SYMBOL OF GROWTH

GROWTH

As the stars tumble through the skies, so students pass through a large university. Some 3,500 of us come each year, linger awhile, and leave by our separate ways.

But the University is more than a universe to contain our wanderings, it is a force which acts upon us. It is an important force, for it is acting on us at a vital time — a time of growth.

We come to the University with physical features determined. But our growth has barely started. During the years we spend at a university we grow in more important ways — expanding our intellect, developing our emotions, making the decisions which decide how we will live life.

SCIENCE WITH PRACTICE

KNOWLEDGE

Our most obvious growth is in knowledge. It is the reason the University exists, and it is the reason we come. Most of us are serious, some affixed, in pursuit of knowledge. We pursue it variously, in the depths of night and solitude, in huge crowds, in intense groups.

In this pursuit, we amass facts. We learn the facts it takes to be an engineer or agricultural specialist, in the old traditions of the University; or a historian or English teacher, in its ever-broadening horizons.

The University gives us knowledge more important, less transitory, than mere facts. It gives us the knowledge of the power of knowledge, and knowledge of how to acquire knowledge, perhaps knowledge of the love of knowledge.

These things become a part of us. They will remain even when the facts fade. Such is our growth.

SOLITUDE

PERSONALITY

Even outside its classrooms, the University nurtures our growth. It offers endless opportunities and varied associations. These opportunities and associations mold us into the persons we will be.

We develop our attitudes in discussions with friends, and in contacts with kinds of people foreign to our experience. We strive toward leadership in elaborate activities. In any season, we may meet the person we will marry, or, sometimes as important, the ones we will not. These are inevitable parts of our growth.

IDEAS

ACTIVITIES

THE SEASONS

ROMANCE

CULTURE

“University” derives from universitas, the whole. The University bids us to complete our whole, bringing important lecturers and an array of artists performing everything from ballet to Don Giovanni.

Many, not all, of us take this opportunity, listen to the lecturers, watch the artists, and learn. We learn even more in our first imitations of these artists. We try modern dance, the theater, book reviews, world issues.

We make our contacts with culture. We develop some of the tastes, and more important, the understandings, it represents. This does not complete the whole of our growth, but it starts us seeking it.

A new class begins the struggle to learn the complex elements of education—observation, thought, self-government

MORTAR BOARD conducted a candlelight induction ceremony in dorm court for new women.

TONS OF clothing, books, supplies, and other "things" enter residences each fall, toted by students and patient fathers. This freshman woman in front of Birch Hall reflects the excitement of the first day.

*Activities, studies vie for time
as we eagerly embrace the whole of Iowa State*

THE MEMORIAL UNION is reflected in Lake LaVerne, giving an eerie, rippled look to the leafless trees and smooth stones of the building which anchors the southern edge of campus.

TRANQUIL Lake LaVerne is the center for Veishea canoe enthusiasts, and a local dunking place for graduating seniors.

The campus once again burst into life early in September as students flowed into Ames. The largest freshman class in recent years hailed the success of an active summer orientation program. New looks on campus included the start of a library wing, a Service Building wing, and partially or completely remodeled residences. A handmade telescope twenty-four inches in diameter was donated to the university. Over 9,700 students smiled at the birdie as photo identification cards became a permanent part of Iowa State. Women's hours were extended thirty minutes on three week nights. Iowa State student Tom Kenworthy spearheaded a drive to allow students to vote in Ames, but his petition and court appeals were not successful. William Hartmann was one of thirty-two students in the nation to be selected a Rhodes Scholar to study at Oxford University in England. He is the second Iowa State student to receive this two-year scholarship. A new stadium arrangement made it possible for students to sit with their parents at home games. KMRI started operating with a new radio transmitter, and Station A became the Iowa State University Station post office. Another year, like other years but different, was off to a fresh start holding the promise of new goals to reach and new honors to win.

MALE STUDENTS recognize the excellent "scouting" facilities provided by the flight of steps in front of Botany Hall. These men nonchalantly continue the old custom on the time-worn steps.

A SYMBOL of tradition and a time-piece for the campus, the carillon is played each morning and afternoon by music professor Ira Schroeder.

THE MEMORIAL UNION fountain is another campus tradition. Nancy Longworth and Don Scott stop beside it awhile on a typical warm fall afternoon.

Homecoming 1960—Crowds throng to see clever residence displays, a bruising battle with Colorado

A stadium-bursting crowd capped the Homecoming Week end festivities. Good weather meant high attendance at all events by students, parents, and faculty. The presentation of Joyce Rice as Homecoming Queen highlighted the Pep Barbecue on Friday evening. The Pep Rally followed in the Armory parking lot. A huge fire, faculty cheerleaders, and speaker Harold Nichols channeled all energies for a rousing Cyclone victory over the invading Colorado Buffalo. The Dukes of Dixieland lent a spontaneous and gay atmosphere to the "Jazzboree" later in the evening. Trophies were presented to winning residences in the lawn display competition. Saturday morning was cheerfully bright as the campus filled with visitors. An alumni luncheon attracted many graduates. Cy's favorite alum, H. R. Hilstrom, '34, was presented at the Pep Rally. He appeared at other Homecoming events as an enthusiastic booster of Cyclone hopes. But an aggressive Colorado team dealt Iowa State a loss on the football field Saturday afternoon and students trudged off to classes Monday morning on schedule. The Homecoming dance on Saturday evening featured the dance music of Ralph Marterie.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity swept up honors in lawn display competition with a first in fraternity. Other winners in order were Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta in fraternity; Stevenson House and Pearson House in Men's Residence Association; West Linden and Elm Hall in Women's Residence Association; and Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa in sorority. Sore muscles and calluses were the only reward for many tired students. But Chi Omega sorority awarded their Purple Shaft trophy to brighten the outlook of Delta Upsilon fraternity construction workers. Cars full of local residents and visitors clogged the streets of university residences as sightseers viewed the results of all-night work sessions and thrice-drawn display plans. Younger onlookers returned Sunday to collect souvenir items from displays.

Baton champion Joyce Rice reigns as Homecoming Queen; cheering fans never give up Cyclone spirit

THE TWIRLING LIGHT of Joyce Rice's flaming batons was another special feature on the full Friday evening program.

Building enthusiasm and interest in the Homecoming game was a task delegated to many. After interviews, teas, and an all-university election, Joyce Rice was crowned for the week end reign. Her talents as a representative of Iowa State were extended as she captivated the audience with a dazzling array of stunts involving precise movement of a fire baton. Equally sincere in spirit was Professor Wayne Scholtes, but the means of expression were different. Cheering with hands, face, and voice, he was a sparkplug of Cyclone enthusiasm at the Pep Rally. Fans found added fun and excitement when the Dukes of Dixieland exhibited their playing proficiency at the "Jazzboree" on Friday evening.

THE BRANKO KRSMANOVICH Yugoslav Chorus, composed of university students from Belgrade, delighted an Iowa State audience with its energetic and colorful performance.

AS PART OF THE Artist Concert Series, the Goldovsky Grand Opera Company presented "Don Giovanni" on November 13.

ACCORDIONIST Betsy Ann McCall played the "Sabre Dance" for the Fred Waring Festival.

Artists bring creative culture to this academic atmosphere

FRED WARING AND HIS well-known Pennsylvanians were the popular choice among students early winter quarter. A relaxed atmosphere was apparent throughout the Festival.

WEAVING ONE of his famous moods, Dave Brubeck captivated Iowa Staters one week end in November.

THESE OLD-STYLE TRUMPETS were part of the annual fall concert "Club 2000," modeled after the Boston Pops Symphony concerts. Great Hall featured a night club atmosphere.

*Wide range of activities, talent occupy campus
as Activities Carnival and entertainers fill calendar*

WHIRLING SKIRTS denote another Promenaders get-together for square dancing and active fun. This session was at the Activities Carnival in the Memorial Union.

Enthusiastic student audiences applauded fine performances of professional and student talent at fall concerts. Both Faculty Concerts and "Town and Gown" Concerts provided the Iowa State community with a varied program of music and drama. The exciting presentation by the Yugoslav Chorus thrilled an audience of student and faculty members. The opera cast made the best of Armory facilities in a convincing portrayal of "Don Giovanni." Outside artists included Dave Brubeck and Fred Waring who delighted their audiences with mood melodies and old favorites. Local contributions were made by musicians at Club 2000. Iowa State Players, the Iowa State Symphony Orchestra, and Promenaders provided other outlets for student energies. The Iowa State Theatre also provided stimulus for creative drama and practice in the communication of feeling. Activities Carnival gave students the chance to look into many such campus groups.

Fall quarter ends in a whirl of events—victory over Sooners, Women's Day, and final exams

THE OUTSTANDING senior woman was Judy Sickles, president of Oak Hall. She spoke at the Women's Day Banquet honoring 165 campus woman leaders.

The end of fall quarter was full and busy for students and their favorite fans, their parents. Exams, term projects, Parents' Day, "Harvest Ball," Women's Day, the MRA fall dance, and a free morning after the Oklahoma victory were packed into November's three academic weeks. The stadium was crammed with excited students and parents the first week end of the month. For the first time since 1931, the Cyclones defeated the Sooners from Oklahoma. The goal posts at both ends of the field fell under the weight of jubilant fans as the 10-6 score went into the record books. Judy Sickles graciously filled the position of outstanding senior woman, replacing the traditional Women's Day president position. She was chosen in an election by senior women. But even a football victory over Oklahoma can not stop exams. They came with their usual crushing finality, and fall quarter ended at graduation.

THESE HAPPY parents mirror the fun and bustle of Parents' Day featuring the Oklahoma game, special programs, portable radios, warm blankets, and extra jackets.

IOWA STATE SINGERS heralded the beginning of the season.

*Campus reflects Christmas spirit
as traditional festivities signal start of holiday season*

The traditionally beautiful Christmas Tree lighting ceremony opened winter quarter. A holiday glow covered the campus as the tree was lighted and the Iowa State Singers caroled from the steps of Beardshear Hall. Shivers of delight brought smiles to the faces of those attending as the cheerful lyrics bounced back at them from Curtiss Hall across the Central campus. Other holiday festivities included the "Christmas Ball" in the Memorial Union Combined Ballrooms. Bright decorations and seasonal themes appeared in residences, eating places, stores, administrative offices, classrooms, and on Lincoln Way. But the very best present of all occurred as classes terminated December 16 for vacation. Students emptied out of Ames in the direction of home, friends, holiday fun, and Mother's good cooking.

THE ANNUAL Christmas Ball brightened the pre-holiday week end with seasonal decorations and the music of Si Zenter's band.

THE HUGE TREE frosted with colored lights is one of the holiday traditions for students and faculty. The tree was lighted on November 30, the first evening of winter quarter.

Christmas Music Festival sets seasonal mood with the glad and joyous sounds of music

MODERN DANCE CLUB members and all the choral groups combined for "Rise Up Shepherd an' Foller" at the well-attended and popular Christmas Festival of Music presented December 11.

ONLY THE EARLIEST arrivals saw an expanse of empty Armory seats before the thrilling, exhilarating Christmas Festival.

EACH PERFORMANCE was so crowded the ushers had to pack spectators together so that everyone would have a seat.

MEMBERS OF Modern Dance Club and crew coordinated lighting angles and interpretations in an effective performance.

The thrill of the Christmas story set to music awakened once again in the crowds which annually pack the Armory during the Christmas Festival of Music. The happiness of the season spreads from the singers to the listeners, from one tired face to another. There is something special in the program to stimulate children, their parents, and their grandparents. First Ira Schroeder played traditional carols on the Stanton Memorial Carillon. Then the Department of Music combined efforts with Modern Dance Club and members of the tableaux cast to present an unforgettable interpretation of the spirit of Christmas. Finally everyone got in on the act. The Armory rang as the audience sang "The First Noel" and "Joy to the World." The atmosphere of magic transported listeners to a light-hearted world far from the Iowa State campus.

REALISTIC COSTUMES enhanced the role of the shepherd boys, a part of the Christmas story wherever it has been told.

FROST CURLED the sharp edges of this oak leaf, giving an early warning that winter was on its way.

SOME MODES of transportation were rendered useless during the rapid weather changes late in the season.

LATE WINTER STORMS meant extra work for the winter-weary clean-up crews. Men and tractors battled ice and snow for long hours to keep the campus cleared of fallen debris.

MARY ELLEN SHAWHAN and a classmate struggle against the wind while making the cold crossing between Beardshear and Curtiss halls. In bad weather the trek is a hopeless task.

*Ice storm freezes campus
into a shivering, shimmering frozen realm of wonder*

Winter quarter was ushered out by the worst ice storm in recent years. Tiny, glistening icicles clung to wires, roofs, grill work, and tree trunks. When the sun struck the thick ice coat on every exposed surface, the resulting brilliance was nearly blinding. The whole campus gleamed under the paralyzing, unyielding ice. But the frozen beauty was something else to those who needed to move about during and after the treacherous storm. Many off-campus residences were without electricity or phone service for hours. Sheets of ice covered cars so completely that owners first had to chip the ice off locks and then worry about whether the engine would still respond to the starter. Students slid to destinations, hopefully nursing the dream of not falling down or tripping.

A GLITTERY fairyland of sparkling ice and soft creaking sounds were fascinating elements of the worst ice storm in Ames in recent years.

Graham, Meyer, Starbuck, Walsh chosen beauties by Harlan Miller

The Bomb Beauties for 1961 were selected by Harlan Miller, columnist for the Des Moines Register and an Iowa State graduate. The four Bomb Beauties were chosen from black and white photographs of the eight finalists submitted to Mr. Miller. Originally each residence nominated a candidate for the honor. After a series of teas the women on the following pages were chosen for their grace, poise, sincerity, and personality. As Bomb Beauties they are ambassadors for the women of Iowa State to all who see them. The 1961 Bomb Beauties were first presented at the sweepstakes Varieties performance February 10.

HARLAN MILLER, columnist for the Des Moines Register, selected the Iowa State University 1961 Bomb Beauties.

MARY ELLEN WALSH, Roberta Meyer, Leslie Graham, and Nancy Starbuck survived the judging at the teas and by picture and were introduced to Iowa State at the last Varieties performance.

Married students work together to raise families and earn degrees

THE URIA MARINOV FAMILY, Uria, Ihla, and Ora, sandwich in some time for just being a family while Uria is studying for his degree in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Nearly one-fifth of Iowa State's student population combine the job of home and family with the job of earning either an undergraduate or a graduate degree. Assistantships, loans, fellowships, and an assortment of part time jobs for both husbands and wives keep these student families together. Approximately half the couples live in university housing. Pammel Court with 801 units and Hawthorn Court with 196 units house a total of 812 and 165 students respectively. Other families find housing in Ames or buy trailers. Some commute from nearby towns. The married students are their own biggest advocates. They say studying is easier. And they emphasize the security of facing life together.

MRS. THOMAS PATAKY concentrates on that all important feeding. Between feedings for her daughter, Marja, and her husband, Mrs. Pataky is working towards her own degree.

Campus Chest Blast results in a riot of color, activity, fun, laughter, and many more dollars for charity

WITH HARDLY A PAUSE, the Blast swung from the uproar and confusion of building booths to the more serious job of earning money through entertainment for the Campus Chest drive.

PAUL CLARK is the "brains" behind "Caine's Brain" which challenged all comers to a game of tic tac toe at the Blast.

To no particular tune at all, the Campus Chest Blast busied itself with the task of raising nickels, dimes, and quarters for student-selected charities. The annual drive for money was concentrated into a three-day span this year. The legs contest and the Theta Xi pancake supper were some of the familiar gimmicks. Other things were new, such as the "Thing" contest. Thirty residences pounded and pasted together seventeen booths in the Combined Ballrooms of the Memorial Union. And then the entertainment began. Whatever it was that pleased your fancy, someone was right there with a booth full of fun for every participant.

INDIVIDUALLY and in groups, the members cooperate to attain a mood.

Meaningful activities outside of the classrooms extend the learning processes for both students and faculty. Through the work of selection, practice, and polishing, participants learn the price of a successful performance. The foundations of appreciation are laid when a personal effort is made to duplicate an emotion or feeling for the benefit of other people. The successful expression of self comes only after hours of practice, whatever form of interpretation is used. These expressive skills include movement to music, an ability with instruments, and a feeling of the legitimate theater.

THE MEMBERS of Concert Band gave programs during the year with some selections to please all listeners.

STUDENTS IN Iowa State Players spend hours polishing performances to make a significant contribution to the varied aspects of university events. In February Players gave "Come Back, Little Sheba."

GOYA AND MATTEO presented a dance program in February. They were sponsored by the Indian Student Association.

*A pause, a moment alone
creeps into the busy schedule of student activity*

Student life is a complex form of existence which revolves around the assimilation of knowledge. Lectures, problems, and books show the way. Professors are near to encourage the growth of the new ideas. But the student must spend some time alone in order to sort out all the conflicting ideas and theories which are thrown at him to stimulate his thinking. And then more time must be spent discussing these thoughts before meaningful conclusions are reached or difficult decisions are acted upon.

The 1961 festival of fine arts, Focus, displayed current significant works. Among the exhibits were original engravings, etchings, lithographs, and woodcuts from the private collection of John Huseby. A photography show entitled "The Doors of San Miguel," and a native Mexican weaving exhibit were displayed in Shattuck Theatre. Winter quarter Varieties ended with a final performance of the winning skits and flash acts from previous evenings. Delta Sigma Phi with "Brother Ephraim" won sweepstakes honors. A colorful trio of Sigma Phi Epsilon pledges sang their way to the Flash Acts sweepstakes. Other weekly winners were a lively "Alice" presented by Pi Beta Phi, East Linden's beautiful "Blue Willow Plates," and a Phi Delta Theta version of "Mack the Knife."

THE STEPHENS COLLEGE Orchestra Group directed by Harriett Ann Gray staged a dance concert and demonstration.

Gimer, Loper elected after colorful antics of nominating convention

Running against the favorite son candidates of "Linus" and other real or imaginary figures, Dick Gimer and Dan Loper came out ahead in the all-university elections. They won with a margin of more than three to one as 2,803 people cast ballots. The write-in slate of Max Gross and Ted Leffler caused a stir as they campaigned actively the day before the elections. The poster-covered walls of many residences and classroom buildings told the congested tale of who was running for what. Winners took office in March.

THESE ORDERLY CHAIRS and residence signs soon exploded into the activity of nominating candidates for the offices of Iowa State student body president and vice-president.

CAUCUSES ARE THE KEY to a successful campaign for the nomination. Ken Cargill confers with graduate students before preparing the speech for his final bid.

Amid torrents of rain and hail, Veishea got a dripping start on Thursday with tapping, Veisheathon, and the Sweatshirt Ball. In spite of the dampness, nearly 900 prospective Iowa State students took time off from high school classes to roam the wet campus with bright spirits and good appetites. The annual Career Day program highlighted the academic side of college life for the chilled visitors. University students used Friday frantically to finish and repair storm-damaged floats. Concession booths appeared on campus as rapidly as late-blooming flowers. And the spring snows totaling six to seven truck-loads of hotdog papers, cold drink cups, events programs, and candy wrappers left by hurrying sightseers drifted into unsightly piles around central campus.

VEISHEA

POURING RAIN and sidewalks full of puddles greeted these people in raincoats as they streamed out of Gold Star Hall.

*Neither wind nor rain nor hail could halt
the forward-rolling wheels of Veishea
as opening events got under way*

A FORMER IOWA STATER, Colonel Harold Dye officially opened Veishea at Veisheathon Thursday evening in the Armory.

A busy Thursday afternoon and evening was climaxed with the presentation of Barbara Kurtz as the 1960 Veishea Queen of Queens. Earlier in the day Mortar Board and Cardinal Key held tapping ceremonies in Great Hall. A water skiing exhibition and 200 Veishea canoe race entries resulted in a splashing victory for the Welch Hall team dressed as the butcher, the baker, and the candle-stick maker. Dwight Nichols, captain of the "Dirty 30," received the Athlete-of-the-Year award from Pep Council. A former Iowa Stater, Colonel Harold Dye, was the Veisheathon speaker and the 1960 Veishea Parade marshal. Scholarships were awarded to high school students during the evening. Over a thousand people braved the damp cold to see the annual Veishea activities get under way in spite of the weather.

AN EXCITED BELINDA THORNE put the black mortar board on the head of Marty Keeney at tapping on Thursday afternoon.

Splashes, smiles brighten a rainy week end full of events and surprises

The variety of Veishea events gave visitors little time for rest or reflection. Career Day tours, open houses, and demonstrations filled most of Friday. The golf and tennis teams had to cancel scheduled games because of rain. The tennis and track teams met their opponents indoors. The weather cleared Saturday morning as over thirty floats completed the traditional Veishea Parade route led by the Queen's float. Phi Delta Theta's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" won the parade sweepstakes. Freeman Hall, Alpha Gamma Delta, Stevenson House, and Delta Sigma Phi were first in residence competition. The sun shone hesitantly.

SPECTATORS of all shapes and sizes squeezed along the parade route Saturday morning as the weather decided to clear up briefly.

GRACIOUS BARB KURTZ, Veishea Queen of Queens, and her attendants, Sharon Case and Jan Peterson, led the 1960 Veishea Parade of chilly bands, drill teams, and flooded floats.

THE COURT JESTERS of the parade were the men of Phi Gamma Delta, who decorated themselves instead of constructing a float.

THE FLOAT OF "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" gave the men of Phi Delta Theta fraternity many sticky fingers, sore backs, and a nice big sweepstakes trophy for the mantle.

WITH LIGHT-HEARTED GAIETY a fifty-student cast rollicked through the SOV show, "Pajama Game."

THE VIBRANT ENTHUSIASM of Carol Zeller, John Ferry, and Carolyn Kirk gave life and sparkle to the show number "Steam Heat" in "Pajama Game" presented at Stars Over Veishea.

Play, SOV, open houses give a variety of entertainment

Cyclone Review on Friday evening spotlighted a seventy-minute variety of entertainment. Students spent over 170 hours in rehearsals for the Stars Over Veishea presentation of "Pajama Game." This is the second year students have produced a Broadway hit. Veterinary Medicine Anatomy won the sweepstakes trophy for open house displays, which featured every aspect of Iowa State curriculum. Iowa State Players presented "The Solid Gold Cadillac" in Curtis Auditorium, providing a cultural balance to the wide variety of Veishea events.

WHAT IS SO HAPPY as a bright day in spring and a fresh smile? The joy and exhilaration of life renewed radiated from all faces as Iowa State came out from under a snowy winter.

Spring brings students to life with spontaneous activities and new energy for fun

Spring quarter elections and late snowstorms covered the campus with drifts of flapping posters and more snow. A mock political convention, the first case for the Supreme Court, and SCORE's march in Des Moines kept students busy. The Olympic wrestling try-outs occupied the Iowa State Athletic Department as United States athletes and coaches poured into Ames. The Board of Regents okayed a seven-dollar tuition increase, several building projects, and new majors in English and Speech, Physical Education for Women, and Modern Languages. Warm weather finally brought out tree buds and soft, new grass.

Students went to classes without coats, studied in the warm sun, and watched big clouds tumble across the welcome blue sky. Their thoughts drifted, blown by the refreshing spring breeze.

TRANSPORTATION BY BICYCLE and studying outdoors are popular springtime activities strongly advocated by Phyllis Peyton as she makes an effort to concentrate on tomorrow's lesson.

THE FRESH NEWNESS of spring is reflected in the crazy antics and cautious attitude of the colts as they discover grass is for eating.

Graduates accept the challenge to make use of knowledge acquired at Iowa State

COMMISSIONS were awarded to graduates who had fulfilled advanced requirements of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The ultimate goal of graduation comes sooner or later for many struggling citizens of the university community. Signaling the end of every quarter, the graduation ceremonies mark the beginning of a new life for students as they leave the academic environment. The traditional caps and gowns, commissions, military uniforms, and "Pomp and Circumstance" usher out the graduates to jobs and advanced schooling. A total of 1,869 degrees were awarded. The 1,053 May graduates and their friends and families attended commencement in the Armory. Ceremonies other quarters were held in the State Gymnasium.

MAY GRADUATES listen carefully for their colleges to be announced.

PRESIDENT HILTON AWARDS his son, James G. Hilton, a Ph.D. degree in economics at graduation ceremonies last spring. Dr. Hilton is now on the staff at North Carolina State College.

President Hilton charts growth of great educational institution

In his eight years as president of Iowa State University, Dr. James H. Hilton has worked constantly for the expansion of the educational facilities of the university. Together with the governor and Board of Regents he plans progressive developments for Iowa State. Nationally known as a capable administrator, Dr. Hilton has a deep interest in fundamental research, has been a successful teacher, and has an intimate knowledge of extension activities.

Business and Finance

Responsible for the pulling of purse-strings for Iowa State is Boyne H. Platt, vice-president in charge of business and finance. He manages all business and physical operations of the university, and is in charge of all gifts and grants to the university and financial aid approved by the State Legislature.

Provost

Provost James H. Jensen could be called the vice-president of Iowa State. He assists the president in academic and general administration of the university. His main interest is the coordination of academic functions. He serves as the presiding officer during the absence of the president. His position requires a concern for present educational needs and a vision of high goals for the future.

Dean of Instruction

W. Robert Parks is dean of instruction, a position created last year. His job concerns methods of instruction, curricula, new educational programs, and off-campus courses. Fulfilling the duties of this office requires foresight as to the curriculum demands of Iowa State's students. New instruction methods mean more efficient learning for the students, and off-campus courses provide a means of education for those who cannot attend classes in Ames.

Registrar

Registrar Arthur M. Gowan is the general supervisor of undergraduate and graduate admissions and records. Applications for admission are submitted to his office. He works with enrollment problems, registration, general curriculum committees, and is secretary of the graduate and general faculties. He is concerned with curricula, commencement, and orientation committees.

Director of Student Affairs

Millard R. Kratochvil, director of student affairs, has the opportunity of working closely with the student body. His two main concerns are the students' extracurricular activities and the enforcement of the regulations of the university. He is in charge of student problems concerning residence groups and student organizations.

AGRICULTURE

The primary challenge of the College of Agriculture is to train farm operators, managers, research workers, and educators in the science of agriculture. This is accomplished through the three curricula which emphasize research with the student taking additional chemistry and mathematics; industry with jobs related to agriculture; and public service which includes education and extension. Today there is an increasing number of opportunities in business and industry. Plant specimens from all over the world are tested at a center connected with the college to see if they have new industrial uses. The effects of radiation on swine are being studied in connection with the Atomic Energy Commission. The results should be useful in determining effects of radiation on human beings.

DR. JOHN MAHLSTEDE of the Horticulture Department, standing, explains nursery methods to Art Hensel and George Fekas. The students are gaining field practice by landscaping a model home which was built on the horticulture farm.

CHEDDAR CHEESE gets turned at a critical point in its production by students in a dairy industry class. Products from such classes are distributed in nearby areas.

DEAN FLOYD ANDRE determines policies of the largest agricultural college in the nation. He also serves as director of the Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service.

A MARE AND HER COLT rest in the warm spring sunlight in the field east of Stange Road. Although mechanization has taken over much of the work of draft horses, saddle horses remain a favorite campus sight.

WORKING ON A drawing project in one of the new sections of the drawing lab is Rich Holaday, a landscape architecture senior. Landscape architecture students study design, construction, planting, and maintenance of all types of sites.

Agriculture College broadens scope through research to solve problems of production, income

Today with highly scientific and specialized farming, agriculture has taken on a new meaning. The Center for Agricultural Adjustment, established in 1957, provides information to help farm families achieve incomes comparable to those received in other occupations and makes available to consumers the benefits of improved technological developments. Agriculture is now a cooperative effort of highly skilled farmers, research workers, educators, and businesses and industries that provide services to farmers and market farm products.

