THE

BOMB

AFTER FIFTY YEARS

College, Ames

THE PLAN AND ITS

A study in Achievement

Founded 1858—designated a land grant college 1862—published its first year-book in 1893—each date marks a period of progress for Iowa State College. And now with its fiftieth anniversary edition for 1942, the Bomb establishes another milestone for this institution in its growth from infancy to maturity.

Retrospection through the years brings the realization that Iowa State College has grown by a plan as definite as any blueprint. Divisions, departments, curricula and even buildings, once hazy blueprints stored away in the minds of early leaders, have steadily taken shape. One of the Mid-west's finest golf courses, the service building, the new women's gymnasium and recent additional dormitory facilities for both men and women are some of the latest additions to our campus.

The first faculty of Iowa State College, under the leadership of President A. S. Welch, inaugurated standards that stressed scholarship, fundamental research and instruction in the sciences and technology. "Science With Practice" not only became the motto and trade-mark, but the very foundation of the college program.

The early conception of science applied to the every-day affairs of life has developed through the years into the present important emphasis placed on actual work in the field and in the research laboratory.

Today under the leadership of President Charles E. Friley, one of the primary blueprints is rapidly taking shape, namely, distinctive service to the nation in a time of emergency. With its fingers on the very pulse of the state and nation through teaching and through the service and extension groups, Iowa State College reaffirms its place as one of the bulwarks of our Democracy.

Student Councils Function Through Self Government

By the students, of the students, for the students, is the way Iowa State College men and women want their affairs managed. Suppose we investigate the case of one such A. M. (average man) who begins his climb to campus prominence by becoming an officer in his departmental club. From here, he advances to his divisional council where he helps plan the divisional dance, reception for freshmen interested in his division, and Veishea activities. Selected as one of two from his divisional council, our A. M. becomes a member of Cardinal Guild, the true student governing body of the campus. The Guild selects chairmen for major dances of the year, concerns itself with all student problems, and handles the all-college election of the student-body president. Our A. M. reaches the key position of students in administration when he becomes student-body president, since he is automatically president of Cardinal Guild and the intermediary of faculty and students.

Important as the student administrative positions are, they still leave many essential functions which must be performed by faculty and executives of the college. Every student organization on the campus has at least one faculty advisor who attends its meetings and sees that the activities of the group run smoothly. Iowa State College's Registrar keeps records and files of all attending students and serves as chairman of the scholarship committee.

Dean M. D. Helser keeps in contact with all freshman and sophomore students, and as Dean of the Junior College, serves as a link between the students and President.

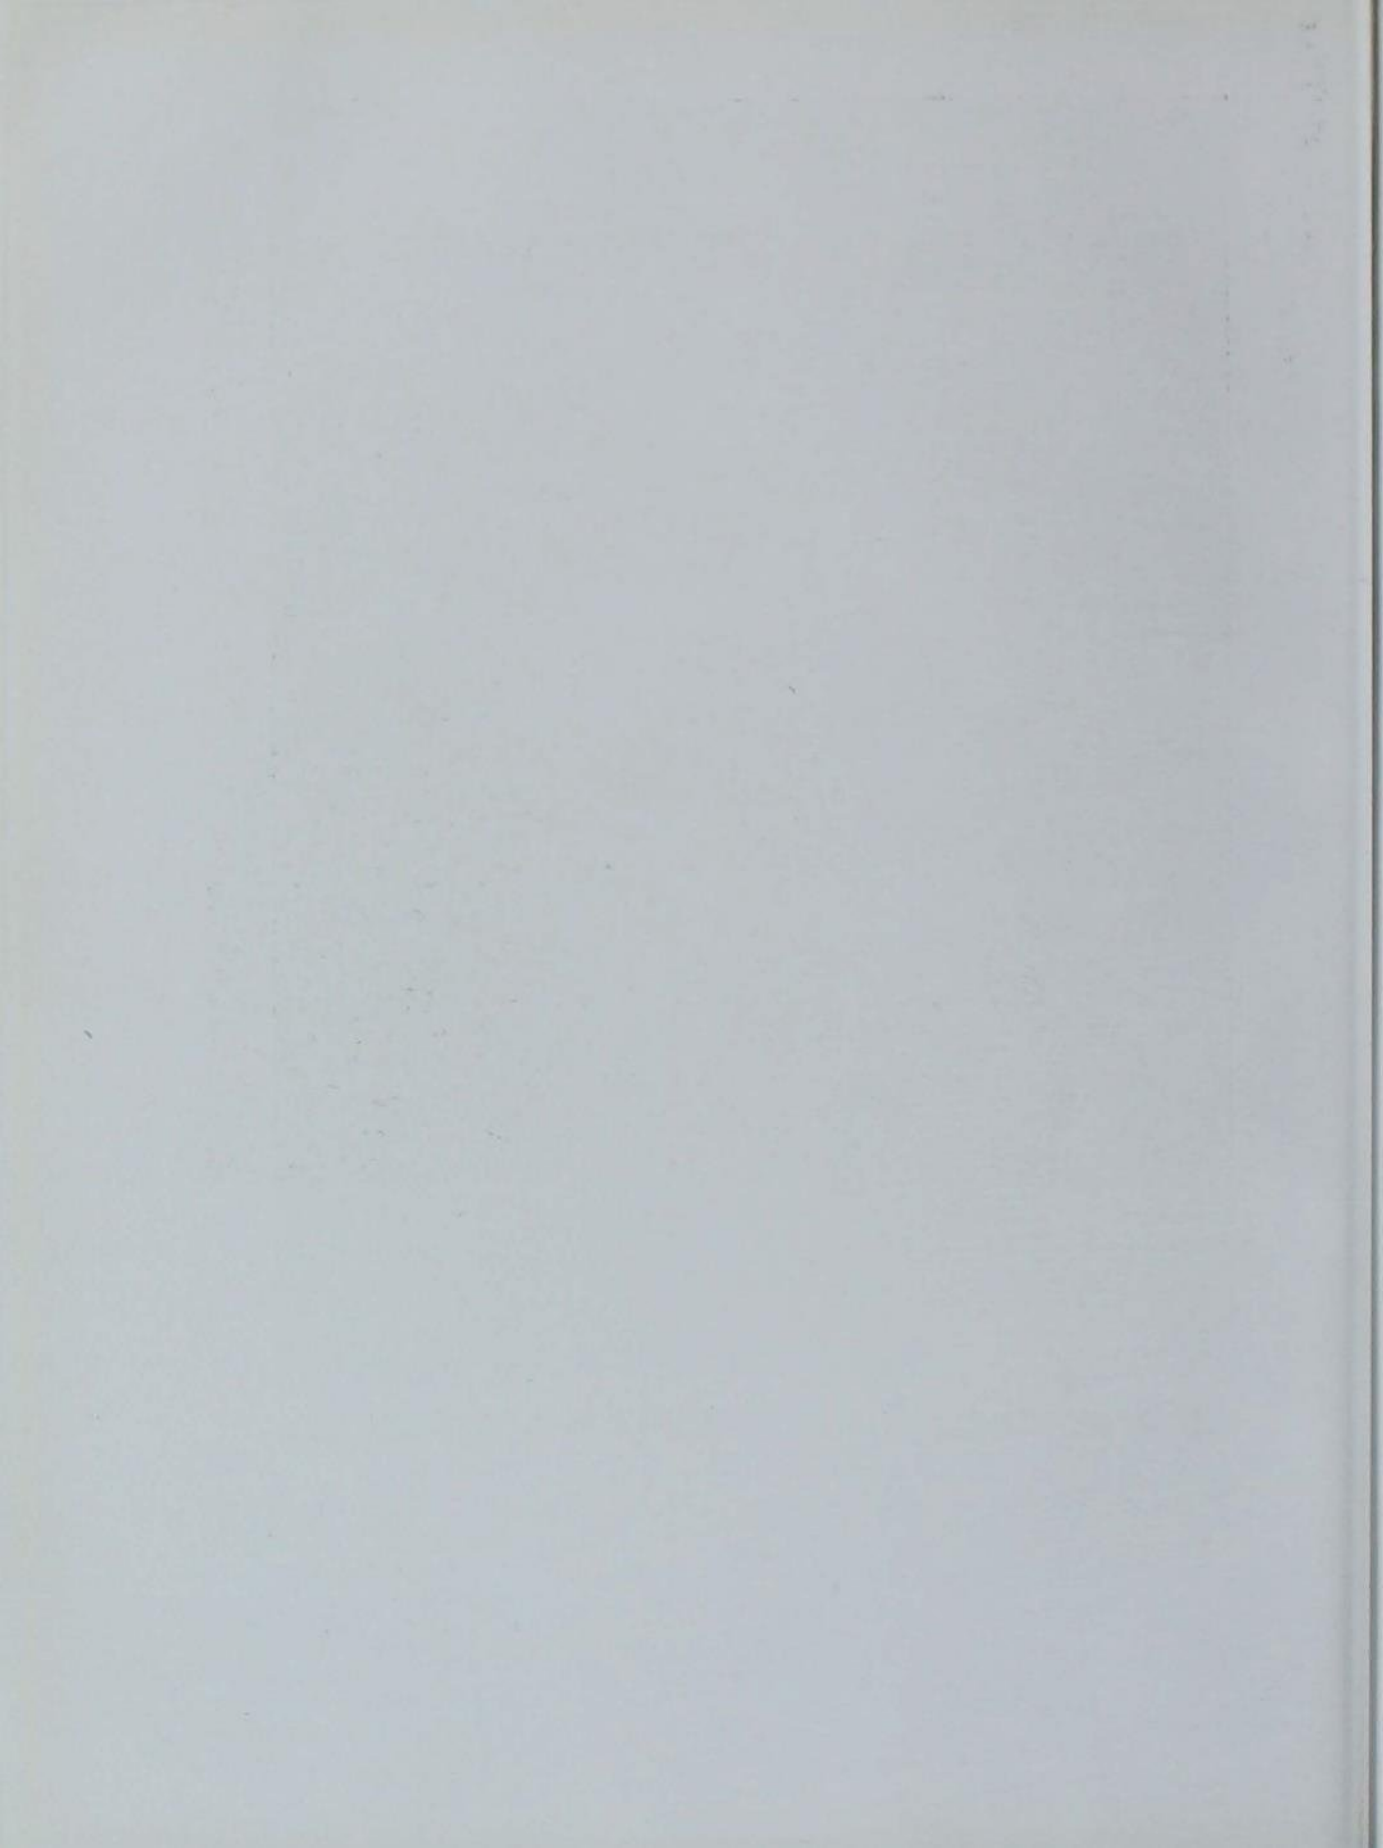

President Friley meets the juniors at an annual tea at the Knoll, and greets all new students at a reception during freshman days. His concern with student problems is often the driving force behind new reforms.

New in 1942, is the Student Defense Council composed of eight student committees affecting every phase of National Defense. Serving as an administrative force for the students, their object is to involve every student in some phase of defense work. Faculty advisors of the committee serve only to guide their activities, as in all other Iowa State College organizations.

Governor George A. Wilson

Governor Wilson Visits I S C

A familiar figure at Iowa State is Governor George A. Wilson. This year he attended the sixth annual State Highway meeting here, Dec. 16, 1941, and was host to Wendell Willkie Feb. 24, 1942, at the opening of the new lecture course, Science 201. It has been a tradition at Iowa State for the governor to open Veishea, but much to our regret he was unable to attend last year.

Mr. Wilson attended Grinnell College and was graduated from the law school of the State University of Iowa in 1907. He was a member of Sigma Chi, social fraternity, and Phi Delta Phi, law honorary. He began his career as a lawyer and climbed the political ladder from County Attorney in Polk County to District Judge, State Senator, to the Governorship in 1938, and was re-elected in 1940. He married Miss Mildred Zehner in 1921 and has three sons.

I O W A S T A T E C O L L E G E

In offering you my best wishes for a successful and constructive career in the field for which you have prepared yourself, I wish also to express to each member of the Class of 1942 my appreciation for the fine contribution you have made to the Iowa State College. Your contributions have been many and varied. Through your adherence to high standards of scholarship, you have done much to raise the general quality of the educational program of the College; through your fine spirit of cooperation, you have done much to unify the student body; through your loyalty, you have greatly strengthened the fine traditions of the College and you have helped to put them on a sounder and more enduring basis; above all, you have developed a wholesome attitude toward life which will be of tremendous value to you in the interesting world ahead.

I call it an interesting world because without question the next twenty-five years will prove to be the most challenging, the most interesting and the most difficult era in modern history. To solve the problems that will arise will take the best brains and energy which this nation can provide. These problems will be in the fields of economics, politics and society, and they will be as much spiritual as intellectual.

I do not for a moment agree with those who would tell us that the world is headed for chaos and complete ruin. If the world does crash, it will be through our own stupidity, selfishness and inertia. I say very seriously to each of you that the young men and women who are graduated from the colleges and universities of this country this year and in the next five years can, if they have the vision, meet and solve the problems which will face them. To do so will take courage, foresight and consecration. You have the qualities to make an important contribution to the welfare of civilization in the next quarter of a century.

As you leave the halls where you have spent four of the most important years of your life, I hope you will keep ever in mind that there are certain fundamental principles which must guide your actions if you are to make your most effective contribution to society. These principles revolve around an adherence to those religious, moral and intellectual traits which characterized the life and work of our forefathers, and of which the world is in greater need today than ever before.

Sincerely yours,

Charles E. Freiley

Schull President

Henry C. Shull, president of the State Board of Education, has held that office the past two years. The Board consists of nine members who serve 6-year terms, and a three-member finance committee chosen from outside the Board membership. The secretary of the committee serves as secretary of the Board. The nine members are appointed by the governor and approved by the senate. The president is selected by the members from their own ranks. Iowa State College, the State University of Iowa, Iowa State Teachers College, the Iowa School for the Blind and the Iowa School for the Deaf are all governed by the Board, and presidents and executives of all the state institutions are selected by this organization.

I SC Men Back the War Effort

Giving up stamp collecting and fishing trips for the duration, Iowa State College faculty members have devoted their spare time and a little more to national defense activities. Every department from psychology to mechanical engineering has done more or less for the defense effort, according to its laboratory facilities.

Already up to the hilt in extension courses and short courses, the college has offered special technical training in all of the fields of defense importance covered by the regular college curricula and has gone to other cities in Iowa where courses have been conducted by members of the college staff and by trained men under college direction.

Science Defense Courses Enlarged

The Science Division is providing additional scientific training for warfare by adding courses on navigation ballistics, electronics ballistics and other war materials. About a thousand students have taken advantage of the all college lecture series, the Citizen and the World Crisis, sponsored by the Science Division. Wendel Willkie, 1940 presidential candidate, started the series by urging that students remain at their studies until called for other duties. He said it was the duty of every citizen to remain at his job and do it better than ever before. Today, he went on, people of this nation realize that defeating another nation and then demanding reparations and indemnity are a sure road to further wars. Only by free exchange of ideas and goods can we hope for peace.

With 80 percent of the instructors in the Science Division, the burden of the new defense courses shifted to the departments of the division.

Food Production

Throughout the Agricultural Division attention has been focused on the demands of the huge expansion in food production called for by the government. A good share of the responsibility of educating Iowa, the greatest agricultural state, is carried on by the Extension Service. Avoiding the mistakes of World War I, the emphasis has been placed on conservation methods as a means of increased production. Better methods of feeding livestock are emphasized on the experimental farms. The economics department studied the farm labor shortage problem.

WOI is cooperating with the United States Treasury in the sale of War Bonds.

Dairy industry head C. A. IVERSON steps up food production.

Inaugurate Short War Course

One of the main contributions by the Engineering Division to the war effort is the graduate himself. Because of the extreme importance of engineering ability in modern mechanized warfare, the demand for engineers has almost become a clamor. To meet this demand the division is supplementing a speeded up general curricula with several twelve week defense courses. These courses, designed to give the trainee in a short period a highly specialized training in one kind of skill, are conducted by the Extension Service throughout the state. Several of the faculty are serving in advisory and administrative capacities for the War Production Board; others have left to join the many graduates in the service.

All branches of the Home Economics Division are emphasizing self sufficiency in the home. A special general education course has been inaugurated to present additional information on home gardens, canning, re-making clothing, first aid and similar home products courses. In both research and education the use of food substitutes is being stressed at Iowa State College.

Tightens Organization Control

Legislation by Iowa State's student governing body hit all corners of the campus last year as Cardinal Guild tightened its control over campus organizations in smoothing out and harmonizing cooperation of all campus elements. Most widely acclaimed project of the year was the Homecoming program promoted by Guild members under the direction of Eber Eldredge. Highlighting the affair was a dance in the Armory attended by more than 4,300 persons, the largest dance ever held on the campus.

A new point system limiting individual participation in campus activities was put into effect under the guidance of Dorothy Ann Klein and Richard Mathison. Financial allotments to organized student groups were closely checked and recommendations for budget changes were made following reports by Guild treasurer Larry Dunn. All-college elections were given strict supervision by Ken Krogh and Ken Schlenker, co-chairmen of elections. Among other Guild projects was the establishment of a service trophy to be awarded each year to the outstanding campus organization from the standpoint of service to the college.

Included in the routine work of the Guild was the selection of several major dance chairmen and the editor and business manager of the Freshman Handbook. Personal interviews were demanded of all applicants as a part of each selection.

JOINT SOCIAL COUNCIL

Initiate Exchange Preference System

A new exchange system for organized campus groups was put into effect last year by the Joint Social Council. Booking dance exchanges in the past has been a rather competitive affair with many of the smaller groups coming out on the short end. The new system divides the fraternity system into 18 groups of equal size that share alike in number of exchange dates with sororities. Since there are but nine sororities at Iowa State, half of the fraternities are free to exchange with dormitories every week. Ward and dormitory exchange relationships remain much the same as before. A constitution was drawn up for the Council this year for the first time by a committee headed by Robert Kirkpatrick. Largest activity of the

Approve Union Dance Budgets

Many fingers in many pots characterizes the work of the Union Student Council, whose responsibility it is to lay plans for student affairs held in the Memorial Union. This includes the approval by the council of all dance budgets and the supervision of Coffee Forums, Campus Varieties, Twisters and Twilight Musicales. Several new services were established by the group during the past year. A popular new service directory was installed in Great Hall exhibiting the names, ranks and addresses of Iowa State men in the armed forces. A full-time free checking service is also in operation in the Union offering day and night facilities. Offices were shifted and partitions removed on the second floor of the building to create a dining room for New Men's Hall students, and space was also provided as a sewing room for Iowa State women students engaged in defense work.

The Union Student Council was a vital factor in the successful activities of the Student Defense Council. Weekly luncheons were arranged for members of the Defense Council at which reports and new ideas could be discussed. Provisions and recommendations were given to organizations promoting dances so that expenses might be pared and the excess funds turned over to the Defense Council. Coffee Forums during Winter quarter were stepped up to two a week. An outgrowth of the Coffee Forums is the Science 201 course held twice weekly in Great Hall. Money collected from Twisters and Campus Varieties programs bought more than $1,000 worth of defense bonds.

New Member Selection Method

The organization of the Associated Women Student Council was reshuffled again last year, this time to include fewer members with a different means of selection. Formerly the group was made up of the presidents of all women's organizations and one representative from each sorority and residence hall. The group has now been reduced to 8 in number, and each member must be petitioned and voted upon by the council before being admitted to the group. A buffet-style Freshman Dinner was held this year in Great Hall, Memorial Union, for women new to the campus. The object of the dinner was to acquaint the new women students with the various organizations on the campus and to acquaint them with the possibilities and advantages of entering campus activities. The council held a campus-wide mitten sale to raise funds for promoting projects. The mittens were cardinal and gold in color and had the initials "ISC" written across the back. A Campus Varieties Program was sponsored during the year with Sue Marie Schreiber in charge. Nothing but female talent was featured in the show. Barbara Taylor, acting president in the absence of Wilma Kellogg, was named a member of the Student Defense Council. She was named chairman of the Book Drive on the campus and with help from the AWS council more than filled the quota of 4,000 books for soldiers in the armed forces. The faculty contributed over half of the books.

Officers: Wilma Kellogg, president; Barbara Taylor, vice-president; Sue Marie Schreiber, treasurer; Alice Billhardt, secretary.

The sewing groups prepared hot water bottle covers and other articles to make more comfortable the men protecting the United States. 2,000 students participated in the all-college laffy pull.

The all-college book drive yielded 4,102 books for men in the services.

Friley Organizes Defense Council

Iowa Staters will remember Dec. 7, 1941. They'll remember the Pearl Harbor incident that brought an abrupt change in college life. On this cloudy Sunday afternoon students sat with ears glued to the radio listening to breathless commentators broadcast directly from the news rooms, "Japan has attacked America."

Sober-faced collegians immediately started shaping their plans to meet a grim, new life—one that called for sacrifices and a renewed pledge to fight vigorously for the preservation of democracy.

Pres. Charles E. Friley acted swiftly to meet the changed conditions by calling upon student leaders to work hand-in-hand with the administration in setting up a program to coordinate students' efforts in defense work. The designers found they were pioneers who had to break a path through thick underbrush of confusion and hysteria.

Less than a month after the Pearl Harbor bombing, Dr. Friley named a 17-member Student Defense Council upon recommendations of the students, to direct a student program to help bring about a victorious prosecution of the war.

These 17 members burned the candle at both ends, organizing committees and setting the wheels of this gigantic machine in motion. It faced many problems, and each Saturday noon met in Memorial Union to break down the boulders in the path. Verbal sledge hammers were used freely in clearing the land, and once the land was cleared, defense projects moved ahead rapidly.

Committee Chairmen: Lyle Tatum, chairman; Ruby Ann Lehman, secretary; Howard Rosenblum, education; John Rigg and Mary Burnham, publicity; Lee Ruggles and Ed Hanna, finance; Seeley Lodwick, conservation; Barbara Ruby and Wilma Kellogg, Red Cross activities; Howard Moburg, USO activities; Robert Park and Dorothy Vaughan, production committee; Ben Kinnick, workrooms; Margaret Mauss, knitting.

STUDENT DEFENSE COUNCIL

Establish Joint Campus War Chest

Those who remembered the tag days of World War I advised concentrating the collection of efforts. A war chest was established from which donations were made to worthy organizations. Money for the chest was raised mainly through the entertainment channels such as dances, Campus Varieties programs, donations from campus organizations and a basketball game.

Coeds went for the idea of learning to drive ambulances in a big way. They discarded their feminine apparel and donned coveralls while Psychologist Dr. Lauer showed them how to change tires, double clutch, drive through bombed streets, and load patients on the stretcher. Student fire fighters attended regular classes.

Educating the educated was a big task. Students increased their tempo and went to classes the year around, attended organized discussion groups and Coffee Forums.

The Student Defense Council promoted a new course, Science 201.

Division Aids In War Effort

Prime activity of the whole Division of Agriculture, student and faculty alike, during the past year was aiding in the war effort. Faculty members spent much of their time serving on regional and federal advisory boards, giving lectures and being of general service to agriculture in determining and carrying out ways of meeting the national emergency. Students gave freely of their time to the various campus organizations that are aiding in the prosecution of the war as well as increasing their scholastic load, thus speeding up graduation.

Despite the added load, the students of the Division of Agriculture, behind the able leadership of Dean H. H. Kildee, cut a wide swath through campus activities and continued to set new records in various inter-collegiate contests held during the past year.

One of the most outstanding records of the year was that compiled by the Livestock Judging Team in winning the American Royal Livestock Judging Contest at Kansas City. Not only did Iowa State have the high man for the fourth consecutive year, but all five members placed among the high nine men of the contest. Not to be outdone, the Dairy Cattle Judging Team won their national contest for the second consecutive year as well as having high scorer of the contest, Lyle Jackson, for the second straight year. The Meats, Crops and Dairy Products Judging Teams also held Iowa State's banner high at their respective contests during the year. In addition, athletic teams, campus honoraries, publications and organizations were all heavily manned by students of the Division of Agriculture.

John Rigg introduced the men of the division who are in activities and told freshmen how to get into campus activities.

The council sponsored a training course in the technique of interviewing for juniors and seniors. Russell M. Vifquain and Don Stevens were the guest speakers.

Club Presents Mid-West Show

The main event which the members of the Horticulture Club remember for this academic year is the Little Mid-West Horticultural Exposition. It is the largest show of its kind in the mid-west and a fete which is presented, along with Veishea open house, to show what is taught, practiced and accomplished by the Department of Horticulture.

The club was founded in 1912 and its purpose is to promote professional interest among the students, to cultivate ethical standards and to organize a horticultural exhibition and Veishea open house.

Publishes The Ames Forester

Publisher of the only departmental annual on the campus—"The Ames Forester"—the Forestry Club has a long program of activities through the school year. In addition to the Hoedown, the Game Banquet and the Spring Banquet, the club manages a 330-acre state forest.

The Forestry Club is best known on the campus as the sponsor of the famous Annual Foresters' Hoedown. Each year some time during the winter quarter the foresters take their axes and truck and descend upon their pine plantations north of the campus. Under the direction of "Skipper" Larsen they make a thinning. The result is the dimly lit, forested Country Club and a gay crowd enjoying the dancing and cider bar.

Refreshments are served at the Foresters' Hoedown . . . and in dem bottles, too.

At the Game Banquet this year, the foresters and their guests dined on a front quarter of elk sent from Utah through the courtesy of Iowa State alum Paul M. Dunn, dean of the forestry school at Utah State.

Under first-term President Bill Rice, and Dale Olsen, who won the gavel for the second term, the club successfully financed its program on the activity ticket system.

Sponsor Outside Speaker Series

This organization of the Department of Landscape Architecture at Iowa State College sponsors the extra-curricular activities of the department. These include special outside speakers and lecturers on related technical and cultural subjects as well as the social get togethers known as firesides, informal parties, picnics and an annual costume "Apple Polishers' Ball." At this unique affair the students elect, and a member of the faculty crowns, the King (or Queen) of the "Apple Polishers" for the year.

Through contributions from the student and faculty members a rather complete file of current magazines and periodicals both technical and popular is available for daily reference in the studio.

Exhibitions of work of Vistonian Club members sponsored by Tau Sigma Delta (national honorary society in Architecture and Landscape Architecture) are shown occasionally in Great Hall of Memorial Union and current student work is constantly on exhibition in the rooms of the Landscape Architecture Studio.

The Vistonian Club this year has welcomed several returning service men to the studio who have held interesting forum discussions on their war work in various fields such as laying out cantonments, in the Air Corps and in ground combat units.

"Elmer" Hansen was in the Marines in World War I, took graduate work at Minnesota, and is a National Dairy Cattle Judge. C. S. Dorchester graduated from Iowa State in 1913 . . . received his M. A. at the University of Minnesota, and Ph. D. at Iowa State in 1935.

Stuntz Highest For 1942 Season

The Iowa State dairy products judging team, coached by Dr. Nicholas Fabricius, placed fourth in cheese, seventh in butter and ninth in milk to take tenth place in the national judging contest at Toronto. High individual of the team was Clyde Stuntz.

The national judging contests have been held every year since 1916, with the exception of 1918. Of the 24 contests Iowa State and Ohio State are tied for first, each winning eight. The other eight firsts are held by various agricultural schools throughout stressed at Iowa State College.

Win First Place At Kansas City

The Iowa State College livestock judging team broke all previous records, placing first in the contest at the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City. Myron Johnson was high man; Lauren Freyermuth, second; Gerald Parks, sixth; Allen McCone, seventh, and Alan Williams, ninth.

Kiser, Roach, Parks, McCone and Johnson carried the team on to victory at the National Belgian Show at Waterloo, Garold Parks being the high man of the contest. The team, composed of Parks, Kiser, Johnson, Roach and Freyermuth, placed third at the International Livestock Exposition, being first in the hog and sheep contests.

Places Sixth In Two Contests

The farm crops judging team, coached by C. S. Dorchester, placed sixth in both the Midwestern Intercollegiate Contest at Kansas City and the International Hay and Grain Show in Chicago. Ten teams competed at Kansas City and eleven in Chicago.

The judging of grain consists of identifying the grain and hay crops grown in the middle west, and placing classes of corn, oats, wheat, barley, rye, hay and cotton crops.

Members of the team were Charles Clark, Warren Kester, Joe Roewe and James Parish. Clark ranked fifth at Kansas City.

Win First At National Show

Iowa State's dairy judging team won the most coveted award of the year in October, when they annexed the championship at the National Dairy Show in Memphis, Tenn. Twenty-three other teams competed and Lyle Jackson was high man of the contest, winning him the right to be the escort of the debutante queen of the show.

Team members, composed of Lyle Jackson, Russell Lyon, Lyle Hoyt and William Hitz, won permanent possession of the Hoard's Dairyman Trophy, Iowa State having won it three times, and a trophy from the Island of Guernsey, awarded by the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

Engineering Division Gears for War

"Geared for defense," the Engineering Division, under Dean T. R. Agg, who is also head of the Iowa State College Defense Council, has been working overtime to meet the demands of the war upon engineering. Although other divisions have lost in enrollment since the outbreak of war, the Engineering Division has felt an increase.

To train much-needed aeronautical engineers a new department, headed by Professor W. C. Nelson, has been created in close collaboration with the Mechanical Engineering Department. The Engineering Extension Service, directed by D. C. Faber, has conducted special short courses for training high school graduates in subjects that qualify them as technicians in war industries. Although most of the schooling has been given on the campus, some courses have been conducted in the larger cities throughout the state by members of the division staff and by experienced men in the cities themselves. Through the year 33 different classes have been held and completed.

New head of the Mechanical Engineering Department will be Professor David D. Arm, who will take over July 1. Professor M. P. Cleghorn will retire as head but continues on the teaching staff.

The Engineering Experiment Station, under the direction of Dean Agg, has turned its efforts toward the war need.

Engineering Dean Emeritus Anson Marston, who was head of the division during the first World War, was awarded the Lamne Award from the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education and also became an honorary member of the A.S.C.E.

Selects Outstanding Engineers

Composed of two representatives from the Iowa Engineer and each of the departmental societies, the Engineering Council runs student activities in the engineering division and elects two of its members to Cardinal Guild. Sponsoring two major social events a year, the council led off with the Engineers' Carnival which turned the Memorial Union into a three-ring circus with dancing as the main event supplemented by the awarding of over a thousand prizes in the side shows. Highlight of the evening was the presentation of the pledges of the Guard of St. Patrick, outstanding senior engineers as selected by the council.

