wooden construction begins for Fulmer House's Homecoming display outside Helser Hall amid the autumn leaves. Many hours of work will make this decoration the first for Fulmer House.

Halstead

Fall found fifty-one men moving into the new Halstead House, which was named after a professor of botany at the Iowa Agricultural College from 1885 to 1889.

Halstead men were active in many MRA functions and all-college events. Social events during the fall included a picnic exchange with Gamma Phi Beta sorority at Ledges State Park, and also a house party. But fun also included many spontaneous parties and get-togethers.

"After all, this is what you came to college for" is a familiar phrase which prompts night-long sessions.

The milk and orange drink dispenser is a popular gathering spot in any residence when it's study-break time.

Jones

Jones represented in UMOC contest; active in intramurals

"Ly Ug" represented Jones House this November as he competed for the Campus Chest "Ugly Man On Campus" contest. He wore a costume of pale green and violet and many strange features accounted for his weird appearance.

The house has also organized teams in sports such as volleyball, bowling, swimming and track. The men in this house on the first floor south wing of the new Helser Hall, often use the modernized den for relaxation and fun. They have one disadvantage — standing in the long meal lines of the Friley Hall dining rooms.

It's Saturday and time to clean up the rooms in Jones House. These boys laugh as the trash goes into a dustpan.

These two Jones boys have lots of cleaning left with beds to make and putting the final touch on the dusting and the room.

Larson, Struthers, Watkins, Eno, Schroeder, Pennings, Tunison, Veerdoorn. 5th row: Frank, Carter, Luckstead, Long, Fitzgerald, Isley, Mackey, Coffman, Gard, Brink, Novak.

Livingston

Livingston starts traditions in intramurals and social events

Livingston House was named after an Iowa State graduate, Arnold R. Livingston, an engineering professor in the 1940's and a close friend of the dormitory's namesake, Dean Helser.

Traditions must start somewhere and residents have already established themselves as tough intramural competitors. An ice-cream social in the spring promises to become an annual house event also.

A footless football player carried out Livingston's Homecoming display theme "Let's Defeat Them."

Dancing and small talk in the modern new Helser Conference Room make Friday night exchanges with women's residences very enjoyable.

A card game can be a pretty thought-provoking problem as these Livingston House men show. It's hard to know just what card should be played next.

Louden

Louden residents show spirit in intramurals, Homecoming display

Reaching for the ball in this intramural volleyball game, the Louden House men get a double assist for the first points.

Stiff muscles, united house spirit and hours of fun — these were the rewards the men of Louden House received as they participated in MRA touch football, volleyball and bowling competition.

In celebration of the Homecoming week-end, Louden residents erected a bruised, battered, beaten Kansas State wildcat outside the dining room.

The name of this new MRA house is that of a man who served on the State Board of Regents during construction of the two Friley Hall additions.

Merrill

Merrill has genuine coat of arms of England's Thomas Merrill

An authentic heraldic crest is the symbolic emblem for Merrill House, a new house in Heber Hall beginning to build up tradition.

Although Merrill House is new to the Iowa State campus this year, it has worked hard and diligently to make a name for itself in the MRA and on campus.

Merrill House is probably one of the few independent residences on the ISC campus to have a genuine coat of arms. This was discovered in the Iowa Historical Museum and is the actual one used in Salisbury, England, in the eighteenth century by Thomas Merrill on his legal papers.

The men of Merrill were quite active socially during their first year, having numerous exchanges of both the planned and impromptu variety. The house also participated in 1957 Homecoming.

A bit of spontaneous harmony by a conglomeration of Merrill House musicians serves to brighten a dull evening.

Norman

"Norman Knights" organize combo ... Play in Varieties In-Between-Acts

Located in the central part of Helser, the men of Norman House have been christened by two nicknames. The house is "the showplace of Helser," and the men are the "Norman Knights."

The men of Norman have organized a combo, and were successful in adding to Varieties In-Between-Acts. The men of the house also helped the Gamma Phi's in the preparation of their Veishea skit.