THREE COWS sculptured by Christian Petersen grace the pool at the east wall of the secluded courtyard of the Dairy Industry Building.

OVE MATSSON, agronomy student from Sweden, runs a chemical analysis for the amount of phosphorus in a sample of soil. Research is an important phase of modern agriculture.

ENGINEERING

SURVEYING THE CAMPUS is part of a civil engineering course taken by Stan Lunstrum, background, and Kenneth Johnson.

In the planning stage for the College of Engineering this year were three new curricula. The first of these was in engineering science and was designed for the student wanting a broad engineering education in preparation for research. The second of these plans was in engineering operations and was designed for the technically oriented student interested in application and management rather than science. The third program was in cooperation with the College of Sciences and Humanities and concerned metallurgy and metallurgical engineering. These new curricula will meet the varied interests of students planning to enter the Engineering College. Another new program put into operation this year was a two-year technical institute which trains technicians for the construction, electronics, and mechanical manufacturing industries. This is the only program of its kind in this area of the country.

DR. GEORGE TOWN completes his third year as dean of the College of Engineering, a position in which he guides the education of men for industry and research.

BOB HEDDENS studies translucency of different types of porcelains by passing wedge-shaped strips over a beam of light, marking where the light is last seen, and then measuring translucency.

LEO OTT, A FRESHMAN in electrical engineering, ponders a problem in Drawing and Projection, an engineering graphics course which all engineering students are required to take.

Engineering College meets challenge of progress with new curricula, joint projects

The College of Engineering has the task of training technical engineering experts to meet their obligations to industry and the nation. In its twelve departments, the College of Engineering offers varied programs to meet the needs of its students. This year, joint projects with the College of Veterinary Medicine and the College of Sciences and Humanities offered even more opportunities. A new telescope with a 24-inch reflector, the largest of its kind in this part of the country, was brought to the campus this fall. A biomedical electronics program which provides research and instruction in the application of electronics to problems in veterinary medicine was put into operation this year.

HOLDING THE ATTENTION of Duane Sander is a computer which is used as part of the new biomedical electronics program.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING student Richard Gowen uses an oscilloscope to observe the deflection of a beam of cathode rays.

HOME ECONOMICS

Careers in testing kitchens, dietetics, teaching, journalism and television, fashion design, and many other areas await home economics graduates. Training in this field offers an education for two phases of living—homemaking and a professional career. The freshman year is planned so that the student gets a general understanding and background in both home economics and the liberal arts. In her sophomore year, the student decides on a major and concentrates most of her efforts in this field. An outstanding feature of the College of Home Economics is its Honors Program. It is a flexible program which provides opportunity for students with high academic ability to pursue independent study or research.

PATTERNS OF GLASS and metal characterize the modern lounge in the new wing of MacKay Hall. Students find the lounge a pleasant place to just sit and relax or to study.

APPLIED ART students learn the age-old art of weaving in a craft design course. The department instructs in design and use of materials for the individual, home, and community.

DEAN HELEN LeBARON works closely with faculty and students to provide women in home economics with opportunities for work in such areas as research, industry, and the home.

A CHILD DEVELOPMENT major, Barbara Onken, helps this bundled up tot with his carpentry. Home economics students work with and observe children at the nursery school.

MARILYN CALDERWOOD REPRODUCES an original textile design with the silk screening process. Other examples of this skill hang in the background.

THREE TEXTILES and clothing students use miniature dress forms to drape materials and design dresses. The emphasis in this draping course is on handling different fabrics and finishing techniques.

Home economists pursue variety of new developments

THE CAMPUS GREENHOUSES provide an abundance of subjects as these applied art students do a class assignment.

Students and faculty work closely together in the College of Home Economics. Several committees help to further these relations. The Core Curriculum Committee studies new curriculum ideas while the Dean's Advisory Board meets with Dean Helen LeBaron to solve problems common to faculty and students. A new committee, the Student-Faculty Advisory Committee, was chosen last year to evaluate and plan a new advising system for freshman women which will use upper-class students to assist the faculty advisers.

IDA MAE WALBY prepares to taste a cake that she has baked in a food and nutrition class. These classes acquaint students with principles underlying the selection, preparation, and use of food.

GWEN ARMOUR and Sue Schmidt measure an iron cord in a household equipment class. Home economists who work in this field help to link homemakers with appliance manufacturers.

SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES

For the first time at Iowa State, students will be able to major in modern language, English, and speech. The College of Sciences and Humanities is offering these majors this year along with a major in physical education for women in connection with the Home Economics College. In so doing, the college is fulfilling the "humanities" part of its name. The distributive studies program also in operation is planned for students preparing for law, medicine, radio and television, and high school teaching. Students interested in the humanities find this program well suited to their aims since they can have four minors instead of the usual major and two minors. The other areas of study in the College of Sciences and Humanities include mathematics and the physical sciences, the life sciences, and the social sciences.

DR. JOHN AIKMAN explains the difference between cones from a white pine and cones from a scotch pine to students in a botany class dealing with the classification of plants.

RESEARCH AND experimentation are fundamental to any study of the sciences. Most Iowa State students, regardless of their majors, take chemistry lab courses before graduation.

DEAN RICHARD S. BEAR, who came to Iowa State in 1957 to be head of the College of Sciences and Humanities, will leave to be dean of the Boston University graduate school July 1, 1961.

WITH THE COMBINED efforts of Dr. Delma Harding and Ruth Ohde, a mold is cast in plaster. This is one of the economical teaching aids which was demonstrated in the class in science teaching methods.

College of Sciences and Humanities makes tremendous advances, giving breadth and depth to learning

STUDENTS in a German class listen as their teacher reads aloud. All science students must study a foreign language before graduation.

The Science college welcomed two construction projects this year. A library addition will provide better opportunities for study and research. A new classroom building to be located behind Beardshear will house the departments of Modern Language, and English and Speech, and will relieve the crowded conditions in Beardshear. A new telescope, the largest of its kind in this part of the country, has been added to university facilities for study and research.

WAVE LENGTHS of sound interest these men in a physics class. By hitting a tuning fork and letting it resound through a tube, they can observe the resonance of sound.

MARVIN MUNDT explains a problem in differential equations to Theodore Okiishi with the help of equations on the blackboard. Mathematics is a fundamental part of the education of many students and an area of particular study for some.

STUDENTS GAIN practical television experience in the WOJ-TV studios. Telecommunicative arts is a possible field of concentration within the program of Distributed Studies. This program enables students to concentrate broadly among fields.

VETERINARY MEDICINE

The student who seeks admission to the four-year curriculum in Veterinary Medicine must first complete two years of pre-professional training. Careers in general practice, research, or with governmental agencies await the graduate. Students gain first-hand experience in laboratories and clinics of the department. The milk supply for Ames is examined in the vet med Department of Hygiene. The Iowa State Diagnostic Laboratory, where animals and tissues are brought for diagnosis, is also a part of the College of Veterinary Medicine. Particular attention is paid to diseases communicable to man, and the college participates with Iowa City in the study of public health.

VETERINARY MEDICINE STUDENTS have ample opportunity to apply in practical situations what they have learned. These three students are performing an operation.

GUIDING THE oldest and one of the three largest vet med schools in the nation is Dean I. A. Merchant.

AN INSTRUCTOR points out things to look for as three students examine a small animal prior to making the diagnosis.

THE VALUE OF post-operative examinations is shown as students examine the cast on a horse's leg.

THREE VETERINARY Medicine juniors, Ronald Jensen, James Burt, and Ronald Larson, write case reports as part of their class work.

X-RAYS MAY REVEAL hidden facts needed to diagnose a case. Veterinary medicine students learn to use x-rays in case work.

*Veterinary Medicine College encourages close, friendly atmosphere
in an exacting curriculum*

THREE STUDENTS EXAMINE a cow in order to make a diagnosis. Animals from all over the state are brought to the Diagnostic Laboratory, giving practical experience to students.

A joint program with the College of Engineering is of interest to the College of Veterinary Medicine this year. A new Medical Electronics Building will be built to house work on this program in which electronics is applied to problems in Veterinary Medicine. Another way in which this college is advancing with the times is a field-clinic service which saves both time and animals' lives. A two-way radio between the veterinarians car and college station solves the problem of communication.

GRADUATE COLLEGE

A large percentage of Iowa State students are enrolled in graduate school. This year over 1,300 students are studying to obtain doctor's and master's degrees. Iowa State ranks twentieth in the nation in total doctorate production with an even higher ranking of third in chemistry and first in some areas of agriculture. Most of the graduate work at Iowa State is concentrated in the sciences and engineering and concerns much research work. Many students are involved in atomic research. Others work in the experiment stations or do research and teaching. To be admitted for graduate study, a student must be in the upper half of his class.

BY USE OF THE "It" scale for children, Huda Jamal, child development graduate student from Egypt, measures the degree of masculine role or feminine role identification in pre-school children. Her thesis will deal with such identification if it is found to exist among preschool children.

GRADUATE SCHOOL EVENTUALLY means sitting down with notes, a stack of pencils or a typewriter, and writing a thesis. Peter Pfuderer, a graduate student in biophysical chemistry, has completed research on the difference in protein structure that one gene would make and is writing his thesis.

THIS FREEZE drying machine is used by Margaret McKinney, a graduate student in food and nutrition, to prepare for storage food which will be used in a study of long-term energy requirements of adult women.

A BABY PIG is weighed in the Nutrition Lab by Eugene Seymour, graduate student in swine nutrition, as part of a project to determine the effects of environment upon swine nutrition.

RON HAGLUND, electrical engineering graduate student, sits before the control console of the Cyclone computer. His thesis topic is logical design of computer circuitry. The computer, in the background, is used to solve math problems.

FACING THE CONSOLE of the nuclear reactor are Dr. Glenn Murphy, right, and Mrs. Virginia Denisen, who are operating the reactor, and Henri Leribaux, Belgian graduate student in nuclear engineering. The reactor will be used in teaching and thesis research in the new graduate program of nuclear engineering.

BACTERIOLOGY graduate student Richard Ecker "makes a transfer" by putting part of one culture in a new medium.

*Graduate students develop skills to meet
the intense demands of society*

Foreign students from forty-five different countries including Russia, Hungary, and African nations are enrolled in the Graduate College. One example of this can be seen in the international home economics exchange program begun this year. This fall five students from Baroda University in India came to Iowa State in order to be able to return to India and strengthen the research program. In June five faculty members from Iowa State will teach graduate courses at the University of Baroda. Another highlight in the Graduate College is a new process of color television which is being developed in the Electrical Engineering Department. Many industrial uses are found for research projects of graduate students such as these.

RESEARCH

DR. MELVIN HOFSTAD and Dr. Harry Yoder of the Veterinary Hygiene Department inoculate embryonating chicken eggs with Newcastle disease virus to learn more about the effects of this virus which causes a respiratory disease of turkeys and chickens.

AS PART OF A STUDY of nitrogen and its transformation in the soil, Mrs. Clara Ho, research associate working under Dr. Bremner of agronomy, performs a total nitrogen determination from a soil sample.

Six research agencies associated with the different colleges are in operation at Iowa State to facilitate understanding in basic and applied research. Much of the research is conducted in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Atomic Energy Commission, and private industry. Departments often combine in certain projects such as the College of Engineering and the Veterinary Medicine College have in the Biomedical Electronics program.

JOSEPH SENNE points to a constellation on the siderial clock used in positioning a telescope given to Iowa State. He will use the telescope in a general astronomy course.

DR. ERVIN DENISEN of the Horticulture Department works on a small fruits research project. The raspberry blossoms have been hand-pollinated in making a cross, and the paper bags prevent possible contamination by bees.

EXTENSION

Iowa State University serves the people of the state through three coordinated programs — resident teaching, research, and extension. Two extension services branch out from Iowa State. First to be established was the Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics, with Marvin Anderson now in charge. R. E. Patterson is in charge of the Engineering Extension Service. The extension services and short courses are a broad program of adult education conducted by visits to homes, factories and farms, by demonstrations and lectures, by moving pictures, and by magazines and pamphlets. The Engineering Extension Service works in industrial and technical areas.

Building arches occupies the attention of this Pre-Apprentice Masonry class. The activity is an engineering extension project.

MISS LOUISE ROSENFELD interviews two girls planning to go into extension work. Home economics extension offers opportunities for work in 4-H and in areas of community education.

AN INFORMAL discussion group of friends and neighbors makes up an Iowa Futures meeting. A series of fact sheets which deal with problems of the community is distributed by the Extension Service.

MEMBERS OF THE Extension Council of Iowa go through a food line at a meeting in the Armory. The Council, a planning group for the counties, meets every two years to see what educational material is available to take back to their areas.

Mortar Board

The women in white blazers and skirts seen every Monday on campus are members of Mortar Board, the highest women's honorary at Iowa State. The members, all seniors, are tapped during Veishea of their junior year. Selected by the actives, the new members have fulfilled requirements of outstanding service, scholarship, and leadership. Mortar Board advances the spirit of service and fellowship among university women by working to provide for the cooperation among honorary societies and to promote college loyalty. The organization strives to maintain a high standard of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college woman. Mortar Board has been active at Iowa State since 1925.

The Iowa State University chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, was established in 1911. It is one of eighty chapters located in institutions of higher learning. The society exists to recognize and honor high scholastic achievement and to encourage those students who are capable of superior scholarship in all academic areas. The upper one-sixteenth of the graduating seniors and the upper one-tenth of eligible graduate students are elected yearly.

BOTH ACTIVE and incoming members of Phi Kappa Phi were honored at a banquet January 18 in the Memorial Union. A brief initiation ceremony immediately followed the banquet.

Alpha Chi Sigma

Alpha Chi Sigma is a professional chemical fraternity. Two of the purposes of the organization are to get persons interested in chemistry together to discuss chemistry and to give service to the departments of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering. The fraternity has been active at Iowa State since 1933. President this year was Marion Johnston.

Alpha Kappa Psi

The business students' service honorary, Alpha Kappa Psi, had forty-two members this year. Students in this organization are selected from the Industrial Administration Department for activities, scholarship, and character. Meetings are held once a month. Projects include a newsletter, a field trip to Chicago, and ushering for convocations.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Existing to promote scholarship of freshman women, Alpha Lambda Delta requires of its members a cumulative grade point of 3.5 or above for the first two quarters of their freshman year. In the latter part of fall quarter the organization held a tea to acquaint prospective members with the purposes of Alpha Lambda Delta. The end of winter quarter brought pledging and initiation.

Alpha Zeta

Alpha Zeta, organized in 1905, is an agricultural honorary society. For membership into the honorary a student must be in the upper two-fifths of his academic class and have a well-rounded and balanced program of activities. The society annually presents the "Voice of Agriculture Experience" and the Tall Corn Awards to an outstanding agriculture professor.

Delta Phi Delta

Delta Phi Delta, professional honorary for art majors, requires a 2.5 all-college grade average and a 3.0 art grade average of initiates. The local chapter was organized in 1929. Among its purposes are the promotion of art interests among students, the bringing together of art departments of various colleges, and recognizing potential professional ability.

Eta Kappa Nu

The thirty members of Eta Kappa Nu, an electrical engineering honorary, were selected from the top one third of electrical engineering seniors and the top one fourth of the juniors. In addition to fulfillment of scholastic requirements, members are chosen for their attainment of skills in college or in the profession and for their deep interest and ability in the field of electrical engineering.

Lamos

LAMOS MEMBERS LISTEN as Professor E. W. Peterson, adviser, outlines basic steps in the process of selecting members.

Before the founding of Lamos, students in what was then the Science Division annually elected six outstanding seniors and an outstanding professor. The seniors elected in 1953 decided to form a permanent organization, and they chose the name Lamos. Lamos was to serve as a unifying force in a college made up of many diverse departments. Professor E. W. Peterson, who was elected the outstanding professor for 1953, was asked to be adviser to the group. He has filled this post since that time. Members, who are elected from both the junior and senior classes, are chosen for their scholarship, character, leadership, and service. One faculty member may also be chosen each year. The first members were chosen in 1954. This local Sciences and Humanities College honorary also fills the purpose of recognizing persons chosen to become members. President of Lamos this year was JoElla Robinson. Other officers were Carol Schultz, vice-president; and Kathy Wolf, secretary-treasurer.

CHESSMEN OFFICERS Dave O'Melia (left) and Dan Cuning meet in the Helser Lounge to plan the selection of new members.

Knighthood in the Order of Chessmen is the highest honor a man in the Men's Residence Association may receive. One per cent of the men in the halls is selected to this group. New members, who must be juniors or seniors, are chosen for their leadership and service to the Men's Residence Association. The actives receive recommendations for new members from every house in the MRA. Tapping takes place at the spring MRA dance, and the pledges are then "pawns" in the Order of Chessmen. Annually the Order of Chessmen administers the Madge Young Memorial Scholarship, which was established in memory of Mrs. Madge M. Young, who was residence director of Friley-Hughes Hall. The recipient is a junior or senior who has actively participated in MRA and campus activities. This year the $100 award went to Lester Carlsborg. The Order of Chessmen was organized in the fall of 1955 to recognize outstanding men in the MRA. Officers of Chessmen this year were Ron Bern, president; Dave O'Melia, vice-president; Dan Cuning, secretary-treasurer; and John Saathoff, historian.

Omicron Nu

The national home economics honorary society, Omicron Nu, was organized in 1913. To be eligible for membership a student must be a junior or senior woman who has maintained a high scholastic average. Omicron Nu annually holds a sophomore recognition tea. A $25 award is presented to one of its members on the basis of need and professional training.

Phi Upsilon Omicron

Phi Upsilon Omicron is the professional home economics honorary for junior and senior women. Its purpose is "to establish and strengthen friendship bonds, to promote the moral and intellectual development of its members, and to advance and promote home economics." Membership is based on scholarship, outstanding leadership, professional attitude, and activity and participation.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma fraternity is a national honorary for freshman men. The purpose of the organization is to promote freshman scholarship. To be eligible for membership a freshman must have a 3.5 grade point at the end of his first quarter or a cumulative grade point of 3.5 at the end of his second or third quarters. Qualified men are invited to pledge during spring quarter. In the spring the honorary held a banquet with Alpha Lambda Delta. Freshmen who maintained high standards in high school and who were prospective Phi Eta Sigma members were invited to a smoker fall quarter. Jim Wolf represented Iowa State at the national Phi Eta Sigma Convention at Carbondale, Illinois, this year. There are fifty-one active members in Phi Eta Sigma. President was R. Lyle Linder.

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia

Phi Mu Alpha, a national honorary, pledges men with outstanding ability and interest in music who have been recommended by a member of the music faculty. One of the main purposes of the organization is to advance the cause of music in America. Members of the honorary usher at musical events and sponsor Sinfonia Sing, the competitive singing festival for men.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Sigma Alpha Iota is a professional music fraternity for women. Sigma Lambda chapter at Iowa State was recognized in 1952. Members are selected to the honorary on the basis of scholarship, musical ability and music activities. Each spring SAI sponsors Sordor, a competitive singing festival for members of sororities and dormitories. Together with Phi Mu Alpha it sponsored "American Musicale" in January.

Sigma Delta Chi

Sigma Delta Chi, professional men's journalism society, again this year sponsored a high school writing contest and honored the resulting all-state staff at a banquet during Veishea. Members of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi decided this year to let the campus humor magazine, Green Gander, die. The Gander had been published for 45 years.

Theta Sigma Phi

Theta Sigma Phi is a professional fraternity for women in communications. Members are chosen from upper-class women who intend to make communications their profession. The members of Theta Sigma Phi hold one business meeting a month and one professional meeting. At the professional meetings, they often have guest speakers.

Gamma Gamma

Gamma Gamma honorary recognizes outstanding Greek students. New Gamma Gamma members are tapped each year during Greek Week by old Gamma Gamma members. The organization chooses members on the basis of their campus activities, service to the Greek system, and scholarship and character.

Pi Mu Epsilon

Pi Mu Epsilon is a national mathematics honorary. To qualify for membership, a student must attain at least a 3.0 grade average in mathematics courses beyond calculus. Each spring the honorary sponsors a banquet at which new members are recognized. Faculty adviser for Pi Mu Epsilon is Dr. R. H. Homer.

Tau Beta Pi is a national honorary engineering society founded for the purpose of honoring outstanding engineering undergraduates. Members are elected on the basis of scholarship, character, and contributions to the advancement of the engineering profession. Juniors must be in the upper fifth of their class and seniors in the upper eighth of their class to be eligible. This year Miss Beverly Birchmier was presented the woman's badge. Also each year the society presents the Tau Beta Pi award to a freshman earning the highest scholastic average during the first two quarters of his freshman year in engineering. Initiation is conducted twice a year during fall and spring quarters. New members and alumni are honored at a banquet given by members during winter quarter. The society's main project this year was to initiate a tutoring program for underclassmen.

PLEDGES of Tau Beta Pi put down their "goody boxes" long enough to raise their voices in song on the steps of Beardshear.

Pi Tau Sigma

Spring quarter the pledges of Pi Tau Sigma repainted the mechanical engineering lounge. In the fall they built a display board for the faculty to use to present senior job opportunities and summer employment. Pi Tau Sigma is a national honorary for outstanding junior and senior mechanical engineers. Jerry Pearson served as president this year.

Tau Sigma Delta

Winter quarter found members of Tau Sigma Delta busy sponsoring an art exhibition. Tau Sigma Delta is a national honorary for students in architecture and architectural engineering. It encourages mental achievement by emphasizing scholarship and character development. The group held a banquet in the spring to honor new members.

Tomahawk

A GROUP OF ACTIVE Tomahawk members meets to discuss selection of new members for the national independent honorary.

A baby sitting service is just one of the activities in which members of Tomahawk participate. Another of its policies has been to aid any campus organization which needs outside assistance. Tomahawk, a national honorary for independent sophomores, chooses its members for their outstanding work in contributing to the university through service, loyalty and cooperation. During pledging week the students sing on the steps of Beardshear and wear Indian feathers in their hair. Students are elected to the honorary by a two-thirds vote of the active members. To be eligible for membership a sophomore must have a grade point average of 2.25 or above. Organized at Iowa State in 1951, Tomahawk has been active in a variety of service projects.

GOVERNMENT

STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT Bill Dalgetty and vice-president Dave Voltmer discuss problems of student government.

The twenty-nine members of Cardinal Guild Senate, representing academic and residence groups, meet bi-weekly to cope with problems and situations arising in the educational community. Guild sets out to formulate policies for students to follow. It also trains for campus leadership those who are members. The three branches of Cardinal Guild are the legislative, or student senate; the administrative, or the cabinet; and the judicial, consisting of the supreme court and traffic court of appeals. At the all-university elections in the spring students chose the student body president and vice-president and seventeen members of Senate. These are the seven senators-at-large and the academic senators, two from each of the five colleges. The twelve residence senators, two from each of the six residence groups, are also elected spring quarter. Appointive posts include the judicial and remaining administrative personnel.

ALL EYES TURN TOWARD the speaker on the floor as he expresses an opinion at the Freshman Guild Convention.

Business before Cardinal Guild Senate this year involved chiefly the university and the local community. Early in October Senate unanimously passed a resolution defending the right of unmarried Iowa State students to register and vote in Ames. Senate also passed a bill which favored allowing juniors and seniors to take up to ten hours outside their major fields on a pass-fail basis. An earlier bill requiring such students to obtain C grades was vetoed by student body president Bill Dalgetty. Cardinal Guild Senate also officially condemned the riot in January 11 over the arrest of a former student on a charge of nightwalking. At the same time Guild defeated a proposal to pay for damages. One outcome of the riot was the creation of a Guild committee on student-community relations. Guild also studied student financial support of the Memorial Union. Winter quarter Cardinal Guild sponsored a noncredit course in government and international relations. Freshman Guild members were selected at a nominating convention October 22 with Carl Vander Wilt elected president and Dick Sanford vice-president.

Agriculture Council

Agriculture Council began its activities for this year in the fall with the Agriculture Freshman Reception on September 8 and a career day luncheon for high school students on October 29. In November Agriculture Council sponsored the Harvest Ball and used the profits from the dance for the All-Ag Banquet. Agriculture Council consists of thirty-four members. Each department in the College of Agriculture with twenty-five students or fewer is represented by one person. Two representatives are sent by the departments with over twenty-five students. Other members of the council include two Cardinal Guild representatives and the editor of the Agriculturist. One of the main purposes of the council is to act as a unifying agency among the agriculture departments. The group is also a semi-official contact between the Dean of Agriculture and the agriculture student body.

Engineering Council

GETTING TOGETHER at a council meeting are David Van Horn, adviser; Howard Speer, secretary; Jack Miller, president; Merlin Mapes, vice-president; and David Schrunk, treasurer.

Engineering Council is a local group composed of twenty-two members who represent all engineering departmental organizations. Members are elected by their departmental organizations. One project of the council this year was sponsoring the Engineering Reception at the Memorial Union during Orientation. The council also co-sponsored the Christmas Ball for which Jerry Crossett and Bruce Chester were co-chairmen. Weekly movies on engineering subjects were presented in the Electrical Engineering Auditorium. The purpose of the council is to promote cooperation among the departments in the College of Engineering and to officially represent engineering students by sponsoring both official and social functions. This year the council met every second and fourth Tuesday in Marston Hall under the leadership of Jack Miller, president. Other officers included Merlin Mapes, vice-president; Howard Speer, secretary; and David Schrunk, treasurer. Professor David Van Horn was faculty adviser.

Home Economics Council resolves to create fellowship between the faculty and students, to unify all departments in home economics at ISU, and to educate the student concerning the American Home Economics Association and Iowa Home Economics Association. The council is composed of the cabinet and the presidents of the home economics departmental clubs. The cabinet officers are elected by students in the College of Home Economics. Each year the council sponsors three scholarships for home economics students. To introduce freshmen to the faculty and each department of home economics, a "Home Economics Kickoff" is held in MacKay Hall during fall quarter. Other projects this year included the home economics banquet with the theme of "Let's Step Forward in the '60's," four home economics seminars with professional women as guests, and the "Home Economics Ball."

Science Council is an organization whose purpose is to be a liaison between the students in the College of Sciences and Humanities and college faculty members. Officers for the 1960-61 college year included: Don Soultz, president; Mary Lou Blomster, vice-president; Diny Green, secretary; and Sandy Wiggins, treasurer. John Heath and Dave Groth served as the council's Guild representatives. Dr. Keith Hussey was the council's faculty adviser. The members of Science Council may either be elected by an all-college vote or chosen by interview. The council is made up of twelve members and a faculty adviser. Science Council co-sponsors the Christmas Ball and an Orientation Days reception for incoming students in the College of Sciences and Humanities. The council also awards four fifty-dollar scholarships to leaders in departmental clubs.

Veterinary Medicine Council

PARENTS AND CHILDREN alike display great interest in what Santa Claus has in his box at the Vet Med Christmas party.

Veterinary Medicine Council is composed of the officers of the Iowa State chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association plus a representative from each class of veterinary students. Two representatives are elected to represent the council in Cardinal Guild. The council meets once a month. Council members, with the exceptions of the treasurer and the president-elect, serve for half a year. With the AVMA the council sponsored a banquet in the fall for freshman veterinary medicine students and faculty. At Christmas the council gave a party for the veterinary medicine faculty, their wives and children, and the students and their wives and children. The council often appoints committee chairmen for the AVMA and handles honor code violations after the minor board refers a case to it.