On the evening of February 14 social life took on a more formal aspect as the engineers and their ladies danced at the Engineers' Ball. Setting a new precedent, the title of St. Pat was shared by two engineers, Robert Park and Ed Sheridan, who presented the Engineers' Lady, Jean Oler, and conducted the knighting ceremonies of the pledges to the Guard of St. Patrick. As each neophyte kissed the blarney stone, sacred symbol of fluency of speech, he was dubbed knight by St. Pat.

Engineering students attending the annual Engineers' Ball saw their favorite engineering professors imitated by students and heard President Henry T. Heald of the Illinois Institute of Technology speak on engineers in relation to National Defense.

Sponsor of the council is H. J. Berkel of the Civil Engineering Department, who became a member of the Guard of St. Patrick at the Engineers' Ball.

Officers: Robert Park, president; Howard Moburg, secretary; Robert Hetherington, treasurer.

Founded in 1880 for "the advancement and dissemination of the theory and practice of mechanical engineering . . .", the American Society of Mechanical Engineers now boasts a membership of 22,000, including undergraduates. Membership in the Iowa State student branch is open to mechanical engineering students. In addition to electing two of its members as junior and senior representatives to the Engineering Council, the local branch promotes student development by sponsoring competitions for awards and cash prizes through preparation of technical papers for national ASME contests.

Faculty advisor for the branch is Professor R. E. Roudebush of the Mechanical Engineering department, who is a member of the national organization.

In keeping with the purpose of their organization, members heard addresses by Wright Aeronautical's C. W. Cole and Iowa OPM Manager, George Beese, at two of their bi-weekly meetings.

One of the established customs of the society is the passing of the old traditional peace pipe, embellished by tales of Indian Engineering, among the Mechanical Engineers at their initial meeting during fall quarter.

Annually the local ASME holds a picnic where a traditional softball game is played between staff and students. Other non-scholastic activities include the conduction of the annual mechanical engineering Veishea open house and construction of a Veishea parade float.

During spring quarter the ASME's travel to eastern Iowa for an inspection trip and joint meetings with their fellow members at the State University of Iowa.

Hold October Freshman Round-up

The oldest national engineering society, the American Society of Civil Engineers, was instituted in 1852 for the purpose of "advancing engineering and architectural knowledge and practice, maintaining a high professional standard among its members, encouraging intercourse between men of practical science, and establishing a central point of reference and union for its members." Membership in student branches is open to all engineering students and now numbers 5,000 throughout the country in student chapters alone.

At one of its bi-weekly meetings, the local chapter saw a motion picture and model demonstration of the failure of the Tacoma Narrows bridge. The meeting was attended by over 400 members.

Annual affairs attended by local ASCE's include the October C. E. Round-up held at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge, which features a ball game, picnic lunch and songs around the fire. Graduate members of the society from the Iowa section meet with the student organization annually at the Memorial Union for a smoker, and the students climax the year with a banquet at which the officers for the coming year are elected.

Faculty advisor for the local branch is Professor Frank Kerekes of the Civil Engineering Department.

Victor Greimann, local president, was elected vice-president of the National Fall Student Convention. He attended the convention with seven other delegates from the Iowa State branch.

In addition to handling the civil engineering Veishea open house and constructing a Veishea float, the members of the local chapter publish a bi-monthly paper called Civil Chatter.

Officers: Victor Greimann, president; Fred Eisele, vice-president; Harold Sorenson, secretary; Fred Nance, treasurer.

Announce Meetings With Shield

Open to chemical engineering students, the student branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers comprises 90 members and meets bi-weekly. It is the student departmental administrative group.

The organization was addressed by Dr. Donald B. Keyes of the University of Illinois on "Distillation" and by Dean H. A. Curtis of the University of Missouri on "The Technology of Processing Rock Phosphate" at two of its regular meetings.

Formerly displaying a red shirt to announce meetings, the chemical engineers now call their fellow members by displaying the chemical engineering shield, of which John McElhinney and Pat Sullivan were the keepers for the year. Merrill Swanson and Rowland Shieffbein were co-chairmen of the chemical engineering Veishea open house.

Open to electrical engineering students, the Iowa State student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers now boasts a membership of 125 and is one of 123 student branches throughout the country.

Meeting every other Wednesday night of the school year, local AIEE's have heard talks by faculty members and guest speakers from outside the school on electrical engineering and related subjects. In October the AIEE's held their annual picnic at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge. Freshmen interested in electrical engineering attended, and the program included group singing led by Ray Cunningham, of the YMCA, and an introduction to the electrical engineering staff.

During spring quarter the group met for the AIEE banquet in Memorial Union.

Sectional meeting for the state of Iowa was held at the State University of Iowa in January and was attended by members of the electrical engineering profession and members of student branches of both of the Iowa schools.

Professor B. S. Willis of the electrical engineering staff is faculty counselor for the group. He is a member of the national organization.

To promote student development the local AIEE sponsored a competition in the writing of student papers. Winning papers were sent to the contest sponsored by the national organization. Papers written in the state of Iowa were read at a joint meeting of the S. U. I. and Iowa State branches held in Des Moines.

In the spring sophomore electrical engineers took an inspection trip to Des Moines. They elected Robert Himmell as junior representative to the Engineering Council.

Technical organization for general engineering students, the Society for the Advancement of Management now numbers 60 members. The society started the year in the fall with the SAM stag in Trophy Tavern of the Memorial Union, where incoming freshmen met faculty members.

In the spring general engineers held their annual picnic at Brookside Park. During the school year the organization heard at its bi-weekly meetings, discussions on management, engineering, and related subjects. It operated the general engineering open house for Freshman Days and Veishea and sponsored the construction of the departmental float for Veishea.

Selected by a national committee on membership, student associates of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers at Iowa State College come from the departments of mining engineering and geology.

In keeping with the purpose of the national organization, "to promote . . . an increasing knowledge of mining and metallurgical engineering among its members," the chapter heard Dr. J. G. Grant, director of the college hospital, address them on "Silicosis."

The national organization of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers includes a membership of 11,300, not counting the 4,000 student associates. The Iowa State chapter of associates is one of 33 throughout the country.

Trains For National Defense

Home economics at Iowa State College has always trained women for the career of homemaking and for professional work in a variety of fields, but this year it has undertaken a higher goal: that of preparing women to take their places in the defense of our country. Just as the Textiles and Clothing Department is teaching us how to extend the life of our present clothing supply, and the Household Equipment, how to extend the life of our old equipment, the Foods and Nutrition Department is teaching us how to plan and prepare appetizing and nutritional diets even with the rationing of certain foods. Every department of the division is emphasizing the most practical and efficient methods for aiding our great cause.

Five home management houses offer an unusual opportunity for applying the principles of home management. Practical experience is gained when groups of eight senior women with an infant and an adviser live in each of these houses for six weeks. Those students interested in training in institution management, in dietetics and in the teaching of home economics gain experience in the Home Economics Tea Room and food service units of Memorial Union.

The placement service of the division has had no difficulty in finding positions for its graduates, alumnae who are interested in new positions, or undergraduates seeking summer employment.

More than ever, home economics training is fitting students for intelligent citizenship and efficient homemaking.

Heads Largest Club In World

The Home Economics Council, executive committee for the Home Economics Club, is made up of the presidents and vice-presidents of the eight departmental clubs. Boasting 1,190 members, the Iowa State Home Economics Club is the largest of its kind in the United States.

Opening the fall formal season was the annual Home Economics Ball, at which members of the club entertained their dates to the rhythm of Everett Hoaglund.

Supervision of the baking and selling of cherry pies, a traditional custom of the Home Economics Open House during Veishea, is an important annual activity of the Home Economics Club. All previous records were shattered last year with the sale of over four thousand pies. The proceeds go to the MacKay Loan Fund.

Another project was the nutrition survey sponsored by the Foods and Nutrition Club. Every woman in college cooperated by keeping a record of her dietary for one week, at the end of which the results were compiled into valuable data. Members of the Foods and Nutrition Club then revealed the findings and pointed out ways for the women to eat more wisely.

Last summer the Home Economics Club sent eight women to the convention of the American Home Economics Association. One of these women represented the high school club of Story City, a student teaching center in home economics.

The entire Home Economics Club is proud of Charlotte Hein, who was elected president of all the student home economics clubs in the United States.

Touring Home Management

Is it good? Lana gets her vitamins for the day. Bevier House girls have the dishes washed, the baby's in bed and it's time for relaxation before "hitting the books." It's all one day's life in home management.

Has Largest Teaching Staff

Under the leadership of H. V. Gaskill, the Science Division of Iowa State College initiated an emergency war program that could only be launched in an organization that is normally flexible enough to keep pace with social changes.

To provide the complex technical training necessary in these times the division this year functioned in two main ways: first, to train students in the division intensively in fields such as mathematics, chemistry, physics, geology, economics, history, government, psychology, botany, bacteriology, entomology and zoology; second, to serve as a service division to the college in such fields as hygiene, library, modern languages, military, music, English, physical education, public speaking, religious education and science research.

Although fourth in size among the divisions, such a large span of operations makes it necessary for three-fourths of the Iowa State College staff to classify in the Science Division. Typical of the outstanding faculty members is Professor Henry Gilman, recognized as one of the world's outstanding organic chemists.

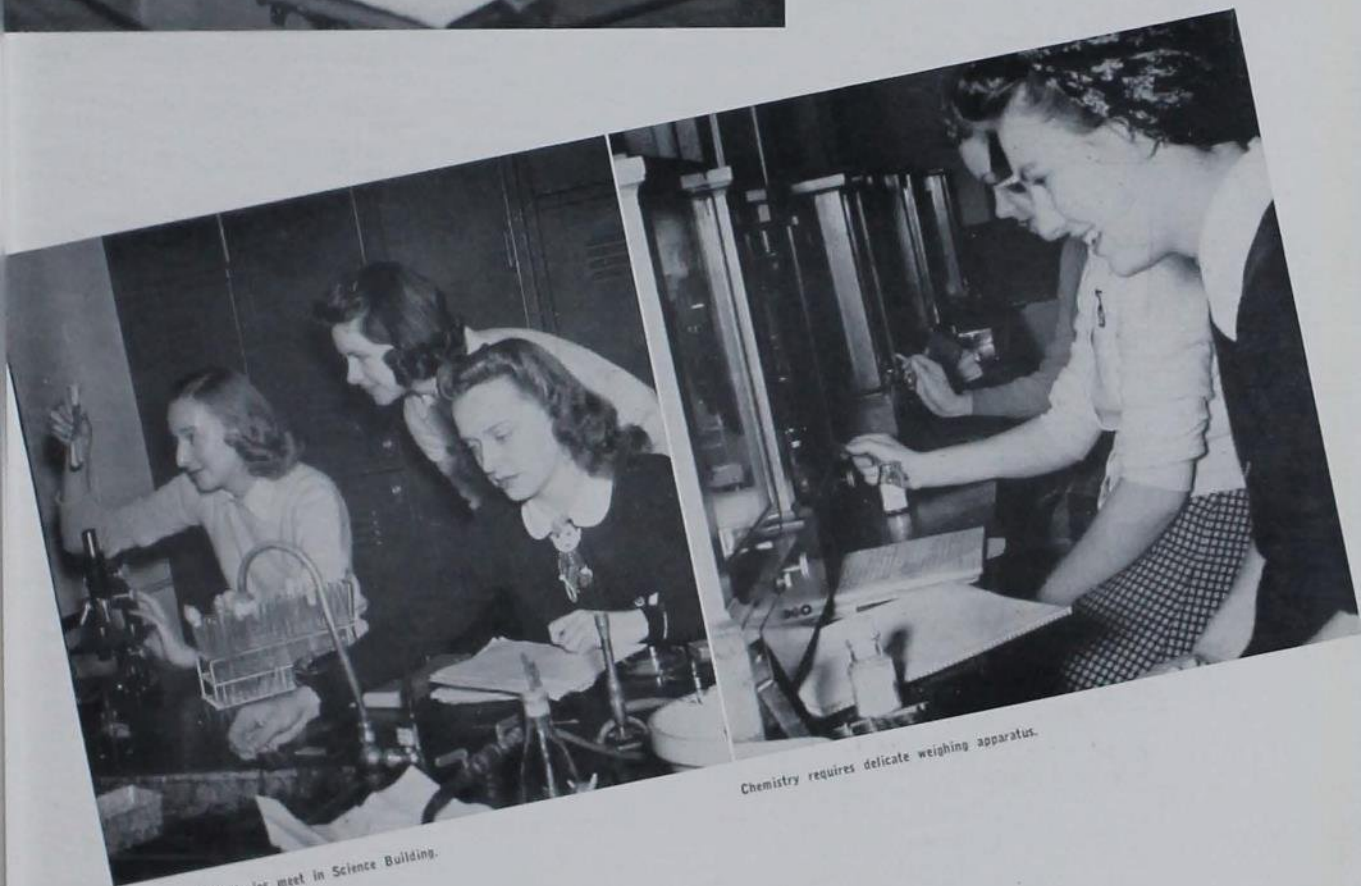

The objectives of the division are also two in number: one, to provide study courses in the major biological, physical and social sciences, and two, to instruct students in the basic sciences and other general studies to provide a background for future professional life.

The division operates a personnel service for its graduates, for alumni wishing to change their positions and for undergraduates seeking summer employment.

Stage First Formal Dance

This year the Science Council cooperated with the Veterinary Council in staging the first "Wintermezzo" formal dance. It sponsored four Swingsters in the Roberts Hall recreation room to supplement the twisters.

The council also appeared before the Science Freshman Orientation course and gave a brief description of the various departments. Other activities of members of the council included aiding with the Science Day program, helping with divisional Veishea activities, and assisting Dean and Mrs. Harold V. Gaskill at the reception for seniors of the Science Division and at the reception for new students during Freshman Days Orientation.

As part of the Freshman orientation program, the Council recognized the outstanding men of the division by having them present their viewpoints on the part students should play in activities, both within the Science Division and all-college.

Dr. Charles Norby, of the History and Government Department, became the first faculty advisor in recent years.

Members of the council are elected at an all-divisional election every two years. Reynolds Emerson was senior representative to Cardinal Guild, while Dick Mathison was junior representative.

Becomes National Describes Pictures

The Iowa State Chemical Society passed one of its milestones when it elected to become affiliated as junior members with the American Chemical Society.

As Veishea became of age last year, people attending saw the balloons, filled with hydrogen and bearing a return card, leave the Iowa State College campus under the direction of the society.

At the annual spring Chemists' Banquet in the Oak Room, Memorial Union, Col. Peyton Winlock spoke on "Chemical Warfare."

With its membership restricted to the students in the department, the Industrial Education Club seeks to further interest in the field of industrial arts.

The club program includes presentation of interesting items within the field by the members of the organization. As a supplementary program, outside speakers have contributed reports that have a definite bearing in the field of education. Professor P. H. Carr highlighted the series with a talk on the possibilities of photography.

Officers: Wayne Dickinson, president; Raymond Glynn, vice-president; Read Pietscher, secretary-treasurer.

Share Science Day Planning

Organized for college women not enrolled in Home Economics, Science Women's Club this year increased its membership to a record-breaking 93.

At meetings of the club held during the year faculty members discuss new developments and advances in various phases of scientific work. During winter quarter all meetings were devoted to the general theme of "Science Women in the World Tomorrow." Highlight of this year's meetings was the lecture given before the group by Dr. E. C. Zimmerman, head of Bishop Museum in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Science Women's Club assists in planning the division's annual Science Day and sponsors a luncheon for high school students visiting the campus. At this time students from high schools throughout the state have an opportunity to become acquainted with the Science Division and to take part in competitive examinations given.

Social activities of Science Women's Club include teas given for faculty and students in the Science Division. The club's picnic, which has become an annual event, is held in the fall. Another yearly event is the Christmas tea given by Mrs. Harold Gaskill, wife of the Dean of Science.

Science Women's Council, composed of officers of the Science Women's Club and class representatives, assists Science Council in planning the year's program for the Science Division.

Establish New Membership Record

As a result of a record membership under the leadership of President Gordon Taylor, a renewed interest in Caduceus Club brought with it several new social and departmental activities. That's the summary of the year's activity for Iowa State College's organization for the pre-medical students.

Functions of the club are to provide for any person interested in medicine, medical technology or nursing an idea of the prerequisites of these fields, a common meeting ground where valuable contacts can be made, and a place to discuss, choose and evaluate schools for advanced graduate work. Dr. J. E. Evans, head of the Department of Psychology, explained the psychology of medicine at a meeting fall quarter.

One of the outstanding features of the organization is the fact that it is a strictly non-dues society. Dean Harold V. Gaskill of the Science Division, as faculty advisor, has been instrumental in maintaining the standards set by the club.

The symbol, an attribute of Mercury, which consists of his staff, surmounted by

Prepare Men to Protect Livestock

With the nation at war the Division of Veterinary Medicine realizes its responsibility in preparing men to protect America's great livestock industry.

The division offers the students much practical experience. Working in the new Charles H. Stange Memorial Clinic, the men handle cases from nearby farmers and townspeople. Iowa State College, one of the 10 accredited veterinary schools in the nation, offers additional training facilities through the Veterinary Research Institute, the State Diagnostic Laboratory and the Ames city milk inspection service. These give the students excellent opportunities to investigate current animal disease problems, to observe and assist in various diagnostic techniques on cases from over the state and to work on official milk sanitation control.

The city milk inspection service functions as a working laboratory for veterinary medicine students.

Veterinary students at Iowa State College are put more or less on their own initiative to learn the material offered in their curricula. Only those who have shown above average ability are admitted into the Veterinary Division.

Last year 240 students were enrolled and 60 were graduated. Seventy percent of the graduates entered private practice, 8 percent entered the Bureau of Animal Industry in meat inspection or disease eradication work. Another 8 percent went into the United States Army, leaving the remainder in research and educational work, United States Public Health Service and private veterinary practice.

Four Classes Pick Representatives

The Veterinary Council is unique in that all its members come from one organization, the Junior American Veterinary Medical Association. The council functions as an executive body for the Junior A.V.M.A., its membership consisting of the officers of the junior chapter plus a representative from each of the four classes in the division.

Dr. Walter Strunk, Minnesota conservation commissioner, was guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Division of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. Strunk showed colored films concerning conservation of wild life during the evening program following the banquet.

This year's council is pleased with the operation of the Code of Honor, adopted last year by the student body with the administration's approval.

All veterinary medicine students are members of the Junior American Veterinary Medical Association. They meet twice each month to promote friendly relations among the students of their group and to acquaint themselves with professional developments in the field of veterinary medicine. The discussion meetings are varied with different speakers and forms of entertainment.

The Junior A.V.M.A. acted jointly with the students of the Science Division in spon-

Forty Percent Of Freshman Class Graduate

ime, tide and graduation wait for no man. Fourteen hundred young and timid high school graduates entered Iowa State last fall in quest of knowledge, and six hundred seniors will leave the campus to enter a world apart from cokes, pledge pins, bull sessions and classes.

What happened to the unaccounted for eight hundred during these four years is an interesting question. Statistics can, within one percent, predict from an undergraduate's high school average, aptitude test score and first quarter average whether or not he will graduate. On an average, out of every 1000 freshmen that entered Iowa State last fall, 37 percent will drop out for financial reasons, poor health, discouragement, marriage and jobs; 20 percent will just plain flunk; 2 percent will be expelled or suspended, and 40 percent will step onto the graduation platform four years hence. Any that have not been accounted for in this survey were probably ground up in the machinery or caught cold in the draft.

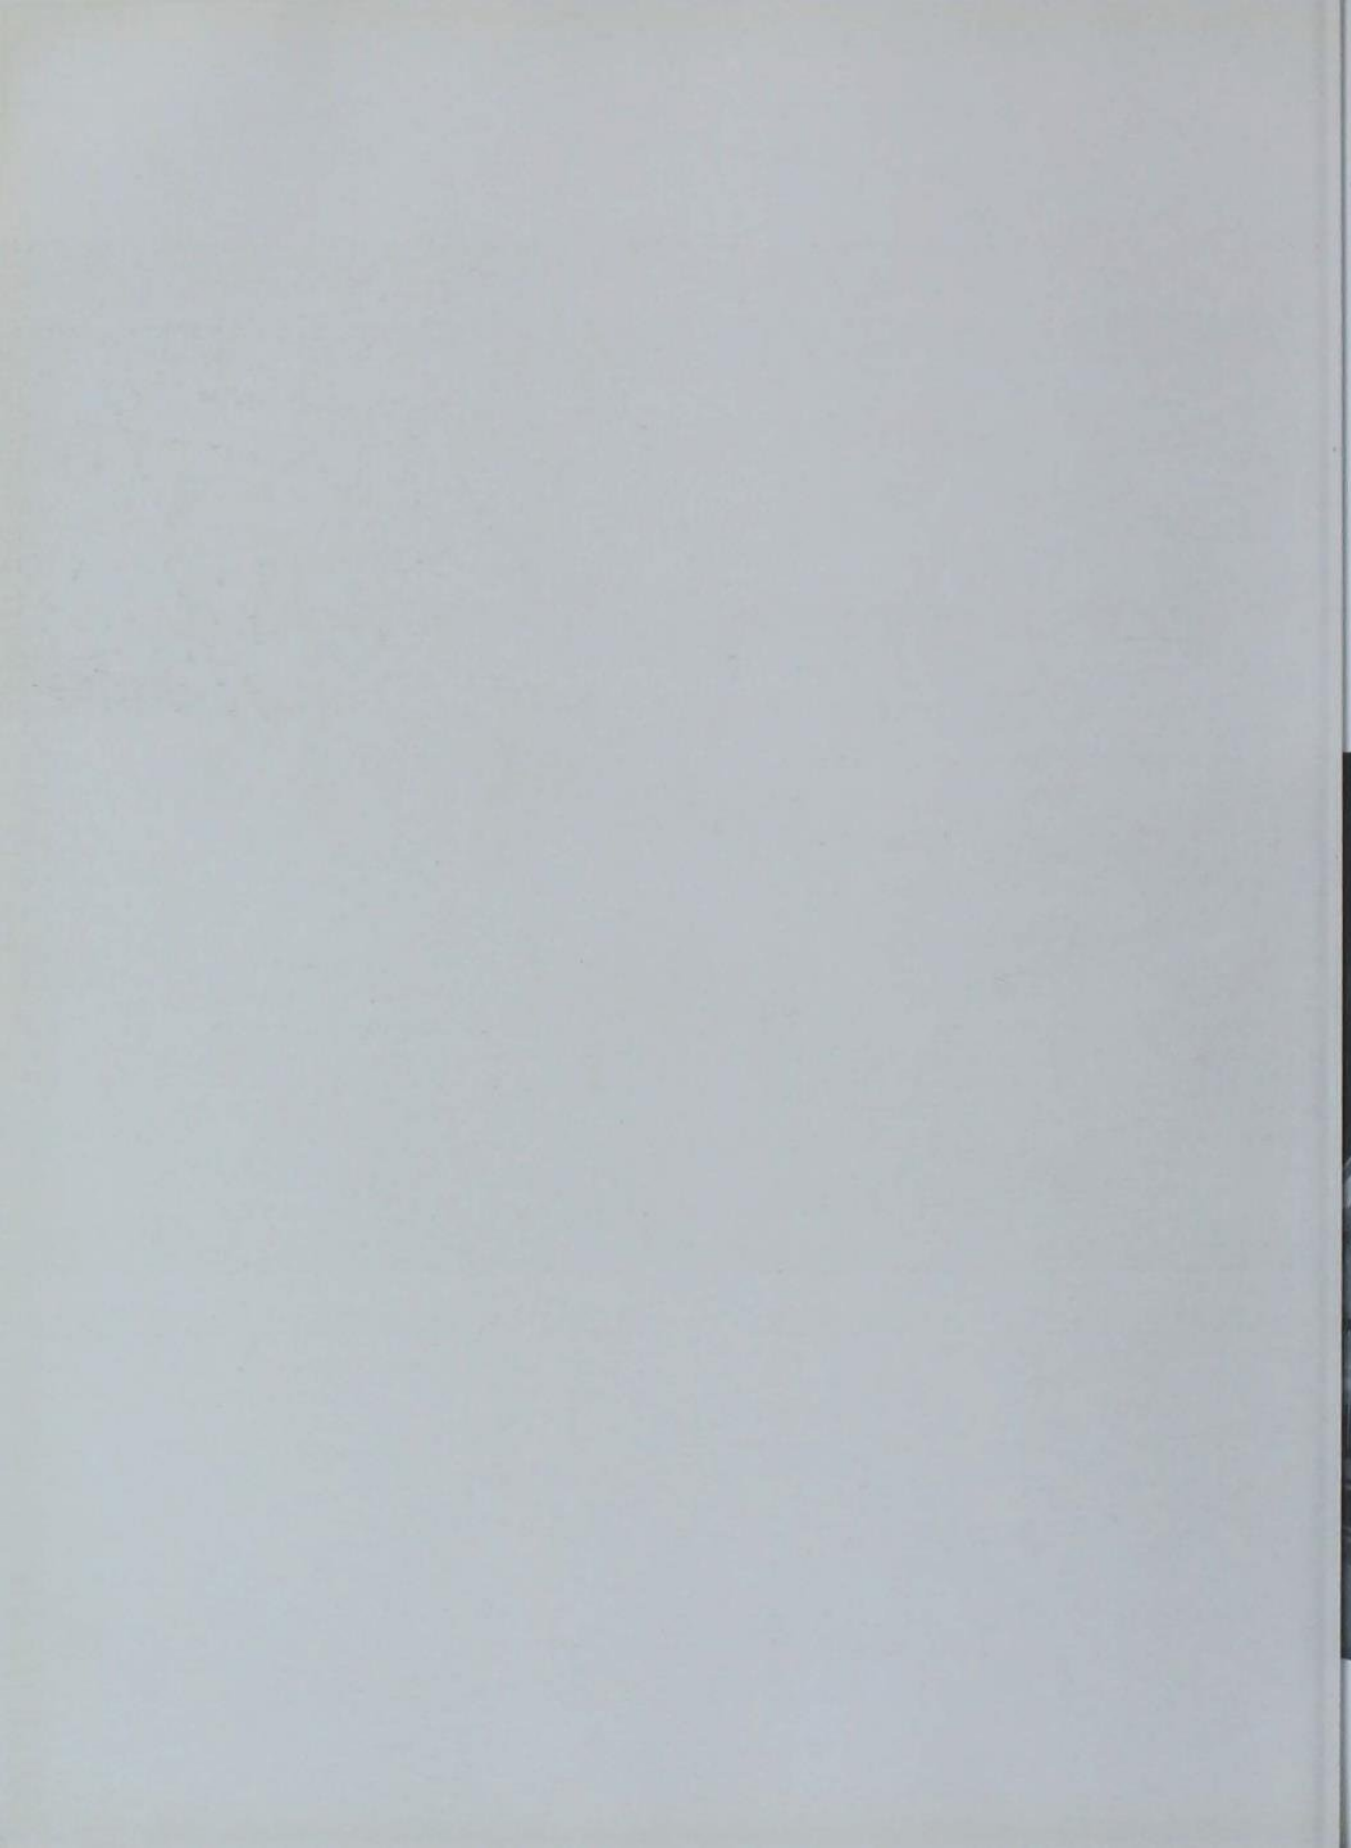

For those who have succeeded in weathering the odds in 1941-42, the year presents a picture packed full of changes, improvements and adjustments. Being a state school, I. S. C. has given its fullest cooperation to the national government in its plans for defense education. As a part of the C.A.A., the government introduced the Civilian Pilots' Training Course as a class in the college, receiving college credits, but under federal control. The interest created in aeronautics by this training course prompted the Mechanical Engineering Department to create a branch, the Aeronautical Engineering Department, as a part of its regular work. Navigation courses for undergraduates enrolled in the Naval Reserve became another addition to Iowa State's war effort, which reached its climax in the compressing of the educational program to fit three years instead of four.

Other highlights of the year were the Junior Prom, with Mary Taff and Ernie Adams as the B.J.O.C., and the Prep-Sophomore Ball with Nancy Reynolds as the first Stardust Sweetheart. The huge homecoming crowd of 4,500 that danced to Anson Weeks in the Armory, and the patriotic defense stamp corsages at the Women's Panhel were other progressive measures new to 1941-42.

Award Diplomas to CPT Pilots

The ambition of every student pilot is to receive his wings. Upon soloing, the Iowa State Pilots' Club furnishes the wings to its prospective members. With the large CAA program in progress, the bulk of the members are graduates of primary or secondary Civilian Pilot Training.

The major purpose of the club is to keep the members informed of the fast developments in the field of aviation both in the field of equipment and flying regulations. It affords an opportunity for student pilots who face common problems to meet.

At the annual Iowa State Pilots' Club Aviation Dinner, held in the South Ballroom of the Memorial Union, six primary and 16 secondary flight students received their diplomas in recognition of having completed their training in the Civilian Pilot Training program.

Pavement Dance

A 3 o'clock class-break led by the Yel-Jax, followed by a street dance in front of Beard-shear, started the festivities of the 1941 Homecoming celebration. That evening the student body turned out en masse for the pep barbecue and program at Clyde Williams Field. Popular music was furnished by one of the local campus bands after which the varsity football team and coaches were introduced. Delta Zeta was the winner of the second annual Pajama Relay.

Dance By Anson

The biggest feature of the pre-game celebration was the gigantic pep dance held in the college armory at which a crowd of 4,200 persons danced to the music of Anson Weeks. The 24 Bomb Beauty candidates presented during the first intermission by John Garberson were voted on following the presentation. During the second intermission Marian Allen was introduced as the Homecoming Pep Queen, and she in turn presented decoration prizes to Chi Omega sorority, Roberts Hall and Theta Xi fraternity. On Saturday morning the Iowa State Polo Team defeated Missouri 21 to 10, but in the afternoon, on Clyde Williams Field, the Tigers outclassed the Cyclones 39 to 13.

A class in design is an integral part of Iowa State's new Department of Aeronautical Engineering.