The men installed a TV set in the house den during fall quarter. Their Homecoming display was well done and the men had several exchanges as well as house parties during the year.

House meetings are sometimes sooo interesting that one just can't remember everything with his eyes open. So this Norman House man catches 40 winks while decisions are made without his help.

Richey

Richey wins Campus Chest sweepstakes with 718 points

Richey House, located in Helser Hall, came into being this fall with 40 freshmen and 15 upper-classmen. The large number of freshmen didn't handicap the activities of the house, as proved by their winning Campus Chest Sweepstakes with 718 points. The grand prize was awarded on total house collections per man.

Soon after Christmas vacation the men enjoyed a taffy pull at the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. This was "purchased" at the Campus Chest auction with a portion of their sweepstakes money.

Roommates in Richey House collaborate on a difficult assignment on the theory that what one doesn't know the other one will.

Ducking behind a handy box, this Richey House man doesn't think the picture-taking is as hilarious as his fun-loving roommate.

Stalker

Stalker captures fifth place in MRA scholarship fall quarter

For a new house, Stalker House has come a long way this year. Though over 50% of the men in the house are freshmen, Stalker captured fifth place in MRA scholarship fall quarter. This was in part due to help classes held in the den.

Stalker literally ran away with the first place track trophy in MRA intramurals.

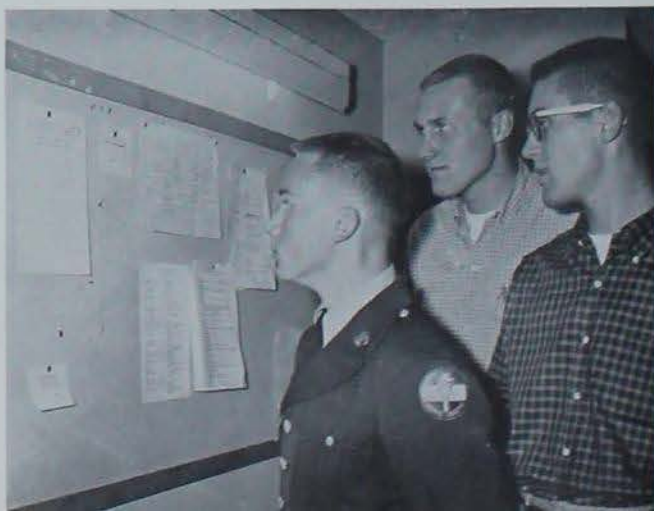

Members of Stalker go to church as a house, and also hold a Bible study group which meets once a week.

Social life for Stalker House has included basketball and dance exchanges and a house party.

Despite pleas for mercy, this Stalker House man is doused in the shower, which is the custom for fun, birthdays or engagements.

Campus and residence news and announcements fill the Stalker House bulletin board to overflowing—but you have to keep up with what's going on.

Woodrow

Named after Dr. Woodrow of Physics

... Places 4th in Homecoming Triumphal March

Named for Dr. J. W. Woodrow, head of Iowa State's Physics Department from 1930 to 1947, this new house has proved itself one of the most active in the MRA.

Socially, the men of Woodrow have had several exchanges each quarter, as well as a house Christmas party in the Westgate lounge and a house date party during winter quarter.

Their entry placed 4th in the Homecoming Triumphal March, and in intramurals the house had teams entered in most of the intramural sport activities. They participated in football, bowling, and the MRA ping-pong tournament. Their volleyball team hit a snag during fall quarter and didn't win a game during the season. They lost out in dual track by a one-point margin.

Measuring off areas for engineering drawing, this student mentally measures the time it will take him to complete the long assignment.

Baker

Men of Baker move into Westgate ... Participate in intramurals and exchanges

"I'll be just a minute." But by the looks of this comfortably situated Baker House resident, the talk will probably go on for hours.

This six-handed version of a popular song promises to get as much out of a piano as is humanly possible.