Pammel Community Council

Pammel Community Council serves as the government of the married students living on campus. The council presents civic problems of the community to the Department of Residence and Iowa State University. Council activities and projects on a continuous basis include the publication of the Pammel News twice a month, operation and supervision of the community recreation center, mosquito and fly control within the court, and a household exchange for foreign students. This year as a special project a dining room was added to the recreation center. The council also sponsored such items as dances, parties for children, tournaments, and athletic teams. Pammel's mayor is elected by popular vote of the residents of the court, and the nine councilmen by the residents of the zone in which they reside. Serving as mayor this year was Frank Rickey.

PAMMEL CHILDREN of all ages take advantage of a Christmas party sponsored by the council to tell Santa what they want.

Social Bureau, established on the Iowa State campus in the early 1930's, dissolved this year after accomplishing the purpose for which it was organized. Originally Social Bureau existed to help any group on campus with its social activities, both financially and organizationally. Throughout its long history, Social Bureau has aided nearly every organization on campus at one time or another. One of its projects was helping Pammel Court refurbish its recreation room and nursery. Social Bureau paid the bills and the students did the work. Social Bureau aided Promenaders when it was first organized, it sponsored the Festival of Jazz, originally put on Varieties and was the first student group to donate to the ISU Center Fund for a new auditorium. The organization purchased the first stiff cards for the card section; it also sponsored the Green Room in the Shattuck Theatre and purchased the stage curtains. The list is long but now other groups such as Union Board and Focus have taken over many of the original responsibilities of Social Bureau. Mrs. Vida Benson served as faculty adviser to the organization since 1949.

AGLOW FROM WITHIN and without, the Memorial Union symbolizes the laughter, hum of activity, and purposes of the broad array of festivities and organizations which it houses.

Representing the student body on the Board of Directors of the Memorial Union, Union Student Board sets policies for all student activities held in the Union and allocates the use of Union facilities to benefit a maximum number of students. Activities under the board's sponsorship annually include winter quarter Varieties, registration dances at the beginning of each quarter, bridge and dance classes, movie reviews, political and news forums, and Books and Cokes. The Union Board Talent Bureau keeps a complete file of Iowa State talent. This year Union Board sponsored an open house in the fall for all students, a concert by Dave Brubeck, and "Club 2000," a concert by Iowa State musical groups. Members, who must be juniors or seniors, are selected by application and all-university election.

People passing Morrill Hall are apt to hear strains of vocal harmony during certain hours of the day. What they hear is a meeting of the Iowa State Singers or Men's Glee Club. The Singers are divided into three groups, each containing 120 to 140 men and women. Each group meets Monday, Wednesday or Friday at its respective time for an hour of practice. Men's Glee Club, open to any interested male vocalist, meets twice a week. The Singers do a wide variety of numbers ranging from 17th Century composers or folk songs to a modern Fred Waring arrangement. This year Singers presented the German Requiem by Brahms; quarterly concerts; performances at "Club 2000" and the Christmas Festival of Music. Singers tour carried the music of Iowa State to Omaha and through southern Iowa. Professor Robert McCowen conducts the groups.

A series of light numbers was performed by Iowa State Singers at "Club 2000" in Great Hall the end of October. Several Iowa State musical groups joined to give "Club 2000."

USHERING IN THE Christmas season, Iowa State Singers joined with Festival Chorus, Modern Dance Club, Symphony Orchestra, and Concert Band to present the fifth annual, and by now traditional, Christmas Festival of Music.

Symphony Orchestra

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, conducted by Dr. Alvin Edgar, gave an evening of excellent music at its quarterly concert February 5.

The Iowa State Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Alvin R. Edgar, head of the Department of Music, is composed of seventy-five members. Three concerts are presented on the campus each season, and orchestra members participate in the Christmas Festival of Music. During fall, concerts were given at Estherville and Fort Dodge with concertmaster Ilza Niemack, violinist, as soloist. Membership in the orchestra is open not only to qualified students, but to adults of the Ames area as well. The repertoire presented by the orchestra represents the finest works of standard symphonic literature. The orchestra belongs to the American Symphony Orchestra League and the National School Orchestra Association. Rehearsals are held each Thursday night. Officers of the Orchestra were Dick Turpin, president; Nancy Underwood, vice-president; Mary Dickson, secretary; and Jerry Titus, treasurer. Managers were J. B. Barker, Jim Shadle, and Jerry Titus.

Concert Band

A group of about ninety of the finest instrumentalists on campus chosen by competitive audition compose the Iowa State University Concert Band. This concert unit performs at "Club 2000," the Christmas Festival of Music and the Religion-in-Life Week convocation. Winter and spring quarters formal concerts are given featuring professional guest soloists. This year the annual band tour was through western Iowa. Television and radio broadcasts are also included in the band's appearances. The Iowa State Varsity Band is another concert organization that involves about ninety players. Its activities include the "Club 2000" concert, the Christmas Festival of Music, campus concerts, and a program at Veisheathon. Professor Frank A. Piersol directs the bands. President of Concert Band this year was John Hayes.

THE MARCHING BAND does a humorous sequence based on the development of the compact car. First it salutes the old-fashioned square-bodied auto, playing "Get Out and Get Under."

Marching Band

The I.S.U. Marching Band is a unit of 120 men which provides pre-game and halftime entertainment for all home football games. A small pep band from this same group provides music for pep rallies. A part of the band personnel also provides music at the basketball games. The band rehearses three times a week preparing football shows which include precision drill, dance routines, and pattern formations. Themes are followed for each show and all music is especially arranged for each performance. Director of the band is Professor Frank Piersol. Drum majors this year were Gilbert Bachmann and John Hayes. Head manager was Dick Landess, and head baton twirler was national champion Joyce Rice.

TO THE STRAINS OF "There'll Be Some Changes Made," (left) the large car shrinks to the size of today's compact. As a grand finale a line of compacts appears while the band forms an auto horn and plays Piersol's composition, "Auto Hornpipe."

In January Iowa State Players honored Fredrica Shattuck, who founded the organization in 1914. The Theatre Workshop was renamed Shattuck Theatre, and the six-day run of "Mistress of the Inn" was dedicated to her. Iowa State Players is one of five groups making up Iowa State Theatre. The others are Laboratory Theatre, Children's Theatre, Theatre 324, and Film Theatre. Both Players and Lab Theatre give one production a quarter. This year Players offered "Born Yesterday" in October, "Come Back, Little Sheba," directed by Frank Brandt, in February, and "Mr. Roberts," directed by Harry Ausprich, at Veishea. Laboratory Theatre gave "First Impressions," "Mistress of the Inn," directed by Harry Ausprich, and "Streets of New York," directed by Norman Kaiser, in April. Edmund C. Lynch was technical director and designer on all productions. President of Iowa State Players this year was Bill Bracken; Jack Mauer was vice-president.

Iowa State Debaters attended about ten tournaments in Iowa and nearby states this year, participating in discussion, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and sometimes interpretative reading besides debate. The group sponsored a spring high school debate tournament and a fall university discussion tournament. Officers were Terry Quinn, president; George Forsyth, vice-president; secretary, Sue Timm; and publicity chairman, Marilyn Miller.

Radio Workshop

"Poochie dogs" were given as prizes in a contest for children listening to fairy tales on the Radio Workshop production of "Children's Playhouse." This fifteen-minute program is given every Monday afternoon. Radio Workshop also gave three half-hour adult radio dramas. At Veishea the group made a display which was part of the Department of English and Speech open house.

Iowa State Daily

With comments of "Oh, look who's pinned," and "Did you know that . . .", Iowa State students begin the day with the Daily. And in the case of a late riser, it's not uncommon to see the familiar tabloid peeking from behind books during the day.

EDITOR BOB LEMAY conducts a Thursday night staff meeting of all personnel on the editorial side of the Daily. LeMay explains news and editorial policies and areas for individual improvement. The meetings began regularly fall quarter.

RESPONSIBLE for the Daily coverage of all Iowa State athletics were James Roche and Ron Lutz (above).

NANCY BOYER (left) and Sandra Cruickshank worked together as co-editors of New Dimensions, an innovation begun in the Daily fall quarter to give broader representation of the many activities at Iowa State.

BOB LEMAY WAS editor of the Daily spring and fall of 1960 and winter 1961. He exercised direct control of the editorial page and set determining policies in the news section.

COVERING CAMPUS EVENTS to provide pictures for every issue were Daily photographers Tom Purdy (top), Bill DeKeyser, and Kathy Jacobsen. DeKeyser served as head photographer.

EXPRESSING THEIR opinions on their editorial page were associate editors Dan Arrasmith (seated), and Dick Doak. Doak was selected to be editor of the Daily for the spring of 1961.

Although most students tend to take the Daily for granted, many people and long hours of work are involved in each issue. Reporters and photographers begin their work for the Daily early in the day, reading their assignments from the "beat sheet" in the Daily office before they start out to get their stories. After the reporters have turned their stories in, the stories are sorted and edited to eliminate errors, and headlines are written. Copy is then sent to the backshop to be set in type. The editors check the proofs for typographical errors. Finally the Daily is ready for the press. The basic function of the Daily, as seen by its staff members, is to serve the entire university community. The basic philosophy of the Daily is that it is a newspaper rather than a publicity sheet. The editor-in-chief is solely responsible for everything appearing in the news columns and on the editorial pages of the Daily. All editorial staff members work under him. The editor, in turn, is responsible to the Publication Board. This board is composed of five student members and two faculty members with voting power, plus the editor, business manager, and one other faculty member serving as ex officio member. The student members are elected by students in the specific colleges they represent.

TYPOGRAPHY STUDENTS sit on the rim to edit copy as night editor Dennis Eilers, inside, lays out pages. When reporters turn copy in to the night editor, he sees that it is edited, a head written, and laid out before it is set in type.

WALT FOLEY was business manager of the Daily fall and winter quarters. Al Buch, advertising manager winter quarter, was responsible for seeing that enough inches of advertising came in regularly. Buch was selected to serve as Daily business manager for spring quarter.

THE END OF THE QUARTER is the signal for the traditional Daily get-together, a 30 Party, which is named for the "30" written at the bottom of an article to tell the linotype operator the story is finished.

THE BACKSHOP CREW looks on as Forest Petrus reads one of the first copies off the press. Personnel handling copy after it leaves the rim includes Mary Negoumy, linotype operator; Forest Petrus, printer and pressman; Mike Mael-ler (top), printer; Marvin Stout, linotype operator; and Bob Sevold, printer.

The circulation department and the books of the Daily are run by an accountant, Frank Berry. The Daily publishes Tuesday through Saturdays during the nine-month school year and weekly during the summer. No Dailies appear during regularly scheduled vacation periods. During Homecoming and Veishea, however, the Daily is still published. The Daily's policies are entirely student-set except for the two voting faculty members on the Publication Board and the ex officio member. But in reality the editor and the business manager are in charge of its operation. The business manager handles all business matters, helps keep the books, and supervises the selling of advertisements. The Daily receives approximately half its income from sales of advertising while the other half comes from the money allocated from student activity fees by Cardinal Guild. Total budget runs from $65,000 to $70,000 per year. The Iowa State Daily was begun about 1889.

LATE IN THE EVENING when the paper has gone to press, the Daily office, cluttered with the remnants of the day's work, is empty except for managing editor Sandra Cruickshank, wearily making out the beat sheet of tomorrow's assignments.

JULIE BRIGGS, managing editor in charge of copy, was responsible for seeing that all copy and cutlines were in on time.

Bomb

Even before the 1960 Bomb was completed, work on the 1961 Bomb was under way. During winter quarter a year ago the editor and business manager were chosen by Bomb Publication Board, which publishes the book. The board consists of an elected representative from each of the five colleges, plus business and journalism staff advisers. The editor and the business manager are nonvoting members. It is this group which presents the 1961 Bomb to you.

WORKING ON SELECTION, layout, and cropping of more than 800 pictures was the job of Audrey Dutton, managing editor in charge of pictures. She will be editor of the 1962 Bomb.

EDITH LILLIE BARTLEY, editor of the 1961 Bomb, almost made the Press Building "home" as she supervised the editorial staff and correlated copy with pictures in the 460-page book.

DIANE HOUSER, activities editor, DeAnn Brooks, residence editor, and Doris Post, copy editor, measure copy blocks in the Bomb "dummy" to determine the number of lines required.

RESPONSIBLE FOR scheduling the group pictures taken in the fall and for assigning another 600 pictures to photographers in order to meet deadlines was photo editor Karen Horn.

The staffs of two Bombs worked side by side spring quarter. Staff members were selected by both the editorial and business sides. Photographers covered important campus events. Contracts were let for group and senior pictures and for engraving. Nearly one thousand senior pictures were taken in the Bomb studios that quarter. Even summer was not a complete vacation. In June the editor and managing editor (pictures) met with the engraver's representative and an artist. They outlined the organization of the entire book and began a rough dummy—a plan of what goes on every page. Negotiations with cover companies also began in the summer. With the beginning of rush in the fall photographers were again out in force. In addition to photographing campus happenings, photographers were also assigned to take club and residence informals. These pictures were printed, layouts developed, and prints were cropped for exactness and sent to the engraver. Group pictures were also taken in the fall.

An orientation session was held in September for students interested in working on the 1961 Bomb. Staff members explained the organization of the Bomb, the jobs that were open, and the work involved. About forty potential copywriters, proofreaders, and typists signed up. The three Bomb offices in the old section of the Press Building began to hum. Information sheets were turned in by organizations, the dummy was checked for copy lengths, and copy was assigned. All copy was turned in to the section editors, who checked it before passing it on to the copy editor for additional polishing. The managing editor in charge of copy collected the copy, captions, and group identifications. Finally the editor made the last check, pulled together the inevitable loose ends, and a section of the Bomb was "sent downstairs." Copy was set in type in the backshop of the Iowa State University Press. Proofs of the copy and engravings, arranged as they would appear in the book, were proofread for errors before each section was put on the press to be printed 5,600 times.

JULIE JOHNSON, seniors editor for the Bomb, busily alphabetizes the senior picture activity envelopes by colleges.

IN THE PROCESS of selecting a cover manufacturer for the 1961 Bomb at a Bomb Publication Board meeting are Roger Wallis, Edith Lillie Bartley, J. E. Marks, James Schwartz, Ron Henriksen, Nancy Underwood, Karen Carr, and Jerry Wheelock.

Publication Board

PHOTOGRAPHERS for the 1961 Bomb include Don Gerdes, head photographer Gaylin Morgan, Ken Howe, and Dave Arendts.

DUTIES OF head photographer Gaylin Morgan include checking out equipment and film, keeping needed supplies in stock, and keeping darkroom chemicals fresh.

Most of the Bomb photographers were too busy taking assignments to have their own pictures taken. At various times of the year a total of eighteen students were listed as Bomb photographers. Beginning the year under head photographer Gaylin Morgan were Larry Brandt, George Eckstein, Don Gerdes, Ken Howe, Bobbie O'Loughlin, Tom Purdy, Curt Pyle, Steve Ritland, and Jay Wollin. New photographers appeared — Dave Arendts, Ron Babbe, Gale Johnson, Dale Norem, and Marge Peterson. Working on a special basis during the year were Bob Harrison, Alex Hershaft, and Bob Johnson.

GAYLIN MORGAN has his hands full as he distributes the weekly quantity of film to Don Gerdes and George Eckstein.

CONCENTRATING HIS EFFORTS during September and October was sales manager Bill Pardoe. He was responsible for the campaign which resulted in sales of approximately 2,000 Bombs.

AS BUSINESS MANAGER of the 1961 Bomb Ron Henriksen handled a multitude of policies, problems, and details concerned with the more than $40,000 it took to produce the book.

BILL SERGEANT FILLED the combined positions of assistant business manager and treasurer on the 1961 Bomb and was chosen to serve as the business manager for the 1962 Bomb.

Handling a tightly budgeted $42,000 was the job of the Bomb business staff. It was responsible for seeing that the money both came in and went out. In the spring after arranging for a photographer to take senior pictures, the staff began having appointments made. Letters were sent to all campus residences and organizations, offering to sell space in the book. An inquiry early in the fall double-checked that no group had been omitted. At registration fall quarter Bombs were sold at a table. They were also sold when group pictures were taken. Also in the fall hundreds of books were mailed to Iowa high schools so that potential students could get a better picture of Iowa State. Specifications were drawn up for the cover, and bids were requested from interested companies. Publication Board awarded the contract. The treasurer paid the constantly arriving bills, keeping a close watch on the budget. It allotted $27,700 for printing, including the cover, and $7,200 for engraving. Bomb income comes from activity fees, group contracts, sale of the book, and senior pictures.

Iowa Agriculturist

ADMIRING AND shining a trophy won by the Agriculturist are staff members Diane Roberson, George White, and Merrill Oster.

The Iowa Agriculturist is a magazine published monthly by students in the College of Agriculture under the direction of the Department of Technical Journalism. The purpose of the magazine is to keep agriculture students well informed about the latest advancements in the various fields of agriculture in which they are studying. The magazine provides an excellent training ground for those students interested in the many aspects of magazine publication. This year's editor was Merrill Oster. Business manager was George White. The staff attended a business meeting every Tuesday evening. Harry Heath served as faculty adviser for the sixteen-member staff. This year marked the fifty-ninth continuous year of publication for the Iowa Agriculturist.

Iowa Engineer

The Iowa Engineer, a monthly College of Engineering student publication, presents to engineering students the opportunity to write for a publication or work on its staff. It also provides a means for them to tell other students about special products and individual ideas concerning engineering. This publication is particularly valuable because with a limited number of writing courses in the engineering curriculum, the experience offered by writing for such a publication is a valuable asset for engineering students. The Iowa Engineer, organized in 1894, is made up of approximately twenty-five staff members whose only criterion for membership is their interest in the workings of the publication. Members with more experience work up to the executive editorial board. This staff works under the direction of Professor E. H. Ohlsen, Professor Arthur E. Burton and Professor Ray W. Fahien, faculty advisers. In 1960 the Iowa Engineer was awarded the second-place prize for the best all-around magazine at the Engineering College Magazines Associated national convention.

WITH SCISSORS AND paste pot in hand, staff members of the Iowa Engineer fit numbered galley proofs on the dummy page.

The Iowa Homemaker is the one magazine on campus devoted completely to the woman's point of view. Its thirty staff members meet monthly to compile informative and interesting material about Iowa State and home economics for women on campus. To be a member of the staff a person should have interest in one of the following: home economics journalism, writing, circulation, selling ads, public relations work or other various matters having to do with the publication of a magazine. The Homemaker attempts to include articles about as many divisions of home economics as possible. This permits students to glimpse activities of departments other than their own. Each winter a workshop is held to inform students about the phases of magazine production.

BARB STRANG, Marty Keeney, and Carol Shellenbarger meet to critique the first issue of this year's Homemaker.

CONFERRING WITH editor Jack Gorman is Kathy Kinnamon, an associate editor. She was chosen to be the next editor.

The Iowa State Scientist is published for the 1,800 students of the College of Sciences and Humanities. The staff consists of twenty-seven science students interested in journalism. During the year this monthly magazine took several surveys on dating and student preferences. Also, it ran a story about book pirating which was quoted in Time and Newsweek magazines. The Des Moines Register usually has an article featuring one of the stories from the Scientist each month. The Scientist this year had the largest staff it has ever had. Publishing trends for the Scientist have been toward abstract cover designs, more photos, and on an average, twenty-four page issues. The staff this year included editor, Jack Gorman; associate editors, Kathy Kinnamon and Gaylin Morgan; managing editor, Janet Ludwig; humanities editor, Ann Nelson; science editor, Dick Doak; and business manager, John Edloff.

Iowa State University Veterinarian

The Iowa State University Veterinarian features articles by students, faculty members, and veterinarians about the field of veterinary medicine. A main purpose of the publication is to give students in the College of Veterinary Medicine experience in professional journalism. Funds for the magazine are acquired through advertising, subscriptions, and activity fees. All advertising is obtained by the organization and not through an advertising agency. The publication has a circulation of 1,700 and is sent to 20 foreign countries. It is published three times a year, near the end of each quarter. In the spring a steak fry is held for all who have worked on the Veterinarian during the previous year. To be on the staff one must be a student in the College of Veterinary Medicine and maintain the grade point required by the university. The editor and business manager are appointed by the publication board.

LEON HENNING, business manager, Merrill Anderson, circulation manager, and Jim Winburn, editor, have a big job ahead of them as they prepare to mail an issue of the Veterinarian.

Ames Forester

The Ames Forester is published every spring by the Forestry Club and is edited by students in forestry. The only departmental annual at Iowa State, it features graduating seniors in addition to technical articles. Last year's Ames Forester honored Professor George B. Hartman as alumnus of the year. The magazine is a means of contact between the Iowa State Forestry Department and its students, alumni, and other schools.

Sketch

In addition to providing an outlet for creative writing and art work submitted by students, Sketch also sponsors Books and Cooks during fall and spring quarters. One book is reviewed at each of these weekly programs in the Union. Sketch was organized in 1934 and is published quarterly. Editor this year was Ted Kooser; David Roach was business manager. Faculty advisers are Dr. Will C. Jumper and Dr. Robert Orlovich.

Writers' Round Table

Writers' Round Table meets weekly constructively to criticize and analyze literary works composed by student members. Many of these works are later published in Sketch, a quarterly creative writing magazine. The members strive to "examine candidly, think honestly and write with power and purpose." The representative to Sketch was David Waller.

CLUBS

Botany Club

Botany Club earned top honors in the Science College with its Veishea open house. Another spring event was the annual picnic honoring the graduating seniors. A field trip was taken spring quarter to the St. Louis Botannical Garden. A ten-day field trip to northeastern Minnesota was taken in the fall. At Christmas the club gave a party.

Members of Agricultural Business Club had the opportunity to hear United States Representative Neil Smith speak at one of the fall quarter club meetings. At another meeting they heard Dr. W. G. Murray and Dr. Harold W. Davey, both of the Economics Department, debate controversial political issues. About one hundred students belong to the club, which has regular meetings monthly. At Veishea the members built a display for the departmental open house. It showed agricultural business as viewed from the classroom, the club, and the jobs of graduates. In February the club sponsored the annual Agricultural Business Club Banquet. On this occasion an award was given to an outstanding Iowa farmer and another to an outstanding senior. Officers of the organization were Gene Upstill, president; Larry Kurtenbach, vice-president; Roger Selley, recording secretary; and Dick Rinderknecht, treasurer. Faculty advisers are Dr. Raymond R. Beneke, Dr. R. A. Hoffmann, and Dr. J. T. Scott.

Agricultural Education Club is a local professional group with about one hundred members who are enrolled in agricultural education. Among other activities the club gives two scholarships, publishes the Agricultural Education News, and has a concession stand at Veishea. It strives to develop professional interests and acquaint members with problems of the teaching profession, particularly agricultural education.

Two members of the Iowa State Agronomy Club won first place in the national essay contest and second place in the national speech contest sponsored by the American Society of Agronomy for its student sections. John Morris took honors in the essay competition, and Larry Severson excelled in speech. The club, which is a student section of the national organization, also sponsored local crop judging and soil judging contests. In the spring club members attended the annual banquet at which the National Plant Food Institute Award was given to a sophomore who was active in the club and showed leadership, character, and scholarship. Another annual spring activity for the club was sponsoring a picnic at the Agronomy Farm. Students, faculty members, and their families attended. Officers of Agronomy Club were Jimmie Andersen, president; Vince Castonovo, vice-president, Richard Wehde, treasurer; George Krough, recording secretary; and Larry Edwards, corresponding secretary. The club's adviser was Dr. Lloyd R. Frederick.

At their weekly meetings, members of the American Ceramic Society may discuss technical material they have studied. The group is responsible for the departmental Veishea display, and also sponsors picnics and social gatherings. Michael Carrell was president of the Iowa State student branch.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

Supplying magazine subscriptions for the departmental reading room was the main project this year of the Iowa State student branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. The organization also sponsored a spring picnic and an awards banquet.

TWO BUSLOADS of AIEE-IRE members went to Cedar Rapids winter quarter for a meeting planned by the IRE section there.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers are, nationally, two professional organizations; but at Iowa State University the two are combined. Qualification for membership in the organization is that a student must be more than a half-time student in electrical engineering. Organized to acquaint students with the variety of fields in electrical engineering, AIEE-IRE also aims to inform its members about industry and to promote better student-faculty relationships. Of the approximately 200 members, about 80 attended a joint meeting with the Cedar Rapids section of IRE last December in Cedar Rapids. A banquet in the spring was given by the organization. PHT degrees (Put Hubby Through) were awarded to wives of electrical engineering seniors, and outstanding members received recognition awards.

American Veterinary Medical Association

The Iowa State University student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association has 267 members. The group meets the first Wednesday of each month. Regularly enrolled undergraduate students of the College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State may be members. Faculty and others, as the chapter elects, are honorary members. To maintain good standing, active members must meet assessments promptly, miss no more than one required meeting per term, and conduct themselves in accord with the honor code of the Iowa State University student chapter of the AVMA and the Code of Ethics of the AVMA. The organization's purposes include: "To promote a spirit of friendly relations among the students regularly enrolled in the course of veterinary medicine; to provide an additional opportunity for the members to gain professional knowledge and to demonstrate the virtues of organized effort."

Other purposes of the student AVMA are "to build character through the censorship of all unworthy actions of its members and the commendation of all worthy deeds; to uphold the honor and dignity of the veterinary profession, and to make available to the student the opportunities offered by the AVMA to its student chapters." An annual fall banquet for all students, faculty, extension workers, and research workers is held. The faculty of the college serve annually at the spring picnic at Brookside Park. The organization also held a Christmas party and had a winter smoker on January 4, at which time junior students portrayed different faculty members in skits. Elections for the second term of the year are also held at the winter smoker. The last meeting of the AVMA during spring quarter is an awards night.

LUIS ANDRINO AND Dr. Lowell Brown look on as Richard Jaspers studies a culture in his test tube.

Officers of the Iowa State student chapter of AVMA this year were president, Charles Haight; vice-president, Leon Henning; secretary, Judson West; treasurer, Jerry Crawley; president-elect, Larry Tadlock; and critic, Burton Wolf. Dr. David E. Tyler served as faculty adviser for the organization. All officers of AVMA are also on Veterinary Medicine Council. At the monthly meetings speakers discussed such subjects as public relations aspects of veterinarians, small animal practice, dairy and swine practice, and the legal aspects of the professional man.

Pre-Veterinary Medicine Club is open to all students planning to take veterinary medicine. Chief projects for the group are a concession stand at Veishea and a Veishea open house display explaining the pre-vet curriculum. Besides monthly meetings, members enjoyed a smoker and picnic spring quarter. Leading the approximately 200 members this year was President Ronald Hullinger. Other officers included Carroll Gustafson, vice-president and treasurer; and Thomas Greiner, secretary. Serving as adviser was Dr. R. B. Talbot.

Block and Bridle Club

Block and Bridle Club is the animal husbandry departmental club. Interested students in the College of Agriculture are eligible for membership. A formal initiation for new members is held each spring and fall. The club sponsors Little International, and compiles a yearbook of its activities which is entered in competition with reports from other Block and Bridle Clubs throughout the country.

Business Students Association holds the view that theoretical material is handled in the classroom. It tries to bring in speakers who have been successful in the business world and can testify to the work and training a student needs for a particular business. The group also helps with the departmental Veishea display and assists at the annual banquet for the Industrial Administration Department in April.

Campus 4-H

The 85 members of Campus 4-H Club participated in numerous projects throughout the year. They acted as hosts to national scholarship winners, served as guides for 4-H Leaders Day, and cleaned cabins and other areas of the State 4-H Camp near Boone. Recreation deputation teams held training schools on leading recreation in counties near Ames in the winter. For their Christmas Tree Project they planted evergreens.