Aeronautical Engineering Matures

The State Board of Education approved a series of courses to inaugurate aeronautical engineering as a full-fledged department in the Engineering Division. Courses in aeronautical engineering have been offered at Iowa State for the past 12 years on an elective basis, with little opportunity for students to arrange a satisfactory sequence. Prof. Wilbur C. Nelson is the first head of the department.

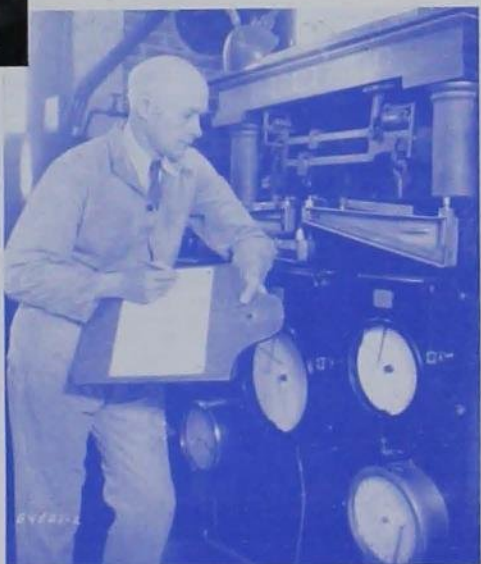

In addition to the fundamental mechanical engineering studies, the curriculum will include courses in aerodynamics, airplane design, engine design, propellers and structures, and courses in performance and stability control for graduate students. Tied in with this work are the CAA and Civilian Pilot Training courses in primary and secondary ground school and flight training, all within Aeronautical Engineering.

Willkie Opens Course

Wendell L. Willkie launched the background of news course, Science 201, February 24. He urged that students remain at their studies until called for other duties. He said there was no need to denude the technical schools of their valuable timber. He believes that every student is to stay at his job and do it better than ever before. The situation calls for patient work and not drama. That's how Iowa State's course in the political background of the war came into being, with every instructor a man of letters.

Economics Faculty Assume National Planning Burden

Edward S. "Red" Lynch describes a marginal demand curve to an economics class between planning board conferences.

The Economics Department of Iowa State College assumed a new role as war struck the campus. In the total war program of the United States, economic planning becomes one of the vital factors in winning.

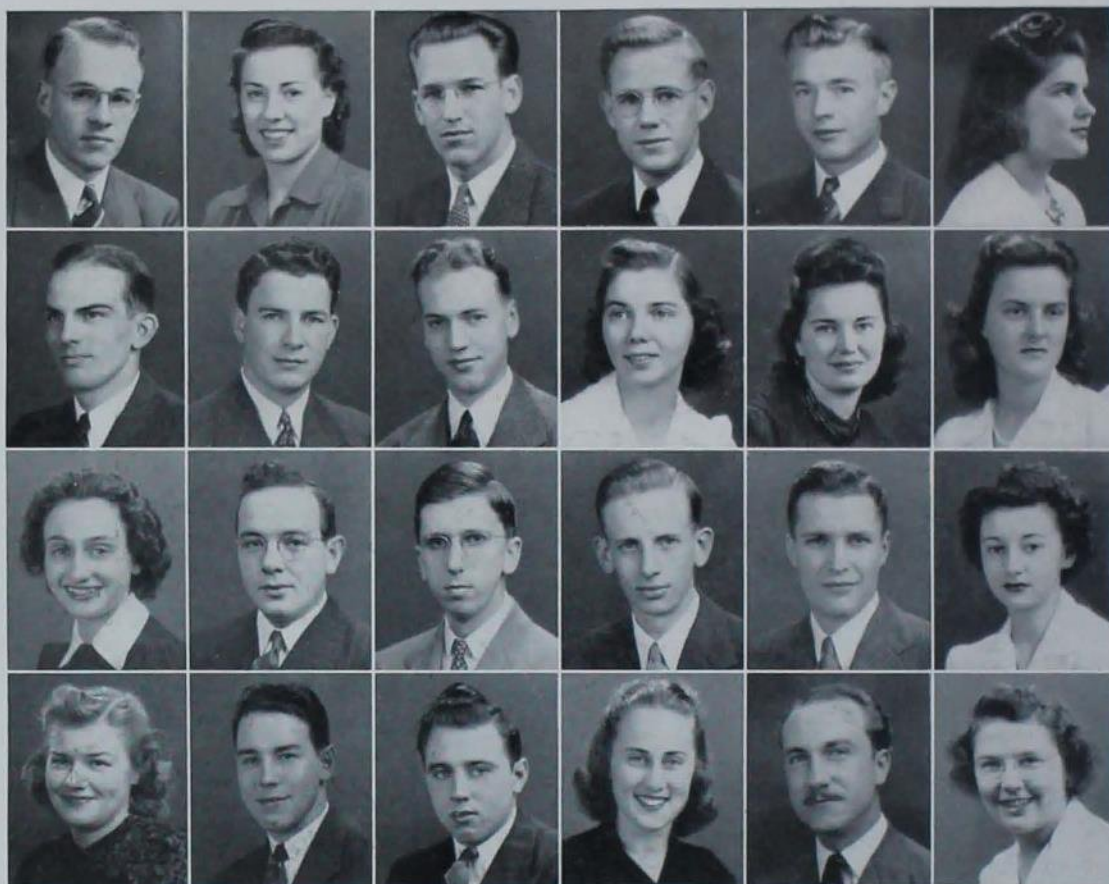

The faculty was forced to divide its time between classrooms and planning boards or leave the school. The responsibility for the uninterrupted classes fell directly on the staff despite their service to their country.

Fiftieth Creamery Operator Class

With the Bomb of 1942 the dairy short course celebrated its golden anniversary this year.

The first dairy short course in the year 1892-1893 was attended mostly by farm boys without dairy plant experience. It was soon discovered that it was not possible to give them sufficient training in butter and cheese making in a ten-day course and a one-year course for inexperienced men was therefore started during the college year 1893-1894. The short course was offered to men who already had some experience in a creamery or cheese factory. In 1920 the college was changed over to the quarter basis and the one-year was reduced to six months. This course was too short to train inexperienced students and in 1928 it was changed to a 12-month course. This was dropped in 1938 and a 12-month college curriculum took its place.

A new dairy building, known as the College Creamery, was completed in 1892; a full time dairy instructor was appointed and new dairy courses were added to the four-year course in agriculture. Iowa State College was the first college in the United States to have a dairy department.

Select BJOC

The 1943 class innovated the selection of Junior Prom Girl and the Big Junior on the Campus. All the candidates were presented at the Prom Prevue Nov. 15. To the fanfare of Pinky Tomlin's Orchestra, William Oppold, master of ceremonies, presented Mary Taff as the Prom Girl and Ernest Adams became BJOC at the Junior Prom.

Dilemma

The junior knows the world will give him nothing. His attitude is a paradoxical mixture of hopelessness and determination. He must wrest all he can from the world. He is beginning to get a touch of sophistication. He's reached his majority and has the right to vote—and register in the draft, too. Plans after graduation begin to form. His classmates are beginning to precipitate out of circulation—engaged.

Three years of college effort are beginning to show results. The senior activity posts are beginning to fill from the ranks.

Know any of 'em? All decked out in hats, and glamour, too, these girls wait for the Prom Prevue. J. Hoyt Chaloud, Editor of the Iowa Engineer, and Stuart Kuyper, Business Manager of the Iowa Engineer.

S O P H O M O R E

Jack Stickels, Tim Calhoun, Marilyn Williams and Burton Pearsall exercise a sophomore's privilege of a coke date in the Union Grill between classes.

Howard Tipper, sophomore football letter winner. Popular among football fans for his flashy quarterbacking and passing.

No Santa

Cynical sophomore . . . he has been disillusioned—there is no Santa Claus. College will beat him down if it can—just an outsider looking in. One of two things may happen to him. Iowa State will either harden him or it may overpower him. The only thing approaching class unity is the Prep-Soph Ball.

Eddie Hoffman tells Micky Kelley you don't have to be elected to be a queen.

F R E S H M A N

Registration Confusion

September 23—Rushing, registration and freshman daze—general confusion over new names, faces and how to find classes. And then things cleared up. Studies began and there wasn't a let-up till Christmas. Cokes in the Union, homecoming and exchanges found us changing from bewildered high school graduates to self confident college freshmen. Winter quarter came with mixers, lectures, formal dances galore and more hard work.

FRESHMAN REGISTRATION. New students, for the first time, write their name on every card in a long string and wonder why. There's no hope for them because they'll do it 11 more quarters before they graduate.

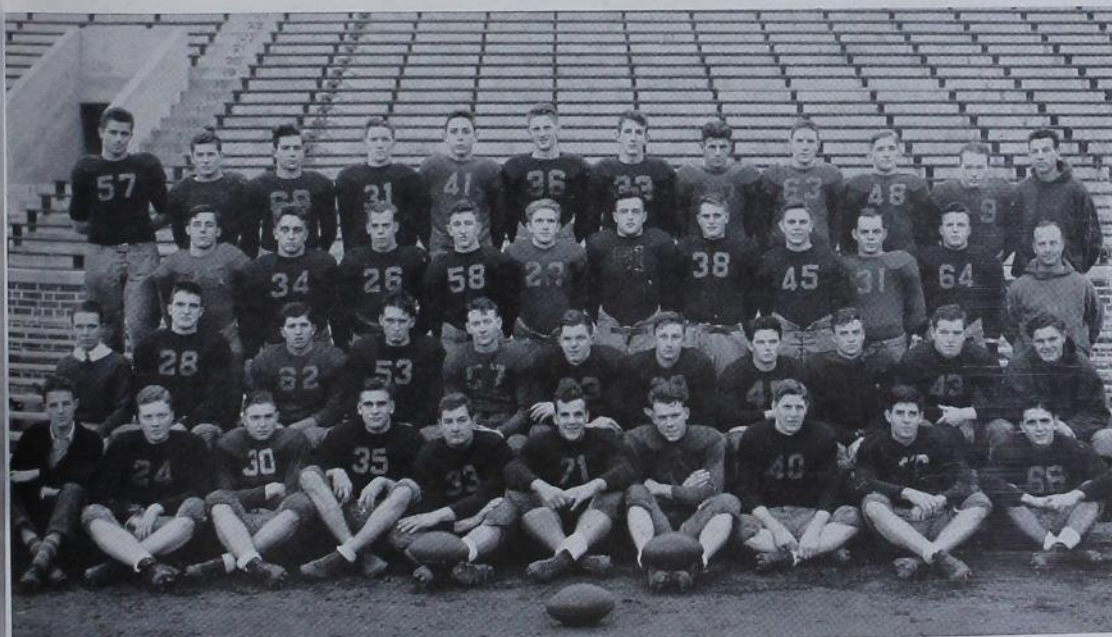

Professor J. S. "Jack" Dodds referees as the Freshmen exchange names and addresses and make future dates at the Freshman Mixer.

Spring Fever

We didn't know the meaning of the word relax till the days turned warm and we felt the urge to sit on the green grass under a budding tree. Spring meant picnics, initiation, Veishea and neglected studies. The year has passed and we've all been homesick, we've all studied hard and we've all gotten to know each other pretty darn well. Some of us will stick it out and slave through summer school and Iowa's blistering sun, some of us will enlist, some of us will work our fool heads off making munitions, and the rest of us will loaf, only to hurry back to our Chem.

Two Freshmen become more convinced that you should "Know Your College, Buy a Bomb."

Honor Societies Reward Students For Scholarship

Honoraries, challenged like all other campus organizations as to their service value, can present opinions of their members, both past and present, as testimony to their permanent contribution to both students and college.

Doris Plagge, A. A. '42, a member of Mortar Board, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Omicron Nu, Delta Phi Delta, Veishea Central Committee and Journalism Activity "T", believes that "although honor societies serve as a valuable incentive to the college student by being a reward for outstanding qualities in a student, the real worth of an honorary lies in its long-time influence on the member—what it will mean to his life in the years to come."

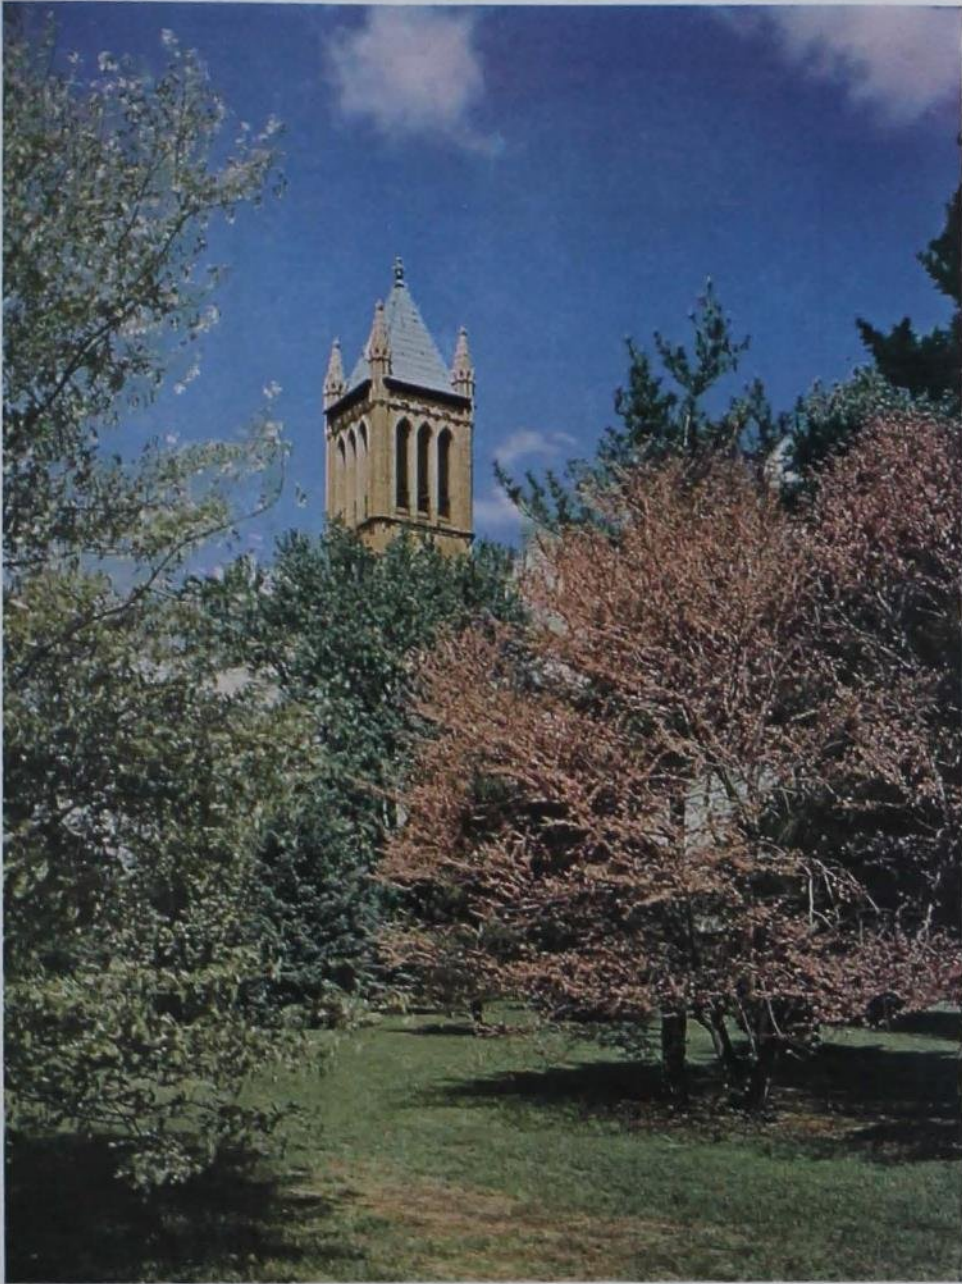

Wayne Norman, Arch. E. '42, member of Tau Beta Pi, Cardinal Key, Sigma Delta Chi, Tau Sigma Delta and Guard of St. Patrick, claims that "more than recognition, more than honor—the keys of campus honoraries mark a brotherhood striving to excel."

Honoraries form a valuable meeting ground for like-minded students and through the national scope of their membership, their influence continues long after graduation.

"Honoraries keep you on the right path—you always try to live up to their standards and ideals. Once having been a member of an honorary society, you feel that you have a responsibility to do your best. National honoraries are also a sort of tie-that-binds things when you get out in the business world. Among the people with whom you associate, honoraries are known and their worth appreciated no matter where you happen to be," states Janet Wilson, '42, student body president, member of Mortar Board, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Memorial Union Board, Student Activities Board, Cardinal Guild and Home Economics Club Council.

P. S. Shearer, '12, professor and head of the Animal Husbandry Department and a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Alpha Zeta and Gamma Sigma Delta, believes that "by rewarding high scholastic standing, thus making a fine contribution toward the promotion of good scholarship, and by recognizing student leadership and student participation in worthwhile activities, honorary fraternities have had a very real influence on the Iowa State campus."

Cardinal Key and Mortar Board, men's and women's all-college honoraries, respectively, each Veishea tap Juniors and Seniors in the shade of the Campanile . . . The E. W. Stanton Memorial Carillon heralds students to class twice each day.

Day by day, students go to classes, despise bluebooks, and wonder if profs have gone to school. Why aren't they human about their assignments? Quite to the contrary, they have all attended college and have the keys of honoraries dangling from watch chains and necklaces, or tucked away in jewelry cases with other prized possessions. "Faculty Members in Honoraries," have attempted to take a cross-section of the teaching staff and prove their interest in scholarship as students—an attempt to portray the close connection of student and faculty ideals at democratic Iowa State.

Senior Women Cap New Members

Eleanor White, President.

Donning caps and gowns, the members of Mortar Board climax Veishea activities each year by formally pledging members newly elected to this high honorary. One by one the outstanding senior members leave the circle of alumni gathered around the campanile to wind slowly through the crowd, finally placing their caps on the heads of the junior women chosen to succeed them as members of Mortar Board. Selection begins during winter quarter when every junior girl is asked to list the names of those juniors that she feels are deserving of membership. The most often mentioned on these lists are checked for scholarship, leadership and activities, and recommended by faculty members. The final list of candidates is then approved by the section director of the national Mortar Board organization.

B O A R D

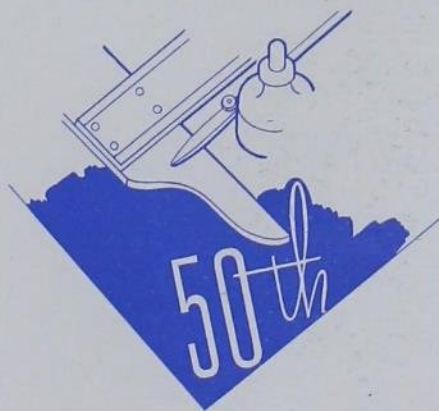

As a source of revenue, a Mortar Board committee takes measurements, places orders, and delivers caps and gowns to graduating seniors each quarter. Induction services held in the fall for all new women, and the Veishea banquet for Mortar Board Alumnae are other projects of this service organization. Iowa State College's chapter is one of 75 scattered over the country in accredited colleges and universities.

Lois Madsen takes a neophyte unawares. "Back" again for Veishea Tapping Ceremonies . . . Ex-prexy Janet Wilson caps prexy Eleanor White . . . Dorothy Root and Midge Clark seem happy about the whole thing.

Mrs. Raymond Sayre, chairman of the Women's Committee of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, spoke at an all-women's forum on Women's Day, January 29. This day is annually set aside by the college at the request of Mortar Board for recognition of women and their activities on the campus. Mrs. Sayre also spoke at an evening banquet attended by many women leaders of Iowa State College.

Edward Sheridan, led by Gordon Walter, returns triumphantly to the Campanile. Bob Hughes, tapped by Roy Kottman, takes "it" with a broad smile and a long stride.

Tentative plans for a leadership conclave to be held in the fall are now being discussed by Cardinal Key members. The idea is to stimulate leadership in the fall, and to recognize leadership in the spring. These new projects are to be in addition to the regular social program of the fraternity which consists of breakfasts and suppers with members of Mortar Board, a closely correlated honorary for women. Also, Cardinal Key alumni are entertained at a smoker during homecoming, and initiates and alumni attend a smoker immediately after the tapping ceremonies during Veishea. The honorary is not a part of a national fraternity, but keeps in touch with similar honoraries on other campuses, although there is no national tie-up. Sunday morning meetings in the Union Grill are called by the president whenever a business item needs attention. No faculty advisor is especially a part of Cardinal Key, but many faculty members have been taken in as honorary members.

Becomes Active Leadership Group

Declaring their intent to inspire leadership on the campus, members of Cardinal Key, senior men's fraternity, this year broke away from their customary inactivity to plan two leadership functions. According to John Rigg, president of the organization, the break had been discussed for several years, but was not precipitated until recent popular demand caused the motion to be carried during a business conference. The first of these functions, a recognition banquet held on May 6 in the South Ballroom, Memorial Union, was planned to honor approximately 100 outstanding men on the campus, mostly juniors and seniors who had done commendable work as Iowa State campus leaders.

Six junior and six senior men are pledged each year by Cardinal Key in the traditional tapping ceremonies held under the campanile as a climax to Veishea activities.

This number is not fixed by the constitution, but has been established by precedent. These men must be outstanding in leadership, scholarship, character and service to Iowa State—the four requisites for membership in Cardinal Key. The six seniors automatically become alumni members, since they are initiated so late in the year, but the six juniors carry on the organization during the following year. The president is selected before the tapping ceremonies, and is always the last one tapped, but the remaining five members cast their names in a hat, and assume the other offices in the order that their names are drawn from the hat. Claude Gifford was vice-president, Howard Rosenblum, secretary; Ed Sheridan, treasurer; Wayne Norman, social chairman, and Howard Moburg, sergeant-at-arms.

Pledge Twenty Mathematicians

Twenty pledges of Pi Mu Epsilon, mathematics honorary fraternity, wearing huge keys made from blue books, decorated the campus for two weeks this spring. An initiation banquet followed this period of probation during which each pledge slaved over some assigned mathematics problem. Students must have two years of college mathematics and be in the upper one-half of their classes in general scholarship to be elected to active membership.

The national fraternity, established to honor those with high scholarship, particularly in mathematics, and for the advancement of the science of mathematics, presents an annual award for the highest grades in mathematics and all-college subjects. This year Kenneth Watson received the Iowa State Pi Mu Epsilon award at the fall Honors Day Convocation.

Team Enters Ryerson Contest

Two of the most distinguished seniors from the Architectural Engineering and Landscape Architecture Departments are chosen each spring by Tau Sigma Delta to act as a team in competition with other mid-western colleges for the Edward L. Ryerson traveling scholarship of $1,000. This honorary of architecture and all allied arts places the competitive drawings along with other outstanding work done on the campus, in an exhibit shown in Great Hall, Memorial Union, each year. It offers prizes for the best pencil, pen and ink, and water color sketches, and sponsors competition in the Prix de Rome Contest which offers a $1,000 prize.

Ten pledges were announced by Tau Sigma Delta last spring quarter. They were juniors or seniors in the upper one-fourth of their class, who did exceptional work in architectural design. Creative designs were done during probation week, which was terminated by a banquet and formal initiation.

Professors A. H. Kimball, L. Wolf and P. H. Elwood, of the Architectural Engineering and Landscape Architecture Departments, are charter members of Kappa chapter, founded on the Iowa State campus in 1930. Professor Elwood is Grand Chapter Master of this national organization, whose purpose is to promote friendship and collaboration between future professional men in these closely-allied arts. To uphold this purpose, informal occasional meetings are held, usually as luncheons. No pertinent problems are discussed, no prominent speakers are invited to talk, but only friendly discussion is featured at these meetings in order to promote new acquaintances.

Annual Banquet Attracts 806

By establishing a permanent committee to check activities of Iowa State graduates in the field of engineering, Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary, proposes to confer honorary membership each year on a few outstanding professional engineers who graduated from Iowa State before the Tau Beta Pi chapter was established. This spring, Ralph W. Atkinson, Claud I. Grimms and

Joseph H. Hedges, all outstanding professional engineers, were made honorary members of the Iowa State chapter. Robley Winfrey, a civil engineering professor at Iowa State, also was made an honorary member at the fall initiation ceremony.

The Engineers' Banquet, held March 5, attracted 806 engineers, the largest banquet ever assembled in Memorial Union. Dr. Henry T. Herold, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology, was the speaker at this fourth annual banquet. Entertainment during the banquet consisted of skits as take-offs on the engineering professors, and "helzapoppin" acts performed by engineers dressed as waitresses.

Tau Beta Pi selects new members from those who "have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduate engineers. Forty pledges, who were juniors and seniors, wore the traditional robes.

The initiation followed a period of probation during which pledges wore paper lyres on their heads, huge cardboard replicas of the pin, and carried 25 cent toy musical instruments.

Blinking lights, flatiron boxes and candy for the actives is the necessary equipment for new pledges of Eta Kappa Nu. This electrical engineering honorary takes in new members in the fall, puts them on a week's probation in the spring, and finally ushers them into the organization with a formal initiation ceremony. To be eligible for membership, an electrical engineer must be a junior or senior in the upper half of his class scholastically, and must possess the proper qualities of leadership and personality.

Eta Kappa Nu sponsors a display in the electrical engineering open house for Veishea, and awards the "Standard Handbook for Electrical Engineering" to the junior who makes the highest scholastic record in his freshman and sophomore years. This year Richard Steinberg received the award at the fall Honors Day Convocation.

Eta Kappa Nu also supports departmental activities, cooperates with other honoraries and recognizes men who have made outstanding contributions to the profession of electrical engineering.

Outstanding work on two publications and the Green Gander are the requirements for membership in Theta Sigma Phi, national women's professional journalism honorary. The organization pledges new members in winter, spring and fall quarters.

The Green Gander, campus humor magazine, is one of the big projects of the honorary, since they and Sigma Delta Chi actives are responsible for its publication. As a Farm and Home Week speaker, Miss Sarah Bulette, Women's Editor of the Country Gentleman, was asked by this journalism group to visit the campus. The professional honorary also has charge of the Collegiate Press Building open house for Veishea.

Presenting trophies to the outstanding Iowa newspapers chosen at the annual convention of the Iowa Press Association is a traditional activity of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism honorary. The Iowa State chapter placed third in a national efficiency contest sponsored by the national organization in New Orleans, La.

New members, who must be senior college students, are pledged in spring and fall quarters. During the week of probation, they wear paper caps and carry cigarettes and gum for the actives.

Publication of the Green Gander in cooperation with Theta Sigma Phi is another of the projects of Sigma Delta Chi.

Head Wins Handbook Award

All chemical technology or chemistry engineering majors who expect to make a living as chemists are eligible for membership in Alpha Chi Sigma, professional chemistry fraternity. The organization seeks to promote high scholarship by honoring the highest ranking sophomore and senior who are majoring in some phase of chemistry. This year, James Head, a chemistry technology major, received the sophomore handbook award, and John Griffing, science senior, received a year's membership in the American Chemical Society and had his name engraved on the cup which is kept in the lobby of Chemistry Building.

The honorary also places a display for Science Day and, as a member of the National Safety Council, is responsible for the safety posters in Chemistry Building. Firesides and smokers constitute the major portion of the organization's well-rounded social activities.

Sell 290 Pounds of Fruit Cakes

Three hundred and ninety pounds of fruitcake were sold this Christmas by members of Phi Upsilon Omicron under the direction of Doris Plagge, chairman of the fruitcake committee. The money was used by this professional home economics honorary to keep up its campus activities and to send a delegate to the biannual convention to be held this summer.

An activity new to the organization this year was the coffee forum held March 5. Five home economics faculty members presided over a panel discussion open to all women on the campus.

Ellen H. Richards Day, sponsored jointly by Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu, featured Miss Jane Leischnering of the University of Minnesota. She spoke in the morning at a convocation, and at a women's banquet in the evening. This day is an Iowa

State College annual tradition. Phi Upsilon Omicron Founder's Day was observed by a party at the home of Dr. Paulena Nickell.

Established to advance and promote home economics on the college campus and in professional fields, the honorary selects its members for scholarship, leadership and professional attitude. Twenty-two new members were pledged last fall just after Thanksgiving, and were initiated in January. These girls were all juniors or seniors in the upper two-fifths of their class who had met the honorary's requirements.

The organization meets twice each month, once in the afternoon and once in the evening at the home of a faculty member. Business at these meetings includes a discussion of what the chapter editor will contribute to the Candle, the national publication of Phi Upsilon Omicron.

The annual Sor-Dor Sing with a traveling trophy award is also sponsored by the organization. Any group which can procure the trophy for three successive years may keep it. Delta Zeta was the sorority, and Roberts Hall the dormitory that won the award this year.

Honor Students

To recognize all freshman women with over a three point grade average, Omicron Nu, home economics honorary, this year established an honor roll that was posted each quarter in Home Economics Building.

This national honorary also invited Miss Jane Leischner of the University of Minnesota to speak this year at the Ellen H. Richards Day convocation and banquet, sponsored annually by Omicron Nu in cooperation with Phi Upsilon Omicron. Every fall quarter, the active members entertain the faculty members of Omicron Nu with a dessert supper.

Pledges Give Entertainment

Thirteen cadets dressed in military uniforms, carrying bared sabers, attracted a large crowd of students every day for a week at the north door of Beardshear Hall this fall. They were cadets in advanced R.O.T.C. and were going through probation week as pledges of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary fraternity for R.O.T.C. Requirements for new members are that they be advanced military students with good scholastic records. Very strict disciplinary measures are employed during probation week in an effort to promote better military training through military problems. The Military Ball, terminating the activities of probation week in the spring, was held April 18, in Great Hall, Memorial Union, where the Scabbard and Blade insignia hung as a back-

Design Cards

Christmas, Easter or Mother's Day cards are designed and created by members of Delta Phi Delta to be sold to the students as a source of revenue for this national art honorary. As one of its activities, the organization gave a tea for the Bali dancers that visited the campus during winter quarter.

Consisting entirely of applied art majors on this campus, the honorary is not necessarily confined to women, and lists Grant Wood as one of its laureate members. Established to promote art interests and scholarship among college students, this chapter pledges about 15 new members each year. Bright orange smocks and paint pallets distinguish these pledges during their probation period.