Although Baker House, located in Westgate Hall, is one of the new houses in the MRA this year, it wasted no time getting into campus activities.

Socially, the men of Baker House started off on the right foot by participating in several exchanges. Among these were a picnic exchange with Birch Hall and a date exchange with Freeman Hall during fall quarter. The house continued its social life during winter and spring quarters.

The house's intramural teams also gave the new house recognition, scoring some impressive victories in almost every sport. Outstanding were the house's swimming, bowling and volleyball teams.

1st row: Olson, Bumann, Dana, Butin, Lang, Horak, Hay, Fitzgerald, King, Formanek, Burgess.
 2nd row: Tessitore, Johnson, Meier, Haase, Westcott, Gilbert, Korzendorfer, Johnson, Sharp, Billa, Kolpin. 3rd row: Remer (head resident), Bugenhagen, Campbell (sec-treas.), Case (v.p.), Stringfellow, Chapman, Kouakel, Cameron, Little, Lille, Spyr (pres.).

Boyd

Boyd men organize special rooting section for Iowa State's home football games

Another of the MRA's new houses, the men of Boyd House were oriented to the dorm quite rapidly.

The men of Boyd organized a special rooting section for Iowa State's home football games, and they did an excellent job of backing the Cyclones.

Their intramural teams in bowling and football did quite well. The bowling team tied for the top in the league it was in, and the football team was first in its league. The house placed fifth in MRA intramurals.

They participated in several impromptu exchanges and the Christmas serenade that Westgate men planned.

Staying up late to finish an architecture problem, this Boyd House man brushes in the final strokes on the final copy.

"And . . . And the . . . woman . . ." Sleep creeps up on a relaxed student as he tries to finish a novel due next day.

Griffith

Griffith initiated into MRA by Kimball under "Big Brother" plan

Working under the MRA "big brother" plan, the men of Griffith were informally initiated into the MRA by the men of Kimball House with a picnic during Freshman Days.

The house was active socially, starting out by joining with the rest of Westgate in a work exchange with girls from Welch Hall. This exchange was followed by a house exchange with Birch Hall. Late in fall quarter men of Griffith and their dates took advantage of the first snow fall and held a toboggan party.

In sports, Griffith House residents captured second place in the MRA volleyball tournament.

 2nd row: Ross, Schroeder, Carwell, Lehnertz, Bauer, Eschman, Jacob
 3rd row: Wernimont, Middleton, Boehm, Bindner, Buck, Mikkelsen
 4th row: Turnwall, Goodhue, Baker, Hasenwinkel, Anderson, Askew, Broer.

Sage

Sage-in-Westgate takes part in Triumphal March and intramurals

New to Iowa State this year, Sage House in Westgate was made up primarily of freshmen.

This fact did not hinder the 31 men in the house from developing an interest in Iowa State activities and becoming avid participants.

The Sage's worked hard on their entry for the Triumphal March, and although they didn't win any prizes, they felt that the experience was valuable.

They also participated in intramurals, with football, basketball and swimming receiving their special attention.

Ready to step-out on a date, this Sage resident straighten his tie to perfection with the help of that impossible-and hard-to-get-along-without-mirror.

The campus headache still exists—washing! A laundry bag, an automatic washing machine and a box of Ad soap only add up to washing for this Sage House man.

Alumni Hall

1st row: Meyer, Johnson, Littell, Morgan, Matke, Lusher, Alexander, Plummer (treas.), Mueller.
 2nd row: Roberts, Niemann, Goetze, Matsumiya, Yamamoto, Rayl, Mickle, 3rd row: Ver Ploeg, Wortman, Palk, Meyer, Swindler, Ritchie, Palmer, Scaman, Larson, 4th row: Webster, Wagner, Chapman, Airen (v.p.), Shover, Whitney, Blount, Batchelder, Nicks, Reckler.