Dairy Husbandry Club

Dairy Husbandry Club, a local professional organization since 1925, had 46 members this year. The club had a sophomore judging contest fall quarter and helped sponsor the Little International Dairy Show. It earned money by selling box lunches at the Cow Conference.

Dairy Industry Club

The 29 members of Dairy Industry Club went to Chicago at the end of October for the National Dairy Exposition. They earned money for their chartered bus by manufacturing dairy products which they sell at Veishea. At meetings, they heard a guest speaker each quarter.

WHAT COULD BE BETTER than a juicy slice of watermelon at the Farm Operation Club watermelon bust at Brookside?

Farm Operation Club

Farm Operation Club began this year's activities with a freshman mixer held at the Memorial Union on September 14. After the football game on October 8, members enjoyed a watermelon feed at Brookside Park. During winter quarter the annual Farm Operation Club Banquet was held. Meetings were held monthly in the Union Gallery where the 185 members were led by Larry Koos, who served as president. Vice-president was Bill Peterson; secretary, Bob Graff; and treasurer, Gerald Thatcher. Faculty adviser for the organization is Dr. Duane Acker. A local group organized in 1948, the club gives farm operation students means of participation in extra-curricular activities. The club attempts to develop fellowship and leadership among its members and helps build and maintain a satisfactory enrollment in the farm operation curriculum.

Geology Club

To be qualified for membership in Geology Club, a student must be interested in geology. The group meets every two weeks and also has social functions throughout the year. Geology Club sponsors field trips in the fall and spring. It also has a picnic each spring. President of the club this year was Frank Reckendorf; faculty adviser was Dr. Chalmer Roy.

Horticulture Club

Horticulture Club has been on the Iowa State campus for 48 years. This year's 27 members all helped with the Annual Horticulture Show held in MacKay Auditorium. Students entered competition for prizes for fruits, vegetables, and flowers, many of which were auctioned off at the end of the show. Any undergraduate majoring in horticulture may be a member of the club.

Industrial Education Club

Efforts of Industrial Education Club members were rewarded when they won the first-place trophy for the College of Agriculture with their Veishea open house display. The display featured student-built projects which showed major areas of industrial arts — woodworking, metalworking, and electricity. Another major event for club members is the annual field trip. All of the sixty to seventy-five club members are eligible to participate. This past year the trip was to Kansas City where students visited major industries. An important event in which the club participates is the State Industrial Education Conference, which is held at Iowa State every year. The members of the club play their parts in conducting the conference by giving demonstrations for the program and sponsoring a coffee hour. A social occasion for club members is the Industrial Education Banquet, held every winter quarter. Club and faculty members, their wives and dates attend. The formal dinner is followed by entertainment provided by campus talent.

Institute of Aerospace Sciences

Members of the Institute of Aerospace Sciences pitched in spring quarter to construct the departmental Veishea open house display. It emphasized the aircraft and missile fields. Also in the spring club members enjoyed the annual picnic. The Iowa State student branch of this professional group was formed in 1943. Chairman this year was Smith Wilcox.

Sigma Gamma Tau

Sigma Gamma Tau is a national honorary society for aeronautical engineers. New members of the Iowa State student chapter, chosen winter quarter, were honored at a banquet. Leading the group this year was president Bion Pierson. Other officers were Fred Nelson, vice-president; Beverly Birchmier, secretary; and Darryl Trulin, treasurer. Adviser was Dr. M. L. Millett.

Poultry Club

The Iowa State University Poultry Club is a local professional organization organized in 1925. Any undergraduate or special students who are interested in poultry husbandry may become active members. The club strives to increase the interest of its members in the field of poultry husbandry and to bring closer relationships between faculty and students.

Student Properties Board

Student Properties Board consists of nine voting members, two faculty members and seven students who hold office. There are also up to twelve associates who act as understudies to the officers and move up into their offices when vacated by graduation. The organization owns and rents properties to campus groups for educational and social purposes.

The name "Science Women's Club" does not actually express the breadth of the organization's membership. The club is open to women in the colleges of sciences and humanities, engineering, agriculture, veterinary medicine and in the curriculum of home economics and related science. The club, a local organization, was formed in 1928 to bring these women together for social and educational pursuits. Annual projects for the club are the awarding of a $100 scholarship to a deserving woman in the club and a $10 award to the senior woman in science with the highest grade point. Members earned money by selling food in their residences each quarter and by having a pumpkin sale just before Halloween. Meetings, which were held every other week, this year included a tour of the Atomic Energy Building and a talk by Dr. Percy Carr on satellites. President of Science Women's Club this year was Mary Pat Read. Adviser is Dr. Delma Harding.

Student Society of Landscape Architects

The Student Society of Landscape Architects is open to students majoring in landscape architecture. The Iowa State student group was organized in 1956. The goal of the organization is to promote interest in landscape architecture and in the problems of landscape architects. Two projects of the group are its banquet and helping with the Beaux Arts Ball.

Zoology Club

Members of Zoology Club have been busy this past year. They took a field trip to Little Wall Lake to observe water fowl and shore birds. They also made insect surveys and small mammal studies, and conducted bird banding project in the area adjacent to the Cyclotron. During fall quarter the club took another field trip, this one to the sphagnum bog at Pilot Knob State Park.

RELIGION

Student Religious Council

Largest project for Student Religious Council was Religion-in-Life Week, January 22 to 27. The council exists to co-ordinate all university religious activities and local church fellowships behind a common cause. Members are elected by their respective church groups to represent them on Student Religious Council. Iowa State was the first nonsectarian institution of higher education to sponsor a week-long presentation such as Religion-in-Life Week. Most Iowa State students were reached by some of the many facets of the program which included discussions, firesides, classroom presentations, convocations, embers services, and individual conferences.

JESSE OWENS, great track and field star, spoke on "Religion, Youth, and the City" at an RIL Week convocation.

DR. DALE MILLER of Drake University spoke at the men's convocation on "The Beats and the Squares." Behind him was a display of religious art in the Union Gallery.

REAR ADMIRAL GEORGE A. ROSSO spoke on "Religion and International Communism" at the first major event of the week, an all-university convocation in the Armory Monday morning.

A successful Religion-in-Life Week began on January 22 with "All-out-to-Church Sunday." On Monday began the regular schedule, which included such items as morning chapel, small convocations, coffee hours, and daily "silent meditation" periods in the Memorial Union chapel. Two popular regular events — Books and Coffee and News Forum — were oriented toward the week's theme. Helping to carry out the Religion-in-Life Week program for the second year were professional representatives of eight churches with active youth groups at Iowa State. The eight men came from Midwestern cities and universities. Three all-university convocations were the week's focal points. Monday morning Rear Admiral George A. Rosso, Chief of Navy Chaplains, emphasized the threat of communism. He said that men need something to which to dedicate themselves, but that the modern world has lost its faith, goal, and purpose and has nothing to offer. He contrasted this with communism which offers men something to which to dedicate themselves without imposing any individual morality. "Religion and the Labor Crisis" was discussed by Dr. Kermit Eby at the Wednesday evening convocation. An ordained minister, he is a professor of social science at the University of Chicago and has been director of education and research for the CIO. Friday evening a student crowd heard Jesse Owens, track and field star, speak on "Religion, Youth, and the City."

Westminster Fellowship

THE LOUNGE of the Collegiate Presbyterian Church is a popular and attractive setting for meetings and get-togethers.

ART ROY AND Sara Hinrichsen fill their plates full of food prepared by Westminster Fellowship members.

Westminster Fellowship, the student church group of Collegiate Presbyterian Church, had eighty to one hundred active participants this year. Last spring ten to twenty students went to Eldora State Training School for Boys every other Saturday afternoon. These Iowa State students participated with the training school boys in sports, art, music appreciation, and outdoor camping skills. Last fall a group of students went once a month to Woodward State Mental Hospital to present programs for the patients. President of Westminster Fellowship this year was Dale Wagner.

RECREATION IS a part of Westminster Fellowship too as is shown by the shuffleboard game in session.

In the Baptist Student Fellowship students unite in seeking a thorough knowledge of the twentieth century world and of the Christian faith which impels and directs their action in it. Through the fellowship the members grow in their personal spiritual depth and find expression of their maturing faith in Christ. In the BSF special programs, fellowship, worship, discussion, and prayer are included. Through the BSF members share with students of other schools in the Iowa and American Baptist Student Movements. Among the programs which the members participated in this year were the Washington United Nations Seminar; the National Student Conference at Green Lake, Wisconsin; and the new Covenant Community program sponsored by the First Baptist Church. Members of the community covenant themselves "to join in an experience of living together, striving to discover the meaning of faith in Jesus Christ and the nature of the world and to relate them in our lives at their point of tension." They participated in a year of intense study, worship and service. The community, which has just completed its first year, is open to any Iowa State student who desires to participate.

Christian Science Organization

Members of the Christian Science Organization meet Tuesday evenings to hold religious services. Business meetings are held about once a month. The group is a part of the Christian Science church but has no direct connection with the Ames church. The organization annually sponsors a lecture, the speaker being an authorized lecturer from Boston. Students, alumni, and faculty may be members.

Disciple Student Fellowship

Disciple Student Fellowship is the college-age youth group of the Christian Church. Among its regular activities are service projects. Members of the fellowship are recognized in the spring with a dinner given by the church. Leading the group this year was Dean Burkhart. Other officers included Robert Mattern, vice-president; Edna Potts, secretary, and Charles Fleming, treasurer. Campus minister for the group is Reverend E. F. Moore.

Liahona Fellowship

A student group for members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Liahona Fellowship had thirty-two members this year. Last spring members constructed a concession stand for Veishea. The week end before classes began fall quarter, the fellowship had "Welcome Week end" for new students. Meetings are held Sunday evenings for supper and fellowship.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is an interdenominational Christian organization. Meetings are held every Thursday evening in the Memorial Union. These weekly meetings include films, speakers, panels and debates, and songs. The group feels fortunate that faculty members opened their homes for various evening seminars and parties.

Gamma Delta, whose membership totals 125, is the International Association of Lutheran Students. Meetings are held each Sunday evening at the Memorial Lutheran Church and include vespers, supper, and a program. The name of the organization, Gamma Delta, comes from the first letter of the two Greek words "gnosis," meaning knowledge and "diakonia," meaning service. Members run a Veishea stand annually. Money earned goes into the projects fund. This past year an upright freezer was purchased for the Memorial Lutheran Church. Other projects are the continued growth of a record library and the supporting of the international project of making a film about Gamma Delta. Martin Weiss served as president this year and the Reverend W. J. Fields was adviser to the organization.

University Lutheran Congregation

The Lutheran Student Association was organized in 1922. Members strive to serve God through study, fellowship, service, and worship. Another purpose of the association is to help continue the Christian growth of students while they are in college. "The Angelos," Lutheran Student Association newspaper, is published monthly by and for members. The group also sponsors an annual smorgasbord supper. LSA earns money at Veishea with a concession stand. During the year the students work with children from the Lutheran Children's Home in Ames. The Lutheran Student Center is always open to students seeking a place to study or just relax for a while by listening to the hi-fi or watching television.

Newman Club

Approximately 700 people belong to Newman Club, a national organization for Catholic students. This organization is designed to aid its members in three areas — religious, educational, and social development. In April Newman Club gave a semi-formal dance, "Moods for Moderns," and had an "Au Revoir Steak Fry" at the state 4-H camp in May. The year's activities were concluded with the Senior Banquet. Various mixers and parties are sponsored each quarter. Coffee hours are held in the church lounge every week day from 3:30 to 5 p.m., followed by Rosary and Mass. The fall quarter social highlight was the "Blue Moon Dance," held at the student center. The same day, October 22, was Leadership Day for all Newman clubs of the Iowa region. President of Newman Club was Dave Welp. Other officers included John Vanderheider, vice-president; Mary Merkel, secretary; and Earlene Goodman, treasurer. Adviser is the Reverend James Supple.

"MYSTICA," translated the "process of having a good time," was the theme of the Newman Club dance January 7.

Wesley Foundation

Wesley Foundation is the Methodist Student Movement at state universities. The foundation gives the student a chance to realize what Christ means in his life. At Iowa State Wesley Foundation includes all programs of the Collegiate Methodist Church that are for students. The organization of Wesley Foundation is divided into four large groups. These are Wesley Fellowship, for single undergraduate students; Graduate Fellowship, for single graduate students; the D.D.T.'s (Discuss and Develop Thoughts) for all married students without children; and the Mr. and Mrs. Club, for married students with children. Some of the many services of Wesley are midweek worship and communion, study groups which discuss a variety of subjects, cell groups, a drama group, and daily coffee hours. Available for use at Wesley are a library, a study room and a student lounge. Above all Wesley helps students to make their commitment to Christ real in daily life.

YWCA

The little red calendar books so familiar on campus this year were just one of the projects of the YWCA. The "Y" was especially active in the area of international friendship. It gave a reception for international women and cosponsored a fall outing with the YMCA for international students. Also it held the Freshman Camp together with the YMCA. Later in September the YWCA sponsored a Recreation Night in the women's gym. Approximately 300 joined in the swimming, volleyball, dancing, and other activities planned. As a community service project, the "Y" sponsors a Campfire and Bluebird group at Wilson School in Ames. Members also visit handicapped children and shut-ins. The group, which meets informally throughout the week, had 300 members. Through study and action, "Y" members strive to become more aware of themselves, the world, and their faith in God.

YMCA

ABOUT FIFTY-FIVE FRESHMEN and eighteen upperclassman counselors attended the twenty-ninth annual freshman "Y" camp before school started. Its theme was "Be yourself."

Members of the YMCA were busy this fall even before classes began with the Freshman Y Camp held at Boone September 4 to 6. Woodcutter's Ball and a work day to repair the YMCA's Lynn Fuhrer Lodge were held in October. Foreign merchandise brought to the campus and sold by the YMCA at its annual International Gift Fair provided profit to be used for the campus program as well as enough to send one third of the money to help "Y" work in other countries. Conferences, study groups and fire-sides are held at the "Y" throughout the year. The YMCA at Iowa State is a fellowship of students and faculty members, who by study, worship and service seek to understand Christ and in his spirit to serve their fellow men. President this year was Bryce Redington. George Torrey was vice-president.

Order of the Sextant

The largest project of the Order of the Sextant is sponsoring the annual Navy Ball. The organization this year also redecorated the Navy library and built a bulletin board for the unit hall. Eligibility for membership is based on a naval class scholastic grade point of 2.75 and a naval aptitude mark of 3.25. This year Sextant had a membership of 42 midshipmen. Members meet on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. The purpose of the organization is to unite its members socially and to promote esprit de corps in the unit. It also hopes to impart greater knowledge and understanding of the Navy, its customs, and its principles to members. Order of the Sextant cooperates with other Naval Reserve associations in advancing interest in naval service. Leading the organization this year were Robert Atwater, commanding officer, Gerald Luzum as executive secretary, Richard Bina as ship's secretary, and Orville Thompson as disbursing officer. Adviser was Lieutenant-Commander Earl Stein.

Pershing Rifles

Pershing Rifles is a national military honorary which was organized in 1891. The grade point requirement for membership is 2.00. Pledges are accepted and initiated on the merits of their military leadership and bearing. The purposes of the organization are to foster a spirit of friendship and cooperation among men in the military department and to maintain a highly efficient drill company. This year members of Pershing Rifles provided the color guard at basketball games, raised money by selling programs at Veishea, and marched in the Armed Forces Parade in Des Moines. Another activity of the members of Pershing Rifles was presenting the color guard during Veishea. Also, they helped sponsor the Military Ball. The Iowa State University unit of the national organization was activated in 1949.

Football . . . 7-3 season gives Iowa State its best two-year record

Iowa State's Cyclones finished the 1960 grid season with a 7-3 record, equaling 1959's Dirty Thirty and giving the school the best two-year football record in its history. The Cyclones under dynamic young Head Coach Clay Stapleton took fourth place in the conference with a 4-3 record. Dave Hoppmann and Tom Watkins, the twin terrors of the Cyclone single-wing attack, together accounted for 1,532 yards to dominate Big Eight rushing statistics. Hoppmann, a sophomore, set the pace with 844 yards net gain on 161 carries. Their combined yardage was greater than the season's entire rushing offense of either Nebraska or Kansas State. It was also 73 per cent of Iowa State's over-all rushing total. Both Hoppmann and Watkins were named to several All-American teams and received honorable mention on others.

Battling Cyclone squad clinches fourth place in expanded league with 4-3 conference record

The Cyclones opened the football season by walloping the Drake Bulldogs 46-0 at Ames. The Cyclones featured a hard, fast rush in the line and at least four fast, hard-running backs. In their second outing, the Cyclones humbled the University of Detroit 44-21 at Detroit as both teams ignored defensive strategy and concentrated on moving the ball. Dave Hoppmann was the difference, racking up 234 yards rushing and 96 more in the air to break the one-game total offense record of 269 set by Dwight Nichols. At their conference opener the Cyclones edged Nebraska 10-7 at Lincoln. Tom Watkins scored the lone Iowa State touchdown with Cliff Rick converting. Larry Schreiber, sophomore end, kicked a 39-yard field goal to ice the game. All was not rosy though as the Cyclones tumbled before their second conference foe, Kansas, 28-14. Playing without the services of injured Dave Hoppmann, the Cyclones found it impossible to overcome two quick Kansas scores in the first quarter. Watkins scored both touchdowns for the Cyclones.

TOM WATKINS PUSHES back a mound of Oklahoma players to score the touchdown Iowa State gridgers have dreamed about. His six-inch plunge provided the points to beat the Sooners.

It took 29 years, longer than the age of any of the players on the 1960 Iowa State football team, to get the job done, but Coach Clay Stapleton and a hard-fighting Cyclone team knocked off Oklahoma by a 10-6 margin. A sad string of 28 games passed since the Cyclones had last defeated Oklahoma in 1931, but they did it by the not so simple process of rising in the second half and ramming the ball down the Sooners' throats. A 38-yard field goal in the third quarter by sophomore end Larry Schreiber and a one-yard dive over left guard by senior fullback Tom Watkins with three minutes left in the game dealt Coach Bud Wilkinson his third Big Eight Conference defeat since he took over in 1947. Tom Watkins climaxed the electrifying game with the Cyclones' lone touchdown as he scored from the six-inch line. Cliff Rick dependently converted to give the Cyclones their most important and gratifying victory of the season. The game had barely ended when Cyclone reserves had Coach Stapleton up on a mass of shoulders. A crowd of 18,000 that had been fulminating most of the exciting fourth quarter swept onto the field. The steel goal posts, as tough as Oklahoma tackles used to be, were down in minutes.

Cyclone football had a tendency to go "down hill" following the Nebraska game and continued to do so in the Kansas game. Homecoming saw the team slip still more as it was dealt a resounding 21-6 defeat at the hands of Colorado. Buffalo power up the middle proved to be too much for the lighter Cyclones, and the loss was a grave disappointment for the 20,000 fans who watched the game. The Cyclones' best effort wasn't good enough the following Saturday as Missouri's Tigers combined a dazzling running attack with a tough defense to overwhelm Iowa State 34-8. Getting back into the win column was no easy matter, but the Cyclones finally turned the trick as they out-pointed Oklahoma State 13-6. Tom Watkins drew praise from Coach Clay Stapleton following the game. "There is no question in my mind that Tom is the greatest running back in the country," he said. "I have never seen a man as hard to bring down as Watkins." The 180-pound fullback scored both touchdowns for the victory. Oklahoma and Kansas State were the next conference victims of the Cyclones. The local team put on a show of power in the fourth quarter to beat K-State 20-7. While the Wildcats were keeping close watch on Tom Watkins, tailback Dave Hoppman ran wild, picking up 197 yards in the game. The season's final game saw Iowa State beat College of the Pacific 14-6.

Basketball . . . one-basket losses drop cagers to sixth place

MARV STRAW ELUDES Drake's Jerry Foster to score. Iowa State eked out a one-point victory in its first game with the Bulldogs.

Iowa State's basketball team started the 1960-61 season with a blaze of glory as it won three of the first four games. The team stayed in the first division of the Big Eight Conference for much of the early season. However, the punch did not last long, and the team finally dropped into sixth place by season's end. The team won 12 games and lost 13. Against conference foes the squad finished with an 8-9 record while it split even, 4-4, with nonconference foes. In six of the 13 losses, however, the margin of loss was less than two points. The total number of points compiled in these six losses amounted to only eleven points. The same weakness plagued the squad as it had in the past few seasons—it didn't have consistent shooter or shooters who could battle evenly with other top Big Eight scorers. The loss of 1960 sophomore sensation Vinnie Brewer severely hurt the team. Brewer had been the 1960 leading scorer.

*Veteran Gary Wheeler is speedster,

Coach Glendon Anderson molded the 1960 Cyclone squad around two veterans, forward Henry Whitney and guard Gary Wheeler. In various combinations, Jay Murrell, Marv Straw, and Gary Kleven saw action at the forward positions; Terry Roberts, Bob Stoy, and Sam Barnard worked at center; and John Ptacek, Nick Bruno, Glen Mente, and Dave Groth were at the guards. Probably the highlight games of the season were the two encounters with arch-rival Drake University. In the first game at the Armory, Iowa State squeezed by 71-70 although Drake controlled the ball for the last 35 seconds and had several chances to score. In the second contest, at Veterans Auditorium in Des Moines, the Bulldogs bested the Cyclones in an over-time thriller 83-81. Oddly enough it seemed that the Cyclones were at their best when they performed in losing efforts. For instance they scored 82 points while losing to the University of Missouri by a 13 point margin. In other losses they scored 81 and 80 points. Finest scoring burst was provided in the season opener when the cagers walloped the University of Wisconsin 88-76. In the Big Eight tournament at Kansas City during the Christmas holidays, the team took third place. It won the opening game by topping Missouri 72-68, lost to Kansas in the second game 76-72, and beat Oklahoma 67-55 in the consolation game.

JOHN PTACEK eyes the basket, anticipating his next move. The lanky guard held down a starting berth most of the season.

HENRY WHITNEY ARCHES a jumper over Drake's Marv Torrance. The Cyclones went on to win the game in one of the most hair-raising finishes ever witnessed at the Armory.

GUARD GARY WHEELER outmaneuvers his opponent to score for the Cyclones. The Wildcats edged ISU in two season encounters by a total of three points.

MARV STRAW GOES HIGH for a tip-in in the Colorado game.

Henry Whitney led Iowa State scorers and rebounders during the 1960-61 season and in the process he broke two records which most Cyclone sports fans hadn't expected to fall for many years to come. Whitney became the best Cyclone forward ever by way of the scoring columns as he poured in 434 points during the season. This raised his career total to 711. Whitney's record replaced that of John Crawford of the 1958 Cyclone team. He carried a 17.4 average per game. The lanky 6-7 forward also became the best rebounder in Cyclone history as he grabbed 302 rebounds or 12 per game. Whitney was selected to the all Big Eight first team, a fine tribute to a topnotch Cyclone basketball player. He also was selected as the top draft choice of Chicago's new professional basketball team. The Chicago team then traded him to Cleveland in a pre-season package deal.

ANOTHER LOOSE BALL? No, it's the bottom of the bounce and Sam Barnard is heading for the basket.

STRAINING for the rebound is Henry Whitney. The lanky Cyclone forward led the basketball team in rebounds and was selected to the all Big Eight team.

Coach Glendon Anderson, in his second year as Cyclone varsity mentor, has an over-all record of 27 wins and 22 losses. A student of former Cyclone Coach Bill Strannigan, Anderson is wasting no time in building the Cyclone basketball program into one of the strongest in the Big Eight. Anderson came to Iowa State as freshman coach in 1956 and became head coach following the 1959 season. Assisting Anderson is Bob Lamson, a former Cyclone football and basketball star. Lamson returned to Iowa State in 1949 and has been an assistant coach since. A new face at Iowa State is freshman basketball coach Frank Gompert. Under Gompert, the 1960-61 freshmen earned a 2-2 record.

Wrestling . . . 1961 Cyclone matmen are winningest ever

The Iowa State wrestling team ended the season with third place in the NCAA meet and a record of 13 victories, one tie, and two losses in dual meets. An old dual record of 12 wins was set in 1960. Heavyweight Jan Schwitters paced the squad as he remained undefeated in dual competition. The agile senior won 14 straight matches in addition to taking third place in the Big Eight tournament. Don Webster, a 115-pounder and a consistent performer throughout the season, won a first-place berth at the tournament at Norman, Oklahoma. Another outstanding performer was Big Eight and NCAA champion Larry Hayes. A successful defense of the 147-pound crown at the NCAA meet made Hayes the first Cyclone to earn an NCAA crown three consecutive years. Big Eight teams dominated the meet.

THREE-TIME NCAA champion Larry Hayes attempts to roll his opponent into a pinning position. Hayes was selected as captain of the Cyclone mat team. A slow starter at the beginning of the season, Hayes ended his collegiate career with a string of victories.

CYCLONE DICK SMITH easily handles an opponent during the Mankato State match.

HEAD COACH HAROLD NICHOLS, himself a former Big Ten and NCAA champion, led the Cyclone matmen through another successful season. In his eight years at Iowa State, Nichols' teams have won 78 dual matches, lost 14, and tied 5.

VIRGIL CARR gets an escape the hard way as he jerks out from under his opponent. Carr, a sophomore, had an excellent season.

BOB DUVALL, a 177-pounder, reverses his man for two points in a dual meet. Duvall was one of the few returning lettermen.

Iowa State's tankers came out on the long end of a grueling season as they compiled a 6-5 record. And in the Big Eight meet in Norman, Oklahoma, March 2-4, the Cyclones nabbed second place. The small team of Coach Jack McGuire turned in top performances all season long. Two big losses were to Michigan schools — 74-27 to Michigan and 64-31 to Michigan State. Denver University was the other big stumbling block, whipping the Cyclones 62-33. But McGuire's men showed ability to pile up the score too as they topped Kansas 65-38. They acquired 74 points in the Big Eight meet, second only to Oklahoma's 113. Kansas followed with 71, Colorado 45, Nebraska 39½, and Kansas State 11½. At the Big Eight meet all-events man Paul Witherell set new records in both the 200-yard medley and the 100-yard free style events. Other new conference records were set by Everett Pierce in the 100-yard back stroke and the 400-yard free style relay team.

Baseball . . . Capture second place on late-season burst

RALPH STAUDTE SCORES as Doug Meyer gives the "stand up" signal. ISU later scored three more to beat Colorado.

LOCKER AND LOCKER sideswipe as they pursue a foul tip down the third base line.

Iowa State's baseball team enjoyed a successful season as it won 14 games and lost 9. The record was good enough to give the men of Coach Cap Timm second place in the Big Eight Conference. The Cyclones fared better against conference foes than they did against nonconference foes. Conference play saw them finish with a 12-6 record, one-half game back of Big Eight champion Oklahoma State. Nonconference play saw Minnesota put the hex on the Cyclones as they lost the opening three games of the season. Iowa Teachers and Drake were defeated by Iowa State 17-1 and 17-5 to give the Cyclones a 2-3 nonconference mark. Top Cyclone hurlers were Ken Green and Bob A. Locker. Big guns at the plate were catcher Bob Locker, third baseman Ron Locker, outfielders Doug Meyer, Larry Van Der Heyden, and Dave Lewis.

ANOTHER RUN APPEARS SURE as Ron Locker races home against Colorado's Buffalos. The fleet infielder completed his third year on the varsity.

SHORTSTOP BOB BATEMAN tries to score ISU's seventh run against Colorado in the first home game, but is thrown out at the plate. The Cyclones won the first of a three-game series, 9-4.