National Winners

Placing four members in the National Poetry and Prose contest for Chi Delta Phi members, the Iowa State chapter this year kept up its high record of achievement. This national literary fraternity strives to bring together women with interest and outstanding ability in the field of creative writing. Pledges announced in the fall and again in the spring are selected from a group consisting of women with 2.5 all-college averages, and 3 point grade averages in the English Department. As a part of its activities, Chi Delta Phi prepares an exhibit in Beardshear Hall for Veishea. There are eleven active members in the Iowa State chapter of the honorary this year.

Honoraries Encourage Scholarship

Iowa State College has placed a definite emphasis upon scholarship from its very inception. One of the incentives for maintaining a high grade-point, balanced with activities, is the experience of being pledged into an honorary fraternity.

After becoming an active, the members assume the responsibility for their departmental open houses, dances, banquets and encourage scholarship in the underclassmen. An honorary key dangling from a watch chain may be small, but it symbolizes one of Iowa State's traditions—scholarship. Mortar Board and Cardinal Key, all-college honoraries, symbolize a balance between scholarship and activities.

J. C. Hempstead presents the pledges to the Guard of St. Patrick at the Engineers' Carnival. Eleanore White, Eugenia Hoffert and Doris Plagege receive, on behalf of Mortar Board and the women of Iowa State College, the Women's Day proclamation from Dr. Charles E. Friley.

IJC Students Create Demand For Humanities

gress approved the land grant for Iowa State College in 1862, the general idea was to establish a new-fangled school of technology and science. Plans went ahead on these assumptions, but it wasn't long until religious, musical and dramatic groups, introduced at the request of the students, became part of college.

The Student's Christian Association, organized in 1878, was the forerunner of the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. It consisted of both men and women, and existed until 1889, when it was split into the two present Y's. Mud roads made it impossible to get to Ames churches, so the Y's held Sunday School for the students, and daily chapels in the Old Main Building. Fires compelled the groups to move five times until finally in 1904 they raised enough money to lay the cornerstone of the present Y building. When churches were built near the campus, and downtown churches could be reached, student religious groups affiliated with each denomination arose, relieving the Y of its Sunday morning responsibilities.

Compulsory singing classes marked the beginning of music at Iowa State back in the 1880's. The School of Music, affiliated with the college followed, and was housed in a frame building on the present Memorial Union site. Plans for the Memorial Union, however, compelled the School to move into the English Office Building, but soon after, they changed to their present location, the former home of Dean Stanton. Music at Iowa State is now divided into two parts; The School of Music affiliated, which gives private lessons, and the Department of Music, which sponsors all group activities.

Debate was the first oratorical society to come to the campus. The Debating League, composed of two men from each of the six literary honoraries, sponsored all inter-collegiate debates, the first of which was with State Normal in 1894.

The Civic Opera House was the scene of the first plays produced by the Iowa State College Dramatic Club, a unit of the Department of Public Speaking. Agricultural Assembly in 1908, housed the productions until MacKay Auditorium was completed in 1925. This stage was used until 1936, when the theatre workshop was turned over to the dramatists, who now called themselves the Iowa State Players.

Professor Guy S. Greene

When, on February 20 of this year, word came of the death of Dr. Guy S. Greene, head of the English and Speech Department, students and faculty members were well aware of the loss of a man whose value to the campus was immeasurable. It is not only as head of his department that he will be remembered. All who knew him will recall his quiet manner and clever humor. His sincerity and unassuming personality made him many true friends among the student body.

In addition to his duties as a professor and administrator, Dr. Greene was chairman of the committee on lectures and was a frequent contributor to professional publications.

Dr. Greene left his job when he had almost reached the realization of his ideal—an English department which would serve all the needs of a technical school.

BERNARD DEVOTO

Again in 1941-42 the Departments of Music and of English and Speech brought to Iowa State a distinguished program of music, literature and drama, as well as current events discussion. With Bernard DeVoto, novelist, short story writer, editor, critic, the seventh annual Literature and Life lectures opened fall quarter. Next came the Artist Series programs when the Metropolitan Opera Quartet presented a recital in State Gymnasium. Singing stars Josephine Antoine, soprano; Karin Branzell, contralto; Frederick Jagel, tenor, and John Brownlee, baritone, sang to a house packed with students and faculty members.

"How Safe Are We From Attack?" was the timely title for Major Fielding Eliot's fall lecture. In January, Dr. Carl Friedrich, of Harvard, author, educator and student of political science, stated that "after the war our most urgent task is a reconstruction of the ideal and concept of democracy." Title of the lecture was "After Hitler, What?" Brightening winter quarter was the appearance of Actress Ruth Draper with an evening of costumed characterizations. The famous American baritone, of the Metropolitan Opera, John Charles Thomas, sang in State Gymnasium.

"When a cellist draws capacity audiences and superlative notices . . . that's news!" said the New York Times of the artistry of Gregor Piatigorsky. The famous musician's fine exhibition at Iowa State this spring made cello news again as he played a program that included two of his own compositions.

Iowa State music lovers had a field day as they filled the gymnasium for two great symphony concerts, the matinee and an evening performance. Some 2,500 students, faculty, townspeople and out-of-town visitors saw the dynamic Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor, play upon the delicate mechanism of his orchestra and heard the 90 musicians respond to the slightest movement of their conductor's hands. The feature of the matinee was the triumphant Shastokowitsch Symphony No. 5. Olin Downes, New York Times music critic, stated in his intermission commentary, "the third movement is one great commentary from beginning to end. Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3 highlighted the evening performance.

The Iowa State Symphony Orchestra, with 80 members this year, had the strongest season in the history of the group. Under the baton of their veteran conductor, Alvin R. Edgar, the men and women presented two concerts during winter quarter, and managed their 350-mile annual tour before tire rationing went into effect. On February 4 and 8 they played concerts in Great Hall, Memorial Union, with Miss Ilza Niemack, violin instructor and concertmaster of the orchestra, as soloist. A final "All-American" concert was given the latter part of May.

Iowa State College Symphony Orchestra.

The seventh annual tour was made the first and second of February, with the musicians traveling about the northern part of the state in busses. Perry, Atlantic, Bedford, Shenandoah, Clarinda and Creston were visited. Standing room only was the report from each of these programs, as the orchestra was welcomed at towns they have reached in previous tours. Miss Niemack was featured violin soloist on each appearance, while Dorothy McDade and Jack Weir played a duet especially written for flute and French horn.

The selections played while on tour were "Ruy Blas Overture"—Mendelssohn; Symphony No. 41 in C major—Mozart; "Beautiful Blue Danube"—Strauss.

Four Eight Northern Iowa Towns

For more than fifty years, Men's Glee Clubs have been singing at Iowa State. This year's seventy-one members were picked for voices of fine quality and for musical ability. Directed by Tolbert MacRae, they toured eight northern Iowa towns, singing concerts matinee and evening, this spring. One Vesper service and a trip to Des Moines to sing for the State Teachers' Convention were also on the program. At Christmas time, the men become part of the Festival Choir to assist in the production of "The Messiah."

Sing Candle-lighting Service

Students and Ames' residents each year look forward to the inspirational Christmas candle-lighting service of the Women's Glee Club, given annually at the Collegiate Presbyterian Church, a twilight service that for fifteen years has heralded the Christmas season. Eugene Hilligoss, new director of the Glee Club, came to Iowa State from the University of Colorado last fall, and led the eighty-one voices through a successful year that included two special Sunday evening Vesper services.

Under Hilligoss's direction, a new triple trio of nine feminine voices appeared often at campus concerts. These women were featured in the Christmas program, accompanied by a small orchestra ensemble, added this year for the first time in the history of the group. The entire Glee Club took part in "The Messiah" as part of the Festival Choir, and again in the spring sang in the "Ballad for Americans" with the choir. At the end of spring quarter a small gold "I" is given to members who have worked for six consecutive quarters. Officers of the group were: June Dudgeon, president during fall and winter quarters, and Dorothy Ann Klein, president during spring quarter.

Sponsor Three Major Productions

Three major productions every year, plus weekly radio plays, studio one-acts, and special entertainment performances keep actors of the Iowa State Players busy from September to June. Production crews are at work, too, as some 50 men and women build sets every quarter in the Theatre Workshop—the old reclaimed stock pavilion at Iowa State thespians call home. Last fall's season opened with "George Washington Slept Here," a Broadway hit by Moss Hart and George S. Kauffman. Broadway spent $23,356.28 on the production, but the Players got by for much less on their own ingenuity to costume, light and build sets. The play was so new that special permission had to be requested for amateur production. Richard Thompson, Kathryn Fuller, Julie Wendel and Beverly Milne played leading roles. Winter quarter found the players back to work on Sidney Howard's "Silver Cord," a story of in-law trouble with a modern psychological background. Kirk McGuire, Guy S. Greene, Jr., Patricia O'Leary, Mary Jo Franey and Julie Wendel held the big roles. Then came spring and "Village Green," by Carl Allerton, a story of small-town life and the problems of the community judge, played by Robert Pomeroy. Dorothy McGoon and William Boardman carried the supporting parts. Rewarding the efforts of those workers who spent long hours at the Workshop was admission to associate and active membership. Associates were admitted as they achieved 15 points, actives with 50. Executive officers, with the faculty adviser, choose the members.

Officers of the organization are Kathryn Blackburn, president; George Beal, vice-president; Sidney Moore, treasurer; Helen Frei, secretary; Dorothy Walker, historian.

Faculty advisors are Prof. Everett M. Schreck, Prof. Frederica Shattuck and Sidney C. Stone.

Take Bus Trip To Des Moines

Highlights of the year were the bus ride to Des Moines to see "Life With Father," the "Fall Frolic," and the "Winter Wind-up," ending the quarter's work with a night of fun. In December the group sponsored a series of comedy films that showed the history of movies, and gave "The Giant Stair" as the annual Science Day one-act.

Members Play In Dance Bands

Rhythm sweet and swing was the order of the evening when the thirteen musical "hepcats," members of the Iowa State Rhythm Club, swung out at the fourth Campus Varieties on February 27. These hand-picked experts are active in winter quarter only, playing for one Varieties and at least one Cyclone Twister. The men are all members of various campus dance bands and endeavor to hold weekly jam sessions to further along the cause of swing. Annually special Rhythm Club golden keys are awarded to the men outstanding in musicianship, ability and service to the organization. This year Bob Allen, S. So.; Jim Paley, G. E. So., and Jack Walker, C. E. Sr., were the lucky key winners, receiving them from the stage the night the group played for the Varieties. Dick Hull, a former member, now production manager for Radio Station WOI, as master of ceremonies, presented the Rhythm Club "I's."

Organized in 1937 by Freddy Schott, who at that time had his own campus band, new members are selected by a vote of the active members, graduating seniors selecting a man from Iowa State College campus bands for new places.

Officers for the year were: Bob Allen, president; Jim Paley, vice-president; Glenn Tott, treasurer.

Meet For Weekly Discussions

Fifty members of the debate squad meet on Thursday afternoons for weekly discussions of the questions they are studying. Advised by Professors Martin Maloney and Robert Carson of the Department of English and Speech, the weekly meetings are forums led by men and women members of the group. In addition to the three major serious topics for the year, the debaters participated in numerous informal debates, including the annual Veishea Debate, and a humorous debate with Kansas.

In March, six members made a trip to Iowa City to speak in extempore competition in a contest sponsored by the Inter-American Affairs Committee.

The Student Defense Council asked the Iowa State Debaters to furnish discussion leaders for all the organized campus groups. They responded not only with their own members, but recruited outside talent to meet the campus "emergency." Seniors in the group may become official "Iowa State Debaters," an honorary to the twenty-five named for most faithful participation as underclassmen. Oliver Hansen acted as president this year.

Plans New Emergency Services

Striving to correlate its work with the National Defense Program, the YWCA has undertaken new services and meetings to meet the war situation. The YWCA aims to help keep spiritual morale high through the many ideals, standards and practices which are suggested at its meetings.

Interest groups cooperate with the Red Cross knitting committee, whose headquarters have their location in the Y parlors. The "crafts" groups are making inexpensive articles for sale, the proceeds of which are to go to the defense fund. "Food Fun," which is a food study and practice group, is making cookies to send to the men in the armed services, while the social committee is planning to send them friendly letters and campus news. To cooperate with the educational committee of the Defense Council, discussions pertinent to the war situation are sponsored. Brief news summaries open each interest group or committee meeting.

Prepares WOI Radio Services

The YMCA cabinet, composed of twenty-four capable men, organizes and plans a varied program which is in close fellowship and service to the entire student body. Under the leadership of Ray Cunningham, its committees participate in such campus activities as deputation teams for out-of-town services, boys' work in the elementary schools as well as the junior high school, firesides in the homes of faculty and at the well known YMCA lodge near the campus, radio services for the college station WOI under student preparation and presentation, and organization of the Freshman "Y" Camp for some one hundred and fifty college freshmen.

It was a loss for the Y cabinet when Stan Rheiner, former assistant secretary, left Iowa State College this fall for Washington.

Establish Sunday Exchange System

To encourage fellowship and cooperation between the student organizations of the various churches, the Interchurch Council has established a Sunday evening exchange system which provides for a combination meeting of two student groups from different churches with a social and devotional program.

DR. K. I. BROWN, Religious Emphasis Week speaker.

Interchurch Council has sponsored Matins during Brotherhood Week, has cooperated with Religious Emphasis Week, and has appointed committees to carry out "All Out to Church" Sundays at the beginning of each quarter. These programs follow the council's purpose of furthering development of religious activities on the Iowa State College campus.

Outstanding events of the Interchurch Council this year were the All-Cabinet meeting attended by cabinet members of all religious organizations, and the Vesper Good-Will Forum. A special Communion Service was also held at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge on October 26. Congregational Student Center Congregational young people who attend Iowa State College have their student center at the Frisbie House. Here we find a Bible Forum each Sunday morning and a fellowship program each Sunday evening to promote a complete student religious program.

The Frisbie House is open at all times for use by its members and other organizations under the house director, Mrs. George Graves.

Saturday evening parties, New Year's and Easter breakfasts, open houses and special programs make up the social meetings for the students.

This group is directed by five officers and thirteen committee chairmen, Mrs. Graves, an adult advisory board from the Ames Congregational Church, and Rev. Arthur R. McLaughlin.

The Roger Williams Club is an organization for Baptist students attending Iowa State College. The aim of the club is to stimulate religious growth through Sunday morning Bible study and discussions led by outstanding leaders from the community and state on Sunday evening. This past year a Service Committee was added to the Club Cabinet. It is the purpose of this committee to assist students who are having difficulty with college subjects, to organize work groups which take care of odd jobs around the house.

Works Among 500 Students

The Lutheran Students' Association works among about five hundred students on the campus. It meets at the Bethesda Lutheran Church each Sunday at 5 for fellowship, supper and a devotional program. The local chapter is a unit of national organization, and shares in both regional conferences and a national summer Ashram. In November, 1941, the Land o' Lakes Regional Conference, representing four states, was held in Ames, with a registration of three hundred and twenty-four students. A fellowship supper was served in the South ballroom the opening night of the conference at which President Emeritus R. M. Hughes gave the welcome address.

Highlighting the Newman Club activities this year were the Newman Ball, the Retreat, the initiation banquet and a senior breakfast.

New advancements of the club members are now announced in the Newman Club newspaper. A Catholic herdbook with the names and addresses of Iowa State students, also has been compiled and published by the club this year.

A church choir has been established by the group to add to the service of the students. A mission committee to keep the members informed about conditions in the world, and a Council of organization have also been set up by the club.

Purchase National Defense Bond

Hillel Foundations are sponsored by B'nai B'rith, America's oldest and largest service organization, for the purpose of bringing more adequate knowledge of their heritage to the Jewish students of the university campus. Units are supervised by trained professional directors who cooperate with representative student leaders in the task of making Jewish religious and cultural values vital and relevant for the college generation.

The first Hillel Foundation was established in 1923 at the University of Illinois. There are now 60 units, strategically centered in every part of the country.

In 1940 a counselorship was awarded the group at Iowa State College. Rabbi Morris N. Kentzer, director at the University of Iowa, was made this group's director also.

Dispensing with the tradition of the annual banquet, the Hillel group purchased a Defense Bond with the money that would have been used for food. The group meets weekly in the Pine Room at the Memorial Union. After a short business session, a speaker is featured who may discuss religion, international affairs or student problems.

Officers: Ben Bookless, president; Anne Harris, secretary; Louis Plotkin, program chairman; Robert Ettinger, representative to Interchurch Council; Sylvia Kalnitsky, corresponding secretary.

Develop Leaders Among Students

The Westminster Student Fellowship of the Collegiate Presbyterian Church is one of fifty-three student centers located at state colleges and universities throughout the United States, and is maintained by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

From the time of its organization in 1911, "the Church by the West Gate" has persistently encouraged students to take a vital part in all the work of the local church, as well as the leadership in the activities of the Student Center. The Church has not only sought to provide a spiritual home for the hundreds of Presbyterian students at Iowa State, but it has also sought to train these young people to be responsible church leaders when they take their places in the world. The official church boards have, from the beginning, been open to students, who serve as elders, deacons and deaconesses.

Beta, one of thirty chapters of the National Society of Wesley Players, with the aim, "Drama With a Purpose," is an organization of service to the local Wesley Foundation, to Methodist Churches throughout the state and, in fact, the whole Christian World. It strives to attain this aim by using the dramatic techniques to lead the worship experience.

The society also promotes the study and appreciation of dramatic arts among its members. It strives to produce the best drama in the best fashion possible, knowing that simplicity and sincerity are more important than wigs and curtains.

Clay Lanman, vice-president and pledge master of the local chapter of Wesley Players, was elected national president at their national convention in connection with the National Methodist Student Conference.

Correlation of the 30 active chapters of the National Society of Wesley Players will be his main duty as president.

Five Department Openhouses Form First Veishea

W

Week-end of week-ends—Veishea finds Iowa State in full dress for over 15,000 alumni, friends and prospective students. Originally, each of the five divisions had a separate week-end to entertain prospective enrollers of their division, but in 1922, for the first time, all five celebrations were combined into one big show—Veishea.

“Scandals of 1922—the first and only appearance in America was the feature of the first annual affair. It was a night show in the armory followed by a dance, attended by over 2,000 Iowans. In 1923, the Veishea fans were told by the official program to “have a look at the array of side shows: “Shooting of Dan McGrew, Kick In, and others too numerous to mention,” while the 1924 celebration inaugurated the Moving Up ceremony in which all freshmen burned their beanies in a big bonfire. 1926 marked the first pledging for Mortar Board and Cardinal Key, and Student Vod-Vils were begun in 1928.

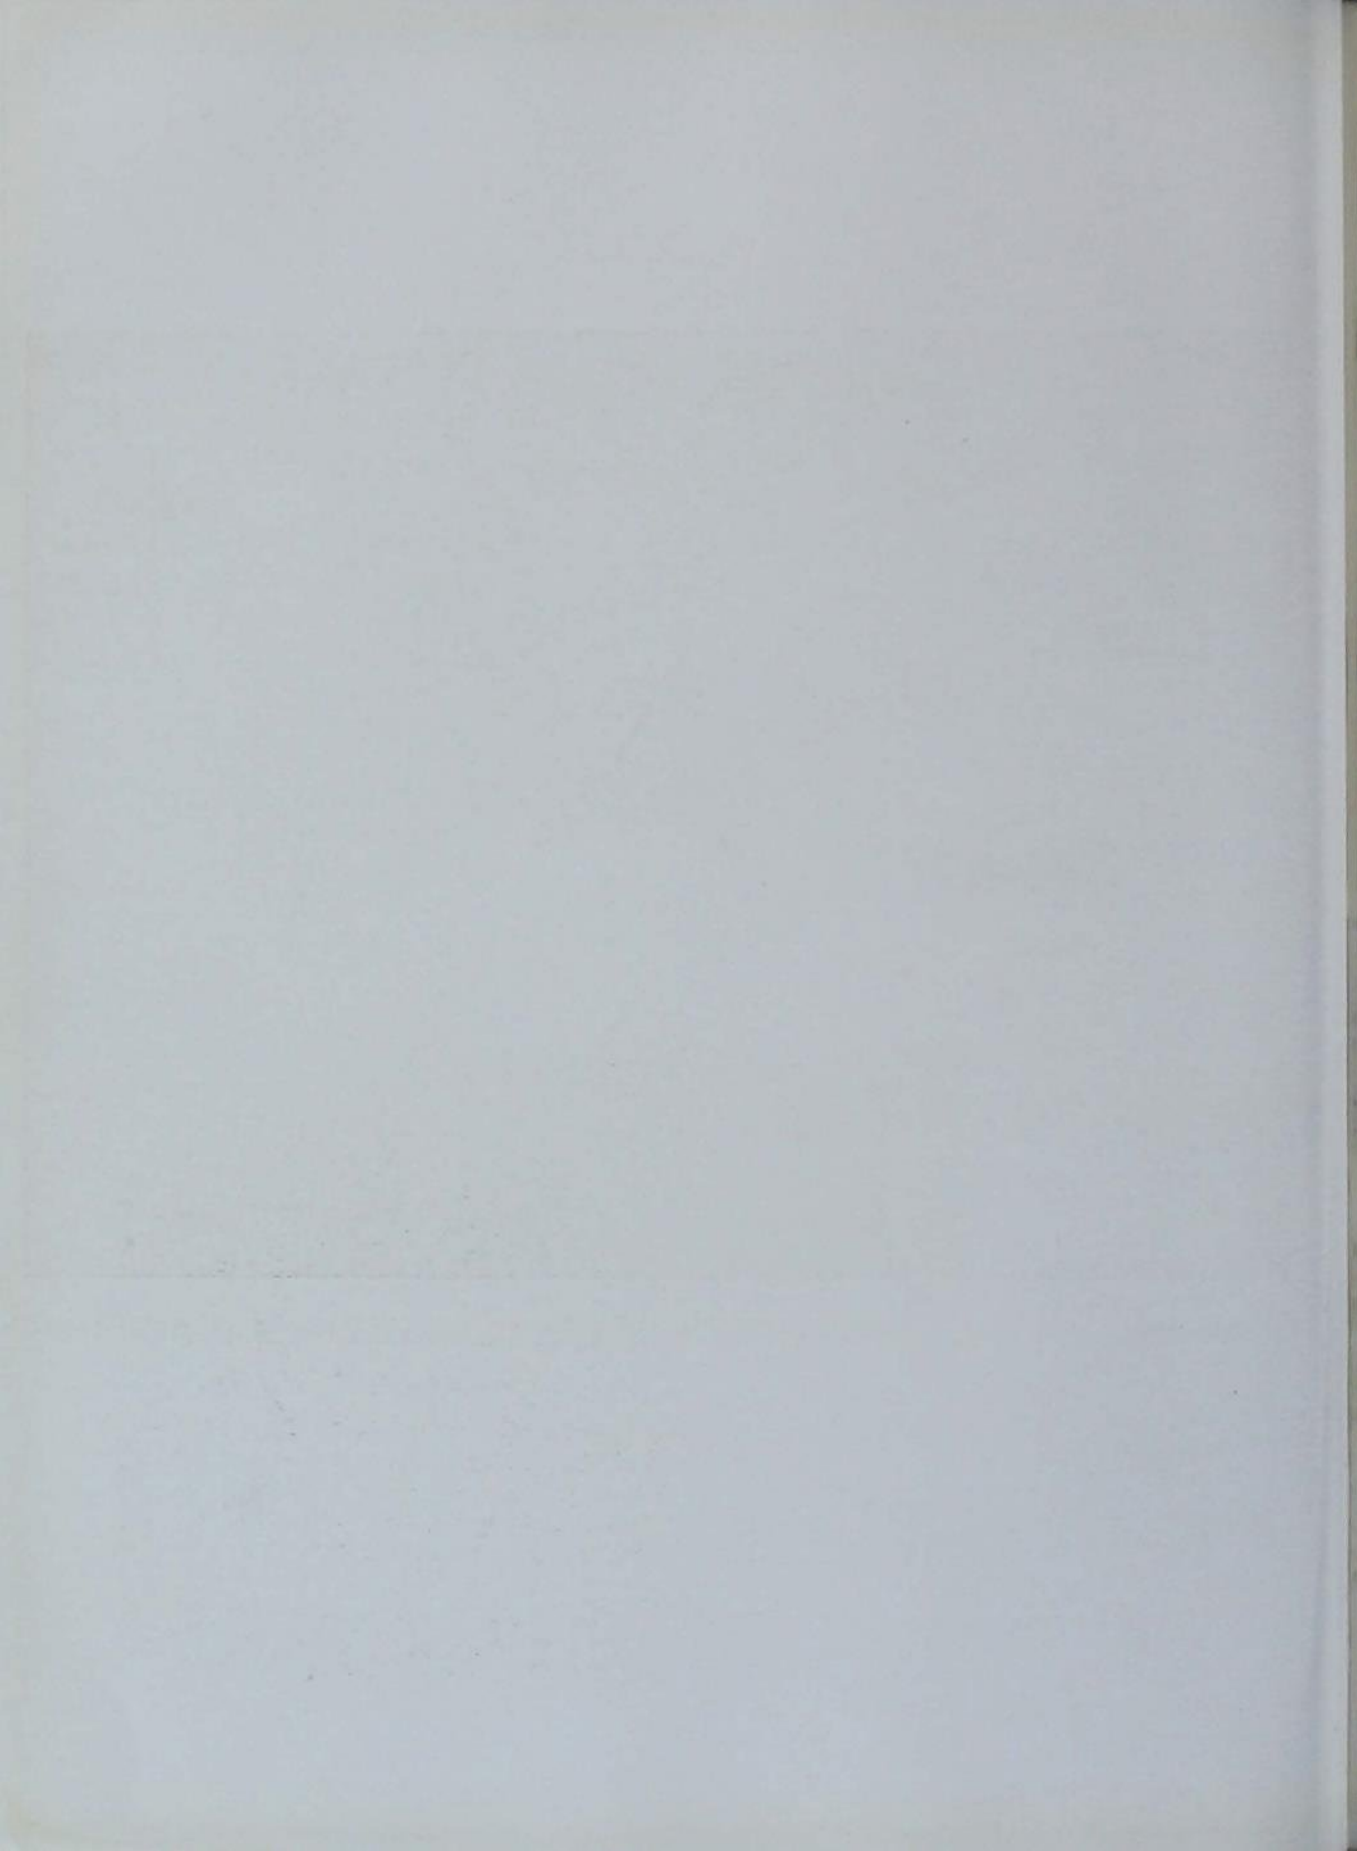

“The most sensational band in the land—Cato’s Vagabonds” was booked for the Veishea of 1930 headed by Margaret Stanton (Lang). The Military Circus first appeared in 1931, when the official program promised “Float entries from sororities and fraternities that will tickle the funny-bone.” The 1935 Veishea committee served a Veishea Cocktail which they “sweetened with a Chocolate Soldier, added a few polo games to give kick, put in a dash of parade for color, a little Student Vod-Vil for pep, and some of the Water Carnival to dilute.” This Veishea also presented two swans, Lancelot and Elaine, to the college. The 1937 Veishea dedicated the fountain in front of the Memorial Union, and the crowning of Mary Janet McDonald, first Queen of Queens opened the Veishea of 1938. “Stars Over Veishea”—a gigantic outdoor spectacle was the feature of 1939, and the 1940 show was billed for two nights. 1941 took “Youth Proven by Time” as a theme, and held the opening ceremonies at night. “Education in Action”—a streamlined Veishea for defense took the 1942 Veishea-goers by storm, serving as a climax for the numerous all-year-round activities on the Iowa State campus.

Paratroops descend on 1941 Veishea.

Veishea, as Iowa State on Display, has served as an Open House to the parents of students and to high school students of Iowa and surrounding states for twenty-one years, with the purpose of showing them the work of the college.

1941 Veishea has its own parachute troops—they're descending upon the crowd of 20,000 to help celebrate Veishea's twenty-first birthday. Not far behind comes the giant birthday cake—large enough for all to have a piece.

Twenty-one years old—twenty-one candles.

With mallets flung far and wide the Cardinal and Gold quartet score another goal—this time it's four men and four horses rather than four men on a horse.

In true Fiji fashion, they've got something cookin'. It happens to be one of the brothers, who got too dictatorial, getting the hot seat.

As a signal that tapping ceremonies are about to begin, Mortar Board members parade through the Campanile and with a watchful eye look into the crowd for their 1941 candidates. . . . Janet Wilson has "spotted" her first prospect.

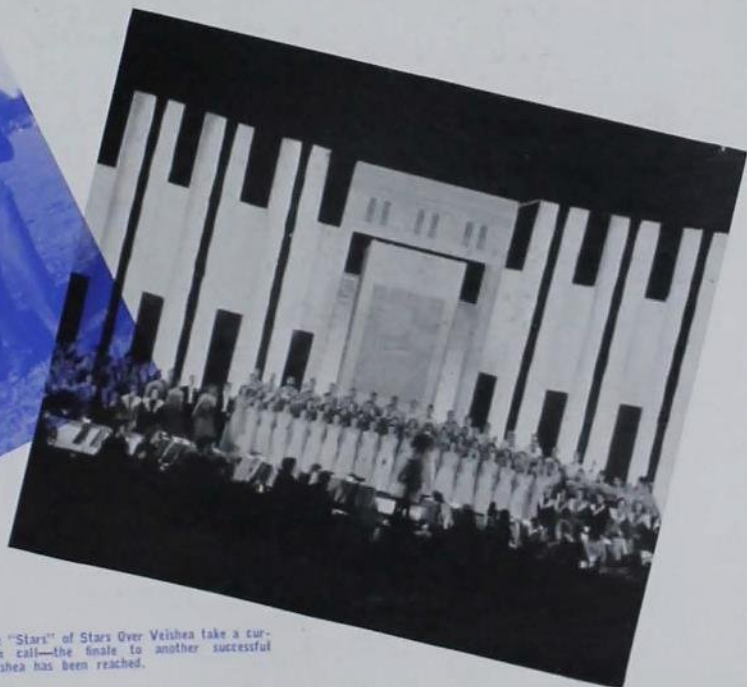

Over the ton boys—it's the engineers taking a ten foot wall in their stride.

Here is The Tall Hat alone—this time "It's Hats Off to Veishea." In red, white and blue it also lends to a patriotic atmosphere.