Alumni Hall wins Phi Mu Alpha quartet contest

... Takes track and Class C bowling championships

"Dancing in the Clouds" set the theme for Alumni Hall's winter formal which highlighted social activities for this year. A starlit ceiling provided appropriate decorations for the dance, held in the South Ballroom of the Memorial Union. Plush pillows were given as favors to guests at the formal.

Teamwork and enthusiasm paid off for Alumni Hall members in the field of sports this year. They took the track and Class C bowling championships, besides being undefeated in football and sporting an excellent swimming team.

The ping-pong table in the Alumni Hall basement is a popular place and the tapping of balls may be heard most anytime.

1st row: Helgens, Clemow, Cahoy, Hogrefe (pres.), Forsman, Bobiken, Anton, Baker, Karkosh.
 2nd row: Dunn, Lang, Kanev, Fox, Brewer, Boyer, Fitzgerald, Bosworth, K. Lang. 3rd row:
 Griggs, Edmonds, Faas, Everist, Ehrig, Bolte, M. Lang, Eason. 4th row: Doolittle, Brownlee, Gray, Carlson, Klindt, Cook (sec.), Garberding, Carlson, Dunham.

Alumni Hall

Another first place trophy was added to the trophy case when the Alumni Hall quartet won the Phi Mu Alpha quartet contest in the fall. The hall members also participated in Varieties winter quarter doing a take-off on the well-known tedious development of a Varieties skit which won a place in Vodvil.

Among the spring festivities was Alumni Hall's annual tribute to their graduating seniors, held in the form of a banquet at Lloyd's in Marshalltown.

Working on the floor provides the needed space for this Alumni Hall man to sprawl out the architectural or engineering project for study.

Lyon Hall

... Take over Lyon for first time*

Overcrowded conditions in the MRA sent men over to the feminine side of the campus for the first time in ISC history.

Lyon Hall residents made a good showing in the MRA bowling league fall quarter and looked forward to even greater intramural successes. "The atmosphere is wonderful," say the intruders on Dorm Court as they find social life far from dull.

1st row: Gorden, Tallman (v.p.), Kelzer, Ehredt (pres.), Mrs. Wilmarth (residence director), Kemper (head resident), Vivado, Eastman. 2nd row: Hammer, Cordero, Strahorn, Barsky, Jennings, Mardorf, Kim, McDowell. 3rd row: Schulze (pres.), Soderberg (sec.), Burk, Johnston, Olson, Solberg, Scott (treas.).

Jim Willis presides over the men of the Ward System who live off campus in boarding houses, private homes and apartments, enjoying an economical way of life.

Wards

Ward Council governs Ward System of men living off campus

The Ward System was established to provide means of participation and recreation in campus activities for unaffiliated men living off campus. Through this organization these men are represented in the student governing body.

Each fall the Ward System sponsors a "Fall Round-Up" in cooperation with the women's dorms. The dorms open their doors to the men for an evening of entertainment, refreshments, and a dance to get acquainted.

Ward Council

Problems concerning the Ward System are discussed at Ward Council meetings. These are unique with the scattered living conditions—deal with unity, parking, etc.

Ward System coordinates activities among scattered residents

The problems of coordinating activities among the scattered residents are discussed during a quarterly retreat.

Individual wards have their own social functions such as hayrides and exchanges, and several times during the year the entire Ward System sponsors social get-togethers. An annual "Winter Surprise" dance or party is held each winter quarter.

Spring quarter brings a semi-formal all-ward dance and the honors banquet at which scholarships and intramural trophies are awarded to eligible recipients.

Contacting ward members for meetings and social functions is no small job for the men who work on publicity and public relations.

Kay Ressler and George Kriz admire Ward System scholarship awards which they have just received. Advisor Max Epstein and alumnus Bob Lindsay wait to give their congratulations.

Ward members display the nautical skill with which Zeta Ward swept the men's division of the Veishea Canoe Races.

Dog Town, familiar to every Iowa State student, has even greater significance for the Ward student who often visits it three times a day for meals and walks its streets between home and class.