Crucial series of the season was the last when Iowa State met league-leading Oklahoma State in a battle for the Big Eight title. To win the conference crown the Cyclones had to sweep the series. The Cowboys, defending national champions, went into the series sporting an 11-3 conference record compared to Iowa State's 11-5 mark. Pitcher Ken Green threw a brilliant two-hitter for a 4-0 shutout victory to put the Cyclones within striking range of the crown. The second game proved to be a real heartbreaker for the Cyclones. The score was knotted at 3 apiece when Larry Van Der Heyden stole home with two out in the sixth inning. Oklahoma State scored two runs in the top half of the seventh. The Cyclones stormed back and scored, sending the game into extra innings. In the bottom of the eighth, Iowa State loaded the bases but was unable to push a run across. The Cowboys collected five runs in the top of the ninth to cinch the crown. The final score was 10-5.

Track . . . Thinclads suffer disappointing season

HARLAN MILLIKEN and Karl Brown give winded teammate Ron Hill their congratulations.

Iowa State suffered a disappointing track season as the Cyclone thinclads failed to win in three dual meets and two indoor meets. Closest the Cyclones came to a win was against Drake during the outdoor season when the Bulldogs won $55\frac{1}{2}$ - $49\frac{1}{2}$. The thinclads, coached by Phil Delavan, still had some outstanding performances. John Darby did well in the distances as did Dick Pilgrim at high jump and shot put. Each man made several wins in individual events.

Burl Berry's cross country team finished an average season, placing fourth in the Big Eight Conference Meet and second in a triangular meet with Drake and Nebraska. The team dropped its only two dual meets to Missouri and Minnesota. The loss of Captain Harlan Milliken almost at the start of the season hurt the team. He was out the entire school year with mononucleosis.

Golf . . . 8-2 mark shows fortunes are rising

COACH JACK MCGUIRE does double duty, serving as mentor for the Cyclone linkmen in addition to his swimming chores.

The Iowa State golf team had one of its most successful seasons in recent years as it finished with an 8-2 mark. Leading the way on the team were two veteran golfers, Buzz Basinger and Ben King. All showed great poise on the links and will form a solid core for next year's team. The team tied with Loras of Dubuque for first place in the Iowa Collegiate Golf Meet.

Cyclone Sabres

Cyclone Sabres is a fencing club founded in 1958. Members include thirty-five beginners taking it for physical education credit and about thirty-five regulars. Faculty adviser and fencing instructor is Captain William Thomas. Sabres this year became a member of the Amateur Fencers' League of America and also sponsored the Iowa divisional meet. Frank French coaches the collegiate team.

Cheerleaders

Bright new uniforms, new megaphones, and new shakers helped the cheerleaders build student enthusiasm at football and basketball games this year. After tryouts last spring, two men and eight women were chosen for the squad. Norma Wanek served as head cheerleader fall quarter, and Jackie Hash took over this responsibility during basketball season.

Bolstering and directing school spirit and giving incentive to athletic teams are the purposes of Pep Council. It sponsored the migration to Lincoln, Nebraska, on October 1 where exultant Cyclone supporters saw Iowa State come out on top by a score of 10-7. The Council also planned a migration to Des Moines for the second game with Drake, which saw the Cyclones lose a thrilling ball game. Pep Council also sponsors banquets for the athletic teams. Every week a representative of Pep Council and the coaches vote for an athlete-of-the-week. From the men earning this weekly award is chosen, by a student-body vote spring quarter, the athlete-of-the-year, who receives a trophy. At Veisheathon festivities on the Thursday night of Veishea Dwight Nichols accepted this honor last year. Pep Council was reorganized in the spring of 1958 to include the 630 Club. The council has about forty-five members, including the cheerleaders. Other members are chosen through interviews the last part of winter quarter.

A WINNING STREAK at the start of the football season aroused student enthusiasm and brought a crowd to this Friday evening pep rally, backed by Pep Council.

WAA

Women's Athletic Association is open to all women on campus. Clubs within this group include such activities as bowling, camp counseling, and modern dancing. New clubs organized this year were Rifley Club and Trampoline Club. WAA also sponsored women's intramurals and Co-Rec Nights, when women and their dates could play badminton, volleyball, or table tennis, for example, in Women's Gym.

Women's 'I' Fraternity

Women's "I" Fraternity is an honorary service organization of the Women's Athletic Association. To become a member a woman must have received an athletic "I" award for WAA participation, have a 2.2 all-college average, and be approved by active members and faculty. As a service project the women this year played basketball with high-school age girls at Woodward State Hospital.

Varsity "I" Club was created to bring closer relationships between the letter winners of the various sports at Iowa State, to promote better relationships between the athletes and the Athletic Department, and to establish recognition of athletes by students and faculty. To be eligible for membership, a letter winner must go through initiation the next initiation period after the letter is won. The club secretary notifies all letter winners of their eligibility. Projects this year included the "I" Club Carnival and a stand at Veishea. The "I" Club Carnival featured carnival-like booths which gave students a chance to try such skills as pie-throwing, "flipping-the-hoop" and knocking down a bowling pin with a ball suspended on a string. Also at the carnival Judy Swalve was crowned Varsity "I" queen. Varsity "I" Club has representatives on Athletic Council and Pep Council and members attend all athletic events to support the teams.

SPRING, SUNSHINE, and a game of softball are sure to bring fun and relaxation to intramural participants.

Women's Intramurals

About seven hundred women participated in nine different intramural sports this year. Activities offered were volleyball, table tennis, tennis, basketball, badminton, softball, golf, swimming, and bowling. The intramural program is scheduled and organized by members of Intramural Board, which includes three officers plus a representative from each of the women's residences and from Tau Gamma Ward. Heading the board this year as president was Dot Bergman. Helen Hamman was vice-president, and Elaine Broadbent served as secretary-treasurer. Capturing first place in the volleyball tournament was Gamma Phi Beta with Oak Hall placing second. Mary Richter won the table tennis singles, and Sheila Baldwin and Sharon McDonald were first in the doubles. Tennis singles was won by Barb Gowan, and doubles was won by Sheila Baldwin and Barb Gowan. First in basketball was Team 1 of East Linden. Pat Hibbs and Carole Lunde placed first in badminton doubles, and Helen Young won the singles. Gamma Phi Beta has been awarded the traveling trophy for points won in intramural participation for the past two years.

Men's Intramurals

TABLE TENNIS provides keen individual and doubles competition for participants in this fast-moving sport.

"Sports for all" has a familiar ring to the organizers and participants of men's intramurals. About 6,000 men were active this year in one or more of the twenty sports available. Undergraduate intramurals are organized on a residential basis resulting in automatic eligibility to participate. The graduate-staff division is organized on a departmental basis. Fraternities, the ward system, and the MRA houses select an intramural manager to represent them at their respective intramural councils. These councils participate in the formulation of the intramural program. An administrative board is made up of the president of each council with the director of intramurals to meet problems which interrelate among the three groups. Intramurals provide a voluntary recreational and competitive program for all.

BASKETBALL PARTICIPANTS outnumbered those in all other sports with 212 teams and 2,100 men. The Zoology-Entomology Graduate-Staff League won the Class A all-campus competition.

Soccer Club

The Soccer Club collected a two-one record in its first year with a 4-3 victory over Nebraska here, a 2-1 victory over Grinnell away, and a 0-2 loss to Nebraska away. Backbone of the team were Captain Gabor Vajda and goalie Art Lowe. Home games and practices take place on the women's intramural field, considered the best field in the region and one of the best fields in the country by team members. The club was organized in the spring of 1960 by Gabor Vajda and Alex Hershafft. Both the founders and most of the team members come from countries in which soccer occupies a role comparable to that of baseball, football, and basketball combined in the United States. A list of the countries of members' origin reads like a United Nations roll call: Liberia, Greece, Iran, Hungary, among others. The club's financial sponsor this year was Activities Governing Commission, which gave the group a $195 loan. Other help has come from the Athletic Department, the Women's Physical Education Department, Cosmopolitan Club, and the pockets of the team members. Soccer Club officers this year included Maarten Drost, president, and Mohamed Bousseta, secretary. Serving as adviser is Fred Beuttler.

Ward System

Ward System, comprised of Tau Gamma, East, South, Southwest, and Northwest wards, provides a unique means by which students living off campus can feel more affiliated with a specific organized group on campus. These five individual factions hold separate ward meetings every other Monday night to transact necessary business. Fall quarter ward members spent a work afternoon painting and repairing ward bulletin boards. A weiner roast followed. Each winter the Ward System, along with the MRA and WRA, sponsors the "Sweethearts Ball," and each spring it has a semiformal party. Tau Gamma, the women's ward, placed first in the all-university scholarship rankings again this fall. This fall they also held an annual "WRA-Ward Roundup" in the form of a sock-hop to let the two groups become better acquainted.

Women's Residence Association

The Women's Residence Association unites and governs the women in the residence halls. Each of the eight women's dormitories has a complete set of house officers who are elected by and preside over their particular residence. The dormitory presidents also serve on the WRA Executive Board. The WRA Executive Board is the main governing body of the WRA and is headed by a president and a vice-president elected by members of the women's residence halls. This year Carol Robuck was president and Beverly Datisman was vice-president. A WRA Executive Board committee interviews the applicants and then chooses the girls to fill the other positions: secretary, treasurer, adviser chief, scholarship chairman, activities chairman, public relations director, and social chairman. The WRA's two Cardinal Guild representatives also serve on Executive Board.

Birch Hall's Homecoming display featured a beatnik theme with the title "Man Like Colo's Beat." The display was made more realistic by the use of beatnik music in the background. Birch Hall's entry for Varieties was a take-off on "South Pacific" and was called "South LaVerne." Veishea found the women of Birch busy decorating their "Golden Touch" float using golden napkins and golden roses to show King Midas and his daughter. Birch Hall women also worked together to place second in the over-all intramural competition. Social life included exchanges for watermelon busts, miniature golf, bowling, dinner and dances, and firesides. The women also held a gala Christmas party. A parents' tea and an open house were held in the spring for parents, dates, and friends. In the fall the corridors of Birch held a "Corridor-Hop" during which each corridor was decorated and the women became acquainted while visiting each other's corridors.

ELM TOOK second at Homecoming with its display.

Elm Hall

Women moving into Elm found a welcoming tea awaiting them on registration day fall quarter. In November Elm also held a tea for parents in addition to the annual Homecoming open house. At Homecoming the women won second place in the WRA for their lawn display. They built a delightful contemporary card which opened to show a big Cyclone football player stepping on a little Colorado player. Earlier spring quarter they collected another second place in SorDor competition. That same quarter they were Dames Daze date champions. Activities which continued throughout the year included individual and team intramurals and about a dozen exchanges a quarter. Other social events sprinkled throughout the year included a traditional December fireside, corridor Christmas parties, caroling, a dorm birthday party, and a Valentine's party. Seasonal decorations were put up in the dining room for this occasion, and the evening was filled with dancing, games, and refreshments. Also in February the women earned funds for charity with their Blast booth, "Ye Old Barber Shop," where a steady hand was needed to shave balloons.

CHICKEN WIRE, newspaper, and imagination are the ingredients for Freeman's Homecoming display, "Pick 'Em to Pizzas."

For the third year in a row Freeman Hall's Veishea float won the first-place trophy in the WRA division. The float was based on Hans Christian Anderson's fairy tale, "The Nightingale." The two-rack float included a costumed Japanese couple and a small house. Also spring quarter a tea was held for Freeman's housemother, Mrs. Ruth Cowles. During the year Freeman women enjoyed many kinds of exchanges including a dinner, dances, football games, and miniature golf. Their Homecoming display was a huge "Cy" dressed as a chef holding a buffalo-meat pizza. It was captioned "Pick 'Em to Pizzas." A week before Halloween each girl was assigned a secret pal. She did favors and gave small gifts to this pal until Halloween night when she revealed her identity. For Parent's Week end in early November, Freeman Hall invited parents to a tea and an open house after the football game. A welcomed addition to Freeman Hall was a new laundry room. Dancing, popping corn, caroling, and decorating the tree were enjoyed by the women and their dates at the annual dorm Christmas party. Corridor Christmas parties were also held. Each corridor planned its own party and had its own gift exchange.

East Linden Hall

"RAGGEDY ANN AND ANDY" won the second-place trophy for East Linden Hall in the WRA Veishea float division.

It was a busy and winning year for East Linden Hall! It topped all dormitory scholarship every quarter. In the spring "Raggedy Ann and Andy" earned the women second place in WRA Veishea float competition. Winter quarter the basketball team emerged from intramural play as champions for the second straight year. The East Linden Varieties skit, "Blue Willow Plate," was announced the winner for the night it was presented. The women drew on a Chinese myth for a tale of starcrossed love. East Linden women worked together on an array of other activities. They participated in SorDor, the Blast, and Homecoming display competition. "No Football Blues at ISU" proclaimed the display, which showed a huge, smiling football. After the unhappy game anonymous persons removed the first word and changed the smile to a frown! The women also enjoyed a full social schedule. In May they cooperated with West Linden Hall to give "Bon Fortune," a dance based on a good-luck theme. At Veishea and again at Homecoming the women held open house. Other traditional events included a Christmas Party, White Breakfast, also during the holiday season, a dormitory birthday celebration, and rose dinners.

WEST LINDEN WOMEN listen to violin music as part of their Christmas season "White Breakfast," a dormitory tradition.

West Linden Hall

West Linden Hall's Homecoming display won first place in the women's residence division this year. The slogan was "We Can Swing It — Beat Colorado." The display featured "Cy" in a swing suspended from goalposts. As "Cy" swung, he kicked the Colorado buffalo. On Parent's Day the women were proud to display their dorm because during the summer the interior had been completely repainted and new furniture had been put in the lounges. This year the West Linden women raised money for Campus Chest by hiring themselves out to Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity to cook and serve breakfast. Appropriate dishes were served to carry out an Hawaiian theme. West Linden women were busy throughout the year with Sor-Dor, intramurals and exchanges that were held for dinner, football games, and dances. Pleasant weather for the spring formal made it possible for the dance to be held outside on the Linden terrace, facing LincolnWay. The formal's theme, "Bon Fortune," was carried out with good-luck charms such as silver horseshoes, four-leaf clovers, and giant lucky pennies.

Oak Hall

OAK RESIDENTS STOP to admire the dorm Christmas tree, which the women decorated at an after-hours get-together.

"Majesty and Roses" was the theme for the Oak Hall dinner-dance in April. The Skylarks provided music for dancing with Marlene Deaver as soloist. Pearl tie-tacs were given to the women's dates. In December a Christmas party was held in the Rec Room. The dance and games were planned around a ski lodge theme. The Christmas tree was decked with gifts for the needy and underprivileged. Open houses were held during Homecoming, Veishea, and Parents' Day. A special open house was held for high school seniors during Veishea. The Oak Hall women enjoyed working together on their Homecoming display and Varieties and singing for serenades and Sor-Dor. They also had fun participating in sports with other residences on campus. The women also enjoyed listening to the music from their new stereophonic record player. This past year two of the women were highly honored. Anne Shimek was tapped for Mortar Board and Sharon Cose was an attendant of the Veishea Queen.

Roberts Hall

Wearing black-and-white gingham dresses which they made themselves, and carrying red bouquets, Roberts Hall women were a colorful sight as they performed in Sor-Dor. Spring also found the women constructing their Veishea float, "Alice in Veishealand." A new housemother, Mrs. Margaret Paustian, was welcomed to Roberts Hall when school began in the fall. Incoming freshman at Roberts Hall were also greeted by a get-acquainted party planned by the advisers. Its theme was "Rhythm in Roberts." A program was followed by refreshments. Parents were honored at an open house, held Parents' Week end after the football game. Another social event for Roberts Hall women was a special fireside which they hope will become an annual tradition. Just before Christmas the women played Santa Claus by individually contributing toys which were sent to the Iowa Children's Home in Des Moines. Filling out the year was enthusiastic participation in intramurals. Fun and several second-place awards rewarded the women for their efforts. Honors also came to Roberts Hall when six women were invited to join Beacons, sophomore WRA honorary.

Welch Hall

WELCH HALL WOMEN and their mothers enthusiastically applaud at an after-hours spread held during Mother's Week end.

At Veishea, Welch Hall topped all other campus residences to win sweepstakes in the canoe race competition. The women earned another spring honor by placing first in the dormitory division of Sor-Dor. Still an additional award came to the dorm when the women won the first-place trophy for freshman women's scholarship. In the fall the women worked together to build a Homecoming display featuring a fierce-looking black octopus pushing back a buffalo. The theme was "We Octopus 'Em Back." Welch Hall women were also active in all-university activities. Sigma Alpha Iota, Phi Upsilon Omicron, and Beacons claimed Welch Hall members. Also Welch Hall was the proud residence for the Homecoming Queen, American Dairy Princess, Harvest Ball Queen, and Milkmaid Princess. Guests were welcomed in Welch Hall, especially during the fall quarter Alumni Tea and during Mothers' Week end. During the latter, the mothers stayed in the dorm Friday and Saturday evenings, visited classes with their daughters, and joined in the fun of parties and spreads. For such special events, the "Welch Hall Welcomes You" sign was put up to greet visitors.

Men's Residence Association

The Men's Residence Association consists of 40 houses in Friley-Hughes, Helser, and Westgate Halls and includes 2,200 men. Winter quarter a 10-man slate is elected to govern for the following spring, fall, and winter quarters. These men take over the administrative functions of the MRA and serve as Executive Council, headed this year by President LeRoy Greenley. The external vice-president serves with the Cardinal Guild representative on Senate. Others on the council act in the capacities of secretary and treasurer and in the areas of internal affairs, social, intramurals, activities, and public relations. The Men's Residence Association was formed to provide opportunities for the individual to expand his interests and abilities.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL MEMBERS Tom Hawk and Butch Reber discuss coming events with LeRoy Greenley, president of the MRA.

Main Cabinet

Main Cabinet, composed of a representative from each MRA House, is the "congress" of the Men's Residence Association. Besides having the important and necessary functions of legislation to orient improvements and initiate programs, Main Cabinet provides practical democracy as a debating forum for the exchange of ideas. Thorough reorganization in the past year served to clarify and separate the duties of the administrative and legislative branches of MRA government. This body's main business is concerned with the $17,000 income of the MRA and its effective use. Most of it is spent in the MRA's extensive intramural activities, and social programs. These supplement house programs, but emphasis remains on individual participation. Tom Hawk, internal vice-president, presided over the weekly meetings until winter quarter, when Main Cabinet decided to select a chairman from its members.

THE MAIN CABINET chairman consults the agenda for the next item of business during a weekly session. A new constitution and set of bylaws passed this year clarified Main Cabinet's responsibilities and will increase its effectiveness.

JACK MICHAELSON of Student Council speaks to Presidential Forum concerning Religion-In-Life Week.

Presidential Forum

LeROY GREENLEY, president of the MRA, consults with his secretary before opening the weekly Presidential Forum.

Presidential Forum is an informal gathering where the 40 house presidents of the MRA meet to discuss better ways of serving the men of their houses and discuss house problems and programs. This was the first full year of forum with bi-weekly meetings in the spring and weekly meetings in the fall and winter. Discussion topics have included orientation programs, social programs, conduct procedure, house president-head resident relationships, house meetings, and house activities and projects. The forum often includes a talk by a member of Executive Council or someone familiar with a particular project. Its goal is to develop more effective house presidents and strengthen the house system of residence hall government.

Head Residents

A head resident is an upperclassman who has shown outstanding leadership ability and who has been chosen on the basis of references, formal interviews, and psychological tests. MRA head residents perform a wide array of duties. A head resident lives in each of the 40 houses, and his responsibilities include giving advice and information ranging from social to educational matters, assisting the house officers, and acting as disciplinarian if necessary. In general his obligation is to be of service to the men of the house. The head residents serve as the administrative links between the Department of Residence and the houses. The program in its present form began about 13 years ago.

GETTING TOGETHER for discussion, these head residents work on coordinating the Department of Residence and their houses.

MAKING COLLEGE seem more like home are the four MRA resident advisers, Mrs. Gesler, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Martin, and Mrs. Thul.

MRS. KATHRYN THUL seems to ponder the strategy of a lead as the resident advisers enjoy an afternoon of bridge.

Resident Advisers

The four resident advisers of the Men's Residence Association are affectionately known as "housemothers" to the men of the MRA. Their formal duties include the operation and supervision of the unit desks and acting as advisers to such MRA organizations as Library Board and Social Council. However, the men appreciate them most for their ability to give college life a touch of home. A resident adviser is always available to give advice on social etiquette, to do personal counseling, or just to take part in an informal chat in the dining hall or in her room. The advisers are Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. Marie Gesler, Mrs. Cecil Martin, and Mrs. Kathryn Thul.

DR. CHARLES FRILEY, former Iowa State president whose bust is in the foreground, donated 1,550 volumes to the library.

MRA Library

Three thousand volumes of both fiction and non-fiction, plus current issues of 20 magazines, crowd the shelves of the MRA library. The reading material is valued at approximately $10,000 and is used extensively by the residents of the MRA. The library had been in use several years before it was given Dr. Charles Friley's personal collection after his death in 1959. This collection included about 1,550 volumes, some of which dated back to the 1790's. This addition doubled the number of volumes in the library. Donations from faculty and students began the library in about 1950. The library is financed by appropriations from the MRA and occasionally receives donations from individuals on campus. This year Mrs. Mary Baker, a resident adviser, donated over 20 volumes. Positions on the library board are obtained through application and interview. The library, located adjacent to Stange House on ground floor, is open for browsing and studying evenings during the week and Sunday afternoon and evening.

Toastmasters Club

Improvement in speaking ability is the aim of Toastmasters Club. The fifteen members meet weekly in the Friley Conference Room, discuss business, and give speeches in three categories: table topics, toastmaster topics, and general speeches. At each meeting a trophy is passed to the best speaker of the evening. The man who has won this traveling trophy most during the year is given a permanent trophy at the Toastmasters annual banquet. This year the spring banquet featured a talk by Dr. John Schlebecker. Guests and evaluative speakers are often invited to Toastmasters meetings. The activities chairman of the MRA is the link between Toastmasters Club and the MRA organization. Toastmasters Club was led by President George Ham. Serving as secretary-treasurer was John Eno.

WITH THE CLUB'S traveling trophy before him, a member of Toastmasters takes his turn at speaking at a weekly meeting.

DISK JOCKEYS play music appropriate to the time of day. Records are chosen from about 800 albums and 3,500 r.p.m.'s.

KMRI

A staff of 35 runs the ISU campus radio station, KMRI, which reaches all on-campus halls tuned to 880. KMRI broadcasts music, news, and announcements during the evening, while during the day the station broadcasts WHO-FM from Des Moines. KMRI boasts a record library of approximately 800 albums and 3,500 r.p.m.'s. The music chosen to be played is suited to the time of day with popular music following dinner and proper mood music for "study hall." KMRI runs remote broadcasts from campus for special events such as the all-college nominating convention and interesting happenings in the MRA. The station is located in Friley Hall opposite the Terrace Room. The staff of KMRI is chosen through application and interview. Access to the wire service in the Service Building provide continual reports of current news happenings.

Reflector

The MRA Reflector exists primarily to "reflect" the news of the MRA to the men of the MRA. However, the Reflector, with a circulation of 1,500, is distributed to all residences on campus as well as to many alums. Copies are also sent to administrative officials. It is printed by the MRA Printing Service on a multigraph and its budget of about $1,800 is met by dues. The Reflector, run by students, provides journalistic opportunities for men who are interested in both reporting or expressing opinions.

MEMBERS of the Reflector staff busily write and edit opinions and news for the next edition.

MRA Camera Club

Any man in the MRA may belong to Camera Club. Members range from beginners with small Brownie cameras to professionals with graphic cameras. For the majority, photography is a hobby which can be developed by using the darkroom facilities in the Friley basement. Activities during the year included a "model-shoot," programs from film companies, a Veishea print contest with prizes awarded for the best prints, and the purchase of some new equipment.

REX LIU, vice-president of Weightlifters Club, and two other members support a 130-pound barbell owned by the club.

Weightlifters Club

Members of Weightlifters Club compete in meets within the club and in bimonthly meets in Sioux City with weight-lifters from surrounding states. About 350 men belong to the club. Weightlifters Club has about 1,500 pounds in weights, valued at $750, in its room in the south unit of Friley Hall. The club awards two trophies to members during the year. One is given for progress and the other on the basis of work in the club.

RAISING a weight above his head, this member works toward the club goal of competitive weight-lifting.

Bennett House

DON GIFFORD and Eugene Brunk put up a poster asking for support in the house elections during winter quarter.

Combining the Halloween season with a popular comic strip, "Peanuts," Bennett House men joined with Niles House to give "The Great Pumpkin" on October 29. The men and their dates trekked to the 4-H Camp near Boone for the informal party. Decorations in the lodge carried out the theme. Also on the Bennett House social calendar were exchanges, house dinners, open houses, and picnics in the spring and during freshman Orientation Days in the fall. Also popular with the men were such unscheduled functions as pizza parties, games of bridge during study breaks, and bull sessions. Despite these activities the men brought Bennett House up seven notches in the Men's Residence Association scholarship rankings between spring and fall quarters. In April the men gave "Stardust" at the Indian Creek Country Club. They won first place for costumes in the Veishea canoe race and had the fastest time in the time trials. Gary Putman, the head resident, was tapped for Order of Chessman. In spring volleyball intramurals, Bennett was runner-up to the all-university champions to conclude a busy quarter.

The enthusiasm of the residents of Beyer House was channeled this year to the Homecoming game where the men and their dates sat in a block and organized their own cheers to support "Big Red." The men also participated enthusiastically in intramurals with a softball team, two volleyball teams, two football teams, and a bowling team. Socially, the men of Beyer House enjoyed various exchanges, such as the ones in the fall with student nurses from the Mercy School in Des Moines and the Halloween party given with the Lutheran Nurses of Des Moines. On the scholastic side, Beyer House was in the top third of the MRA rankings. The alumni and present residents of Beyer House assemble annually on "Guy Fawkes Day." At the banquet on this day in 1960, Michael M. Klapp, a distinguished alumnus, conducted brief ceremonies. Beyer House men are proud of two new additions to their house. The new music room is one source of their pride. Also a bookcase was added as a memorial to Ken Evans, a former Beyer man who died in an automobile accident.

"LITTLE ABNER," with loyal Daisy Mae, took third-place for Beyer House in the MRA division of the Veishea parade.

The only pinball machine in Friley Hall is found in Caine House. Intramural events also provided recreation this year for the residents. Caine House participated in baseball, track, volleyball, wrestling, ping-pong, handball, swimming, and bowling. During freshman orientation a picnic exchange and a miniature golf exchange were held. Caine House sponsored a football exchange, an inside-games exchange, and a picnic exchange at the Ledges in the fall. A house date picnic was held at the Ledges in the spring. Caine House's Homecoming lawn display consisted of a twenty-five-foot diameter balloon with the theme "Let's Give Colorado a Ride." Caine House also participated in Veishea activities. A float-building exchange was held and four teams from Caine House entered the canoe races. Caine House sponsored a booth entitled "Caine's Brain" in the Campus Chest "Blast" winter quarter. Every quarter, the men of Caine House held a house dinner. Allen Beach served as president of the house.