Then to the Home Economics building to inspect the Phi Upsilon Omicron Veishea pies—oh, for just one sample, my kingdom. Veishea—Iowa State's 3-day spring festival. All the college and 23,000 visitors turned out to see Iowa State at work and play on Veishea's twenty-first birthday. Lieutenant Governor Hickenlooper presented the Queen of Queens, Marjorie Kenfield, and was then presented with the first copy of the 1941 Bomb. A colorful pageant was reviewed as 94 floats paraded and the grand climax was enacted at Saturday night's production of "Stars Over Veishea."

Jim McIlrath and Ward Tuller Head '42 Veishea Central Committee

Fifteen strong were the members of this year's Veishea Central Committee, who worked together and planned the 3-day event. Heading the committee list was Manager "Fingers in Every Pie" Jim McIlrath and his accomplice Ward "Eagle Eye" Tuller, who served as business manager. Flossie Byrnes, as publicity director, made Veishea nationally known, while Mary Taff was a favorite as Veishea's secretary. Opening ceremonies on the lake were in full charge of Pat Hayes, and Tom Tuttle shepherded the "Stars Over Veishea" stage production. Bob Knowles managed the varied vodvil shows and Joe Markey launched the soldierly Revue Militaire, while Bill Parish supervised the five divisional open house displays.

C. E.'s Gain Summer Field Experience

Civil engineers spend a rainy day in the computing room. A two-man party poses before starting a day of work in the field. A three-man party maps with the plane table. Civil engineers sound Clear Lake. That's Iowa State's C. E. Summer Camp.

The department offers a summer camp for engineering field practice which is an integral part of the curriculum, to follow the sophomore year. The work is based upon a route survey for a highway or railroad, and includes all the necessary field and office experience. The camp is located in northern Minnesota.

C A M P S

Students in the Forestry Department must spend eight weeks of one summer quarter in field operations, the 1943 camp to be located in New Mexico. Due to the war the Agriculture Travel Course will not be conducted, but ordinarily it would be a tour and study of the agricultural regions.

MILITARY SUMMER CAMP

The ROTC camp last summer was located at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Advanced military men from Iowa State and other mid-western colleges spent their time drilling, sleeping, eating and dancing. Naturally the only variety was more drilling, but then they were paid a couple of times in between.

ROTC Student Trains Toward Army Commission

During the past year the value of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps has been demonstrated beyond question. Approximately sixty-five percent of the officers of the army at the present time are products of the ROTC. They have played an important part in the task of building an army from raw material. In the days immediately ahead they must meet the supreme test of leading men in battle. They will be given rank and responsibilities far beyond their years and experience, and they must not fail. Every member of the ROTC in our college must respect his responsibilities as a future leader, and qualify himself for the job.

The value of advanced military training is recognized by faculty and students alike, disregarding the value of the reserve officer in a national emergency. In peace time the ROTC gives the college student leadership training which can be equaled by no other activity, curricular or otherwise.

In his first two years the military student spends one credit hour a quarter studying military courtesy, close order drill, map reading and the like. For their last two years in the advanced course selected students receive three credits per quarter and receive commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps upon graduation.

Tandem Develops Riding Coordination

Organized in 1936 by Capt. T. C. Wood, Tandem is an organization of advanced military students of the field artillery unit consisting of ten tandem hitches. The simplest tandem unit consists of two horses, the driver riding the rear animal and driving the lead horse by means of extension reins.

The drill consists of maneuvers at a gallop, which requires coordination to prevent the teams from tangling and causing serious accidents. Because only regular army horses are furnished, one of the major problems of the unit is to train the horses to drive tandem and take the jumps in unison.

Founded for the purpose of developing skillful horsemanship among the advanced military students, the objectives of the unit becomes more prominent as the present emergency grows.

The feat of horsemanship is difficult because the rider must guide the lead horse over the jumps with the use of reins rather than the aid of spurs, shift of weight and leg pressure. The squad practiced twice weekly to overcome these difficulties.

The Tandem, in the past, gave two performances annually, one at the Military Circus and another at the Veishea Turf Tourney. When the War Department cancelled the Military Circus, undaunted, they pointed their practice toward the tourney.

This year the Iowa State College Cossacks and the Tandem combined to form the Horsemen to coordinate the activities of the two groups. They have in common their objectives of promoting interest in better horsemanship. Both place emphasis upon the ability of the rider to train himself and his mount. Lt. D. H. Patterson assumed the coaching duties following the calling of Lt. Robert A. Treneman to active duty.

Iowa State Horsemen Officers: Robert E. Clark, president; Wilbur Harding, president of Cossacks; George Gitz, secretary-treasurer.

Trick Riding Featured by ROTC

The College Cossacks is the only student organization of its kind in the United States. Composed of ROTC students, this organization features trick riding on one, two or three horses. The Cossacks were organized at Iowa State College in 1928 by Lt. H. M. Jones. He was assisted by Sergeant Henry Scanlon, a former member of the "Monkey Drill" team at Fort Meyer, Virginia. In 1931 the name "College Cossacks" was chosen for this group. Since then the Cossacks have performed at Veishea and the military shows.

The organization is composed of eighteen horses and thirty-six riders, two men being mounted on each horse. They are referred to as number one and number two riders. The number one rider has had at least one year of riding experience while the number two rider is experiencing his first year of active riding.

Many of the tricks are done while the horse is at a gallop. They are standing, dismounting, mounting facing the rear and many others.

Some of the tricks done while the horse is walking are shoulder stands, Arabian mount facing the rear and others. For the one man will ride Roman first two horses and then three. To make this trick more difficult he must dismount and mount the off-horse as the horses go over the jump.

Coach of the College Cossacks for this year is Capt. Kenneth Burns. Wilbur Harding is captain of the organization.

PISTOL AND RIFLE TEAMS

Defeat Nebraska Mail Matches

Placing third in two classes at the Kemper matches, the Iowa State College rifle team also gained a fifth place in the corps area matches and a fifth and eleventh in the Hearst Trophy matches. In the Hawkeye League the team won eight and lost five. Losing to Iowa University, they won over Nebraska and Coe in shoulder to shoulder matches.

The team wound up a successful season with a picnic and inter-squad match held in early May.

Officers: Bob Steinert, president; Vyron Anderson, vice-president; Phil Eyre, secretary; Keith Nelson, manager.

The Iowa State ROTC pistol team limits membership to students who actually are enrolled in either basic or advanced military training. Matches are fired with schools throughout the nation. Some of the schools fired against are V. M. I., Harvard, West Point, Texas A. & M., University of Utah, University of Oklahoma. Matches are fired on marked targets and the scores exchanged by mail. TRUMPET AND DRUM CORPS

Forty Members From ROTC

Morale builder is Iowa State's lusty trumpet and drum corps. Its membership is recruited from the Field Artillery and Engineer units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Enthusiasm on the part of military students made it necessary to limit the volunteers for this crack musical and marching unit to 40 men.

With a flashy fanfare of trumpets and the long roll of the drums, a martial air sounds and resounds through the armory as the quarterly battalion parades are held. That's the chief duty of the trumpet and drum corps.

Composed almost entirely of freshmen and sophomores, each fall the organization starts out with an almost new outfit. It must therefore speedily train an almost new outfit in the fundamentals of marching and the playing of military music and calls. It offers an opportunity for students to whom it gives extra-curricular activity, an opportunity to tie their music and military pursuits together.

Work began in September under the guidance of Lt. Henry Bollman and Instructor Robert Schutter, former drum major of the outfit. The corps drilled diligently and the climax of the fall quarter was the Field Artillery battalion parade and the participation in the military rites on Memorial Day at the Memorial Union fountain just outside Gold Star Hall.

Drum Majors Vangsness and Wooleyhan led the corps through a four battalion parade for the Field Artillery in winter quarter, and the weekly Engineer battalion retreat parades in the spring quarter. The annual spring inspection, the graduation parade, the Veishea parade and the new Veishea show, Review Militaire, taking the place of their usual activity in the Veishea Military Circus.

That's the review of a year of activity of the Iowa State College Drum and Bugle Corps.

Win Over Iowa U Develop Leaders

The Iowa State Pontoniers, a crack drill company, is composed of students in the engineer ROTC unit. For the Review Militaire they demonstrated company drill, wall scaling, machine gun drill and bayonet training. This year marked the third of a series of annual competitions with the University of Iowa Pontoniers, at Iowa City, Iowa State having won the first two meets. This year bayonet training was instituted for the first time at Iowa State by the Pontoniers.

During the winter quarter instruction in bayonet training, machine gun drill, close order drill and the like was rotated, while the various groups specialized during spring quarter.

The Society of American Military Engineers, national organization for advanced ROTC students, meets monthly to hear addresses by military and civilian leaders on topics of interest to the engineer reserve officer. The organization serves as a nucleus for men interested in the military aspects of engineering and has as its major function the dissemination of military information. Another purpose of the organization is to secure greater cooperation and to develop characteristics of good leadership among the advanced military engineering students.

Cadet Officers Prepare for War

World War II cut into the plans of the Cadet Officers' Association this year. The Military Circus, annually sponsored by the cadet officers, was abolished to make room for extra classes in military science and tactics. The United States War Department changed the plans of junior officers by abolishing the 6-weeks summer camp where juniors ordinarily got practical experience, calculating firing data, surveying, laying communications, firing the guns and other field war duties in field artillery. The annual graduation day parade has been changed and this year for the first time will be held during Veishea.

Discuss Defense

Every Wednesday afternoon a group of students meets in the Pine Room to discuss informally some of the important current problems. During the past year the programs of the League of Women Voters have been concerned with the war, including such topics as women in defense, how college students can aid the victory effort, and what's happening in South America. Since college students seldom find time to read a newspaper, a summary of the news of the week is an important part of each program.

Publications Own Collegiate Press Printing Plant

ehind Dairy Industry Building, over by the new Women's Gym, is a student-run, student-financed corporation that functions to the annual tune of $67,000. It is the Collegiate Press Corporation, owned jointly by the Iowa Agriculturist, Iowa Engineer, Homemaker, Daily Student and Bomb.

Organized in 1924, it was housed in the basement of the Agricultural Building and managed its affairs under the supervision of all of the above mentioned publications except the Bomb, which joined the corporation just a few years before the new Collegiate Press Building was occupied. Bill Holmes, superintendent of the corporation, managed it in 1924 and still manages it from his desk at the entrance to the press room.

Completed in August, 1940, the $40,000 structure was a dream of the late Blair Converse, friend and instructor of journalism students from 1919-1939. He hoped that all student publications could be grouped together in one building, which would be their own, but he died just one year before his plan materialized.

All student publications except Sketch, Forester and Veterinary Student are now housed in the Collegiate Press Building, which is being paid for by the money that the owner publications pay for printing. Thirty-two thousand dollars was paid into the corporation by these owner publications this year, and the remainder of the $67,000 was made from books printed and sold by the Iowa State College Press.

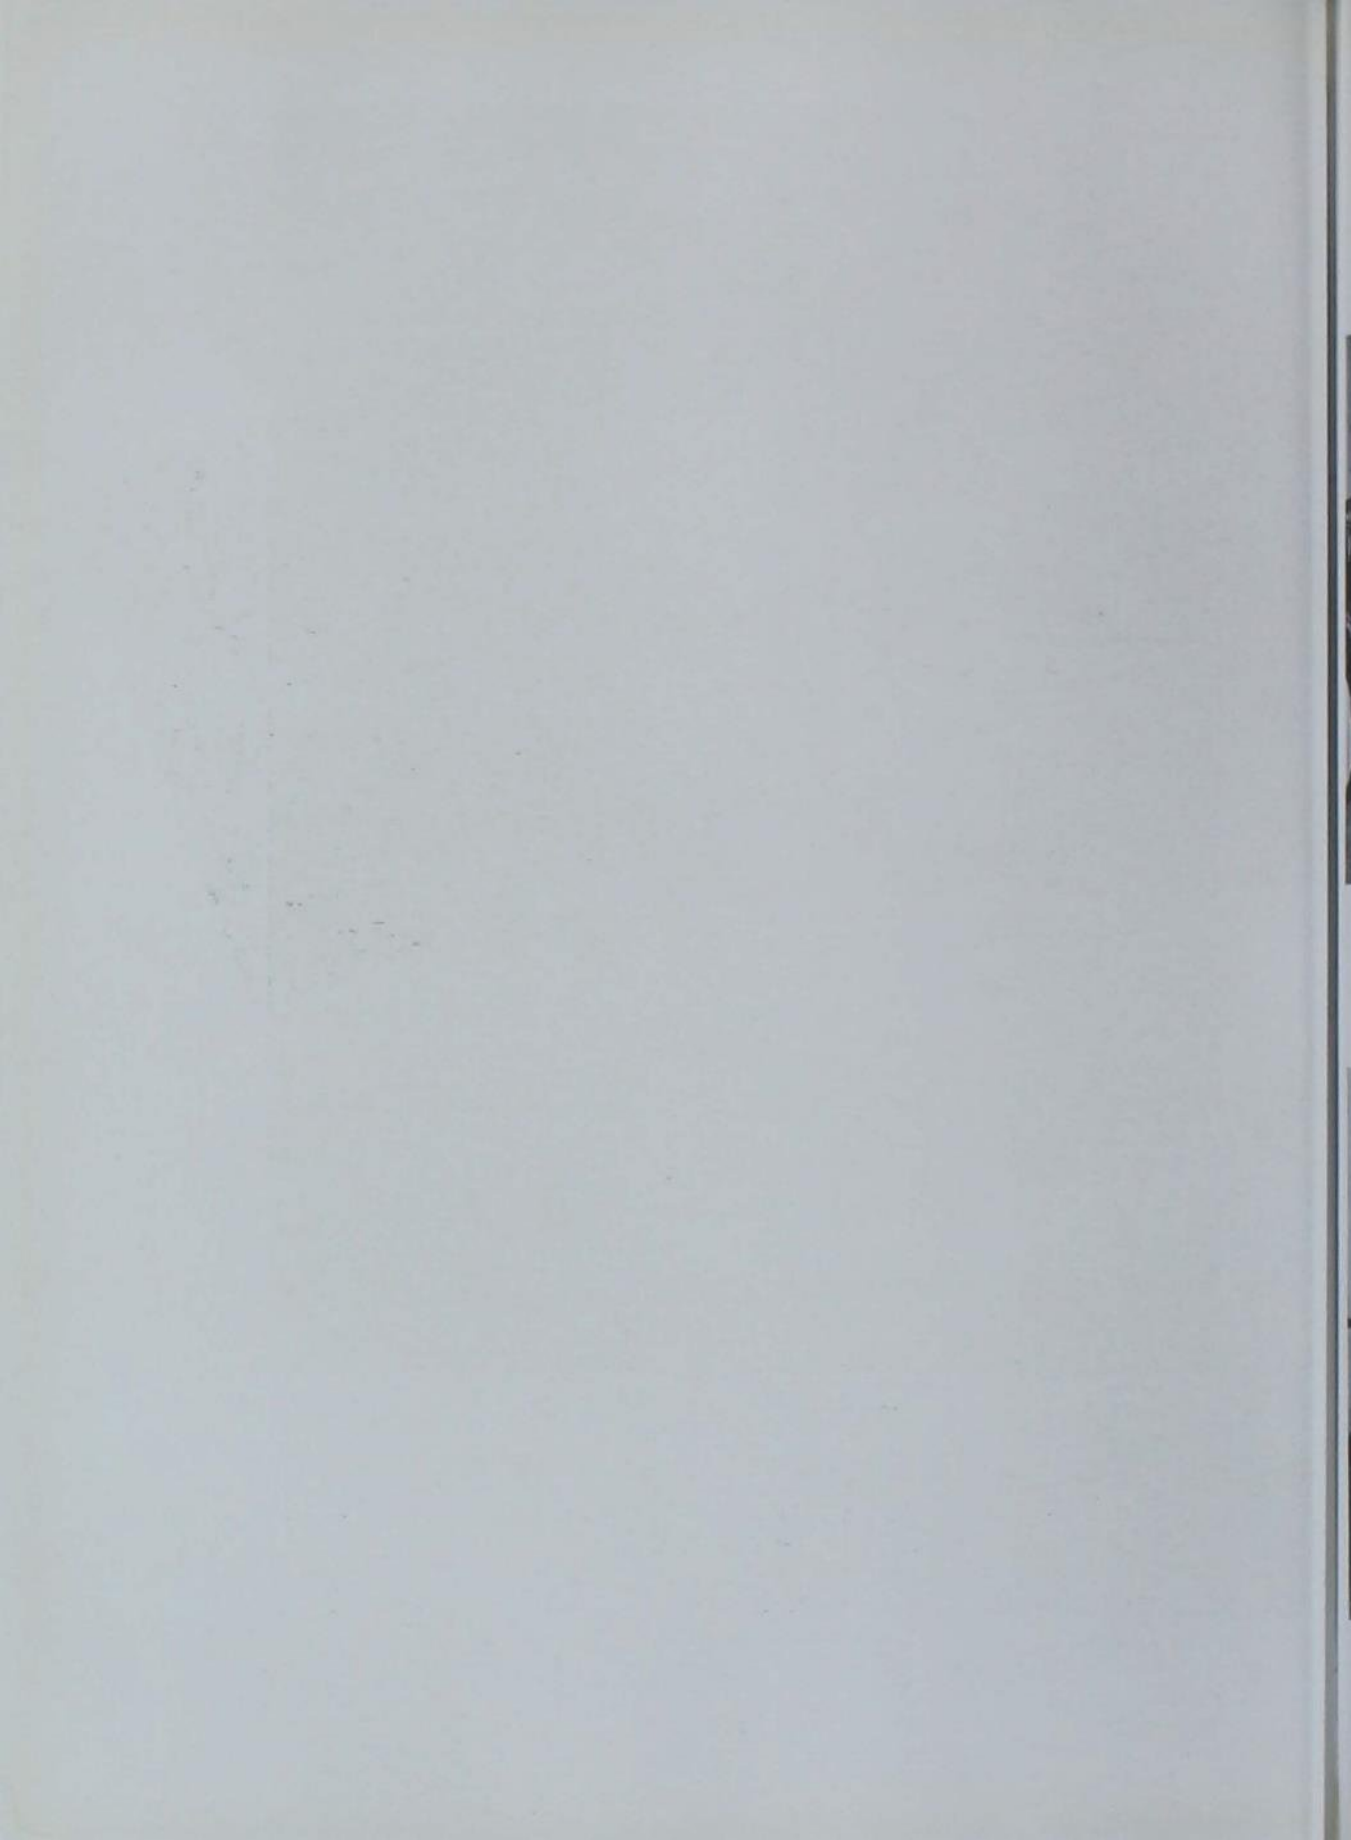

One dark room serves for the photographers of all publications, and it is for the possession of this coveted closet that so many wars are fought in the C. P. B. Threats such as "Come out shootin', you darkroom dilly," are no unusual occurrence.

No one ever goes to the "Engineer Office" or the "Homemaker office," but just goes to the "Press building," because none of the offices are locked and everyone wanders around to see what everyone else is doing. Cokes literally flow from the dispenser in the Student office, since every copy writer must have at least one strong coke and one loud radio to keep him going. No one ever actually starts working on an assignment until the night before it is due, so the place is usually overflowing with desperate journalists and night editors of the Student.

The Collegiate Press Building . . . Home of the Iowa State publications . . . Blueprint planned by the late Blair Converse, former head of the Technical Journalism Department . . . Symbolic center of teeming publication activity.

Bomb editors come and go, so the 1942 staff has traced the careers of three past editors to see just what became of them.

Judge C. G. Lee, co-editor of the first Bomb—1893—was then a junior in the Science Division. Since then, he has practiced law in Ames and served for seven years as judge of the Eleventh Iowa District Court.

Professor Paul Taff, assistant director of Agricultural Extension, edited the 1913 Bomb as an Agronomy junior. He became a member of the Iowa State staff soon after his graduation and has headed Iowa 4-H Club work since 1917.

Robert C. Barker, editor of the 1927 Bomb, received his J. D. degree from the Law School of the University of Michigan in 1930. He is now handling legal matters for the Northern Trust Company of Chicago.

Supported By Students and Faculty

Growing from an album size book to a 442 page annual in fifty issues, the Bomb has been supported by both students and faculty. The late Maria Roberts, with 52 years of service to Iowa State College, was the proud possessor of the first 49 issues. Responsibility for publication has rested directly upon students' shoulders. Faculty advisors furnished the continuous supervision to insure stability. Circulation increased to rank third in the United States. As a partial owner of Collegiate Press, the Bomb is printed in its own shop. The development of the flash light bulb has made informality possible.

145 Students Publish Bomb

Planning and production of this 50th Bomb actually got under way thirteen months ago when Don Marek was selected as editor and Howard Rosenblum as business manager on April 13, 1941.

In the meantime 145 other students have contributed many hours each to this annual pictorial history of Iowa State College. Under the supervision of Gene Mock, photographic editor, more than 2,000 pictures have been shot. Out of these 575 prints were engraved on 10,350 square inches of copper halftone plates.

As early as a year ago a half carload of enameled paper for the 1942 Bomb was delivered at the Collegiate Press. Upon 1,188,000 square feet of this paper the Collegiate Press, under the direction of Superintendent W. E. Holmes, recorded the student life and college activities of the 1941-42 year at Iowa State.

The all-seeing eye of Karl Clayton's camera was responsible for the eight pages of four-color process plates. Karl is the super yearbook consultant from Jahn and Ollier Engravers, for whose constant cooperation the 1942 Bomb staff wishes to express its sincere gratitude.

Publication Board Sends Bombs To Armed Forces

Supervising the activities of this year's staff was the Bomb board. The special duty of the year was checking progress on a book that would be both timely and superior. Working in cooperation with the College Library, the board sent Bombs to soldiers in the armed forces.

President Marilyn Miller presided over the meetings of the board, held in the Memorial Union or in the Collegiate Press Building. Pat Garberson acted as secretary. Other members were Prof. K. R. Marvin, P. C. Jennings, Lyle Abbott, Richard Wilson, Don Marek and Howard Rosenblum. Marilyn Williams and Fred Phillips were elected by all-college ballot to serve as new members.

The principal duty of the Bomb Publication Board is the selection of the new staff members. Paul Visser and Winston Henderson are editor and business manager, respectively, of the 1943 Bomb. Dean Watkins will be managing editor.

The board sponsored the traditional Bomb banquet late in the spring, held annually to honor members of the staff.

Identity of the winning candidates was not revealed until the night of the Bomb Ball, April 11, when maestro of the evening Eddy Howard presented the Misses Virginia Fehrm, Beverly Matson, Virginia Jordan and Josephine Ricklefs as Bomb Beauties of 1942 at ceremonies preceding intermission. Editor and Managing Editor, Don Marek and Eleanore Robertson, accounted for much of the midnight oil burned in the Bomb office. Beverly Matson, responsible for the index in the back, and Dean Watkins, engraving editor, managed to put in several hours at the office, while Al Hayes, sports editor; Eileen Dudgeon, honoraries and divisions pages; Don Eby, fraternity editor, and Marilyn Williams, senior editor, consumed several reams of paper. Bill Yaw, proof-reader, wore out several pencils trying to rectify the numerous mistakes hacked out by the copy-writers.

Under the able leadership of Business Manager Howard Rosenblum, 50 salesmen set out to do the best job ever in selling the 50th anniversary Bomb, and ended up with a real record despite the decreased enrollment. Smilin' Lew Mellem did a bang up job as treasurer, with the accounting records next to perfect at the Christmas audit for the first time in fifty years. In order to train personnel for the staff of the coming year, a new training course with quizzes and assignments was instituted.

The 69th anniversary of the Iowa State Daily Student found the publication enlarged and improved. Under the editorial direction of John L. Reaches High Goals

An eight-page paper made stiff demands upon the Daily Student business staff, but in spite of, or perhaps because of, the increased pressure, a new high was set in advertising and subscription records.

Clarence Rice, in the chief position of business manager, with Stuart Kuyper as local advertising manager and Virginia Harding as women's advertising manager, pushed promotions and watched the amount of advertising and the variety grow bigger and better during the year.

National advertising mounted under the direction of Walter Ingalls, manager of this department. The efforts of Betty Leighty as classified advertising manager resulted in a double lineage in that department, as well as increased student interest in using want ads. Kenneth Williams, subscription manager, saw his efforts rewarded by an increase of 40 percent in the non-student subscription income.

Thus, despite the changing problems of the times, the Iowa State Daily Student business staff for 1941-1942 turns in its records with improvements shown in all departments. Visualizing an even bigger and better paper in the future, the business staff makes new plans and schemes toward bigger goals.

Bright spot of the year was the record 64-page February issue. It set a national record in size for magazines of its kind. Merle Hunt and George Opperman sparked the business side while Marvin Julius and Tony Mathis were editorial bulwarks. Reinard Wulkow served as circulation manager.

Hanson, Hawkins, Peoples and Chaloud fondle a new Iowa Engineer.

In 1941-42 the Iowa Engineer had one of its most successful years in history. An efficient staff headed by Edward Sheridan behind the editor's desk and Richard Lindeberg in the business manager's post pushed production to the limit. Managing editor Wayne Norman and four associate editors formed the backbone of the writing staff, with Gerald Harris as advertising manager.

Most spectacular event of the year was the magazine's outstanding record in competition with 28 member publications. In eight possible classifications, the Iowa Engineer topped all other competitors by placing first in three, second in two and third in one.

Improve Cover Design

Cover and content pages that use cuts of Iowa State home economics women are among the improvements gained for The Homemaker in 1941-42. With Jean Ary as editor-in-chief and Catherine Raymond as business manager the staff was able to make several important changes in the magazine, including the improved cover and contents layouts.

A new feature, "Departmental Highlights," a review of home economics departmental activity, was written by Lila Williamson. "Bookmarks" were book reviews prepared by Julie Wendel. "Across Alumnae Desks," compiled by Marjorie Thomas presented reprints of Iowa State home economics journalists. Cuts for illustrations were supervised by Dordana Fairman.

Advertising lineage increased over that of the previous year. Working with Miss Raymond were Helen Knapp, Dorothy Gross and Josephine Ricklefs as advertising managers, and Maurine Hawbecker, circulation supervisor.

New staff members are: Pat Garberson, editor-in-chief; Dorothy L. Conquest, managing editor; Betty Ann Brady, business manager; Betty Ann Iverson and Marabeth Paddock, associate editors.

Appearing as a neophyte among campus publications in 1913, the Ames Forester is the oldest continuous publication of its kind in the United States today. It is read by the students, faculty and alumni of Iowa State. The magazine reaches colleges, libraries and forestry services in every continent.

Published early in spring quarter, the publication features technical articles by experts throughout the country on subjects pertaining to forestry. Serving also as the annual publication of the Forestry Club and Forestry Department, it includes within its pages senior pictures, class pictures and articles covering the year's activities. The Ames Forester is nationally recognized as a valuable source of technical forestry information as well as an interesting review of forestry photography and the life of the

Governs Newspaper's Policies

Overseer of an eight-page tabloid daily newspaper is the recently incorporated Daily Student Publication Board. It is an organization of seven members, elected from faculty and the student body to govern the newspaper's policy and make the important decisions. This organization elects editor and business manager, approves other appointees, looks after the financial end, and serves as a judicial body.

This year the group created two new posts on the Daily Student staff, that of production manager in the editorial side, and assistant business manager in the business office. By the board's action, the movement for publishing a summer quarter newspaper in 1942 was started. This summer session newspaper will serve the added enrollment brought about by the speeded-up war effort. Don Jackson is president and Margaret Anne Clark, secretary.

PRESIDENT, Don Jackson

"Pop" Warner Launched ISC Football Teams

ack in 1895, Glen S. "Pop" Warner, now one of the most famous figures in football history, came to Ames to help coach one of Iowa State's first grid teams. "Pop" worked with the team for a few weeks and then went east to his regular coaching job. But the 1895 squad went on to chalk up Iowa State's most memorable victory. They beat Northwestern 36-0 and an inspired Chicago sports writer compared the team with a cyclone. And Iowa State teams have been Cyclones ever since. Baseball was the first sport on the campus in the early years. Football began just 50 years ago next fall with other sports finding a place in the rapidly growing athletic program. Since "Pop" Warner's days here, great athletic leaders and "All-Americans" in many sports have taken their place among the great Cyclones. Each year adds new victories to the Cyclone sports record and each season adds new stars to the roster of great athletes. Today's sports program is the product of 50 years of athletics.

The motto of the present Athletic Department is "Athletics for All." Toward this end are directed programs of physical education classes, intramural sports and, in proper balance, varsity competition. Physical education classes are required of all men during their freshman and sophomore years. The intramural program is open to all students and offers a chance to compete in a wide variety of sports. Everything from archery to wrestling and from ping pong to ice hockey is included in the comprehensive schedule of intramural sports at Iowa State. A member of the Big Six Conference, varsity squads meet some of the outstanding teams in the country in nine sports. Cyclone teams have won championships in nearly every sport, piling up exceptionally fine records in swimming and wrestling. Everyone in the Athletic Department from equipment manager R. T. Wilson to Athletic Director George Veenker is pulling for Cyclone victories. But even more important in the Iowa State sports picture is the building of men through athletics. No "athletic school," Iowa State performers participate in sports as extra-curricular activities. But that doesn't keep Cyclone squads from piling up an impressive list of championships.

Traveling

A pleasant feature of the football season for Iowa State players is the series of trips made by the squad. For several seasons, the opening game has taken the Cyclones to Denver for a night game in the heart of the Rockies. The Marquette contest later in the season takes the team to the Chicago area nearly every season. And trips to other Big Six schools give grid teams a well-rounded travelogue each season.

Unsung Heroes

A football team travels on its stomach, too. Royal Lohry and Claire Ethington devour a T-bone on the diner.

Win Two Hundredth ISC Victory

When South Dakota dropped a 27-0 decision to Iowa State gridders midway in the 1941 season, it marked the two hundredth victory for a Cyclone football team. At the close of the year, Cyclone squads had won 200 games in intercollegiate grid competition since 1892, lost 162 and tied 30. Thus fifty years on the college front found the Cardinal and Gold with a percentage of .552, a good showing made in competition with outstanding squads of the Midlands.