Cessna House

This year Cessna House earned second place in the MRA scholarship listings. The men of Cessna House also put time and effort into not only being active but also doing well in intramurals. They captured the trophy for Class D basketball this year and entered all the other divisions of intramural sports. Although busy in other activities, the men of Cessna House enjoyed taking time out for various social activities. Standing high on their list of social successes was the Cessna House fall hayrack ride. The ride ended at Emma McCarthy Lee Park west of Ames. There the men and their dates built a huge campfire which provided a perfect conclusion for the evening—a wiener roast and an old-time group sing. Any average afternoon or evening of the past year would have found at least one table of men playing bridge and listening to the radio in the Cessna House den. Such were the favorite pastimes of the Cessna House men. Dennis King represented Cessna House as senator-at-large to Freshman Guild.

CESSNA HOUSE MEN and their dates find a hayrack ride a wonderful way to take advantage of wonderful fall weather.

WITH SHOTGUNS, boots, and eager anticipation these Chamberlain House men get ready for an afternoon of hunting.

The blue and white colors of Chamberlain House were carried in the Veishea canoe races. Unfortunately, they were carried out of the canoe into the water, but the men were undaunted and plotted revenge against Lake LaVerne for next year. Chamberlain House had an "Out of This World" dance spring quarter. This traditional spring party was held at the Larry Jo Ranch. Decorations included stars, planets, and sparkling "stardust." Music was provided by the "Campus Aires" combo. The men of Chamberlain House agreed that the house's program for its forty-four freshmen during Orientation Week this fall was very successful. This program included a guided tour of the campus, a softball game and picnic at Inis Grove Park, and a traditional watermelon bust with women from Welch Hall. The men continued having their outdoor parties throughout the year with picnics in the spring and fall and skating parties in the winter. The men also participated in all activities organized by the MRA.

Converse House

Watching "Maverick" and eating pizza on Sunday nights was one of the favorite activities this year in Converse House. The men welcomed alums, parents, and dates to their Homecoming open house. Awaiting the guests after the game were cookies and chocolate milk; and a completely decorated Converse House, adorned with crepe-paper streamers and polished doorknobs. Converse House men held various parties throughout the year. During fall quarter they had a hay-ride. Winter quarter a dance was held at the house. Converse men and their dates danced to the music of a band and enjoyed the skit given by men of the house. An exchange remembered by all was the tea-room dance held with the residents of Roberts Hall. Converse House participated in wrestling, bowling, swimming, and basketball intramurals. Although Converse House men's participation in social events and sports was high, there was also a strong emphasis placed on scholastic achievement. Converse House took pride in having a member in the Alpha Chi Sigma honorary this year. During the weeks before Christmas the men exchanged gifts and went on a caroling exchange.

Dodds House

BOB MCGUIRE and Dave Johnson, members of Dodds House Class A championship bowling team, relive their winning meet.

"Let Go Tar Baby" was the title of the Dodds House Veishea float which took fourth place in MRA competition. It featured a big bear, the central figure, ready to club Brer Rabbit, who was stuck to the tar baby. Dodds House men held their annual house picnic at the Ledges, where they enjoyed playing softball and football. The Dodds House party was held in the spring at the Holst Hotel in Boone. The party combined a "Spring Fever" theme with a night club atmosphere. Dodds House won the MRA Class A bowling championship for the second consecutive year. Dodds House now has a trophy for members' intramural winnings. During the fall, the men of Dodds House held several exchanges, including a hayride with girls from Ames and Des Moines and a house dinner. There were a variety of all-college activities participated in by the Dodds House men. Three of the men in the house were members of Tomahawk honorary. Dodds House has also had among its numbers an associate editor of the Iowa State Daily and co-managers of KMRI.

It was a wet Veishea for the two teams of Fairchild men who entered the canoe races. Both teams qualified for the finals, but ended up in the lake instead of at the finish line. That same quarter the men heard Dr. Gail McClure of the College Hospital speak at a house dinner. Early fall quarter freshmen were welcome with an all-house picnic at the Ledges. Softball and football completed the occasion. Every quarter on the last Saturday evening before finals begin the men of Fairchild House and their dates forget studies for the night and have a "Final Fling" in the Val Air Ballroom in Des Moines. The Fairchild social program also included many exchanges on the Drake and ISTC campuses as well as at Iowa State. Fairchild House is one of the few houses in the MRA to have its own pin guard. The guard, adopted last year, features a red "F" on a triangular gold background with pearls in each of the three corners. President of Fairchild House this year was Duane Sindt.

Franklin House

OUTFITTED WITH warm clothes and a guitar, this Franklin House man and his date await racks for a fall hayride.

Spring quarter the men of Franklin House showed their athletic prowess in track and golf. They captured the number three position in the track finals and the number one slot in the MRA golf tournament. At the same time they had a visible token of their ability — a trophy won the quarter before as the all-university Class B basketball champions. However, it is apparent that all thoughts of the house did not concern athletics. Also in the spring Franklin House ranked first in the Men's Residence Association in scholarship with an all-house average of 2.715. Socially, the men met a busy schedule. In the fall they entertained the women of Roberts Hall with a picnic exchange at the Ledges. Every fall and spring the men themselves go out to the Ledges for a steak fry. Activities also occupy much of the time of the men in the oldest house in Hughes. Last year two members were tapped for Pi Mu Epsilon, the mathematics honorary. Other residents of Franklin House include the president of Tomahawk, the drum major and president of the band, the vice-president of the band, and three members of Phi Mu Alpha. House colors are purple for purity and white for fight.

With spring quarter came a stag picnic at the Ledges for the members of Godfrey House. The house divided into two opposing softball teams and, after a rousing game, the losers were compelled to collect the firewood. Fall quarter Godfrey House honored the new freshmen with a Watermelon Bust at Inis Grove Park. Godfrey, consistently ranking high, was second in activities in the MRA fall quarter, averaging 2,487 points per man. The men also enjoyed frequent house dinners. Active in football, basketball, and volleyball tournaments, house members placed third in the MRA in intramural participation. Together with the nurses from Iowa Lutheran in Des Moines, the men had a hay-ride followed by singing and refreshments around a blazing bonfire. Godfrey House is represented by Ken Kruempel as senator-at-large to Cardinal Guild and by MRA president LeRoy Greenley, a member of Cardinal Key. President of Godfrey House was Edward Hansen.

CAREFULLY ARRANGING tinsel and Christmas tree ornaments are these Harriman House men, watched by Jeff Robinson.

Harriman House treated its men to a pizza party given in honor of high scholarship during fall quarter. Throughout the year the men of Harriman House enjoyed many exchanges. In the fall they had a dinner exchange with Birch Hall, a miniature golf exchange with Tau Gamma Ward, a dance exchange with Welch Hall, a dinner exchange with Elm Hall, and a hay-ride exchange. Men living in Harriman House were also kept busy with intramurals. During fall quarter they won second place in the Class B division for their mixed volleyball team with Roberts Hall. This showed their ability to combine social life with sports! Harriman men also enjoyed playing basketball and participating in the intra-house chess tournament. In addition to their full social and athletic schedules, Harriman men acknowledged the importance of studies. Spring of 1960 they ranked twelfth out of the forty-one MRA houses. Fall quarter they brought their standing up to sixth. Leading the house this year was president Larry Sweeney.

Kimball House

"Kimball Casino" was the fall quarter party sponsored by Kimball House. Dancing and game tables provided entertainment. During spring quarter, a semiformal dance, "Celeste Cachette," was held at the Waverly Lodge in Des Moines. The "Esquires" supplied the music and A. David Allen was the master of ceremonies. The lodge was decorated with dancing lights for the occasion. The men of Kimball House also participated in many intramural sports. They captured the first-place Class B bowling trophy fall quarter. During spring quarter, they took second-place in Class A softball. Kimball House also participated in volleyball, basketball, and wrestling. An alumni association was formed winter quarter by the house. Tau Beta Pi and Phi Eta Sigma were among the honoraries represented in Kimball House. Several dance and varied exchanges were held throughout the schol year. Gary Rector served as president of the sixty-eight men of Kimball House.

KNAPP MEN CROWD their HR's room to relax before perhaps performing their occasional prank of turning it upside down.

Spring quarter the Helser recreation rooms were the scene of the Knapp House party, "Knights of Knapp." Colorful crepe paper decorated the rooms. For entertainment the men and their dates danced to hi-fi music; played cards, pool, and ping-pong; and enjoyed soft drinks. To put sparkle into their social life Knapp House men held occasional exchanges with sororities here and at Drake. During the Drake Relays Knapp House men enjoyed an exchange by helping 2 sororities build and decorate a float. Other exchanges were for miniature golf and hay-rides. Knapp House men were proud of the athletes in their house. Spring quarter, they triumphed by winning the Class A softball championship. Fall quarter they heightened their victories by winning the bowling championship and placing as runner-up in MRA track. This fall a Halloween Party brightened their social life. In a spooky Halloween atmosphere, dancing, card playing, and pool were enjoyed in the Helser recreation rooms. One of the special projects of the men was to present a fifty-star flag to the Athletic Department at the victorious Oklahoma-Iowa State football game.

Winning the MRA wrestling championship in the spring of 1960 was an honor for the men of Lange House. They were proud to accept the trophy to add to their trophy collection. During Veishea the men held an open house. The visitors were served refreshments. "Canning Factory" was the display which the men constructed for Homecoming. In it a Colorado buffalo was being shoved into cans which moved along an assembly line. Social activities also kept the men busy. During the year they had several exchanges with the women of Welch Hall. Brookside Park and the Ledges State Park were favorite spots for such occasions. The recreation consisted of volleyball and hikes. "Island Paradise" was the title of the dance which the Lange House men held spring quarter at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel. Volcanoes, fish nets, and palm trees were appropriate decorations. Gambling with stage money was part of the fun.

Lincoln House

BRIDGE IS a serious matter for these Lincoln House men, especially when ten more tricks are needed to fill contract.

Winning the Chi Omega sorority Purple Shaft award for their Veishea float, "The Little Engine That Could," was a special honor for Lincoln House. A watermelon bust with Roberts Hall at the Ledges during orientation week started the year off right for the residents of Lincoln House. The twenty couples went on a hike and enjoyed eating watermelon. Also during fall quarter Lincoln House was host to the Homecoming queen candidates when they sponsored the first tea of the contest. It was held in the north unit lounge of Friley and members of Chi Omega served tea. The "Stapleton Special" express train headed for a goal post in the Lincoln House Homecoming display. Engineer Cy in the "Nifty Fifty" cab, pushed a buffalo into his cow catcher. Lincoln House held a party late in October which was followed by a hay-ride.

Lindstrom House

Intramurals and exchanges kept the men busy in Lindstrom House this year. Fall quarter they enjoyed an exchange with nurses from Lutheran Hospital in Des Moines. Fifteen couples danced to records at the new Des Moines YMCA. Recreational games added to the fun of getting acquainted. Lindstrom House also had an exchange with the nurses from Broadlawns General Hospital in Des Moines. The men added to the festivities of Veishea and Homecoming by constructing signs which read "Lindstrom House Welcomes You" to greet visitors. A house picnic provided a welcome break from studies during fall quarter. It was held on a Sunday afternoon in a large pasture southeast of Ames. A rousing softball game got the afternoon off to a good start. After a full afternoon of recreation the men were ready for the barbecued hamburgers which were served.

YUM! SAUSAGE PIZZA and cold pop, the men of Lindstrom House agree, make Sunday nights an awaited experience.

Meeker House

THE PRESIDENT raps his gavel and the weekly meeting begins.

Winning the Class C softball championship in spring, 1960, was a special event for Meeker House and for the eleven men who worked hard to win it. The men from Meeker House take a great interest in intramurals and are very active every year. They received a handsome trophy for the softball championship to add to their trophy collection. Also during spring quarter Meeker House had a party at Pine Lake in Eldora. In the afternoon water-lovers swam and went boating. The other couples played volleyball and hiked. A picnic supper and dancing in the evening brought the day to a close. Thirty-five couples attended the party. During orientation new men were welcomed with a picnic and touch football game at Emma McCarthy Lee Park. Fall quarter Meeker House gave a Halloween party. The men and their dates danced to records. Appropriate decorations added an atmosphere of witches and goblins. The decorations fitted the date, which was the Friday after Halloween. Also winter quarter Father Heineman spoke at the house dinner on the topic of qualities needed for a successful life. Later there was an informal discussion in the house den.

Niles House, nicknamed the "Penthouse of Friley Hall," won high point standing in intramurals this year with its outstanding football and volleyball teams. Spring quarter several members of Niles House constructed a trophy case which was permanently mounted in the house den. "Harold's Club" was the theme of Nile House's spring party. The party, based on the club of that name in Reno, Nevada, was held at the Nevada Country Club, decorated for the evening as a "gambling joint." Dice tables and comical signs on the walls provided typical atmosphere while the "Sky Larks" played for dancing. During fall quarter the men of Niles House served cider and cookies to dates and visiting parents after each home football game. The refreshments were in conjunction with an open house which gave all visitors the opportunity of seeing Niles House at its best. "The Great Pumpkin" was the theme of an informal dance held at the Boone 4-H Camp during fall quarter.

FIVE NEW TROPHIES are displayed by seven Niles House men.

A FREQUENT SIGHT at Noble House is four of the men taking time out from studies to play a few relaxing hands of bridge.

Planning the MRA "Inaugural Banquet" in the spring of 1960 was a project which the men of Noble House undertook. The event made their efforts worthwhile. "Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox" was Noble House's Veishea float. Rainy weather the day before turned clear and cool for the parade showing the mammoth float to good advantage. The men of Noble House were very active in intramurals. They won the heavy-weight division of wrestling and took second place in the light-weight class. Noble House men enjoyed several social events during the year. Spring quarter they had a roller skating exchange with Birch Hall. The couples spent a fun-filled evening skating and getting acquainted. During fall quarter they got together with Birch Hall again for a watermelon bust. Also fall quarter they held a Halloween Party at the Ames Equestrian Club. The room was decorated with streamers to add a festive atmosphere. The men and their dates participated in games and danced during the evening.

Pearson House

Pearson House again took second place in the MRA division for their Homecoming display, "Please Don't Eat the Daisies." Their Veishea float last spring, called "Cinderella 12:01," placed second in the MRA division. Also at Veishea the men of Pearson ushered at Veisheathon and held an open house for parents and new students. Winning the MRA yearly activity-points trophy helped to put their new trophy case to good use. In intramurals, Pearson House made a very good showing by capturing the tennis and horseshoe finals in the MRA. One of the men in the house, David Voltmer, was vice-president of the student body of 1960-61, and was also tapped for Order of Chessmen. Last spring, Pearson House held a dance at the American Legion Hall in Ankeny, Iowa, with a 1920's "Speak-Easy" theme. Pearson House, which was the first in the MRA to establish an alumni association, sent several newsletters to its more than thirty active alumni.

CY KICKS the Colorado buff as he says, "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," in Pearson's second-place Homecoming display winner.

SPINNEY trumpeteers work up a number to entertain the house.

The men of Spinney House sponsored a party each quarter this year. Spring quarter a self-expression party with a beatnik theme was held. Rain spoiled the hayrack ride planned for fall quarter, couples enjoyed an impromptu party instead. Spinney House had many dance exchanges during the year with the women's dorms, with students of Drake University, and with nurses in Des Moines. "Cy" served as chef in the "Buffalo-Steak Lunch Stand" that Spinney House built for its Homecoming display. In intramurals the men of Spinney House participated in football, basketball, softball, and volleyball. Members of the house were also enrolled in bowling and dance lessons. During freshman orientation, Spinney House sponsored picnics, get-acquainted meetings, and suppers at near-by restaurants. Each year during Religion-in-Life Week, Spinney House has a religious speaker and discussion period following the speech. Spinney House, one of the largest MRA houses, was led by president Dennis Larson this year.

Stange House men added another trophy to their collection winter quarter when they placed first in scholarship in the MRA in the fall. An individual honor came when Jim Selander received the Chicago Tribune Silver Medal Award for being the most outstanding cadet in Air Force ROTC. Stange men were also recognized by being members of Pi Mu Epsilon, Tomahawk, Sigma Gamma Tau, and the president of Tau Beta Pi honoraries. In intramural competition, two softball teams from Stange qualified for Class A play. The men also enjoyed a full social calendar. In the spring the men had a house dinner and a picnic at the Ledges. Picnics appeared again on their calendar. During Orientation Days they had a picnic-exchange at Brookside Park with the women of Roberts Hall. Early in the fall, too, Brookside was the site of the annual house picnic. On January 28 Stange men had a house party based on a "Playboy" theme. Rabbit posters and crepe paper decorated the Junior Chamber of Commerce hall in Ames for the occasion.

Stanton House

STANTON MEN do the indoor work on their Homecoming display before moving it outside for finishing touches.

Stanton House men claimed the MRA points-per-man trophy in intramural competition spring quarter. Helping them earn this honor was winning first place in the track meet and second place in their class of softball. The men participated actively in intramurals throughout the year with one team qualifying for Class A basketball. Stanton men also represented the house in campus activities. Keeping the men busy was a full social schedule too. In the spring they enjoyed the annual house picnic at the Ledges. Incoming freshmen were welcomed to Stanton house with a picnic at Brookside Park. Also during Orientation Days they had a miniature golf exchange. Another exchange on their calendar was a roller skating party at Ogden with the West Linden Hall women. During Religion-in-Life Week the men heard Admiral George Rosso speak at a house dinner. He discussed his trip to Anarctica.

"King Neptune and His Court" won a first-place Veishea trophy for Stevenson House. And for the fourth time in five years the first-place trophy in MRA Homecoming display competition went to Stevenson House. The lawn decoration was entitled "Some Like It Hot." With a log cabin in the background, it showed Cy salting the Colorado buffalo, which was being roasted above an open fire. Obviously, the men of Stevenson House were skilled in putting chicken-wire and paper napkins together, but this was far from the only field in which they were active. A group from Stevenson House was one of seven groups participating in the MRA division of Sinfonia, and the house was also well represented in intramural competition. Stevenson men didn't neglect social events either. Evidently they preferred the outdoors as the location for these events. They showed this preference by having two parties at the Ledges, a picnic honoring their parents in the spring, and a hayride during fall quarter. However, they moved inside for their annual winter pajama party.

STEVENSON HOUSE MEN all pitched in to make their "Some Like It Hot" the winning Homecoming display in the MRA.

Carpenter House

DALE CERBIN and Dennis Drda find that a bed offers the space they need as they do some work on an engineering project.

Carpenter House has had at least one four-point student in the house every quarter of its existence. Carpenter is unique in the MRA for this reason. Spring quarter all the men worked together scholastically to rank third in the MRA. The men of Carpenter House were active in all-university activities as could be seen by their representation in basketball, football, baseball, and cross-country. Carpenter House men also belonged to Men's Glee Club and were disc-jockeys on the MRA station KMRI. Carpenter House had men in both Pershing Rifles and Eta Kappa Nu. The men participated in MRA intramurals this year, crowning their activities by winning second place in the MRA with their swimming team. Although busy with many other activities, Carpenter House men also enjoyed many social events during the year. Spring quarter they held a house picnic north of Boone. The men played softball, went boating, and ate a picnic meal of barbecued beef sandwiches, beans, and pop. Carpenter House also had several exchanges with Drake students during the year.

The mammoth "Welcome to ISU" banner visible to everyone passing Helser Hall during Veishea was hung from the top windows of Helser by the men of Foster House. The men made the oversized banner themselves. Also keeping the men busy during spring quarter was their annual "Spring Follies" dance. The party was held in Des Moines at the Keith Killinger Music Hall. Couples danced to the music of the Killinger band. During intermission party-goers were entertained by a quartet of Foster House men. Also on the social side, the men enjoyed a full schedule of exchanges. They had such varied themes as watermelon exchanges, picnic exchanges, and a football exchange. Besides parties, Foster men participated actively in intramurals, entering such events as football, softball, volleyball, bowling, and basketball. The men also reserved time for studies, and brought the scholastic standing of the house into the top ten among MRA houses during spring quarter. Foster House was represented in both military and engineering honoraries.

GEORGE HAM AND Philip Marshall put the finishing touches on the huge "Welcome to ISU" banner displayed by the house.

Fulmer House

AFTER A mock funeral showing the house's "deadly" sense of humor, the "corpse of Fulmer House" arises from his coffin.

"Blue Heaven" was the name of the Fulmer House formal dance held spring quarter at the Des Moines Country Club. Decorations of sky-blue streamers and clouds of white balloons carried out the theme. Fulmer House has its own "athlete of the week" award which is given to the house member who has done the most for the athletic prestige of Fulmer House. It was a team effort, however, which brought Fulmer House its highest athletic honor, the MRA Class B football championship. Fulmer House men proved themselves to be outstanding as individuals as well, judging from the lists of all-college activities and honoraries to which the Fulmer House men belonged. One of the men was president of the industrial engineering honorary, Gamma Epsilon Sigma, one is vice-president of the Chessmen, and another is a member of the engineering honorary, Tau Beta Pi. Also, this year the president of the Aeronautical Engineering Club, the chairman of the All-College Elections Committee, and a Cardinal Guild senator were Fulmer men. Rounding out the year for Fulmer House were casual exchanges with women's residences in Ames and Des Moines.

Halstead House

Lynn Fuhrer Lodge was the scene of the Halstead House party "Beatnik Villa" spring quarter. The lodge was decorated with beatnik murals and, to add even more authenticity, Halstead men and their dates wore imaginative beatnik costumes. In addition to dancing and card playing, couples had a chance to act their roles by doing free expression finger painting. To heighten the fun and add sparkle to the evening, surprise pictures were taken and given as favors. Prizes were given to the best-dressed couple and the best finger painter. A fall social event enjoyed by the men was a bridge dance exchange with Kappa Alpha Theta's. Cars were parked around an old bridge to furnish light and music for gay dancing on the bridge. Homecoming season found Halstead men hard at work finishing their lawn decoration entitled "Skin the Buffalo." The display featured Cy as an Indian by his campfire with a Colorado Buffalo skin stretched to dry. Halstead men were also enthusiastic participants in intramurals, entering such sports as softball, tennis, bowling, and swimming. They earned the runner-up position in Class B football in the MRA.

THE THREAT of "Whooping Cough Within" doesn't prevent these two Halstead House men from caring for their sick friend.

Jones House

The Jones House men hold fond memories of the "Jones Spring Follies" held in the old Jewish synagogue in Des Moines. The decorations, centered around the theme "Moonlight and Roses," created an atmosphere of reverie. To highlight the evening, the men and their dates danced to a five-piece combo. Jones House men sponsored a welcoming reception after the Homecoming game for parents, guests, alumni, and members of Jones House. Light refreshments of punch, coffee, and doughnuts were served in the house den to all those attending. The men of Jones House kept active by participating in intramural softball, football, volleyball, bowling, ping-pong, swimming, track, and tennis. Jones House men were pleased with their scholastic record as they were eighth in the MRA fall quarter. Jones House was represented in Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, and Order of Chessmen this year. Jones finished the year with all the men who moved in fall quarter 1960.

FUN-LOVING Jones House men capture a fellow resident and prepare him for a dunking in the shower, a tradition for birthdays, engagements, and other special occasions.

BIRCH HALL WOMEN are treated to a rare experience as they dine in Friley Hall at a Livingston House winter exchange.

All-campus bridge champs, holders of a bowling trophy, participants in such intramurals as football, and softball—these were the men of Livingston House. Moreover, through the united purpose and efforts of the men last year, Livingston became top residence on campus in the Campus Chest fundraising drive. Livingston men also worked together to construct their entry in the MRA Homecoming display competition. Exchanges with Birch, Freeman, Roberts, and Linden women's residence halls were among their social activities. But the real highlight of the social season came during spring quarter in the form of a Hawaiian party held at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel in downtown Ames. The men found themselves on a "Paradise Island," complete with casino, grass huts, and the entertainment of Larry Gering, Bill Schricker, and Gary Reschly, who helped to make the evening a success.

THE LOUDEN "BEATNIK PARTY" November 11 gave the men a chance to dream up costumes and show their skill at modern art.

Louden House awards the "Louse Award" each week to a member performing a unique act. The "Louse" is a medallion worn around the neck of the recipient. In intramurals, eager participation paid high dividends for the men as they captured the first-place crown in Class B football and were runners-up in Class A volleyball and in Class A basketball. Oddfellows Hall was the scene of "Carluwood Capers," the yearly house party given jointly with Carpenter and Woodrow houses in February. House members, presenting several musical selections, were spotlighted at intermission. Louden House also held many dinner exchanges and impromptu toboggan exchanges during the year. Christmas-time found Louden residents busily providing entertainment and refreshments at a holiday party for the Lutheran Home for Children. Eight members of the house were active members of six college honoraries.

Residents of Merrill House enjoyed a spring dance, "Spring Fantasy," held in April at Black's Cabin south of Ames. The men and their dates danced and played cards during the evening. The men had many other planned house activities during the year, including bridge and ping-pong tournaments. Merrill House also had six teams participating in intramurals. At Veishea, the house displayed a sign more than a hundred feet long which read, "Merrill House Welcomes You — Penthouse of MRA." They were in sixth place in MRA house scholarship listings and four Merrill House residents were tapped for Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman scholarship honorary. A number of toboggan exchanges and other informal exchanges were held in Ames and in Des Moines. Merrill House had a very rewarding orientation program in the fall. They welcomed twenty-six new men to the house with activities such as a watermelon bust and a softball game.

GIVING bowling tips to fellow Merrill House residents is Dave Buehrer, a member of the house bowling league fall quarter.

NORMAN HOUSE MEN enjoyed a special dinner winter quarter for the installation of their newly elected house officers.

The Kiplinger Dance Hall in Des Moines, decorated with streamers, balloons, mobiles, and candle-lit tables, was the scene of a tri-house annual "Spring Frolic." Foster and Jones houses joined with Norman House for this occasion. A humorous reading entertained the couples at intermission. The winter quarter social highlight was "Cervacia," a semi-formal dance given February 3 at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel in Ames. Max Jontz provided dance music, and a house quartet sang at intermission. Another house activity in the winter was a dinner at which new officers were installed. Norman House men also enjoyed various informal exchanges throughout the year, including watermelon feasts and toboggan parties. During Homecoming the house opened its doors to visiting alumni. Norman men were also busy in intramurals, particularly bowling and basketball. They found time for study, however, enabling the house to rank among the top ten houses in the MRA scholarship listings.

Richey House

Intramurals are a very important part of the lives of the men of Richey House. To prove this, during spring quarter of 1960 the men won the bowling trophy and fall quarter they were the champions of volleyball in Class A competition. Richey House men stress all-campus activities as well. Dick Sanford was vice-president of Freshman Guild, and several house members participated in both Band and Singers. Merrill Yates was in Tomahawk and Allen Baghbasarian was a member of the electrical engineering honorary. Two Richey House men are members of the university football team. Richey House is also social-minded. Fall quarter found the men on a hayride with their dates to the Ledges in Boone. On the ride home they stopped at one of the men's homes and had a lunch. Spring quarter Richey held a "men-only" picnic at which they played a strenuous game of touch football. During their spare time, the men of Richey House can be found playing cards and watching television. Recent equipment purchased by the house includes a steam iron.

IT TOOK THE PERSISTENCE of each individual in Richey House to result in the pride of house achievement shown here.

Stalker House

LEAFING THROUGH a magazine, playing a hand of bridge, kibitzing — so go the hours of relaxation in the Stalker House den.

The Veishea float prize for originality went to Stalker House this year. The float showed a cyclone, ridden by Pecos Bill, scooting across central campus. It was entitled "Even Pecos Bill Can't Stop a Cyclone." Stalker House's calendar was full of social events during the year. There were several dinner exchanges, a roller skating exchange, and a bowling exchange. Spring quarter Stalker House had a "Spring Carnival" — a dinner and dance held at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel. The carnival theme was carried out in decorations. In the fall there was a hay-ride, and following the Homecoming game, the men took their dates to Lincoln Lodge in Boone for a steak dinner featuring two-pound steaks. Dancing followed the dinner. Stalker House men participated in all phases of intramurals, with the Stalker House teams placing high in swimming and football. In spite of all their activities, Stalker House men didn't neglect the more serious part of college life. This is shown by the fact that Stalker House ranked in the top six groups in MRA scholarship.