The 1942 season couldn't be called successful from the standpoint of victories, but a young and promising team showed signs of developing into a victorious squad with more experience. A new coach took over the reins as Jim Yeager went to Colorado and Ray Donels moved up from the freshman coaching assignment.

In their first game under the new tutor, the Cyclones edged out Denver 7-6 with Paul Darling and Royal Lohry, a junior backfield stars, sparking the triumph under the lights at Denver. The opener on Clyde Williams Field found the perennially tough Cornhuskers from Nebraska knocking off the Cardinal and Gold by a 14-0 count. The Homecoming battle two weeks later sent the Cyclones against one of the greatest Big Six teams of all-time, the 1941 Missouri eleven, conference champions. A last quarter rally sparked by Howard Tippee's passing brought the final score to 39-13 in favor of the invaders. Kansas downed the Cyclones 13-0; South Dakota was trounced 27-0; and Oklahoma scored a 51-0 triumph in a hectic mid-season campaign. An extra point gave Drake a 14-13 margin, while Donels' men's only Big Six glory came in a 12-12 deadlock with Kansas State at Ames.

Cyclones Lose 14-0

Big Six champions in 1940 and first conference team to play in the Rose Bowl, Nebraska opened the 1941 loop drive on Clyde Williams Field against Coach Ray Donels' Iowa State eleven. The highly favored Nebraskans found the going rougher than had been expected, but had enough power and speed to push over two touchdowns and win 14-0.

For Iowa Staters, the Nebraska tilt turned out to be the unveiling ceremonies for two sophomore stars who may some time be listed among Iowa State grid greats. Handicapped by a muddy field and wet ball, the newcomers piled up most of the Cyclones' yardage.

Iowa State Loses to Champions

Big Six football champions for 1941 and boasting one of the top elevens in the country, Missouri's powerful and deceptive Tigers proved too much for Iowa State's young grid squad in the Cyclone Homecoming battle. Again the Cardinal and Gold's chief scoring punch was in sophomore Tippee's right arm. But only after the invaders had piled up 39 points, was Tippee able to connect for two touchdown tosses as the Cyclones dropped a 39-13 decision.

Bob Stueber and Harry Ice, All American backs, supervised the Tigers' early rush, featured by effective blocking and swift, elusive running. Iowa State made its last marker on a pass from Tippee to Harville.

Iowa State's brilliant sophomores joined with the veterans on the squad to send the Cyclones back into the victory column with a 27-0 triumph over South Dakota. After the first minutes, the Cyclone line showed its supremacy, while the backs passed an aerial circus.

When Iowa State and Drake meet, anything can happen and during the many years of the long-standing rivalry, almost everything has. In this respect, 1941 was a typical year. Iowa State dominated portions of the battle just as the Drake squad did but the Des Moines team came out ahead in the photo finish 14-13. A Drake lineman broke through to block a placekick by Darling and another Drake-Iowa State game was lost.

Darling hammered two touchdowns across the Bulldog goal line and converted the extra point to score all of the Cyclones' points. The Cyclone fullback played an outstanding game on defense too. A tricky double-reverse play, mastered by Coach Vee Green's pigskin toters, spelled the downfall of the Iowa Staters. Numerous yards were picked up by Drake's Joe Saggione and Whizzer White on the reverse play.

The 1941-42 basketball season was one of the most spectacular in several years for the Cyclones. Coach Louie Menze's crew blazed away through the non-conference battles without dropping a single tilt. Included on the list of contenders who fell before the Cardinal and Gold was Bradley Tech, one of the nation's perennial leaders. It marked the second season in a row that Iowa State had stopped the Technicians in their opening game.

The Cyclones entered the Big Six race with the best record of any of the other five teams, but stiffer competition for the others had made their records seem below that of Iowa State. The dispute over the eligibility of Gerald Tucker, Oklahoma's star sophomore center who transferred from Kansas State, finally was settled, and he played the remainder of the second semester. His 25 points and Ralph Miller's 26 in games against the Cyclones were the high scores of the season, and bore out Coach Menze's early predictions that lack of a stable defense would cause the downfall of the Iowa Staters.

Menze's predictions of a strong offensive team was also borne out. Capt. Al Budolfson, Bob Harris and Carol Schneider took care of that end. Budolfson completed a cage career that found him on virtually every Big Six team his last 2 years, and on several All-American fives.

The first close game of the season finally wound up with Iowa State on the long end of a 45-41 count and a much cherished victory over Dr. "Phog" Allen's Kansas five, Jan. 19. The Jayhawks knotted the score five times in the last half, and with only 1 minute remaining in the game the score stood at 42-41. Bob Harris and Harle Damon's floor defense sewed up the game.

Great Lakes—43, Iowa State—42. The greatest collection of basketball players in the nation, the Great Lakes Naval Training Station team, nipped Iowa State, 43-42, in a Red Cross ambulance benefit game, Feb. 3. Boasting five All-Americans, the sailors still couldn't solve the Cyclone offense and trailed 22-18 at the half. Nearly $820 was taken in for the Student Defense Council ambulance fund.

Al Budolfson and Bob Harris collected 10 points each, only one behind Hayes' 11 points. Bill Riedel, flashy Dubuque guard, nearly bottled the Iowa State offensive, but the pace was too hard and a second-half rally tired Dubuque.

Iowa State—34, Missouri—25. Coach Louie Menze's five had a bad case of stage fright Jan. 10 in the Big Six opener against an underrated Missouri team. The Cyclones recovered in time to rack up a 34-25 triumph, but only after a bad scare. Sophomores showed up the veterans in spite of their lack of experience.

Big-Six Teams Win At Home

Basketball in the Big Six seems to depend on the ability to play away from home. Every team can depend on having fair success on the home court regardless of the team's caliber. Iowa State's success during the past few years has followed that criterion, and the 1941-42 season proved no exception. Drake and Bradley Tech were tripped by the Cyclones on the Bulldog and Bradley floors, but after these non-conference games were out of the way, the same old story repeated itself.

Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas all stopped the Menzemen on their own floor, and Iowa State turned the tables in games played in State Gymnasium. It appeared that the odds might be in the Cyclones' favor to finish the season above the .500 mark, since they deviated from the normal procedure and stopped Kansas State at Manhattan. However, the Wildcats evened it up by halting the Cyclones in State Gym in the last game of the season.

Kansas University and Oklahoma University tied for the championship, with the Jayhawks representing the Big Six in the NCAA regional playoff in Kansas City.

Letter winners were Al Budolfson, Bob Harris, Carol Schneider, Leon Uknes, Reuben Mickelson, Harle Damon, Rollin Kuebler and George Harville. Bob Hayes was a minor letter winner.

Capt. Al Budolfson completed a colorful cage career that found him on virtually every Big Six team his last 2 years and he was considered on several All-American fives. His uncanny shooting, weasel-like guarding antics, generalship and driving spirit marked him Iowa State's greatest cager. Schneider and Harris left vital gaps unfilled on the team also, as well as important places on the fans' favorite list.

A 16-2 victory over Parsons opened the season for Iowa State on the large Iowa State course. The Cyclones continued on the victory trail by defeating Carleton College, 20-7, and Coe, 16-2. Kansas, Kansas State, Grinnell and Nebraska fell before the Cyclone linksmen before Minnesota stopped them, 15-13. Missouri and the Sooners put the final clamps on the Iowa Staters.

Wrestling Unaffected By Emergency

The oldest sport of man—wrestling—is still one of the top sports at Iowa State. During the late fall and winter days, the large training room in the East Bleachers usually has a large squad of real "he-men" applying the half-nelson or body scissors. The war makes little difference to wrestling as a sport. All that Coach Hugo Otopalik needs to produce a wrestling team are strong backs and arms, a witty head, speed and a will to win—no shoulder pads, rubber bladders or spikes are required.

Iowa State again attracted its share of Iowa's outstanding high school mat stars from north central Iowa—the heart of high school wrestling. The 1942 season found Ft. Dodge's two twins, Dale and Dean Cummings, Joe Loucks, Sam Linn, Ray Stone and Dick Johnson absent, but new stars, Gene Ewoldsen, Don Richter, Jim Rhodes, George Gast, Roy Reppert and Jim Wilson and 1941's only returning letterman, Gaylord Bales, again walked away with the Big Six championship. The championship was determined from dual meets rather than a conference tourney. Gast was undefeated in dual competition. Letter winners were Gaylord Bales, James Rhodes, Gene Ewoldsen, George Gast, Leslie Landmesser, Roy Reppert, Don Richter and James Wilson.

Hold Collegiate Wrestling Meet

Wrestling got underway with a bang. The first Mid-West Collegiate Invitational Wrestling Meet was held in State Gymnasium with some of the leading collegiate stars in the country competing. Oklahoma A. and M., national collegiate champions; Minnesota, Big Ten champion; Cornell, Dubuque, Nebraska and Iowa State Teachers were represented in addition to the Cyclone stars. The Oklahoma Aggies easily walked off with the championship, but the meet gave Coach Hugo Otopalik's squad valuable experience and a chance to estimate the caliber of the team before dual competition started. George Gast was the outstanding threat from the Cardinal and Gold squad. The meet proved so popular with the fans and coaches that plans were started to hold the tourney again in 1943.

Dubuque matmen tumbled before the Cyclones Jan. 24, 27-6, in the first match of the season, having won only one match. Minnesota edged out a 16-13 victory in the next match, Feb. 7, at Minneapolis. The score was tied at 13 each until the final match. Gene Ewoldsen, Gaylord Bales, Leslie Landmesser and George Gast threw their opponents to lead the Cyclones to a 28-5 victory over Nebraska Feb. 14. Iowa State Teachers made it three victories in a row Feb. 18. On their final road trip, the Iowa Staters took the Big Six championship.

Fifth Straight Conference Win

The Iowa State swimmers got off to a good start toward their successful defense of the Big Six tank title by trouncing Carleton College's crew Jan. 20, 52-32. Sophomore Brian Brown, making his first appearance in collegiate circles, stole the meet by winning three events.

In their opening conference meet Feb. 27 in State Pool, Brown again paced the Iowa Staters to a 50-34 victory over Nebraska. Nebraska's Oldfield and Cyclone Capt. Ward Sear both broke the record in the 150-yard backstroke and the Cyclone medley relay team also broke the record.

Minnesota took the measure of the Cardinal and Gold with a 50-34 triumph. Brown paced the losers.

Nebraska dropped its return match to Iowa State Feb. 20, 47-37, with Brian Brown again leading the way. On the same trip, Coach Jack McGuire's team tied Kansas State, 42-42. Capt. Ward Sear smashed the K-State pool record in the 150-yard backstroke race.

Capt. Sear and Oldfield again broke the 150-yard backstroke record, with Oldfield nipping the Cyclone star for the championship. The Cyclones took five firsts in routing Kansas State, 67-45. Nebraska placed third with 40 points and Oklahoma fourth with 16 points. The medley relay team broke the Big Six record at the national meet but still didn't qualify.

Capt. Ward Sear smashed the K-State pool record in a back stroke race. Fred Musser gets a flying start in the 220-yard free style.

S W I M M I N G

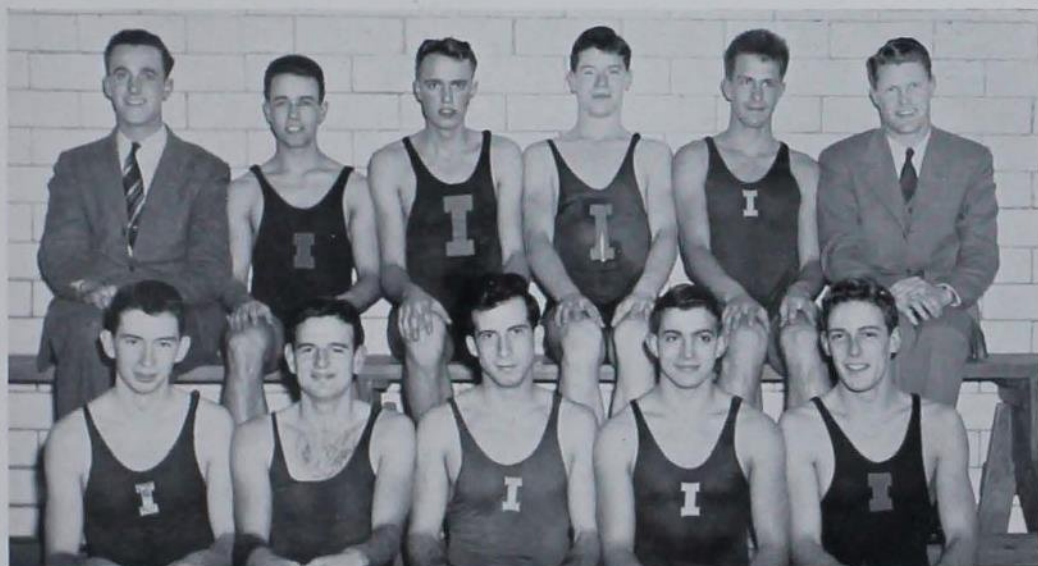

Coach Jack McGuire took over the tutoring job of the Iowa State swimmers and piloted them to their fifth straight Big Six championship. The youthful red-head drilled the Cyclones with the skill of a veteran. Graduation and the armed services had riddled one of the best squads ever turned out at Iowa State, yet the inexperienced aggregation rode rough-shod over non-conference teams and trimmed Nebraska at both Ames and Lincoln before a stubborn Kansas State team held them to a 42-42 tie. Iowa State took the championship held in State Pool March 4, trimming Kansas State, 67-45.

Bright spot of the season was the spectacular performance of Sophomore Brian Brown. Brown was undefeated in diving competition until the national championship meet in New Jersey. He also paddled to some outstanding records in the 220-yard dash and the 440-yard free-style. Capt. Ward Sear, Thornton Wilson and John Slater attended

Win Fourth Place In Big Six

The Cyclone baseball team wound up the season with seven victories and seven losses for fourth place in the Big Six, and three other wins from non-conference teams.

Coach LeRoy "Cap" Timm's men opened the season by defeating Simpson, 3-2, and then lost the second game of the series, 12-3. Iowa State then split a two-game series with Iowa State Teachers, winning the first 7-2, and losing the second, 4-1.

In the first conference game for the Cardinal and Gold Team, Kansas trounced the Cyclones, 8-1, but Iowa State won a slugfest in the second game, 23-6. The next foes of the Cyclones were the Big Six champions, the Oklahoma Sooners. The Cyclones trounced Oklahoma, 6-4, in the first game, but lost the second one, 12-5.

Rolling along at a .500 clip, the Cyclones took two of the four games against the Cornhuskers of Nebraska. Iowa State blanked the Huskers in the first game, 9-0, but Nebraska came back to win the second 11-9. Iowa State copped the third contest, 6-1. Nebraska won the last one, 3-2.

Against Kansas State, the Cyclones fared as they had most of the season. They dropped the first game, 8-6, but came back 11-1.

Missouri was the first and only school to beat the Iowa State nine twice in the 1941 season. The Tigers nipped the Cardinal and Gold team in two close contests, 5-4, and 14-13. Iowa State ended the season by dropping the Jayhawkers of Kansas University in two straight games. The Cyclones won, 10-8, and 7-5. Although the Cyclones finished in fourth place, Coach Timm has a large share of the team back for 1942.

The "old horsehide" really took a beating from the Iowa State baseball team. Coach LeRoy "Cap" Timm's team slapped the ball around at a .301 clip, for the top batting average in the Big Six. Seven members of the team hit over the .300 mark for the season. Capt. Bobby Benedict hammered out 33 hits in 82 official times at bat for a .402 average and the batting title. Following Benedict in batting percentages were Doug Strohbehn, .396; Bernard Mickelson, .389; Bob McCauley, .355; Ellis "Axel" Alexander, .353; and Bob Scharnberg, .321.

Benedict was way out in front in stolen bases, with 19 to his credit. The speedy outfielder with his teammate, Dale DeKoster, gave Iowa State two of the best fielding outfielders in the conference. The double-play combination of Strohbehn or Bob Kline to Freddy Gordon to Alexander was one of the leading infield crews in Mid-west collegiate baseball circles, also. Bob Hayes and Russ Scharnberg played an important part in the infield too, but lacked the punch at the plate of the others.

Leon Wilson, curly-headed righthander, Willard Mylenbusch, left-handed curveball artist, and Bernie Mickelson, speedball merchant, bore the brunt of the hurling duties, but hard luck permitted them to salvage only 10 of 18 games and fourth place in the conference. Bob Scharnberg, an all-around player, gave Timm little worry about the catching position. A little help by "Father Luck" might easily have given the Cyclones second place in the conference with their strength at the plate. Six of the 13 letter-winners were lost by graduation, Bob Benedict, Fred Gordon, Dale DeKoster, Leon Wilson, Clyde Wilson and Doug Strohbehn.

Place Third In Big Six Conference

Numerous seconds and thirds accumulated enough points for the Cyclone harriers in the 1941 outdoor Big Six meet to give them third place in the conference standings. The Iowa Staters failed to capture first place in any of the events. Norman "Whitey" Pedersen, star broadjumper, sailed through the air more than 24 feet four times in the preliminaries, but Sol Schumitzky of Nebraska exceeded him $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches on the final jump with a leap of 24 feet 8 inches. Bob Baxter took second in the high jump, Doug Graves won second in the 880-yard run, John Heggen came in second in the 220-yard low hurdles, and Larry Inman finished second in the 2-mile run. Nebraska nosed out University of Missouri for the Big Six title, 60½-60.

Missouri's squad romped to a 79-51 victory over the Cyclones in the first Big Six meet. However, Iowa State took all three places in the broadjump, won the high jump and the mile run. Drake was swamped by Coach George Brettnall's squad during Veishea, 81-50. "Whitey" Pedersen took individual honors by winning the 100-yard dash, breaking the broadjump record and tying for second in the pole vault. In the final dual meet of the season, Nebraska emerged with a 74-57 victory. Seven new marks were set and one more was tied. The Cyclones opened the season by competing in the Kansas and Iowa Teachers Relays April 19. The squad was split, some going to Cedar Falls and some to Lawrence. Indiana edged out the relay team at Kansas, but several firsts and seconds were won at the Teachers meet. Bill Lechtenberg set a new school record in the broadjump April 24 in helping trim Grinnell, 62-57.

A Cyclone high jumper clears the bar by a wide margin. Iowa State's high hurdler goes over one obstacle only to meet another.

When spring football practice, basketball, or baseball starts, the respective coach can depend on a conditioned squad if most of the members were out for track. In the meantime many candidates will have scored numerous points in track meets for Coach Bretnall. More candidates report for track during the year than in any other sport, with the possible exception of football.

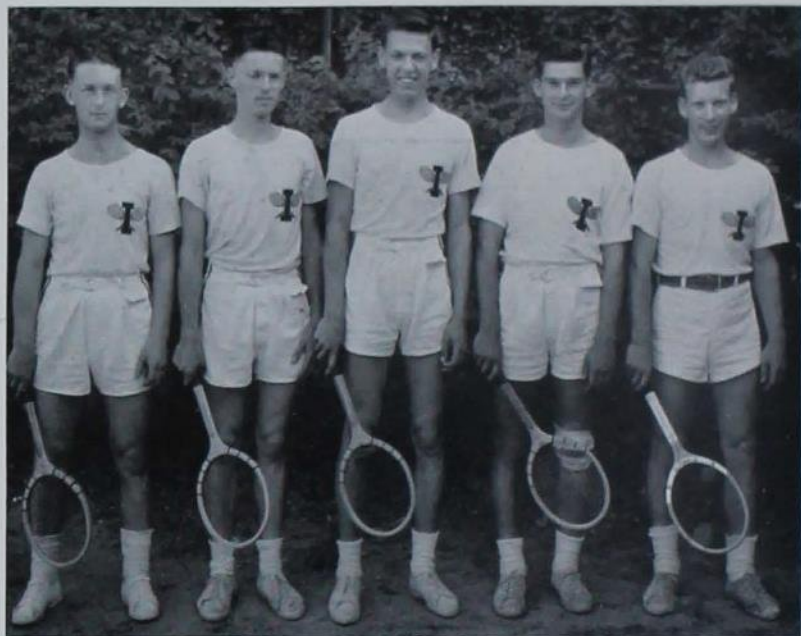

Letter winners were Bob Baxter, Charles Binning, Marlowe Burgy, Ernest Dahl, Doug Graves, Marvin Haugebak, John Heggen, Larry Inman, Bob Landee, Bill Lechtenberg, Roland Meyers, Norman Pedersen, Harry Ruhsam, Leonard Thomas and Robert Winders. Minor winners were Claude Hays and Dave Martin.

Track Conditions Football Players

Conditioning is one of the prime factors in developing a good athletic team. Sports authorities generally agree that track can put an athlete in condition quicker than anything else, and keep him in condition easier. Conditioning at Iowa State has centered around the track squad more and more each year. Included on the 1941-42 track squad were members of nearly every Cyclone sport. Footballers usually concentrated on the shotput, discus and javelin, although some of the other field events and several running events found the rugged gridders wearing the Cardinal and Gold cinder suits. Phil Bogdanovitch and Leonard Thomas heaved the shotput, Bill Lechtenberg competed in the broad jump, Claude Hays threw the javelin and John Heggen ran the 220-yard hurdles.

Up, up and getting that last corner over the bar is the problem of the pole vaulter.

Big Six tennis champions were decided on a dual meet basis in 1941, and Coach Harry Schmidt's netmen took the opportunity to snatch second place. Riding on high with an unbeaten record behind them until the final match, the Cardinal and Gold were tumbled by Oklahoma's unbeaten squad, which gave the Sooners the crown. Grinnell, Coe, Minnesota, Kansas, Kansas State, Carleton, Nebraska and Missouri tasted defeat at the hands of the Cyclone net stars. Only the Sooners and Minnesota were victors over Iowa State. Carrying the brunt of the attack throughout the season was Bruce Griffing. Bruce Beresford, Dick Young, Ward Repp and Lawrence Gilley.

In the first match of the season, Grinnell fell by a 4-3 setback. Iowa State won all matches but one against Grinnell for a 6-1 victory, but the Mighty Gophers from Minnesota slapped a 7-2 defeat on the Cyclones for their first loss of the season. An easy 6-0 win over Kansas started them on their loop race. Only one set was dropped to Kansas State in a decisive 6-0 walloping.

Running competition to the football team for spectator interest, Iowa State's cross country tracksters felt the effect of the war before the war started. All but one dual meet was cancelled last fall, with the conference meet completing the competition. Kansas University's cross country artists lost to the Cyclones at Lawrence, 20-16. The Cardinal and Gold thin clads landed in third place at the Big Six meet. Larry Inman, junior, easily won the race against Kansas and was clocked at 9:45.4. Letterwinners were Larry Inman, Marlowe Burgy, Ralph Tompkin and Gaylord Wilson.

Play 15-Game 1942 Schedule

More than 500 years ago the Arab sheep herders developed the game of polo as played at Iowa State today. The Arabs used their crooks instead of the modern bamboo cane mallets used now. Swanky easterners consider polo a special privilege to "ritzy" classes in large eastern cities. But polo has been a regular sport to Iowa students for several years, as evidenced by the 15-game schedule played by the Cyclones during the spring and fall of '41.

Coach Lieut. Paul Strickland's squad breezed through three victories last fall before dropping the last match to Oklahoma. Illinois was defeated, 21-10, Missouri fell, 8-3, Michigan State lost, 4-3, and the Sooners won, 9-2. The Cyclones lost the first four spring tilts, won the next five and lost the last two. Letterwinners were John Carey, Maurice Boney, Bill Munson and Clyde Miller. Spring additions include Jim Kiser, Laverne Maxwell and Bob Jacobs.

Members Receive Lifetime Passes

"It means something to be a member of the Iowa State Varsity I Club." This motto has helped give the letter winners in Iowa State athletics a feeling of unity towards a common interest. More than 50 members took part in the club's activities. Each member receives a life-time pass to Iowa State athletic events.

This year the "Varsity I News" was published for the first time by the various members. The news sheet contained a summary of the activities of all the Cyclone sports and was sent to graduated members of the club. The purpose of the paper is to bring the alumni in closer contact with the Iowa State College sports. The first paper contained five pages in stencil form and was sponsored by the Varsity "I" Alumni Association, but future issues are to be financed by donations among the alumni of the group. George Veenker, athletic director, praised the issue as a milestone in creating better alumni contacts with the Iowa State athletic program. One member from each of the sports furnished an article for the "News." Plans were made to make the publication a yearly or quarterly paper. In former years the club had sponsored the "Pep Barbecue" and dance at Homecoming but last fall it cooperated in promoting the gigantic Armory dance. The annual Varsity I Carnival was unexpectedly called off this spring because no orchestra could be secured. However, the Varsity I queen, Verlea Longley, was presented at the street dance following the all-college election. Miss Longley represented Iowa State at the Drake Relays.

At the annual "Athletic Bust" last spring at Lake Comar, graduating seniors were presented with Varsity I blankets. Ralph McElinney, of the 1907 class and a star football player at Iowa State, was an honored guest. A new feature this year, Varsity "I" Firesides were held at different organized houses on the campus. On January 30, the members were guests of the Phi Delts and William Bosworth was chairman of the party.

New Playfield

With the purchase of 17 acres of land east of the women's gymnasium for a play field, the women's athletic program at Iowa State has in view completion of a magnificent program. Main feature of the play field will be the ten hard-surfaced tennis courts, including facilities for practice serving. Also, the area affords four holes of golf—two short holes, one at 150 yards, and one at 200 yards—for golf instruction, and a driving range. Hockey fields, soft ball diamonds, volley ball courts and deck tennis fields.

Co-Recreational Gym Facilities

Newest innovation of Women's I Fraternity during the past year was the sponsorship of co-recreational facilities in the Women's Gymnasium from 3 to 5 Saturday afternoon. Men and women of Iowa State together enjoy the facilities of the new gymnasium, under the leadership of members of the fraternity and faculty.

Last spring the women entered a booth in the annual Varsity I carnival and sponsored Veishea open house. In the fall they assisted in open house for faculty and townspeople.

Train Summer Camp Counselors

Practice at shooting baskets and it looks like fun.

Camp Counselors Club, sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association, has an eye to summer vacation when they receive instruction along lines fitting them to be recreational leaders at summer camps. Activities of the club include Saturday afternoon outings, outdoor cookery and first aid.

Archery Club features participation in the Telegraphic Tournament. In this, clubs of several Iowa colleges shoot on their own ranges and telegraph their scores.

Rackets Club is a composite of tennis and badminton enthusiasts. Depending on the time of year and weather, the women participate in either of the sports.

Bowling Club is active during fall and winter quarters. Alleys at the Memorial Union were reserved for the feminine bowlers two nights each week during the period.

Dance Club members participate in many public performances throughout the year. During winter quarter rehearsals were directed toward recitals for Farm and Home Week. In the spring the dancers concentrated upon the numbers which they presented as their part of Stars Over Veishea.

Naiads, the swimming club, is a new organization and one with many participants. Members engage in group and individual competition in the new pool of the Women's Gymnasium.

Leaders and Officials Club is the fall and winter version of Camp Counselors Club. In this group women learn to assist in officiating in sports, especially volleyball and basketball intramurals.

The area now used for tennis courts will be sodded upon the completion of the new play field, and the sheltered area will be used for a long range archery range.

Women's Athletic Association is open to all women who are interested in participating in individual and group sports. This group sponsors the various clubs to which members belong. The clubs include Camp Counselors Club, Archery Club, Rackets Club, Bowling Club, Dance Club, Naiad Club and Leaders and Officials Club. By membership in WAA any woman may participate in a club or intramurals. It also presents the intramural awards.

WAA Council, the major officers of the club and a representative from each house acted as hostesses for open house in the fall and assisted the Department of Physical Education.

Representatives Contact Women

Intramural Board, consisting of a representative from each organized house on the campus, serves as the motivating force for all women to participate in athletics. Through the house representatives, women sign up for the activity in which they are interested, and compete with women from other houses in that sport. The board serves as the coordinating function for athletic news to all houses, and gives every woman an opportunity to participate, skilled or not.

Activities engaged in include swimming, volleyball, table tennis, basketball, badminton, archery, tennis and bowling.

Officers: Barbara Ruby, Chairman; Catherine Koffman, secretary, and Virginia Lindblad, faculty advisor.

Represents Each Competing Group

Determining the policies of the intramural program is the Intramural Board—the supreme court and congress of the intramural system. Differing from the intramural staff in personnel and duties, the board consists of a representative from each competitive group—fraternities, fraternity freshmen, ward and dormitory—and three senior intramural managers and six junior managers. No two individual managers were selected for the spring quarter, however.

Members of the board included: Art Carter, dormitory; LeRoy Keizer, ward; Russell Calame, fraternity; Romaine Woodward (fall and winter) and Bruce Firkins (spring), fraternity freshmen; Calame, Eldon DeWall, Robert Geoffroy, senior managers, and Emmett Barnes, Merle Schreurs, Carleton Vangness and David Ryder, junior managers.

United States' entry in the war put many a college athletic program in a turmoil. Emphasis on physical fitness forced most colleges to broaden their athletic scope to give sports for all. The change came about so quickly that adequate equipment and workable systems couldn't be installed.

But business went on as usual at Iowa State. Physical fitness had been stressed continually, through one of the largest intramural systems in the nation. About 80 percent of the students already were participating in some sport. Only minor changes were required to meet the emergency.

All Participate

Through its vast intramural setup that permitted every student to compete in some sport, a goal had been achieved by Iowa State that was being frantically sought by schools throughout the country. "Intramurals are operated on an entirely voluntary basis, which is as it should be . . .," according to George F. Veenker, director of athletics, and Harry Schmidt, director of intramurals.

Army doctors marveled at the achievement in physical fitness among Iowa State students brought about through the intramural program. Ten out of 20 students applying for civilian pilot training courses passed the physical examination, while in other schools only three out of 20 passed.

Touch Football

Success Based On Organization

A noted football coach once remarked that the success of an athletic team depends on organization. Iowa State's intramural system can place a large share of its success on organization. Backbone of the organization is the Intramural Council, which is composed of the managers from each division in a competition group. Managers from each ward, dorm, fraternity and fraternity freshman team form a council for that group which assists Harry Schmidt, director of intramurals, in making schedules, arranging play-offs and settling disputes.

The group helped promote 26 sports throughout the year. Largest participation occurred in football, basketball and softball. A change was instituted in touch football, making it seven-man rather than nine-man football.