The Woodrow House lounge is a favorite spot for most of the Woodrow men. The popular activities that took place there during the year include watching the late movies, playing cards and chess, and hashing over all the events of campus and world. Woodrow House men took part in the social world, also. They had many exchanges, primarily ones for football games or held with Des Moines women. This year men of Woodrow House held exchanges with both the off-campus women at Drake and also with the Des Moines women. They had their annual picnic in May. Woodrow held weekly open houses on Sunday afternoons, and during fall quarter the men held open houses after each home football game. Bowling is a very popular game with the men of Woodrow House. This year they entered two teams in bowling intramurals and both teams placed, one taking third place in the pro-league. Christmas-time found the men engaged in singing with a Christmas caroling group and exchanging presents at a Woodrow House Christmas party.

EVEN THE WOODROW HOUSE head resident has to laugh as he unwraps his present at the house Christmas party and discovers that someone has given him a tire from his own car.

Baker House

WITH "WILD ANTICIPATION" Howard Russell, Baker head resident, awaits being soaked with a "basketful" of water.

Chili and coffee were a welcome sight at the end of the Baker House fall hayride. After refreshments the men and their dates danced to records in the lounge. Baker House also had an exchange with the nurses of Broadlawns School of Nursing in Des Moines. Open houses were also on the Baker calendar. Christmas-time found the men of Baker enjoying a house party at which gifts were exchanged. The men drew names and gave presents which were to fit the personality of the receiver. The humorous gifts gave an insight into the personalities of not only the recipients but the donors as well. Baker House carried out two traditions in regard to their graduating seniors. Each senior was given a paddle engraved with the name of the house and with the names of each individual in the house. The other tradition is that each senior is strapped to a pole and tossed into the Memorial Union fountain.

Boyd House maintained its tradition of coming through intramurals with flying colors. This year there was a Boyd House team competing in almost every sport. Not only did Boyd House have a large quantity of athletes, it also had quality as is shown by the facts that members placed high in softball competition and won the trophy for bowling. Nor did Boyd House lack in social activity this year. The men had several exchanges throughout the year, including an exchange for Varieties and a toboggan party. There was also an informal Halloween party which featured appropriate entertainment such as dunking for apples. In addition to the informal parties, a formal dance was given in the spring. This year "Spring Swing" was held at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel. A candle-light banquet preceded the dancing, and entertainment included the piano playing of John Fortier.

GRIFFITH HOUSE MEN take advantage of the opportunities of their community phones before installation of room phones.

Candlelight, cushions scattered on the floor, and jazz floating in the air provided a pure Greenwich Village atmosphere for Griffith House's "Beatnik Dance." Invitations requested everyone to dress accordingly, so girls came to the beatnik-decorated Westgate Lounge in smocks and leotards; the men wore blue jeans and mustaches. Bob Kubik gave a humorous skit for the Griffith House men and their dates at this spring party. On the stag side during spring quarter, Griffith House had a picnic in the country along Skunk River. Turning to more serious matters, Griffith House ranked seventh in the MRA spring scholarship ratings. Participation in all-college activities was evident in the fact that two Griffith House men played basketball, two were on the wrestling team, and several participated in Marching Band. Griffith House also had three men in Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman scholastic honorary. For relaxation, the men enjoyed listening to their own guitar-player and ballad-singer, Jay Liska. During study breaks the men would settle down to a casual hand of bridge, or just kibitze and chat.

Exchanges with nurses were favorite functions in Sage House this year. The house had exchanges with nursing schools in both Marshalltown and Des Moines. Another favorite with the men of Sage was intramurals. This year Sage House won the all-college volleyball championship, the Class B softball championship, and the award for the most points per man. During the Christmas season Sage House annually decorates the huge Westgate Hall tree and gives a Christmas party. Honored guests this year were the housemother, Mrs. Marie Gesler, and Westgate's custodian and his wife. Guests received presents from the men, and the men exchanged presents among themselves. Sage House was proud of Dick Bergstrom, a member of Phi Eta Sigma and top chess player on campus. He practiced with the men, who spent many hours every week playing chess. The Sage House men also enjoyed bridge, which they played in a rotation system of room-hopping. Sage House boasts the "cleanest floor in the MRA," which might be explained by many organized water fights.

A RECENT ACCUMULATION of hard-won trophies, earned in intramural competition, is displayed by these four Sage House men.

Ankeny Legion Hall was the scene of Alumni Hall's house party during spring quarter. In an atmosphere suggestive of the days of Al Capone, the men and their dates enjoyed dancing to combo music. To set the mood of the wild Al Capone days, funeral home decorations complete with casket and body bedecked the hall. To add character to the party, members and their dates wore costumes depicting the late '20's of gangster days. Alumni Hall was the only independent residence hall that competed in Sinfonia in spring quarter of 1960. To get into the social swing, Alumni Hall had eight exchanges during fall quarter for the thirty-three new freshman members. During Halloween week the members enjoyed an exchange at which they played cards and danced. One of the favorite pastimes followed by the men of Alumni Hall is serenading other houses. The Alumni Hall lawn display for Homecoming, "We'll Beat the Buffs," featured a deep grave prepared for the Buffs which sat beside a small monument for a previously defeated team. All of the alumni of past years were invited to enjoy open house and the Homecoming displays. Alumni Hall participated in all intramural sports fall quarter.

Alumni Hall

THE MEN of Alumni Hall joined in the spirit of the season with an eager response to a Christmas serenade one evening.

PLEDGE JEAN FULDNER carefully puts her paper plate on an already heaping pile at the Greek Week barbecue on Saturday.

AS ANOTHER PARTY begins during formal rush in early September rushees advance to be greeted by waiting sorority actives.

Panhellenic Council was hostess to Mrs. George Rudolph, a national Panhellenic officer, in November. Mrs. Rudolph offered ideas to Panhellenic Council in keeping with its purpose of guiding and unifying Iowa State sororities. Under the supervision of Mrs. Vida S. Benson, social director, the council worked on improving its constitution, rush week, and the Chart. Panhellenic Council also helped sponsor the IFC Christmas party for grade-school children of Ames. The council, which meets every two weeks, is composed of two representatives from each sorority plus its officers.

Junior Panhellenic Council is the pledge counterpart of Panhellenic Council. Its purpose is to unify the twelve sorority pledge classes. For this reason it sponsors chocolate hours held among the pledge classes winter quarter. Junior Panhel meets each Wednesday night. It consists of one member from each sorority pledge class. The meetings provide opportunities to discuss rush, exchanges, closer relations among pledge classes, and pledge rules.

TWO ALPHA CHI OMEGA pledges and their escorts get better acquainted at an Alpha Chi-D U exchange fall quarter.

WHAT GOES ON "after hours" at the Pink Poodle Dress Salon in Paris is depicted in Alpha Chi Omega skit during fall rush.

The most outstanding event of the year for the Alpha Chi Omega's occurred during spring quarter of 1960 when they became a colony on the Iowa State campus. The first pledge class of Alpha Chi was initiated at the national "Diamond Jubilee Convention" in French Lick, Indiana. During spring quarter the Alpha Chi's held a "Freudian Flip" party at the Officers Club at Camp Dodge near Des Moines. The club was decorated with mammoth inkblots and a prize was given to the best-dressed couple. The pledges entertained with a skit that was a takeoff on one of their pledge meetings, including humorous characterizations of all the officers. A combo played for dancing, and the dates received as favors glass mugs decorated with the Alpha Chi Omega crest. Other social events of the sorority were various dinner and dessert exchanges. They also were very often found entertaining or being entertained by their brother fraternity, the Delta Sigma Phi's. Since the Alpha Chi house will not be completed until fall of 1961, the chapter held its weekly meetings in the Memorial Union Council Chambers.

as chapter celebrates fiftieth anniversary at Iowa State*

EVERYTHING IN COSTUMES from beatniks to Indians to pig-tailed Chinamen is represented at this A D Pi Halloween party.

DECKED OUT IN Siamese costumes despite hot September weather, A D Pi's say good-bye as rushees leave a party.

This year the Alpha Delta Pi's celebrated their chapter's fiftieth year at Iowa State. The year was off to a good start as the A D Pi's admired their new second-place trophies won in 1960 Varieties and Sor-Dor. The redecoration of their house helped the A D Pi's enjoy the year even more. On Parents' Week end, after entertaining their parents with skits and a serenade, the A D Pi's moved out of the house and let their fathers take it over. Several other social events made the year continue at a gay pace. One was a "come-as-you-were-dressed-when-invited" party. Entertainment was provided by the Bruce Butterfield Trio. Another event was the Christmas dance, planned by the pledges, with Santa Claus passing out gifts. To highlight the year's activities, the A D Pi's held their winter formal and dinner at the Marshalltown Country Club. An oriental theme was carried out by decorations.

The Alpha Gams were rewarded for many hours of hard work on their float "Hansel and Gretel" by capturing top sorority honors in the Veishea Parade. The float, showing a little boy and girl throwing candy to by-standers while a witch menaced nearby, won the hearts of adult spectators as well as children. The Alpha Gam spring formal, held at the Fort Des Moines Hotel, was entitled "March Mist." Favors were towels with "Stolen from Alpha Gamma Delta" written on them. Last spring sounds of "Auf Wiedersehen" and "Happy Wanderer" drifted from the Alpha Gam house as the sisters prepared for Sor-Dor. They looked typically German for their Sor-Dor performance, wearing black skirts and white blouses with red and black felt suspenders. Alpha Gam's returned this fall to find the new addition to their house well underway. The spacious addition to the front of the house includes a recreation room, dining room, kitchenette, and twelve study rooms.

A COLORFUL "Hansel and Gretel" float won first place for the Alpha Gam's in the sorority division of the Veishea parade.

transform house for annual 'Carnation Christmas' dance

MOVING DAY arrives at the Chi Omega house, and these Chi O's find they have more to move than clothes.

It was a "Carnation Christmas" at the Chi Omega house this year, and a festive occasion it was, complete with stockings and all the trimmings that go with the annual winter formal. Along with enjoying many social activities throughout the year, the Chi O's also captured first place in sorority scholarship last spring. Such campus events as Homecoming, Veishea, and Greek Week found busy Chi O's at work at all levels, from central committees on down. Within the house, the Chi O's also turned out to help plan such events as the annual Dads' Week end, which this year included a dinner, attending a basketball game, and a visit to the Campus Chest Blast. Chi O's are proud of their Mortar Board member, Jo Geiger, and of Jane Gibson, member of Phi Kappa Phi. Chi Omega's combined beauty with their brains, having a total of 16 various queens and attendants during the past year, including Homecoming queen attendant Nancy Starbuck. A service project of the house was providing financial support for a Korean war orphan.

A SPECIAL CANDLELIGHT DINNER at the chapter house December 11 honors midyear initiates into Delta Delta Delta.

TRI DELT'S and their dates prepare for Halloween as they carve jack-o-lanterns at a "suppressed desire" fall fireside.

Tri Delt's returned to school this fall to a surprise — a newly decorated living room with light blue carpeting, and moss green and plum draperies. Social life for the year was highlighted by a Halloween fireside where pledges, actives, and their dates wore the costumes of their suppressed desires. Tri Delt's made their dates Christmas stockings as favors for the Christmas formal held at the house. The spring formal was held at the Des Moines Hyperion Club. During spring quarter, alums took dessert to the house after dinner for the annual "Pie Night," and honored the pledge with the most activities and the one with the highest grades. Tri Delta placed second in sororities for scholarship during spring quarter. During Veishea Tri Delt's cheered as Madeline Lange and Dot Busching were tapped for Mortar Board. Tri Delt's are also members of Delta Phi Delta, Omicron Nu, and Phi Upsilon Omicron honoraries. The house float for Veishea, named "The Tables are Turned," depicted Little Red Ridinghood chasing the wolf.

Apple blossoms, a trellice with flowers, and black silhouettes decorated the DZ house the night of their spring "Southern Silhouettes" party. In November Delta Zeta's and their dates appeared in German costumes at the "DZ Man" party. At this party Delta Zeta members announced that they had chosen Dick Horton as their DZ man for the year. In addition to the quarterly dances the Winter Fireside and varied exchanges, including beatnik and pajama themes, enlivened college life for the DZ's among the year. The DZ's participated in Greek Week and held positions during Homecoming and Veishea festivities. Jan Erickson was a finalist for Greek Week queen. "Rain-tree County" was the theme for the Delta Zeta Veishea float spring quarter. The DZ's also worked on service projects at the Day Care Center in Des Moines and at the Carville Hospital for leprosy patients. Delta Zeta's held honors in Mortar Board, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Gamma Gamma, and Lampos.

GERMAN COSTUMES and decorations set the mood as D Z's change the house into a bit of Germany for the fall party.

MARY PERRY HAPPILY accepts the first-place sorority trophy won by her pledge class in the fall Greek Week Olympics.

FIVE GAMMA PHI BETA'S take a break from working on their large Homecoming display entitled "I'll CU in My Dreams."

Singing comes easily to the Gamma Phi Beta's, and they used this talent to win sweepstakes for the sorority division of Sor-Dor. Other honors won by the girls this year were second place for their Veishea float, "The Pied Piper"; first place in the sorority division for the Greek Week Pledge Olympics; and sweepstakes for the athletic intramurals for 1959-60. Five Gamma Phi beauties reigned as queens of fraternity formals during the year. The Gamma Phi's enjoyed a "Hobo Party" with Delta Sigma Phi fraternity at the Boone 4-H Camp in the fall. Also in the fall "Mr. Wonderful" was the theme for Dads' Week end, when Gamma Phi fathers took over the chapter house for a night. Winter quarter a party was planned by the pledges for all Gamma Phi's and their dates. Spring quarter Carollee DeRuyter was tapped as the president of Mortar Board. In keeping with the emphasis on scholarship, fourteen Gamma Phi Beta's were chosen for six other honoraries. Plans are now being drawn up for an addition to the present house to be built in the fall of 1961.

Theta's were welcomed back to school fall quarter with a redecorated house, complete with new drapes and newly papered and painted walls. During fall quarter the Theta's entertained their dads with a "Roaring Twenties" week end. As part of this week end dads and their daughters attended the Oklahoma-Iowa State football game. On December 2, the Theta house was the scene for a "Swiss Party." It was turned into a ski lodge for the night with antlers and mountain scenes on the walls to add atmosphere. Curved pipes were given by the Theta's to their dates as favors. Music for dancing was provided by "Spec" Red and his band. Also during winter quarter the Theta's participated in Varieties. Last spring quarter was also a busy and exciting time for the Theta's. They honored their mothers at their annual spring mothers' weekend. Teas were held to honor both their national president and their new housemother, Mrs. Idris Wieland.

A RACCOON COAT and pom-poms help Ellen Molleston and her father depict the theme of the Theta dads' week end.

The Kappa Delta house was readied for the year's activities by redecoration of the entire first floor. New curtains and paint in the recreation room presented a fresh atmosphere for the beginning of the year. October proved to be a busy month for the K D's. Homecoming week end included an open house for alumnae, parents, and dates. The K D lawn display showed silver nickels, picturing the "Colorado Buffaloes," being dropped into a large red Iowa State piggy bank. Later that month the K D's held a fall fireside with a "Sadie Hawkins" theme. On October 23 Founders' Day was observed with a smorgasbord for alumnae, chapter members, pledges, and Mrs. Violet Osborne, Kappa Delta housemother. The annual "White Rose Formal" was given during winter quarter. Spring activities included constructing a Veishea float, "The Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat." Another project for the K D's was the "big sister" help at the Lutheran Children's Home.

SADIE HAWKINS costumes add to the fun of a Kappa Delta fall fireside as partygoers enjoy the universal college game; bridge.

THE KKG BASEMENT was strewn with newspapers for a "Bundle Party" where costumes had been exchanged in bundles.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA'S welcome the Christmas season by putting "all the trimmings" on a miniature Christmas tree.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sisters were honored many times during the year. They received honorable mention for their Veishea float, "Peter's Patch," and second place in all-campus scholarship in the fall. The highest Kappa honor was the Mortar Board tapping of Kathy Wolf, who is president of both the house and the YWCA. The Kappa Homecoming display this year featured the shackled letters "CU." In Varieties the Kappa's entered a musical skit entitled "The Ugly Collegian" with take-offs from popular songs. A special project this year was helping with fraternity Christmas parties for needy Ames children. Last January the Kappa's helped feature the "Monmouth Duo" to celebrate the founding of the Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi sororities at Monmouth College. In the fall the Kappa's gave an unusual party at the house. Before the party couples exchanged bundles containing the outfits their dates were to wear.

FROM THEIR HOUSEMOTHER, Mrs. Mary DonCarlos, these Pi Beta Phi's learn the fine and intricate art of embroidering.

LONG WORK SESSIONS were rewarded when the Pi Phi's won a public appeal award with their float, "Once Upon A Time."

"Sophisticated Swing" was the dance that the Pi Phi's held spring quarter following a picnic at Inis Grove Park. At Veishea the Pi Phi's received the public appeal award for their float, "Once Upon A Time." To celebrate Founders' Day in April alums and actives held a luncheon in the Oak Room of the Memorial Union. Early fall quarter actives and pledges left their newly decorated house to go on their annual retreat to a camp. Pi Beta Phi's won the sorority Homecoming lawn display competition with their theme of "We've Got 'De-Feet' Locked Up." Also, Judy Healy was a Homecoming queen attendant. At the house Christmas party pledge moms, pledge daughters, and big sisters exchanged gifts. Actives also discovered the identities of their secret pals. For their annual project the Pi Phi pledges redecored the "rec" room. They also sponsored a party, "Pi Phi Patch." In Varieties the Pi Phi's qualified for the final performance with their skit entitled "Alice." Based on Alice-in-Wonderland, it showed her after she had come up from her hole to attend Iowa State.

When dates entered the "Haunted Castle" for the Sigma Kappa Halloween fireside, they were immediately taken to the "dungeon." They later proved their valor in a "joust" and were knighted in an impressive ceremony. Couples dressed in medieval costumes, and family crests and shields were used for decorations to carry out the castle theme. Baskets of lilacs and a miniature garden complete with wishing well decorated the chapter house for a spring formal, "Legend in Lavender." Dancing followed a smorgasbord at the Fjord. At Homecoming Cy rode to victory in a "fringed surrey" — the S K display which placed second among sororities. At Parent's Week end the fathers took over the house on Saturday. They were treated to a candlelight serenade before the Sigma Kappa's left with their mothers. Delegates to the Sigma Kappa National Convention in the summer were proud to accept the "Teamwork Trophy," a silver punch bowl awarded for local college chapter-alumnae relations. Invitations to join Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Nu, Women's "I" Fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi were among the honors received by S K's during the year.

THESE SIGMA KAPPA'S happily display the second-place trophy they won at Homecoming to a national Panhellenic officer.

This year Interfraternity Council, the governing body and co-ordinator of fraternity activities, featured four large improvement programs. A special committee was set up to investigate the possibility of a decrease in property tax that the city levies on fraternities. Another committee enabled fraternities to reduce expenses by setting up a plan of buying goods in large quantities. The plan includes goods other than food. Another program featured a special committee that worked on developing public relations. A special visiting day was set for educators of other universities to view fraternity and sorority life in order for them to become more acquainted with the Greek system. The fourth program concentrated work on scholarship. A survey was made of study habits of pledges to see where improvement was needed. IFC has made plans for an expansion of summer rushing by revising the present program of rushing during summer orientation.

"ON YOUR MARK—" and another sorority pledge prepares for the brick race during the Greek Week Olympics in the Armory.

IFC MEMBERS set up a registration booth at the start of formal rush.

NEWLY TAPPED members of Gamma Gamma, still hooded, are presented in the Armory on the Friday night of Greek Week. Their identities were revealed when the hoods were removed.

Sharon Phillips and Don Soultz reigned over Greek Week, sponsored by IFC and Panhellenic Council September 21 to 24. Major highlights were tapping new Gamma Gamma members, the Olympics, and "Bacchanal." Besides providing an entertainment week end, Greek Week served as a vehicle for the exchange of ideas among fraternities and sororities on campus and between fraternity members and the public. On December 10 the 32 fraternities entertained over 240 Ames children at Christmas parties. Games, refreshments, and Santa filled the afternoon.

ISU FRATERNITIES and sororities answered roll call at "Calypso," first event of Greek Week, with a presentation of flags.

ON SATURDAY EVENING "Bacchanal," featuring the music of Hal Monroe and his band, concluded Greek Week festivities.

PHI KAPPA TAU's joined with the thirty-one other fraternities on campus in entertaining Ames children at Christmas parties.

Iowa State chapter receives National Acacia Scholarship Award

THE PRESSURE of winter quarter tests and assignments brings a group study session in the dining room of the Acacia house.

SLIPPER SOCKS and the ballads of the Kingston Trio are the ingredients of a casual evening for this trio of Acacians.

Spring quarter the Acacians held a banquet and formal at the Marshalltown Country Club. "Acacia" was printed on small pillows which were given to the men's dates as favors. Open houses for alumni and parents were held during both Veishea and Homecoming. The members of the house sang their way to first place in Sinfonia in 1960. The chapter won the National Acacia Scholarship Award for the second straight year. Fall quarter both actives and pledges ranked first among fraternities scholastically. One of their members was president of the YMCA and another was editor of the Iowa Engineer. A "Night on the Nile" was the traditional theme of the Acacia fall party. The inside of the house was transformed into a pyramid and Acacians erected a forty-foot statue in their front yard for the occasion. One of the fraternity's service projects was to wash windows at the Eastern Star Home in Boone. At Christmas-time the Acacians had their annual caroling exchange with Pi Beta Phi. The Acacia Sweetheart Dance was held the Saturday before Valentine's Day.

welcome alums for joint Homecoming, Founders' Day celebration

THE DATE OF an Adelante at their winter "Club 304" takes her chances at the dice table even though warned of "loaded" dice.

TWO ADELANTES concentrate on their Homecoming display which, when finished, predicted an Iowa State victory of 99-0 and showed a Colorado buffalo playing the "Bison Street Blues."

Adelante fraternity combined Founders' Day and Homecoming festivities. The events were celebrated by the fraternity members with a banquet. The pledges earned their first trophy of the year by winning the balloon toss at the Greek Week Olympics. Spring quarter Jo Thielen was selected "Lady of Adelante" at the spring formal, "Rose of Cathay" in Des Moines. Couples danced to music furnished by the Continentals and were entertained by an Adelante quartet. Fall quarter Adelantes and their dates enjoyed a hayride. Dancing and refreshments at the house followed the ride. Other social functions included firesides and exchanges with sororities and women's dorms. Prior to Veishea, the Adelantes were host to Veishea queen finalists. Stressing scholarship, the house ranked third in fraternity scholarship competition. The actives worked together to redecorate the house basement. Leather seats were added, colored lights were installed, and a television set was purchased. Adelantes were chosen for eleven honoraries throughout the year.

Alpha Chi Rho's had their spring formal, "Moments to Remember," at the Holtz Hotel in Boone. Earl Gruber was master of ceremonies for the entertaining intermission program. At Homecoming the Alpha Chi's connected world problems with their display. It featured a globe with a large bandage around it and a buffalo rising from a grave saying, "You think you have it bad!" Visiting alumni were welcomed to the house for the Homecoming week end. Plans for a forty-two-man house were displayed that week end. The new house would use the center of the existing structure but would essentially be a new house. In November Crows and their dates donned appropriate costumes for a "Four Poster Pajama Party." Pajama-clad couples danced to hi-fi music. Also keeping the Alpha Chi Rho's occupied during fall quarter was intramurals, with the house placing fifth in points per man. The men enjoyed an unusual and "delicious" exchange when they barbecued steaks with the Chi Omega's.

DAVE TIMM TAKES a break from end-of-the-quarter studies to chat with the AGR housemother, Mrs. Georgia Lucas. Mrs. Lucas began her second year with the men this fall.

A fall hayride, a Halloween party, and a Christmas fireside—these are typical examples of how the AGR's spend the year socially. Winter quarter the "Pink Rose Formal" was given in Des Moines. The chapter house was the setting for the "Farmers' Ball" given spring quarter. The party centered around a country and western theme. The AGR's sponsored an alum dance during Homecoming and an open house for parents and guests on Parents' Day. John Hughes, house president, was tapped for Gamma Gamma during Greek Week. Marlyn Jorgenson served as president of the campus Young Republicans. The fraternity had members in Alpha Zeta, Phi Mu Alpha, Alpha Kappa Psi, and Gamma Sigma Delta. It was also represented in the Agricultural Business Club, Agronomy Club, Agricultural Council, Farm Operation Club, American Veterinary Medical Association, Dairy Husbandry Club, and Block and Bridle Club. In intramurals the AGR's won trophies in Class A wrestling and Class B bowling. Iowa State's chapter ranked fourth nationally among the thirty-seven chapters in scholarship and activities for 1960. The AGR's also ranked fourth scholastically among the fraternities on campus for spring quarter of 1960.

Alpha Sig's entertain dates

remodel dining, card rooms in extensive renovation project

MATCHING THEIR CARDS and keen eyes in a game of cribbage, these Alpha Sig's demonstrate that bridge isn't the "only" game.

THERE'S NOTHING like a good television program in the company of Alpha Sig's to ease the tension of college life.

The Alpha Sig's were again among the top ten in fraternity scholarship this year. On the social side, their annual dance, "The Black and White Formal," was held in April at the Hyperion Field Club in Des Moines. Decorations carried out the black and white theme, and Alpha Sig's dates were given black and white stuffed dogs as favors. At intermission one of the brothers gave a monologue. Area alumni were invited to the annual Founders' Day banquet held at the house in early December. Alpha Sig's and their dates decorated the house tree and sang Christmas carols at the Christmas fireside. The brothers also participated in the IFC Christmas party, given each year for school children of Ames. Major renovation took place in the Alpha Sig house this year. A new ceiling and paneled walls were installed in the dining room. The card room was completely remodeled and a built-in trophy case was added to display the honors won by the house. One recently won award was for being runner-up in Class A intramural basketball last year. The remodeling will be completed during the summer months.

The Alpha Tau Omega's Homecoming display this year consisted of Cy pushing a Colorado football player into the ground with a pile driver. To add realism, the pile driver was spouting steam complete with sound effects furnished by a tape recorder. Fish nets and storm lanterns decorated the VFW Hall in Nevada for the A T O's fall party, "Shipwreck." The pledges presented entertainment. During winter quarter the A T O's entertained their dates at their annual formal. The favors were blue and white angora scarves. Another social event was the spring "Calypso Party." Two open houses were held at the chapter house this past year for parents and guests, one at Homecoming and the other on Parents' Week end. The A T O's won the golf and horseshoe trophies in intramurals for the second consecutive year. In all-college activities the fraternity was represented in Cardinal Guild, Agriculture Council, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Block and Bridle Club, Tau Beta Pi, Knights of St. Patrick, and Varsity "I" Club.

place second in Veisbea parade with 'St. George and the Dragon'

FOIL AND CREPE PAPER were artistically combined by the Beta Sig's into a prize-winning Veisbea float depicting St. George.

A STRAW HAT, a guitar, a banjo, a song—all these make up a pleasant hour of relaxation in the Beta Sig house.

The Beta Sig's float, "St. George and the Dragon," captured second place among fraternities in the 1960 Veisbea Parade judging. Also in the spring, Terry Witter reigned as queen at the Beta Sig dance, "Gold Rose Formal." Gold roses decorated the Elmwood Country Club in Marshalltown. Brandy sniffers were given as favors. The Homecoming display, "Bison Street Beat," depicted a football player beating a buffalo's head to the tune "Basin Street Blues." The fall dinner-dance, "Autumn's Bouquet," was held at the Boone Country Club. In an candlelight atmosphere, fraternity members and their dates dined and then danced to the music of the Ambassadors. Colorful autumn leaves were used for decoration at the semi-formal dance. A pledge skit served as entertainment. During the past year Beta Sigma Psi members have been initiated into Alpha Zeta, Cardinal Key, Phi Eta Sigma, Eta Kappa Nu, Tau Beta Pi, and Phi Mu Alpha. This year the Beta Sig's rented an annex to house more men.

BETA THETA PI'S give encouraging comment to their brother-turned-chef while he prepares a quick snack for everyone.

WITH CHEERING ISU students decorating the walls, Beta's and their dates enjoy the food at the "Beta Barbeque" October 29.

The 120th General Convention of Beta Theta Pi was held this summer in Indiana with Ron Hoppel and Steve Wilder representing Iowa State's Tau Sigma chapter. The two delegates attended meetings dealing with rush, alumni relations, and pledge training. Beta's scheduled four exchanges each quarter, held their traditional breakfasts with sorority pledge classes, and entertained at several firesides during the year. The annual "Beta Barbeque" was centered around a barn dance theme and was given at the chapter house. The Wakonda Country Club in Des Moines was the scene of their spring formal. Beta's have members in the Knights of St. Patrick, Phi Mu Alpha, Scabbard and Blade, Tau Beta Pi, Tau Sigma Delta, Alpha Zeta, Pi Mu Epsilon, and Arnold Air Society. Bob Anderson was tapped for Cardinal Key during Veishea, and Ron Hoppel served as Interfraternity Council president this year. Future house plans are to remodel the study rooms.

Delta Chi's won over twenty-nine other campus residences when their booth, entitled "Speak Easy," earned the greatest income at the Blast winter quarter. Another philanthropic project for the Delta Chi's was planned for the Christmas season. For the second year the men gave food and a Christmas tree — and a serenade of Christmas carols — to a needy Ames family. The men also worked together on their quarterly parties. One spring evening the Boone Country Club was the scene for their "Carnation Fantasy." The "Jay Hall Four" provided music for dancing at the annual spring formal. In the fall Delta Chi pledges gave a party which featured a Polynesian atmosphere. Also fall quarter President James Hilton was a guest at the Delta Chi Founders' Day dinner celebration October 13. That same month the Delta Chi's used a "Yogi" theme for their Homecoming display. Another party for the men was the winter "Active-Return Party" with an appropriate skiing theme. An honor coming in the spring was the Class B softball championship.

THESE DELTA CHI'S decide that any table — even a low round one — is sufficient as they play cards in their living room.

collect first-place trophy at Veishea for 'Huck Hound Express'

THE DELTA SIG'S "Huck Hound Express" wheeled its way to a first-place trophy in fraternity Veishea float competition.

THIS QUARTET OF Delta Sigma Phi cavemen entertained brothers and their dates at their "Cro-Magnon Party" fall quarter.

Delta Sigma Phi won first prize among fraternities for its Veishea float, "Huck Hound Express." May was also the month for the "Carnation Ball" at which Dottye Jones was crowned Delta Sig "Dream Girl." Fall quarter was a busy time for the Delta Sig's. They enjoyed a Founders' Day banquet in Des Moines and a hobo party with the Gamma Phi Beta's at the 4-H camp near Boone. Delta Sig's opened their house to their sister sorority, Alpha Chi Omega, for informal rush parties in October. Among the honors going out to the house was the intramural track crown won during the fall. Don Pedersen was co-chairman of Greek Week, and Jim Socknat was president of History and Government Club. Another Delta Sig fall party featured the house decorated like a cave with the theme "Hey, B. C." Every Friday night spaghetti dinners were held at the house for Delta Sig's and their dates. Delta Sig's entertained housemothers at an exchange in February. The women were instructed to wear crazy hats, and the housemother with the most outlandish hat was designated "queen of the housemothers." Another honor came to the men when their "Brother Ephraim" won Varieties sweepstakes.

Delt's combine fraternity symbol in Homecoming competition with 'Victory is in the Balance'

THIS DELT AND HIS DATE didn't try for the prize given at "Pillow-Walk" February 4 for the shortest pair of pajamas. The occasion combined a dinner, pajama party, and overnight.

DELTS PUT THE finishing touches on the Homecoming display that won third-place in the fraternity division.

Delta Tau Delta finished out the year with their "Orchid Formal" in Des Moines — an annual spring event. Dates were presented with orchid corsages and jewelry boxes. Highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Delt Queen, Pat Henderson. During winter quarter the Delt's held a pajama party and overnight. Fall quarter they had a hayride. Delt exchanges included caroling with the Alpha Chi Omega's and dinner with the Alpha Gam's. The Delt's took third place with their Homecoming display, "Victory is in the Balance." This display featured a scalelike arrangement in which the Delt triangles hung as balances from a huge "T". The Delt's participated in football in the intramurals and took the traveling football trophy last winter for the most points. Special projects of the Delt's during the year included work on the IFC Christmas Party, an annual alumni dinner, and annual Christmas caroling. The Delta Tau Delta's celebrated their fiftieth anniversary this year. It was the first permanent fraternity on the ISU campus.

"Pinocchio" took third-place honors in the fraternity division of the Veishea parade for the D U's. The D U's entertained the Veishea candidates for Queen of Queens with a tea at their house. Dr. Joseph Walkup, faculty adviser, and Martin Wirt, president of the D U's, were tapped this fall for the Greek honorary, Gamma Gamma. The twenty-three D U pledges won the Olympics sweepstakes as one part of Greek Week festivities. For their fall party the D U's decorated their house in a 20's "speak-easy" atmosphere. Partygoers dressed in the 1920's tradition attended the dance, "Capone Capers." Dick Torrey's Holidays furnished dixieland jazz for dancing. Garters were given as favors. On the more serious side, the D U's participated in the IFC Christmas party for needy children. Study atmosphere was increased in the study room upstairs by the addition of acoustical tile ceilings.

ANOTHER HAND of poker is dealt in the D U house while two of tria run over the dealer's good luck in the last hand.

ENTERTAINING AT THE Vet Med Christmas party is the FarmHouse Four — Forest Thye, Keith Briggs, Don Hertz, and Larry Bower. The group also performed as a "flash act" at Varieties.

FARMHOUSE MEN treat their families to a lavish buffet as part of the fraternity's annual fall quarter Parents' Day.

FarmHouse men received a twenty-year-old gift this year — the traveling IFC scholarship trophy. The trophy was retired after twenty years' service and was given permanently to FarmHouse fraternity to recognize the men's consistently high scholastic rankings during those twenty years. Other honors came to the house this year. At Veishea three of the men were tapped for Cardinal Key. Other FarmHouse men were president of Agriculture Council, Chancellor of Alpha Zeta, and senior class president. Another highlight of the year was the drawing of plans for remodeling their house on Ash Avenue. The house was damaged by fire in winter quarter of 1960, and the men then moved into the vacant Fisher Home Management House. Plans called for restoring the house and building an addition. Despite the fire the fraternity maintained its usual social schedule. "Spring Shadows" was held at the Perry Country Club in May. Silhouettes of the men in the house decorated the club for the formal. The traditional steak fry was given at the Ledges the next Sunday evening. The men also participated in intramurals, winning the championship in Class C softball.

JOHN HAWKINS GIVES his partner that look of bridge frustration before deciding whether to bid spades again—or no-trump.

A KAPPA SIG will always take time out to help a brother who is in a bind with tomorrow's math assignment.

Help Week of 1960 found the Kappa Sigma men helping with the construction of the Iowa Crippled Children's Home camp near Des Moines. The men ended the year by placing fourth among fraternities in Sinfonia and sixth among fraternities in intramurals. In the fall the fraternity gave its annual "Bar-Nothing Western Dance." Couples dressed in Western attire for the party. A tent was set up in the back yard of the Kappa Sig house, and a barbecue dinner served in it. The house was decorated like a corral. At Homecoming a large replica of "Yogi Bear" holding a bison's head on a piece of ice illustrated the theme "We're Icing the Bison for You." A new look was given to the house this year with the living room and dining room being redecorated. In the winter the men remodeled the ping-pong room themselves. Also winter quarter the Marshalltown Country Club was the site of the Kappa Sig's annual "Black and White" formal. Decorations, apparel of the men and their dates, and the favors—musical lambs—carried out the two-color theme. Linda Fell was crowned "Kappa Sig Dream Girl" at the party.

THE LAMBDA CHI'S "Blue Room Party" October 28 carried out a Spanish theme of beautiful señoritas and dashing senors.

Moving into their new split-level chapter house in October highlighted fall quarter for the members of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The sixty-six man structure was built on the site of the old house. Several teas were held to display the new residence. Mrs. Lenore Harrell, the returning housemother, was also honored by a tea. A recognition banquet was held Homecoming week end to welcome returning alumni. Opening the fall quarter social whirl was the annual "Blue Room Party" which revolved around a Spanish theme. Last spring quarter, Nancy Starbuck was crowned "Crescent Girl" at the "White Rose Formal" held at the Hotel Holst in Boone. During winter quarter dinner and dance exchanges were held. At Christmas the annual Greek residence door decoration contest was sponsored by fraternity members. The Lambda Chi's were active in intramurals throughout the year. Alum H. L. Shadle was tapped for Gamma Gamma during Greek Week.

*Phi Delta Theta cops Varieties honor with Scottish 'Mack the Knife' . . .
wins Veishea sweepstakes for 'Snow White and Seven Dwarfs'*

IN THE WINNING Phi Delta Theta Varieties skit, the witches prophesy a king is in their midst in their take-off on "MacBeth."

WITH THE HOUSE CREST and a trophy in the background, four Phi Delt's lounge on the floor and enjoy the new house stereo.

Sore muscles and late work sessions were justified when the men of Phi Delta Theta won sweepstakes with their entry in the Veishea parade. A little girl sat on the float holding a book of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and, as she read, the seven dwarfs could be seen coming out of a cave. The Phi Delt's turned from fairy tales to literature for the inspiration for their winning Varieties skit. The skit, named "Mack the Knife," was a take-off on Shakespeare's "MacBeth." Individual Phi Delt's were also active on campus. One was co-chairman of Homecoming, three others were also on Homecoming Central Committee, and two were tapped for Gamma Gamma. Highlighting their social calendar was the annual spring formal, given in May. On March 15 the men of Phi Delta Theta celebrated Founders' Day in Des Moines. The men carried out two philanthropic projects during the year. They were hosts to needy Ames school children at one of the IFC-planned Christmas parties and in early April had "Community Service Day."

PHI GAM'S AND their dates step lively at the Fiji annual "Grass Skirt Dance" given spring quarter.

A PHI GAM DISPLAYS a replica of the Phi Gamma Delta pin—a mosaic which is hung on a wall of the Phi Gam house.

Fiji warriors armed with shields and spears carried their queen in a thatched sedan chair in the 1960 Veishea parade. In late spring a barn outside of Ames was turned into a Pacific island for the annual "Grass Skirt Dance." Fiji's and their dates came in Hawaiian costumes; orchid leis and bamboo mugs were given as favors. Phi Gam's were also active in intramurals and won the "Big Four" baseball trophy. Roy Miller was president of Engineering Council and Gordon Smith was vice-president of Union Student Board. During Greek Week Clark Warden was tapped for Gamma Gamma. Fall quarter the annual "Purple Garter Dance" was held, using the fraternity's color, royal purple, as the theme. For their Homecoming display, Fiji's built a little man with a shotgun aimed at a football saying, "We'll Blast Their Passes." Small presents with appropriate poems were given to dates at the Christmas fireside, and in March alumni were honored at the "Norris Pig Dinner." The Fiji's did various jobs during the year to raise money for an orphan they support.

PHI TAU'S PUT last touches on a huge octopus which won them second place among fraternities in Homecoming competition.

MODERN PAINTING on the wall helps set the mood for the Phi Kappa Tau house party, "1984," given fall quarter.

The Phi Kappa Tau spring formal, "Phi Tau Fantasy," was held in Hotel Fort Des Moines in April. As favors, dates received bobby-pin trays. The pledges provided entertainment with a skit, and the Phi Tau "Dream Girl" was crowned. The Phi Tau's Homecoming display, a huge red octopus that puffed smoke and moved its eyes, was awarded second prize in the fraternity division. It was appropriately captioned "Let's Put the Squeeze on 'Em." Later George Orwell's book, "1984," was the theme of their fall quarter party. Phi Tau's and dates came dressed in costumes that might be worn in 1984. Another literary work, "The Inferno" by Dante, was used as the theme of their winter quarter party, "Phi Tau Inferno." The president of the Iowa Chemical Society and the secretary of the Landscape Architecture Association this year were Phi Tau's. The Phi Tau's were also active in intramurals. Last winter quarter the fraternity purchased a house which is now used as an annex, providing facilities for six men.

A PARTYGOER AND HIS DATE take a break at the Phi Kappa Theta's traditional fall function entitled "Fisheaters' Brawl."

"Amethysts in April" was the theme of the 1960 Phi Kappa Theta spring formal held at Hotel Holst in Boone. The purple, white, and gold Phi Kap colors formed the backdrop, and jewelry box favors completed the evening. "Fisheaters' Brawl," a Friday-night frolic, kicked off the fall social season, and the popular "Pirate's Ball" was held during winter quarter. Also on the social calendar were exchanges with beatnik and international themes. The Phi Kap's had Homecoming and Veishea teas with open houses, and Charter Day in April commemorated the fraternity's founding. In sports the Phi Kappa Theta's took the 1960 bowling trophy in intramurals with several Class A entries in various sports. Phi Kappa Theta is a social Catholic fraternity providing the social opportunities of a college fraternity within a religious atmosphere. The Phi Kap's special projects include Newman Club functions and serving at Mass. Members of Phi Kappa Theta presided over Industrial Education Club and Investments Club.

Spring quarter Pi Kappa Alpha held its annual "Dream Girl Formal," at which the 1960 Dream Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha was crowned. During fall quarter a tea was given at the house for all new sorority pledges. Winter quarter the Pi K A house was turned into a tropical island for the annual Hawaiian party. Pikes and their dates wore tropical costumes. As the women arrived at the party, they received orchid leis which had come from Hawaii. Various exchanges and firesides were also enjoyed during the year. In March a Founders' Day Banquet was held in Des Moines with the district chapters participating. The Pi K A's competed in athletic contests, winning second place in both Class B baseball and Class B football intramurals as well as placing fourth in the Greek Week Olympics. Veishea was one of the many all-university activities in which Pikes participated individually. Pi K A's held the positions of Veishea co-chairman, SOV co-chairman, business manager, and engineering open house chairman. Pi K A's also were in honoraries and had campus offices including the vice-presidency of the senior class.

EVEN WHEN SOMEONE is around to help a brother out of his bunk, "Time to rise and shine" never sounds good!

The Pi Kapp's held a hay-ride and fireside at the Larry Jo Dude Ranch in Boone in the fall. Late in October a "Pajama Party" with a Halloween theme was given in the Pi Kapp annex. The annual "Rose Ball," held in the spring, was highlighted by the crowning of the "Rose of Pi Kappa Phi." Last year's "Rose" was Becky Roland. Silver platters and a glass slipper were the favors. For Veishea the Pi Kapp's float showed Robinson Crusoe and Friday on an island with the theme "T.G.I.F." At Homecoming, "Cy" stood in the Pi Kapp's front yard holding a rope tied around a buffalo. The caption was "It'll Be a Cinch." During spring quarter Pi Kappa Phi placed seventh scholastically among men's residences. During summer vacation the entire second story of the house was remodeled. Pi Kapp Jerry Olmsted served as commander of the Pershing Rifles, and Tom Tucker was president of the Business Students Association. Pi Kapp's activities included Scabbard and Blade, Alpha Zeta, Phi Mu Alpha, Sigma Theta Epsilon, Phi Eta Sigma, and Advanced Air Cadets.

SIG ALPH'S FIND a perfect atmosphere for studying or reading for pleasure in their comfortable, Tudor house library.

"COME SING to Sigma Alpha Epsilon . . ." and Sig Alph's gather around the piano to sing again some of their favorite songs.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon's Homecoming display received the first-place trophy this year in the fraternity division. The display showed a huge "Cy," dressed as an Indian, shooting the Colorado buffalo with a bow and arrow. The winning slogan was "This Is Our Game." The men showed their musical skill by winning second place in the fraternity division of Sinfonia, and rounded out this list of honors by placing high in football and volleyball intramural competition. The Sig Alph's had several unusual parties this year. One was their traditional "Raft Party." The men and their dates rode rafts down the Des Moines River for about a mile, then had a picnic supper and danced. Another was a Hawaiian party given at the Boone Country Club. The Hawaiian theme was carried out in the decorations and in the orchid lei favors. Sig Alph men took time out during their busy spring quarter to go to the Crippled Children's Camp in Des Moines to clean the camp area. Winter quarter the men had a Christmas party complete with Santa Claus, candy canes, and Christmas carols for the children.

In Varieties this year, the Sigma Chi's did a take-off on Boyd's of Boston, "an advertising firm that can sell anything." In carrying out the motto, the Sigma Chi's demonstrated that they were apt in selling lungs. The Sigma Chi's held their always-famous "Undertaker's Ball" during winter quarter. Dates were picked up in a hearse, ran through a maze at the house, and asked to identify their dates who were lying stiff on slabs in the "morgue." During spring quarter the Sigma Chi's held their annual "Sweetheart Dance." Nancy Eroeburg reigned as "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" at the dance given in Des Moines. White roses decorated the tables; music boxes and manicure sets were given to the dates as favors. The Sigma Chi's had an unusual exchange this year—a "Hatfield-McCoy Exchange" to which they went dressed as hillbillies and partook of mountain stew. Sigma Chi's participated wholeheartedly in intramurals this year, winning first place in points-per-man in the fraternity division.

THESE SIGMA CHI'S proudly display a piece of the goal post captured from the tremendous Iowa State-Oklahoma game.

treat sorority women to traditional 'Sigma Nu Relays' in spring

SIGMA NU'S SHOW varying degrees of enjoyment and interest as they watch a typical Sunday evening television show.

A STUDIOUS SIGMA NU finishes "one more line" before he joins his brother for a nightly study break in the "rec" room.

The Sigma Nu's chose the Fort Des Moines Hotel as the scene for their annual "Orchid Formal" last spring. "Speck Red" and his band played for dancing after a dinner was served. Sharon Garvik was selected as "White Star Girl" to highlight a memorable evening. In the fall the Sigma Nu's held a party of a much different character. The "Sod Buster's Ball" was the scene of a rare collection of old-time farmers and hill-billies. Another annual social event was the Sigma Nu exchange with the Alpha Xi Delta's of Drake. Dancing occupied the major portion of the evening followed by a take-over of the fraternity house by the women. Mrs. Erma Shaw was officially welcomed as new Sigma Nu housemother by the housemothers on campus with a tea in the fall. Participants in most of the intramurals offered during the year, the Sigma Nu's captured the Class B bowling championship. In another kind of athletics, they sponsored their spring "Relays" in which sorority actives and pledges entered everything from a "tug-of-war" to the "burlap bounce."

THE SIGMA PHI EPSILON TRIO with one banjo and two guitars sang its way to sweepstakes for Varieties flash acts.

ACCOMPANIED BY housemother "Mom" McKone, another group of Sig Ep's "bursts forth," this time in the house living room.

Sigma Phi Epsilon collected trophies and individual honors throughout the year—a year marked also by traditional and first-time social occasions. In the spring "Mr. Toad's Infatuation" won fourth place in the Veishea parade for the men. They also won second place in fraternity intramurals. Earlier in the spring quarter of 1960 brother Bill Dalgetty was elected student body president. Other individual honors included being Homecoming co-chairman and Veishea chairman. May 17 Sig Ep's used their new patio adjoining the house on the south for a "Beachcomber Party" complete with costumes. March 25 and again October 7 forty couples played bridge for two hours, changing tables every four hands. Refreshments and dancing on the balcony followed. Later in the fall they planned "Moms' and Wives' Week end" to coincide with Parents' Week end. A white elephant auction in the evening raised money for the Mothers and Wives Club. The club purchased new silverware and serving utensils for the house. Other annual social events included the "Saddle and Gun Party," the Thanksgiving feast, the Christmas overnight, and the "Queen of Hearts Formal," given in February at the house.

Sigma Pi's parties during the year ranged from a formal to a futuristic costume party. The "Orchid Ball," based on the house flower, was held in April. Music for dancing was provided by the Skylarks. Carol Lee Cupp, a pinmate from Drake University, reigned as "Orchid Queen." The annual Valentine party is held every February, with dates taking over the house for the night. "Moonstop Hotel" was the name of this year's party, and costumes and decorations depicted the year 2000. Founders' Day was celebrated during February with a banquet at the chapter house. Other activities during the year included participating in Greek Week and Homecoming festivities. At Homecoming the men constructed a display showing "Cy" kicking the buffalo into a factory and coming out as hamburgers. It was captioned "Let's Make Buff Burgers Out of 'Em." The Sigma Pi's found time also for studies, with the pledges ranking third scholastically for spring quarter among fraternity pledge classes. A scholarship of one hundred dollars is given annually to the outstanding pledge as selected by the chapter and alumni.

A LITTLE RAGTIME will enliven any day at the Sigma Pi house—even when the day is almost at the end of winter quarter.

A KNIGHT SITS calmly on his armored horse while Teke's plan the strategy of moving him into a dragon-charging position as they work on their 1960 Homecoming display.

A DEEP DIP SIGNALS the end of a number for this Teke and his Delta Delta Delta partner at a dance exchange fall quarter.

The men of Tau Kappa Epsilon returned fall quarter to find a complete change in the top two floors of their house. The Teke's had stayed over a short time at the end of spring quarter to tear the plaster and lath from the walls. Refinishing done during the summer included carpeting the halls; built-in desks, drawers, and closets; pole lamps; and "Fiberglas" curtains for each study room made by the Teke's "Mothers' Club." To show off their remodeled house, the Teke's held several date parties during the year. In December more than sixty couples dined and danced at a Christmas party. In January the Teke's gave a Playboy party, "Bar Room Brawl." Dates were favored with human-sized felt rabbits, and a combo played music for the costumed dancers. Winter quarter was also the time of a pledge party, "Scum of the City," with decorations like a city street in the slums. The Teke's worked to build a Homecoming display, "Our Tails Aren't Dragging" which featured a dragon, complete with movable head, tail, and wings, and a knight on a white steed.

Theta Chi's earn fourth in Sinfonia, royalty, red carnations set the mood for 'Carnation Cotillion'

THETA CHI's Gary Bergland, left, and Tom Sentman study plans for the house Homecoming lawn decoration captioned "Weather Forecast—Cyclones Will Hit Clyde Williams Field."

HANK VOGELMAN struts in a tiny nightshirt which Theta Chi pledges "acquired" from a girl who received it as a favor given by another fraternity at a pajama party.

Spring quarter the Theta Chi's bowled their way to the Class A spring bowling championship. The same quarter Theta Chi's crowned Pat Meinert as their queen at their "Carnation Cotillion" formal. The Indian Creek Country Club was decorated with red carnations, the Theta Chi flower, for the dance. Fall quarter found the Theta Chi's and their dates dressed in costumes for "Castaway Capers." Highlighting winter quarter was a dance, "Hotel Theta Chi." In December a Christmas party was given. During the year, the Theta Chi's held various exchanges, had two open houses, and made a display for Homecoming. They participated in both the Greek Week Olympics and Sinfonia, in which they received fourth place. Developments at the Theta Chi house this year included a new driveway, a new hi-fi set, completion of a basement recreation room plus plans for a new addition. The chapter also won a "leadership in publications" award from its national organization.

House becomes 'Theta Delt Swamp'

featuring tunnel entrance, cider waterfall, toy alligators

PARTYGOERS AT THE "Theta Delt Swamp" enjoy the music of Bruce Butterfield, Julian Schmidt, and Louie Thompson.

There are three goals for which members of Theta Delta Chi strive — scholastic perfection, personal and social development, and brotherhood. Theta Delt's believe true brotherhood to be a friendly give-and-take based on consideration and interdependence. Innumerable parties, exchanges, and service projects were held throughout the year. The "Theta Delt Swamp" was the fall highlight. This costume party and dance was unique in many ways. Dates were brought to the house in the "Swamp Buggy," a 1934 Chevy — couples entered the house through a thirty-foot booby-trapped tunnel — favors were two foot long toy alligators — and refreshment was drawn from a bubbling cider waterfall continually replenished by a frantically flurrying six-foot-five-inch pledge with tin hat and bare feet. Last spring the Theta Delt's were honored for having the highest fraternity gradepoint for winter quarter. The house prizes its campus reputation as a scholastic leader.

announce Sweetheart at 'Le Sacre Du Printemps Ball' in May

DELICATE AUTUMN DECORATIONS and pretty girls set a romantic mood for the Theta Xi fall formal, entitled 'Autumn Mist.'

THETA XI'S and their housemother, Mrs. Dickman, enjoy Christmas dinner shortly before leaving for winter vacation.

The "Sweetheart of Theta Xi," Jo Ciukowski, reigned over "Le Sacre Du Printemps Ball" in May at the Waveland Country Club in Des Moines. Dance music for the ball was furnished by Don Hoy. Dates received jewelry boxes inscribed with the Theta Xi crest as favors. During fall quarter the Theta Xi's entertained their guests at an "Autumn Mist" formal held at their house. Numerous exchanges and fire-sides balanced the social calendar. They entitled their Homecoming display "We'll Cash In." They carried out their theme by constructing a huge slot machine in which blinking lights illustrated a winning combination of three Cyclones. During Campus Chest Week Theta Xi's held their annual "Pancake Supper" for "girls only." Proceeds were channeled to Campus Chest. At Christmas time the chapter entertained needy grade-school pupils. Founders Day was celebrated at the house with a "6294 Banquet." During the year Theta Xi's were active in intramurals, placing first in Class "C" bowling.

Alpha Kappa Lambda, a colony founded at ISU in 1959, concentrated primarily on rush during the past year. The highlight of the entire year was receiving their charter to become a fullfledged chapter. Another development was redecorating the upstairs of their house themselves. They also plan to have new living room furniture. The AKL's living room has been the center for several exchanges. The AKL's had open house during Homecoming, Parents' Day, and Veishea. They joined with other fraternities to give Christmas parties for needy Ames grade-school children. In intramurals, the AKL's ranked third in points per man during both spring and fall quarters.

ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA colony at ISU received its national charter in February, making it the twenty-third AKL chapter.

Spring of 1960 found the Phi Psi's dressed and acting the part of hillbillies at their "Moonbeams and Moonshine" party. During fall quarter the men and their dates turned into Romans to illustrate "The Last Days of Pompeii." Winter quarter showed the versatile Phi Psi's in more formal dress at their "Jeff Hop," a party celebrating the fraternity's founding at Washington and Jefferson College. Phi Psi's show their versatility in all-university activities, also. They have members on Engineering Council and the Supreme Court and in Phi Mu Alpha, Scabbard and Blade, and Varsity "I" Club.

The 1961 Bomb is the result of the work and talents of many people. It has taken countless hours by almost countless people to create the book. In planning the Bomb we have tried both to give a record of 1961 and also to depict the spirit of Iowa State. It has been both a challenge and a privilege to edit the 1961 Bomb, which we now present to you.—Edith Lillie Bartley