Some of the sports included were touch football, horeshoe, basketball, track, swimming, wrestling, volleyball, table tennis, bowling, golf, tennis and softball. In all of the major sports, an all-campus champion was determined from the winner of each competition group.

W ith the near completion of Men's New Hall, Iowa State College attains a more complete residence system with housing facilities for many more students on the campus. Looking backward, compare present conditions with those when Old Main, the first residence Hall, built in 1869, accommodated 160 students, with dining rooms, kitchen, store room for custodian and quarters for help in the basement; recitation rooms, women's dormitories, a few rooms for teachers, chapel and library located on the first and second floors, and men's dormitories accessible by separate stairways on the third and fourth floors. Such were the housing conditions which necessitated increased facilities for both men and women. Investigations led to the realization of college authorities on the need of expanding the housing facilities, and in July, 1895, Margaret Hall was erected. Several old buildings, which stood near the present women's dormitories, were rebuilt to house men.

First hall to be built after Margaret Hall became over-crowded was Mary Lyon in 1914. Then Alice Freeman followed in 1916, Clara Barton in 1918, Birch Hall in 1925, and Hughes Hall and International House in 1927. The more recently built dormitories include Mary B. Welch in 1928, Roberts Hall in 1935, Elm Hall in 1938, Oak Hall in 1939, and the first section of Men's New Hall in 1939.

Off campus dwellings, that include fraternities and sororities, evolved from boarding clubs, where a group of colleagues banded together to overcome the lack of eating facilities in the fourth ward. In 1904, Sigma Nu fraternity was organized and Pi Beta Phi came into being two years later. Phi Gamma Delta followed in 1907, and Kappa Delta sorority began here in 1908. The founding of fraternal organizations was a milestone in the development of Iowa State College because the rules had previously stated that no student could live off the campus. Today 29 fraternities and eight sororities are located in West Ames near the college. Men and women not living in organized houses may affiliate with the Ward system and Town Girls organizations, respectively, where social and filial opportunities are provided.

"We come to college not alone to prepare to make a living, but to learn to live a life." The residence groups of Iowa State recognized the spirit of the inscription by M. J. Riggs, Class of '98. Members of many groups gather in the Union Grill to do their quarter-backing over a coke.

Issue Rushing Booklets To Each Woman Entering Iowa State College

Women's Panhellenic Council under the leadership of President Margaret Mauss, inaugurated its year with a pre-season flurry of activity. Pat Craven edited a summer booklet, "Sororities," which was sent to each woman enrolling in college for the first time to acquaint her with the fraternity system.

The council entered into the spirit of Christmas by serenading shut-ins of Ames and then cooperating with the Interfraternity Council by entertaining children at parties at the various houses.

The Women's Panhellenic Formal was the first dance this year to eliminate all decorations and favors to provide money for buying a defense bond. Women were given defense stamp corsages instead of the customary flowers. Dean Maria Leonard of the University of Illinois was the guest speaker at the Panhellenic Dinner.

1941 Veishea Float Contest Winners

Last Veishea, the Alpha Deltas took the spotlight with their prize-winning float. The little gentleman from the cover of "Esquire" made a hit turning his big round eyes toward the celebrationers of Iowa State's 21st Veishea. Shortly after Veishea, the traditional Parent's Day Dinner brought a houseful of 100 guests from the country over. Founder's Day on May 17 found the Alpha Deltas dining in Des Moines in honor of their 90th year as a women's fraternity. Miss Ava Johnson, Alpha Delt alum and prominent lecturer on the Balkan countries, was the dinner speaker. The next event on the social calendar took place against a background of black silhouettes in a star-studded sky—the spring formal, on May 24, when the Alpha Deltas danced to Ray Gray and his orchestra. Fall quarter was no less busy, with entertainment furnished for the actives by the pledges with a fireside on Dec. 5, followed by the formal winter dance on January 10. The pledges entertained other sorority pledges on Feb. 22 at the chapter house. Directed by petite Lois Holicky, the Alpha Delta Pis sailed through another top year.

Bettejane Kern was chosen as one of the twelve competing candidates for Bomb Beauty in the all-college election last fall. Junior Panhellenic representative Dorothea Travis served as publicity chairman for the Women's Panhellenic dance on January 31. Alpha Delta Pi's activity girls include Josephine Elwood, outstanding Iowa State debater. "Who's Who in Debate" published one of her debates as one of the best submitted from leading colleges of the United States.

The local chapter will have the opportunity to show Iowa State and Alpha Delta at its best when they will entertain the representatives from five Alpha Delt chapters this spring. These chapters are in Theta Province of Alpha Delta Pi, and will convene in Ames for a three-day session. Honored guests and leaders for the convention will include Mrs. Sydney R. Stannard, Grand National President of Alpha Delta Pi, and Mrs. Opal Hepler, Theta Province president.

Ninety-one years ago, Alpha Delta Pi first saw the light of day under the name of the Adelphean Society. The first secret society for women, the seven founders started in 1851 the organization that was to be the first of 58 chapters throughout the country. Since that time the name has been changed twice. It was first called Alpha Delta Phi, but in order to avoid confusion with the men's organization of the same name, it was changed in 1915 to Alpha Delta Pi.

Alpha Delta Pi is proud of many famous alumni, including Mrs. Olive Kercher, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Beulah Bangs, of Paramount Pictures.

Win First Trophy At Varieties

Newest members of sorority circle and neighbors of the Sigma Nus, the Alpha Gams began their second year in their new home with much pep and enthusiasm. The biggest thrill of the whole year came on January 23 when the girls won the first trophy to put on the mantel over their fireplace. The Alpha Gams were awarded second place in Campus Varieties for their skit, which was both clever and original. The skit featured a take-off on classroom life with the scene laid in the Memorial Union Grill.

Sovern, president of Iowa alumnae, was the principal speaker at the banquet. In May the mothers of the Alpha Gams were honored at a dinner at the chapter house. The fall social whirl was highlighted by the formal held in the "Off the Record Night Club." Blue and silver predominated in the decorations of this dance, which was at the Sheldon-Munn. Winter quarter came and the girls indulged in a bit of frolicking with a sleigh ride. A number of chocolate hours and firesides rounded out the winter week-ends. A Valentine fireside was given by the pledges in honor of the actives. Dances were exchanged by numbered dances previously arranged in heart-shaped programs. Refreshments for the party followed out the Valentine theme. Climaxing their social activities was a taffy pull, the taffy being sent to the men in the service.

Busy as they were, the Alpha Gams did not forget activities. Mary Jane Schultz is a member of Delta Phi Delta. Kay McClarey and Florence Kas belong to Sigma Alpha Iota. Wilma Kellogg was president of Associated Women Students and Arlene Chinn guided the affairs of the Twisters. Mary Jane Groh was active in Iowa State Debaters, and the Alpha Gamma Delta Trio was in demand for several campus affairs.

Mary Louise Edmondson is proof that women can be beautiful and have brains, too. Having captured two beauty titles, she was elected to Chi Psi, honorary psychology fraternity.

Their second year is over and the Alpha Gams have really taken their place among the sororities of Iowa State.

Shirley Lindland as president was assisted by Betty Anne McMillan, vice-president; Donna Thompson, secretary; and Shirley Girton took care of the books.

Win Fall Scholarship Honors

Chi Omega dropped a bombshell in Sorority Circle with a spectacular jump from thirty-eighth to first place on the college scholarship roll for fall quarter, topping all other campus organizations. All-out effort and cooperation on the part of every member made this coup d'etat possible, even while they were blitzkrieging their way to the top in activities, too. The Chi Os crashed another record when their Homecoming decorations won first place for the third consecutive time, making a total of ten wins in the last twelve years for the Cardinal and Straw. Pretty, peppy Marian Allen captured Pep Queen honors, ruling over the Homecoming festivities for a gala weekend. Virginia Fehrm rounds out the beauty list by being chosen one of the twelve candidates for Bomb Beauty in the all-college election and was selected Bomb Beauty.

Dark, attractive Helen Frei directed the activities of the Chi Omegas this year, assisted by Miriam Stoddard, vice-president; Roberta Olson, secretary; and Jane Ann Tuggle, treasurer. Chi Omega's numerous activity women include Sue Marie Schreiber, a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu, and secretary of A.W.S. Marian Viall and Jean Babcock are vice-president and secretary, respectively, of Health Council. Phyllis Collins doubles as campus representative of Mademoiselle, campus women's fashion magazine, and as a Green Gander cartoonist. Ruby Ann Lehman is the efficient secretary of the Student Defense Council, while Helen Frei serves the Iowa State Players in that capacity. Marian Willis, treasurer of the Green Gander, and Roberta Olson, general chairman for the Women's Panhellenic Dance, add their activities to the list. Women's "I" Fraternity claims athletically-minded Jane Ann Tuggle, while the YWCA cabinet members include Verlea Longley, Barbara Scarlata and Jane Ann Tuggle on the Worship and Music committees. The social calendar was filled with top-notch events, including the Twilight Tea given by the pledges for the pledges of other sororities. The annual Founder's Day celebration was held in Des Moines with the Drake University chapter. A dinner at the Garden Room in Younkers marked the event. The spring formal dance was based on a "Southern Ball" theme with Southern belles dancing at the Country Club, April 5. This fall, on November 7, the Chi Omegas entertained at a fall formal dance, this time featuring a "Rhapsody in Blue" theme. Lloyd Wells and his orchestra provided the music for the dancers. Bessie Hanson was general chairman for this crowning event of the Chi O social season.

Tri-Delts Feature Social Season

Aboard the S. S. Delta Delta Delta, the Tri-Delts danced in the atmosphere of an ocean voyage, with the dance floor surrounded with life-preservers. Palms, a starry sky and a crescent moon also served to set the scene for a Caribbean cruise which was the theme of their spring formal last May. Bob Allen and his orchestra set the stage for their winter formal on December 13 in MacKay Auditorium.

After reviewing the social activities, a survey of the activity women of the campus finds the Tri-Deltas taking many honors in campus organizations. Mortar Board members include Wanda Moorman and Barbara Ramsey Owens. Other Tri-Delts belonging to honoraries are Jeanne Pidgeon of Sigma Alpha Iota, Jeane Stange of Delta Phi Delta, Dorothea Dunagan of Chi Delta Phi, Marjorie Boyts of Phi Upsilon Omicron, and Wanda Moorman and Virginia Dunker of Omicron Nu.

Ruth Ann Shaw has guided the Tri-Deltas through a successful year, serving in the position of president. Those assisting her are Jeanne Reed, first vice-president; Shirley Lambert, second vice-president; Marilyn Miller, recording secretary; Louise Knox, corresponding secretary, and Helen Plocker, marshal.

Jeanne Pidgeon, who was selected as the most talented undergraduate student of Iowa State College, made her debut as a singer on the Fred Allen program Christmas Eve. Other activity women are Marilyn Miller, president of the Bomb Board. She, with Marjorie Boyts and Ann Mason, is on the Home Economics Club Council. Leading the enthusiastic crowds in cheers for Iowa State is Sally Richardson, cheer leaderette. Members of Women's "I" Fraternity claim Alice Fletcher as president. Betty Cort and Marjorie Boyts are also members. Marjorie is also president-elect of the Iowa State College Home Economics Club.

Alice Fletcher serves as president of Rackets Club, while Ruth Marshall is president of the Bowling Club and vice-president of WAA. Joyce Obye is president of Dance Club, Barbara Giese and Dorothea Dunagan have both had leads in Iowa State Players' productions. Jeanne Pidgeon is in the sextette and is also soloist for the Men's Glee Club. Dorothea Dunagan was mistress of ceremonies for the annual spring style show which was sponsored by the Daily Student. Scholastic Virginia Dunker was recently elected to the all-college honorary, Phi Kappa Phi.

The Delta Zetas began this year's social activities by holding a fireside and bobbing for apples in real Hallowe'en style. According to tradition, the actives moved out of the house for a Saturday night and turned it over to the pledges. Imagine their surprise when Sunday found them eating dinner without any forks. Valentines came, and they danced to sweet music at their annual tea dance. Springtime furnished the festive setting for their traditional Rose Formal, climaxing the year's parade of social events.

Marjorie Kenfield reigned over 1941 Veishea as Queen of Queens, and the Harvest Ball found another Delta Zeta on the throne when the Agriculturists selected Josephine Ricklefs. Student publications seem to be a long suit among the Delta Zetas. Marjorie Beneke occupied the society editor's desk;

Betty Leighty acted as classified advertising manager, and Virginia Harding served as women's advertising manager and general chairman of the style show, all for the Daily Student. Catherine Raymond was the power behind the business staff of the Iowa Homemaker, and Betty Fair acted as an assistant to the treasurer of the Bomb. Delta Zeta was honored with two representatives, Josephine Ricklefs and Elizabeth Shelledy, on the student governing body, Cardinal Guild. Catherine Raymond and Margaret Anne Clark were selected for membership in Mortar Board, women's all-college honorary.

Delta Zeta supported the defense program whole-heartedly by writing letters, knitting, going to first aid classes and buying defense stamps. Barbara Taylor worked as a member of the Iowa State College Student Defense Council.

Delta Zeta Wins Sor-Dor Sing

The Women's "I" Fraternity claims three Delta Zetas, Helen Harris, Dorothy Riggs and Doris Strater. Margaret Anne Clark, Dorothy Cunningham, Catherine Raymond, Josephine Ricklefs and Elizabeth Shelledy belong to Phi Upsilon Omicron. Barbara Davis, Elizabeth Shelledy, Dorothy Cunningham and Virginia Kolls are members of Omicron Nu. Margaret Anne Clark, Dorothy Gross and Virginia Harding were selected by Theta Sigma Phi. Elizabeth Briden and Barbara Davis belong to Chi Delta Phi. Proof that the Delta Zetas could sing came when they won the trophy at the annual Sor-Dor Sing, sponsored each year by Sigma Alpha Iota.

Three Delta Zetas, Marjorie Beneke, Dorothy Cunningham and Barbara Taylor, filled positions on the YWCA cabinet. Margaret Mundt's spare time was spent being secretary for the Lutheran Students' Association.

In the house, leading actives for this year were Marian Van Meter, president; Dorothy Vaughan, vice-president; Carol Bauer, secretary, and Betty Haltenhoff, treasurer.

Gamma Phi Chosen Engineers' Lady

Jean Oler was the queen for a night when she was presented as Engineers' Lady this winter at the Engineers' Ball.

Combining an all-college taffy pull with a supper dance and fireside, the Gamma Phis and their dates did their bit for the boys in the army and incidentally had a wonderful time getting all "stuck up."

Julie Wendel thrilled college audiences with her interpretation of "Hester" in the Players' presentation of "The Silver Cord" during winter quarter.

During Veishea last spring, Dorothy Vaughan was tapped for Mortar Board at the annual Veishea tapping ceremonies held near the Campanile.

Starting out with an open house following the Homecoming game, the Kappa Deltas were off on a busy year filled with social activities. October 23 found them celebrating Founder's Day at a formal dinner in the South Ballroom of the Memorial Union with Kappa Delta alumna, Helen Watts Schreiber the principal speaker.

1941 Veishea Float Wins Again

Loaded with gifts, Santa found his way to the annual Christmas party on the Saturday night before Christmas vacation. February 21 found the K.D.'s enjoying the rhythm of Bob Allen's orchestra at their tea dance. The house was gaily decorated with red and white carnations. Following the dance, a buffet supper was served. Many K.D.'s from Iowa State journeyed to Coe College at Cedar Rapids for State Day in April. The spring formal was held in Catherine MacKay Auditorium and climaxed the year's social events.

Emily Rose Baker, as president, has seen the Kappa Deltas through a successful year with the help of Lilla Rossiter, vice-president; Barbara Wilkening, recording secretary; Peggy Heusinkveld, corresponding secretary; Kathryn Scott, treasurer; Eleanore Robertson, social chairman; Frances Mallory, rushing chairman; and Charlene Hunt, editor.

Feeling the importance of activities, the Kappa Deltas are represented in many organizations. Members of Phi Upsilon are Barbara Wilkening and Frances Mallory. Ruth Haglund is a member of Omicron Nu. Delta Phi Delta has among its members Barbara Wilkening, president; Winifred Herzberg, vice-president, and Frances Mallory, Winifred Herzberg and sister Lilla Rossiter are members of the writing honorary, Chi Delta Phi. Ethel Overholt is an active of Theta Sigma Phi. Ruth Herzig sang along with the other actives of Sigma Alpha Iota. On Home Economics Council are Emily Rose Baker, who is president of Foods and Nutrition Club, Barbara Wilkening and Elizabeth Mills. Florence Mitchell is a member of YWCA cabinet. Members of Women's "I" Fraternity are Emily Rose Baker, Winifred Herzberg, Jane Smith, Charlene Hunt and Dorothy Dunn, who is also president of Leaders Club. Winifred Herzberg is art editor of the Iowa Homemaker, while Eleanore Robertson received an activity "I" for her work on the Bomb. She has been the Managing Editor this past year. Virginia Jordan and Isabelle Morse were elected as candidates for Bomb Beauties. Frances Wilson is treasurer of Science Women's Club and president of the newly formed math club. Corinne Gray is vice-president of Science Women's Club and is also serving on the Science Council. Co-chairmen for the Nutrition for Defense drive on the campus this year were Ruth Haglund and Emily Rose Baker. Miss Baker also served as secretary for the Women's Panhellenic Council.

Under the leadership of President Margaret Mauss, members of Pi Beta Phi have distinguished themselves as high activity and scholarship women on the campus. Miss Mauss, a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and Omicron Nu, has been capably assisted by vice-president Jean Ary, also a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and editor of the Iowa Homemaker. Recording secretary has been Peggy Madden and corresponding secretary is Pat Garberson, who is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and was recently appointed editor of the Iowa Homemaker. The Pi Phi treasurer is Alice Mae Rankin, a member of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Other members of honoraries are Anne Kennedy and Doris Plagge of Delta Phi Delta; Ann Koebel, Doris Plagge and Dordana Fairman of Phi Upsilon Omicron and Ann Koebel, Eleanor White and Doris Plagge of Omicron Nu. Phi Kappa Phi pledged Eleanor White, Ann Koebel and Doris Plagge. Mortar Board claims Eleanor White, president, Doris Plagge and Jean Ary as members.

Eleanor White was president of the "Y" and Dordana Fairman is the new vice-president. Lucille Spetman directed the radio group of the "Y" and Gretchen Young is a member of the new cabinet. President of WAA is Barbara Burbank. Ann Wallace is a candidate for Bomb Beauty and Mary Taff was chosen Junior Prom Queen last winter. Doris Denman is on Home Economics Council. Holder of the WAA scholarship award is Pat Galligan. Margaret Mauss has been president of Pan-Hellenic Council and Ann Koebel presided as chairman of Student Activities Board. Pi Phis working for Veishea include Joan Neveln, co-chairman of "Stars Over Veishea," and Mary Taff, secretary of Veishea. Jane Fay will direct preparations for the Senior Prom as chairman. Jane is remembered for her contralto solo in the "Messiah" in December.

Iowa Gamma Wins Balfour Trophy

Iowa Gamma, together with the University of Colorado Pi Phi's, was awarded the Balfour Cup, traveling trophy given to the outstanding Pi Phi chapter of the country each year. The award was announced in June, 1941.

Sisters working on publications include Trymby Calhoun, a reporter and night editor on the Student; Helen Knapp, advertising manager on the Homemaker; Theodora Clarke, new Homemaker cut editor; Betty Ann Iverson, associate editor of the Homemaker; and Erma Denman, new art editor of Sketch.

Pi Phis don't let books interfere with their social life. Following a Hallowe'en fireside last fall they held a winter formal as their next social event. A dinner in Memorial Union and dancing in Catherine MacKay auditorium in Home Economics Building highlighted the formal party.

Novelist and Wife Visit Chapter

The Sigma Kappas were represented in several campus activities and honoraries during the past year. President Marjorie Thomas served as president of Chi Delta Phi and became a member of Omicron Nu. Maude Wertman, vice-president; Ruth Schroeder, secretary, and Mary Alice Culbertson, treasurer, completed the house officer list. Ruth has made a name for herself as president of the Cyclone Archers and as treasurer of Women's "I" Fraternity. Frances Kallaus is a member of Delta Phi Delta. Janet Crosby, a pledge, was listed on the Omicron Nu fall honor roll for Home Economics freshmen. Finalists in the annual WAA archery tournament were Shirley Diekman and Helen Steele. Philippa Hawgood won first prize in the short story writing contest sponsored by the Green Gander. The chapter housemother, Mrs. Hope Spence, was a guest of Warner Brothers Studio in Washington, D. C., where she attended the world premier of "One Foot in Heaven," a movie based on the book written by her son, Hartzell Spence. Mr. and Mrs. Hartzell Spence were guests at the house on their return from a South American tour.

Formals, exchanges, open houses, firesides and teas were included in the social program for the Sigma Kappas. Sigma Kappa celebrated Founder's Day on November 16 with a formal dinner at the chapter house. Corsages were presented to the active and pledge with the highest scholarship. This year two actives were rewarded, Mary Ann Froude and Dorothy Straight. Janet Crosby represented the pledge class. Mary Alice Culbertson also was honored for her participation in campus activities. Mrs. Plagge of Ames was guest speaker.

The fall quarter calender was climaxed by a Christmas formal held at the chapter house, which was decorated with pine boughs and holly. Friday, February 13, was reserved as a date for a "Superstition Stomp" during the winter quarter. The Faculty Wives held their annual fashion show and tea at the chapter house and Shirley Diekman played the piano for the affair. The pledge and faculty teas were among the social activities for spring quarter. The annual spring formal was a highlight on the schedule and was followed by the girls serenading the fraternities. The school year was brought to a close by a chapter-alum house party.

Interesting guests at the Sigma Kappa house this past year have been Mrs. Helen Corbett, Minneapolis, National Grand Secretary of Sigma Kappa, and Miss Elizabeth Spencer of Buffalo, N. Y., National Traveling Secretary of the sorority. A group of six Minnesota University Sigma Kappas led by Helen "Peter" Peterson, visited the Iowa chapter in the fall. Ten girls from the University of Nebraska who spent a weekend during the football season at Ames, completed the roster of visiting sisters from neighboring chapters.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Program Committee Presents Plan

The activity of the Interfraternity Council during the year centered round its three point program. The objectives of the council for the year were set forth by the members of the program committee which is composed of the officers of the council. The objectives were: First, to raise the scholastic standing of fraternity men on the campus; second, to revise and simplify the rushing system, and third, to revise the constitution of the council so that it would have a judicial body.

The Interfraternity pledge formal.

Besides sponsoring the Interfraternity Pledge Trainers' Council, and the Interfraternity Pledge Presidents' Council throughout the year, other routine matters such as the Interfraternity Banquet, Interfraternity Pledge Dinner, Interfraternity Chapel Service during Religious Emphasis Week, the annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children, Men's Pan-Hellenic dance, and the Interfraternity Pledge formal dance were sponsored.

Quarterly dinner meetings of the members of the Interfraternity Council, faculty advisors of all the chapters and members of the Faculty-Fraternity Committee, with Dr. Friley, were initiated during the year. A unique feature of the Men's Pan-Hellenic dance was the giving away of ten twenty-five dollar defense bonds from money that the committee saved from expense items in staging the dance.

The Men's Panhellenic Formal was held March 6 in Great Hall this year. Much to everyone's surprise, it was a 12 o'clock night because it had to be on Friday. The drawing attraction of the dance was the presentation of ten $25 Defense Bonds to ten lucky fellows. Jack Crawford, the "Clown Prince of Jazz," furnished delightful entertainment and music (especially the drummer with the "Veronica Lake" hair).

Four ISC Deans Are Alumni

Even the cold statistics from the membership roster, 23 actives and 28 pledges, indicate that the men of Acacia are forging ahead to even greater fraternal success despite the difficult "war college" conditions. The principles established by the first chapter of Acacia, at Ann Arbor, Michigan, in 1904, for a fraternity to be free from the social evils prevalent among some fraternities at that time, are being faithfully followed by the Iowa State chapter. However, these fine ideals do not prohibit the Acacians from enjoying a fun-full social season which includes their spring formal, Valentine sweetheart party, mid-winter nut party and many hayrides, picnics and informal gatherings.

George Gross trustfully holds a nail for Chuck West while Bob Denney holds the Homecoming decorations together. Jerry Lewis, Warren Anderson and Wendell Stewart wheel the grand piano into the firing line . . . Dick Maire, accompanist, leads the harmony.

On the occasion of their Founder's Day Dinner on May 12, the Acacia chapter honors not only the pioneers of their order but also the alumni of undergraduate chapters who have carried the benefits of their college and fraternity experiences on to attain a successful career. Graduates of the Iowa State chapter comprise a veritable college deans' hall of fame. Loyal alums of Acacia at Iowa State include Dean T. R. Agg, Dean Emeritus Anson Marston, Dean H. H. Kildee and Dean R. E. Buchanan. The collegiate world is looking to the present members of Acacia to travel the road of fame and prominence as their fraternity stands highest in scholarship among all national social fraternities.

Lest they be accused of bookworm tactics in holding their fine scholastic record, members of this organization have expended much of their energy in campus activities. President Walter Lauridsen proves that the job of prexy need not be full-time by also presiding over the Dairy Club, serving on the Ag Council and ably chairmaning the Harvest Ball. Furthering the "president" tradition among campus organizations are Dean Platt and Dick Maire, who have both been the key man of the Horticulture Club and have held positions on the Ag. Council. Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary, includes Robert Muschamp, Donald Hamann and Erwin Benz on its scroll. Leonard Spragg and Muschamp also are members of Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honorary. Keen heads for business as well as books are in Acacia, as proved by Don Hamann and Erwin Benz, who manage the advertising and business ends of the Iowa Agriculturist.

Contact between the twenty-five Acacia chapters is maintained through the channels of the Ariod and Ariogiom, national publications, while the local boys report their honors and activities in their own publication, Rising Sun. Inspired by the achievements of this school year, Acacia faces its challenging problems with confidence.

Hold Homecoming Banquet

In Adelante the alumni as well as undergraduate members enjoy the fellowship and fun exclusive to college fraternity parties. Each year at Homecoming the traditional alumni banquet is held and this year's was bigger and better than before. Recently the old grads showed their appreciation of and interest in the chapter by organizing an alumni corporation to help insure the permanency of their organization.

It was "all out" for society last spring as the Adelantes staged their spring formal on the spacious lawn in front of the chapter house. Furthering the back to nature theme was the traditional picnic at Sunset Rock, where fun and frolic reigned supreme. The men go inside to stage their annual Beachcombers' Ball, Christmas Party and Sweetheart Dinner.

The Adelantes have proved themselves no mean hands at intramural sports and this year's record should equal that of a year ago as most of the stellar athletes are still in there pitching.

Strictly on the activity side is member Hoyt Chaloud, who serves as associate editor of the Iowa Engineer and has a toe-hold in Tau Beta Pi and Phi Lambda Upsilon. Military minded gavel wielder Wallace Buelow is active in Scabbard and Blade when not directing the Adelantes to further honors. Roll call of the Agriculturist staff will reveal Adelantes Bill Ettinger, Donald Meilike, Don Watson and Riley Gillette hard at work. The famed Iowa State Cossacks claim Erland Maurer as a star performer, while Stanley Davidson and Riley Gillette have less strenuous memberships in the Block and Bridle Club. Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, has this year had its civic activities directed by Philip Lindall, president. The Ames Forester, one of the smaller but better divisional publications, is edited this year by Adelante Maurice Barber.

After four years in the chapter, many members have been reluctant to leave Ames and the faculty alumni of this group include Rex Beresford, C. S. Dorchester, B. J. Firkins, G. W. Godfrey, J. J. Hinrichsen, E. G. McKibben, L. J. Murphy and R. F. Rollman. Among the prominent off-campus alumni are Lloyd Burlingham, secretary of the National Dairy Association, and Leslie Carl, statistician for the State of Iowa.

Since its start in 1907, Adelante fraternity has been demonstrating year after year that an active, smooth-running local can more than hold its own with the numerous nationals on the Iowa State campus.

The alumni of this one and only chapter number well over 300—many of them prominent—all of them actively interested in their fraternity. Adelante is the fourth oldest fraternity on our campus, is respected by all Greek groups and is generally considered one of the strongest local fraternities in the middle west. Devoted to the ideals of scholarship, fellowship and leadership, Adelante bids fair to continue its enviable record.

Celebrates Thirtieth Anniversary

Phi Tau chapter of Alpha Chi Rho this year celebrated its thirtieth anniversary at Iowa State, but the group has existed under many titles during its tenure of fraternal life here. It all goes back to 1911 and the inauguration of the Arrow Club, which was later changed to Ausonia Fraternity and then in 1932 the organization obtained a charter from the national and became one of the 19 undergraduate chapters of Alpha Chi Rho. Throughout this transition many traditions and principles have been established in the local chapter, one of which is the "carving ceremony," where each graduating senior must carve his name on the famous senior table in the chapter room. The national, too, is rich in tradition, its founding dating back to 1895 at the ivy-covered Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. The goal of Alpha Chi Rho is neatly phrased as a fraternity dedicated to brotherly love.

C H I R H O

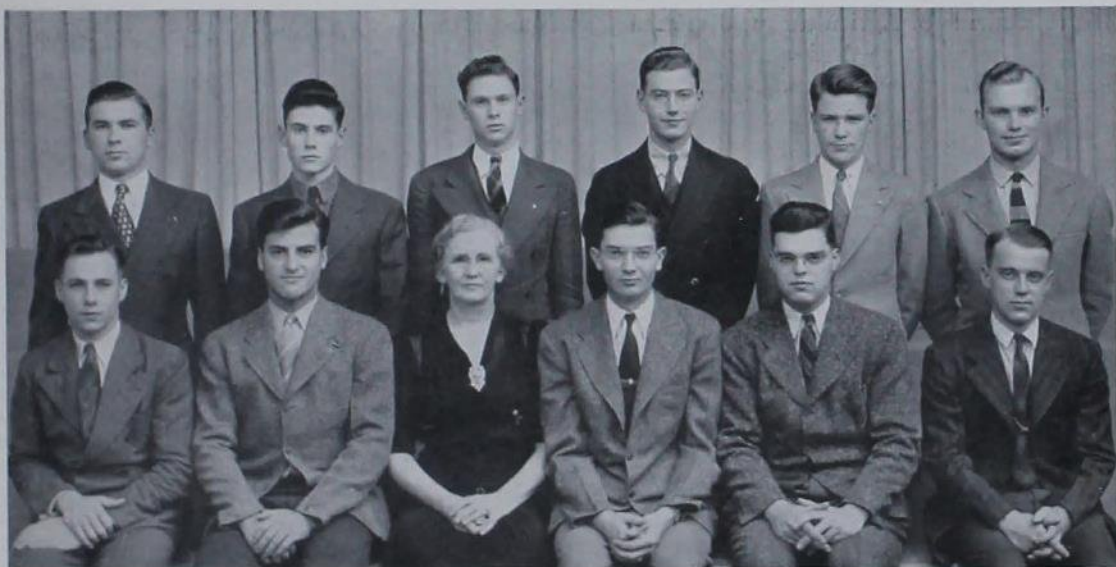

Among the traditions of the Alpha Chi Rho brothers was the house party in "Reversia," where each participant was to dress and act like a member of the opposite sex. However, this year the men decided the party would be too hard on both sides so the pledges came through with a Secret Ambitions Fireside. Starting on the assumption that each would graduate from college, the guests were then asked to stretch their imaginations further and come to the party representing the person they desired to be ten years hence.

Alpha Chi Rho has always been a worthy antagonist in all phases of intramural sports and this year added to their formidable trophy collection, the fraternity handball championship cup.

Alpha Chi Rho BMOC have divided their talents to almost every campus activity so that their roll call includes almost every angle of college life. Russell Elliott supported baseball by serving as assistant manager and lent vocal encouragement to other athletic groups as an active member of the lusty Yel-Jax. Paul Alexander is the chapter's daring young man of the College Cosacks, while George Stetzel also goes in the flashy type of recreation in the marching band. The Iowa State Players claimed versatile Joe Winterbotham as a member and you can be sure his dramatic ability livens up a good many chapter bull sessions. Pounding a typewriter for the Iowa Engineer can be found Robert Morrison in all his spare time that he's not helping the Methodist Church Student Council. Wilton Dangler probably won't be around the house much this spring as he carries the Alpha Chi Rho colors on the varsity baseball squad.

Alumni of this fraternity also crave the exciting life as indicated by the careers of orchestra leaders Fred Waring and Ozzie Nelson and Antarctic explorer Paul Siple.

Paul Lehtola, John Hunter, Jim Harlan, George Kling and Howard Hass hoist up the stripes on Bob Clause's pajamas showing "V" for Victory.

The fact that membership in AGR is limited to students of Agriculture and related sciences does not keep the boys from doing their part all over the campus. Oliver Hansen, besides his vice-president duties at the house, finds time to be a Y.M.C.A. cabinet member, president of the State Debaters, and a member of Delta Sigma Rho honorary. Paul Lehtola served as chairman of the Ag. Banquet and also adds his bit to the Ag. Council. Wendell Kyle does a nice job as associate editor of the Agriculturist and Don Noller holds a post on the Y.M.C.A. cabinet. Common phrase in the Division of Agriculture is, "As the AGRs go, so go the Ags." The results of the Little International of '42 give evidence of this group's standing. They emerged victors with a Grand Championship, two reserve championships, seven first place and three second place honors.

Prominent members of the AGR alumni list are such men as Frank Mullen, vice-president and general manager of the National Broadcasting Company, and Dean M. D. Helser, of the Junior College.

The AGR fraternity, numbering forty-one active members and twenty-five pledges, took more than its share of the campus honors. They led off last spring with a sweeping victory in the Veishea Float competition. Their entry, colored in red, white and blue and featuring a bulls eye with "Veishea scores again," for a motto, rolled away with the first prize.

Rich in national tradition, the local chapter maintains a few traditions of its own. The latest of these to be started is the giant service flag hanging in the parlor with a star for each man in the house who has entered the service of his country.

Farmer's Ball Leads Customs

Among the favorite customs is probably the Farmer's Ball, at which time the AGRs really put themselves out of the way to give a real farm atmosphere to the surroundings. With the presence of plenty of farm machinery and the usual corn stalks and oat bundles and hay scattered widely about the house, the party is unfailingly a riot. The annual Founder's Day Banquet never fails to draw several notables to the festivities. The AGR-ATO brown jug derby is usually a bitterly contested battle. The house winning their annual basketball tilt maintains possession of the jug for the next year. A long and colorful ceremony and dinner goes with the changing ownership of the prize. Listed among the championship group in Intramurals and having the record-holding bowling team, AGR is always a good bet for a tough fight from the opening horn until the closing whistle.

Social activities of the group include a Homecoming Dance, a Winter Formal, Spring Sport Dance and the latest addition to these, the quilting bee at which they made a regulation Red Cross Comforter for the Red Cross.

Formal Held At Sheldon-Munn

For the second year in the face of unalterable circumstances the Alpha Sigs have proved to the world that a fraternity without a chapter house can, with the proper spirit, continue on a truly equal basis with those organizations with real estate values running into the thousands. Their social program has not been deleted as is evidenced by the complete schedule for this year, which included a formal at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel, a stag party at Memorial Union and a Homecoming dinner at which the boys magnanimously included wives and dates of loyal Alpha Sigs. The fraternity's stock-in-trade, firesides and exchanges, were not neglected and the men showed a lot of initiative in scheduling and arranging these functions without the benefit of their own parlor.

Sparked by Gordon Taylor, who serves double duty as both president and steward of Alpha Sigma Phi, the Alpha Sigs have been very active this year in intramural bowling, wrestling and track. Other members of the organization hold widely diversified positions in the extra-curricular activities that really make a college and a fraternity. Senior Dale Burrows was key man in the Mechanical Engineering open house display for Veishea and also lent his golden tenor to the Y.M.C.A. quartet. Cadet Officer Harry Rusham is familiar with almost every phase of the R.O.T.C.; his list of military activities included participation in the Trumpet and Drum Corps, Military Circus and the jumping team. In addition to his military honors and membership in Scabbard and Blade, Harry has played the role of journalist on the staffs of the Bomb and the Green Gander. Everyone who listens to radio station WOI knows the voice of Alpha Sig George Beal, ace student announcer who, in addition to his radio duties is vice-president of the Iowa State Players. James Dockum goes in for the more unusual activities as he holds membership in the Caduceus Club and the

I.S.C. Swordsmen. William Record, vice-president and social chairman of the fraternity, is a member of the Math Club and the student branch of the A.I.E.E.

It is evident that the local chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi is carrying on the same tradition in the face of adversity as did the parent at Yale, which carried on subrosa under the appellation of Delta Beta when that college suspended all societies. Delta Beta is now the honor name of the fraternity given for distinguished service. The Iowa State chapter surely deserves that title.

Faculty Alpha Sigs who are prominent in campus affairs include F. J. Arnold, M. S. Coover, S. M. Dietz, Sid Horn, T. J. Maney, R. H. Porter, J. S. Quist and W. H. Stacey. Alumni-at-large are Gardner Rhea, cartoonist; Harvard Simmons, director of the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, and James L. Morrill, President of the University of Wyoming.

Alpha Sigma Phi was organized at Yale University in 1845 by a group of sophomores who wanted to crystallize their friendship in a permanent manner for future years. The fraternity now includes forty-five chapters.

Alpha Tau Omega national fraternity had its beginning at the Virginia Military Institute in 1865. From this start it has grown constantly until now it has ninety-four chapters, of which the Hawkeye state is proud to claim four. The Governors of Nebraska and Florida, along with "Gunboat" Smith, Interfraternity Alumni Chairman at Des Moines, are proud to claim their ATO affiliation. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is also listed.

Win Intramural Championship

From beneath the roof of the fraternal home have come many of Iowa State's B.M.O.C. of the past year. Prexy Bill Koopman found time to be treasurer of the Iowa Engineer, Bomb Beauty Ball chairman and Knight of St. Patrick. Donald Richter, their new vice-president, besides amusing the engineers with his publicity stunts for the Iowa Engineer, won a letter in wrestling and presided as chairman of the Prep-Soph Ball. Ken Bruner and Frank Callahan hold the military honors of the house with their membership in Scabbard and Blade.

The activities of the house as a whole are both numerous and versatile. They led the group of proud fraternity singers in last fall's competition and walked away with the cup for being king of the serenaders in the Interfraternity Sing. Last year saw the ATO boys with the championship for all intramural competition, proving that when they want something—they get it. The coming of a new year of school showed no let-up in the activities of the intramural group. The pledges started strong with a bid for the frosh fraternity basketball championship, only to be beaten in a tough game. This still left the scrappy little group very much respected on the maple court. The ATO active team put in a strong bid for the Class

B championship only to be beaten out just short of their goal.

The pledge class led the defense efforts in the ATO house by sponsoring a Defense Dance, which not only provided a variety of social festivities but furthered a worthy cause. With the usual ration cards necessary to obtain refreshments, and the selling of defense stamps, the party was a big success and, as they put it, "Helped grind the Axis." The chapter held its fall Sport Dance at the Country Club on the eve of Homecoming. It was a gala affair and formalities were merely things that were talked about. Unlike this was the Winter Formal held in the South Ballroom. The occasion had all the grace and poise of a huge ball. The music, furnished by a campus band, came from in front of a huge replica of the ATO badge.

Alpha Tau Omega is founded upon a historic traditional background. Foremost among the local traditions is the presentation of the "Gunboat" Smith trophy to the outstanding pledge. This, however, only slightly overshadows the Thomas Arkle Award that goes to the outstanding senior. Both awards are the pride and joy of the fortunate receiver. National tradition dates back to the first object of the organization—uniting the young men of the North and South.

"Pass the Loving Cup Around," and this year the Betas have some shiny ones to circulate. Listed among the championship group in fraternity intramural competition, they added a fine lot to their collection of trophies by annexing one each in badminton, golf putting, freshman swimming and a runner-up cup in touch football. In addition to these wins the Beta pledges made a strong bid for the class A basketball championship.

The gala event of a Beta's social year, the Spring Formal, was held last May on the chapter lawn, where brothers and their dates dined and danced on the upper terrace to the music of Wit Thoma under a full moon. On the lower terrace, refreshments, the moon, etc., occupied the attention of the others. The Winter Formal was held in Great Hall with the music of Billy Hughes supplying the rhythm for the dancers. Another highlight of the Beta social calendar was the Pioneer Party with everybody "roasting his own" over the coals of the backyard fireplace.

Beta's president, Seeley Lodwick, is president of Ag. Council, chairman of the Veishea Selection Board, departmental editor of the Agriculturist, and is a member of the executive committee of the Student Defense Council, this last position which he shares with B. Leon Ruggles, head cheerleader and president of the Science Council. George Wales wears the keys of Tau Beta Pi and Phi Kappa Phi, and is associate editor of the Iowa Engineer. Louis Feldman exercises his journalistic abilities as departmental editor of the Veterinary Student and executive ability as president of Cardinal Guild.

The Betas this year came through again, with an honorable mention in Homecoming decorations and a third place in Campus Varieties. The local chapter, Tau Sigma, is giving its wholehearted support to the Defense Bond sales and the war effort.

Spring Formal Held On Terrace

The national fraternity of Beta Theta Pi was organized in 1839 at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and thus joined the ranks of the famous Miami Triad. The local chapter, formerly the Tri-Serp Club, was admitted to the national organization in 1906 as Tau Sigma of Beta's 90 national chapters. Some of the more outstanding Betas in the spotlight today are, Wendel L. Willkie, Jay N. "Ding" Darling, cartoonist; Horace Heidt, orchestra leader; United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr.; Charles B. Nordhoff, author, and Owen D. Young, president of the board of General Electric.

The chapter publication, the Tri-Serp, is a 16-page color magazine published annually with pictures of Beta activities and information about actives, pledges and alumni. A recent issue won the North Dakota Award given by the national fraternity to the chapter putting out the year's best publication.

Iowa State Chapter Founded In 1923

Nationally, Delta Chi fraternity first came into prominence on October 13, 1890, at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. The fraternity was founded strictly as a law fraternity, and it was not until 1909 that it opened its doors to all college men and became "social." Since then 24 new chapters have been installed, which, when added to the original 12 law fraternities, gives a total of 36 chapters now in existence in the country.

Locally, Delta fraternity came on the campus in 1923. It was formed from a group of men who bonded themselves together as the Hau-Ki Club. In 1933 a merger was made with the existent Sigma Sigma fraternity, which was a local unit, and since then residence has been established at 405 Hayward Avenue. That the union paid dividends is attested by the compiled record.

Among the notable Delta Chis are such men as C. W. Thompson, editor of the New York Times, Peter Van Steeden, orchestra leader; Don Lash, Indiana track star; Ray Donels, Iowa State head football coach; U. S. Senator James Murray of Montana and Governor Bricker of Ohio.

Delta Chi evidences the cooperative spirit of its members by the number of men in campus activities. Bill Rice is president of the Forestry Club and advertising manager of the Ames Forester. Kenny Apel acted as ticket chairman for the Men's Pan-Hel and is a member of the Cossack team and Scabbard and Blade. Gaylord Bales was captain of the wrestling team. Paul Darling starred in the Iowa State backfield and also on the cinder paths. Clyde Joy was taken into the realms of Phi Kappa Phi and Eta Kappa Nu. Robert Anderson served as vice-president of the Ag Economics Club and on the Iowa Agriculturist. Other members participating in activities include Bill McGinnis, member of the Ag Council; Harry Paul, decorations chairman for the Men's Pan-Hel.; Tasker Johnson, Daily Student and Iowa Agriculturist; and Jim Porter, varsity football.

The Delta Chi house was again the scene of the annual Hobohemian Party, where it was claimed you couldn't recognize your best friend. This was a quite different setting than that existing at the Winter and Spring Formals staged by the brothers.

Delta Chi came through with flying colors with a win in the Class B bowling. This only slightly surpassed their former efforts as they reached the finals of the Class A football group and entered a strong bid for the basketball and wrestling cups.

The men of Delta Chi have taken on a few patriotic projects for the year, among which are the systematic saving of tinfoil, stamps and newspapers. Besides this contribution to the defense efforts the house has purchased a multitude of defense stamps and bonds. They're proving that organized groups can and will help the war cause.

Publish Monthly News Letter

Every alumnus of Beta Alpha chapter as well as the other 44 chapters of Delta Sigma Phi know exactly what is happening around Ames by reading the monthly news letter the local group publishes to show everyone concerned just how well they're doing. Perhaps it's because of consideration toward alums that such famous members as Jan

Garber, Skinny Ennis, John Scott Trotter and Ted Weems still have a warm spot in their hearts and a good word on the air for their fraternity. Although the alumni list reads like a musical Who's Who, the local chapter spreads its influence in other fields as well. One needs but to look at the scroll of campus activities for proof.

One of the major traditions is the debunking of the seniors and the annual bronx cheers they get after a little program where they read the last will and testament. Coming into the spotlight in the past two years is a quarterly affair which the pledges have. It is their custom to migrate to a multitude of uncertain destinations whenever the actives need them most. It's hard to see why they should choose to leave home when home is the fine chapter house built in 1928 just one year after the local El Paso officially became a chapter of Delta Sigma Phi. But both bad pennies and pledges soon return.

The Delta Sigs have a goal of filling three stamp cards so the chapter may purchase at least three Defense Bonds before the school year is over. This idea was probably suggested by Nathan Prall, who is actively at work on the Student Defense Council. Prall also does a little technology in the Iowa Engineer office, but he usually finds brother Marion Wilson hard at work when he gets there. The success of the many interfraternity social events can be credited largely to Del Sig prexy George Risely, who served as the council's Elsa Maxwell during the current year. The politics within the house are undoubtedly beyond reproach, but secretary Craig Lampman dabbles a bit on the outside as a member of the Joint Political Party Committee. The Ag Economics Club and the Hort Club both have a Delta Sig at the helm in the persons of gavel wielders Kenneth Langer and Curt Hanover. The coeds can recognize these boys on a serenade largely because of the tenor voice of Matt Bruce, whose singing not only earned him a berth in the Glee Club and Y.M.C.A. quartet, but also ushered him into membership in Phi Mu Alpha, national music fraternity.

The Delta Sigma Phi Winter Formal is as staid and discreet a function as one could desire, but for the rest of the year they prefer parties where they can really have fun. Thus the annual Apache Dance, the Sailors' Ball and annual Trozos are included in their funfest program.

Gain Class "D" Football Title

It is the ambition of Delta Tau Delta to mold from among their 34 actives and pledges men of such character as alumnus Henry A. Wallace, Vice-President of the United States, and a member of Iowa State's Gamma Pi chapter. Other Deltas are prominent in many fields as seen from a partial roster including Senator Alben Barkley, Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals, operatic James Melton, and band leaders Pinky Tomlin, Bob Strong and Fuzzy Combs. Their national president, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, is no unknown, either.

The Deltas have been fortunate in securing as their chapter housemother Mrs. Clyde Williams, wife of the famous Iowa State Cyclone football mentor to whom our stadium was dedicated.

Ever since the swans on Lake LaVerne appeared for Veishea in a bright purple hue the Deltas have had the reputation of being the first to start something new on the campus. This year their genius extended to the realm of society when they threw a combination Tea Dance and Buffet Supper which definitely hit the mark. Delt dates were further ecstatic at the Queen Winter Formal when Bob Johnson presented each date with an orchid picked from the "orchid tree."

Just so they wouldn't be considered strictly social the boys carried off the Class D football crown this fall in both the active and pledge divisions and the pledges evened up their side of the mantle by bringing home the freshman badminton title—in fact, they ended one-up. Nothing like a little competition to make things interesting.

Jim Graham, diminutive house president, attends all the meetings of Tau Beta Pi and managed the Men's Pan-Hel of the current season. Science Council member Reynolds Emerson wears the white sweater of Cardinal Guild, though most alumni will remember him as this year's Homecoming activities chairman. Delt John Kuehne is the man responsible for this year's Junior Prom, as he was chairman of all the willing workers for that event. Veishea must attract the efforts of the Deltas for William Paddock presided over the Science Open House and Ben Brown spread a good many adjectives on the Publicity Committee. Brown's ability as a writer either came from or led to his position as assistant night editor of the Daily Student. There are some good noisy musical sessions in the house when band members Bob Knecht, Dean Wilkinson, Rush Benson and Dale Meyers all get together for a jam session.

The Delta shelter still stands on the corner of Hyland and Lincoln Way and the history behind it is the longest of any Iowa State fraternity. Delta Tau Delta has the distinction of being the first fraternity on our campus, Omega chapter being founded in 1875, just 15 years after the initial chapter at Bethany College, West Virginia. In 1910 the fraternity was re-organized and the Iowa State College chapter took the present charter of Gamma Pi.

Universal Activity Participation

Founded in 1834 at Williams College as the result of antagonistic feeling against secret fraternities, Delta Upsilon was at first the only anti-secret and is now the only non-secret fraternity. Now Delta Upsilon boasts 64 chapters in the United States and Canada with houses at all of the Big Six and the Big Ten Conference schools. Since its founding the record of the fraternity has been one of growth and achievement by the group and its members.

The local chapter was chartered in 1913 as the forty-fifth in the group by a local fraternity called the Colonnades. The active chapter now numbers 35 with 30 pledges. Eight members of the college faculty are Delta U's. Well known alums of the fraternity are OPM Administrator Leon Henderson, General Motors president Alfred Sloan, and retired Supreme Court chief justice Charles Evans Hughes.

U P S I L O N

With "A Delta U in everything and every DU in something" as their guiding rule, the local chapter of Delta Upsilon maintained its high activities record with at least one member of the chapter in every major campus activity.

President Lynn Gleason handled announcements for the senior class and served on the Homecoming decorations committee. Bob Lee was editor of Sketch, creative writing magazine, and a member of the Writers' Round Table. Forester Warren Skvaril was elected junior representative of the Forestry Club to the Council, and Paul Hale served as merchandising manager of the '42 Bomb. Bob Lueder and Bill Strauss were members of the debate squad, while Marshall and Larry Danton served on the Student Style Show Committee. Lueder served as Veishea personnel chairman.

Five musically inclined Delta Us are members of the marching and concert bands and Bill Marshall and Don Anderson are drum majors.

Athletic DU's are six foot eight Carol Schneider and sophomore Rollin Kuebler of the varsity basketball team. Chuck Smith managed the varsity baseball team for the '41 season and Curtis Sigler managed football. Schneider was elected to Tau Beta Pi, Jim Meyers is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma and Smith and Warren Carlson are members of Scabbard and Blade.

Pledge Roy Schmitz was chairman of the Interfraternity Pledge Formal.

During fall quarter Delta U's held their famed annual Dogpatch Dance, where girls were required to wear skirts six inches above the knees and no "gurdles." Music was provided by Billy Hughes with cider and doughnuts served for refreshments.

Throughout the year hay rides and tea dances marked the social calendar, climaxed by the formal spring dance held at the chapter house in May.

Versatile talent won top honors in scholarship and activities alike to the credit of hard-working FarmHouse men in their harvest of campus achievements. Traditional leader of organized houses in scholarship ratings, the group took two firsts and a second in last year's standings. Three intramural championships were won in table tennis, volleyball and horse shoe competition, while a FarmHouse skit won another trophy as a finalist in last year's Veishea Vodvil. FarmHouse men in activities present no less an imposing array. A long parade of names, headed by Claude Gifford of Cardinal Key, included six members of Agricultural Council—Secretary Keith Jeffers, Treasurer Tom Hammer, Paul Visser, Warren Kester, Marlowe Burgy and Ken Krogh—two members of Veterinary Council—President Harold Held and Bob Kirkpatrick—and a member of Engineering Council, Howard Engelbrecht. Krogh sat in with Cardinal Guild and Tom Swearingen became vice-president of the Memorial Union Student Board. Phi Kappa Phi claimed Visser and Harold Held; Andrew Monlux and Held entered Phi Zeta; Engelbrecht became a Knight of St. Patrick, and Krogh and Swearingen joined Sigma Delta Chi. Dominating the journalism field, FarmHouse virtually annexed the Collegiate Press Building with four publication editors. Editor of the 1942 Bomb was Don Marek, aided by brothers Bill Yaw, Harold Held, Joe Lindholm and Paul Visser. Swearingen edited the Green Gander, while Krogh became managing editor of the Daily Student. The Iowa Agriculturist, headed by Visser, editor, is also studded with FarmHouse men, with Marvin Julius as managing editor and ten brothers assisting.

Eleven Men Judge For Iowa State

FarmHouse held another near-monopoly in the judging team field with five men on the livestock judging team, three men on the dairy cattle judging team, two men on the crops and meats judging teams and a member of the dairy products judging team. McCone presided over Block and Bridle Club meetings; Harold Held brought meetings to order for the Junior A.V.M.A. and Veterinary Council; Krogh directed the affairs of the Ag Journalism Club; Wallace Lang headed the Campus 4-H Club, and Stuntz kept an eye on the funds of the Dairy Industry Club. FarmHouse men found their way into varsity sports with Bob Kirkpatrick and Jim Beneke performing yeoman service in football; Marlowe Burgy, Larry Inman and Gaylord Wilson burning up the cinder track and Clyde Miller riding with the polo team. Social life felt no neglect. The Homecoming Dance and annual "Farmers' Frolic" bordered on the traditional, not to mention a generous assortment of firesides and exchanges. FarmHouse fraternity, limited to agricultural students, sprang into life at the University of Missouri in 1905. One of eight chapters, the Iowa State group, was formed in 1927.

Kappa Sigs feel that social events need not be limited to those of a coeducational nature, so this year they staged three stag smokers to give the boys a chance to really let their hair down. Sunday evening candlelight buffet suppers have continued to be the principal winter quarter social activity, with housemother Mrs. Bessie Williams graciously serving. The Pledge Winter Formal, promoted entirely by the neophytes, has become top event in the life of Kappa Sig yearlings, outranking even the usual chapter hayrides, firesides and exchanges. The traditional western dance, Dead Man's Gulch Ramble, was a whoopin', hollerin', gun-shootin' success this year.

It appears that Kappa Sig pledges will be very busy during Veishea with Steve Martin and Robert Wilson both holding posts on the Veishea Central Committee, wherein lie all work assignments. Wilson, Bill Sales and Robert Keller are members of Scabbard and Blade. Kappa Sig athletes apparently are traveling together this year as Jack Byerrum, Clyde Noll and Fred Musser team up on the varsity swimming squad and Robert Alexander and Dean Carlson battle it out on the varsity wrestling team. Jason Moses and Everett White blend their voices in the Glee Club, while Russ Calame has a Duke's mixture of scholastics and athletics as president of A.I.Chem.E. and Student Head of Intramurals, along with membership in Alpha Chi Sigma, chemistry honorary.

Gene O'Neil, guest and housemother take a look at the Kappa Sig scrap book. Under the pledge pin dine Hans Bueler and Virginia Moeler. Ed, Russ and Joe look over the foreign situation.

When the Kappa Sigs do a thing once, they expect next year's class to do it again—and they generally come through. Witness the three straight years with no defeats for their hockey team and the sweepstakes in the Interfraternity Swim joust which they took for the second time this fall. Not repeaters, but worthy of note, were the finalist teams in golf putting and the dual swim. Bert Lee added to the individual athletic honors by proving himself the best net man among all the freshman tennis enthusiasts. The Cyclone Homecoming defeat was soothed by a runner-up decoration rating.

Kappa Sigma Has 109 Chapters

The ritual of Kappa Sigma dates to 1400 at the Italian University of Bologna, and its present day strength and prestige can partially be estimated in the 109 chapters comprising the national fraternity. Iowa State's Gamma Lambda chapter was admitted to the national in 1909, thus ending the reign of the strong Crescent and Star local organization. Appropriately named, the Gamma Lambda serves as the chapter newspaper and is published each school quarter by the undergraduate members. One hundred nine competitors is tough for any publication, but the journal of Gamma Lambda of Kappa Sigma at Iowa State College ranks high among its associates.

Active Member Becomes BJOC

Most fraternities have their men of letters, BMOC, either by reputation or popular acclaim, but this year Phi Delt Ernie Adams came through with a real degree, BJOC, as anyone who attended the Junior Prom and cast a ballot knows as Big Junior on Campus. The Phi Delta bungalow also houses some big seniors both in stature and accomplishments. Qualifying under both requirements is burly Ward Tuller, vice-president of the group, who just finished his job as general chairman of Homecoming in time to assume the post of Business Manager of the 1941 Veishea. John Heggen, Cyclone track captain, proved his versatility by earning his football letter and piloting the Phi Delt through a successful year and voicing their thoughts at Interfraternity Council meetings. Cadet Colonel Claude Hays of the Engineer ROTC takes brothers Richard Colvert, Jack Richards, Bob Russell, Jean Lange and Bill Rathke along to attend Scabbard and Blade meetings. Colvert, one of the newer initiates of Phi Kappa Phi, teaches the boys a thing or two about the grade point average. By virtue of a football letter, Hays is a member of Varsity "I" Club, but John Heggen, Charles Hudler and Jean Lange, president, vice-president and secretary of that organization, never miss a meeting. Tuller feels right at home in the Veishea office with Bob Knowles, Joe Stoddard and Fred Wells assisting on the Central Committee. Perhaps all Phi Delt aren't engineers, but of those who are Claude Hays, Ward Tuller, Don Campbell and Bill Rathke were dubbed Knights of St. Patrick and Hays, John Slater, Reece Stewart and Dick Boerner are members of the Engineering Council. John Sokol is ably assisted in his duties as president of S.A.M. by Wilton Miller, vice-president, and Joe Stoddard, treasurer. Board at the Phi Delt house must be tantamount to training table fare judging from the representation of the house in varsity athletics. Heggen, Lange and Hays are members of the football squad, while Howard Tippee divides his time between varsity football and baseball. Adams and Slater work out on the tank team while Heggen, Hays and Burt Eberlein choose the outdoors and track in the spring. Bill Walters really picks the scenic spot for his sport as he plays the college golf course with the Cyclone varsity. Traditional Phi Delt social activities are the fall Bowery Dance, the Winter Formal and Spring Sport Dance, and a number of standard brand firesides, although informal get-togethers are the order of every week.

In the spacious Phi Gam Club, a $700,000 palace in downtown New York, one can learn much about the founding of the fraternity in 1848 at Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, Pennsylvania. In 1896 at good old "Ames College" a group organized as the Noit Avrats, starvation in reverse, and later affiliated with the national in 1907. The Iowa State chapter is Alpha Iota of the 74 national chapters and its alums form an important cog in the national alumni group, which numbers over 73,000 members.

Fiji president Ray Freeman also presides at meetings of the Vistonian Club and is a member of Tau Sigma Delta. Engineer Wayne Norman is president of Tau Beta Pi, managing editor of the Iowa Engineer and a member of Cardinal Key, Guard of St. Patrick, Tau Sigma Delta, Sigma Delta Chi and Phi Kappa Phi. Tom Adams, A.S.M.E. prexy, was also inducted to the Guard of St. Pat, as was Vernon Hudek, president of A.I.E.E. and possessor of Tau Beta Pi and Eta Kappa Nu keys. Gordon Bell, of the varsity basketball squad; Bill Bosworth, All-Big Six swimmer, and Tom Hoak, golf captain in '41, bring home the athletic honors.

Graydon Peoples edited his way to assist on Jack Hawkins' Alumnitems. John Jay sits in on Engineering Council meetings with Jack, as a member of Tau Beta Pi, a Guard of St. Patrick, and wears the white sweater of Cardinal Guild. Phil Goddard became secretary of A.S.M.E. and shuffled the alphabet as treasurer of S.A.M.E.

The present generation of Phi Gams have a long list of prominent alumni to pace. Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican candidate for president; Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas University, greatest miler of all time; Jimmy Young, foreign correspondent; Lloyd Douglas, author; and Governor George Lehman of New York all answer the alumni roll call.

Win 1941 Veishea Vodvil Trophy

"The show must go on," was the motto of weary Phi Gams through long hours of tedious practice in spite of spring weather, and go on they did to win first place in Veishea Vodvil last spring by means of a skit which used the entire house as cast. The showmanship idea was still prevalent at Homecoming time and the Fiji display won an honorable mention from the exacting judges. The super social event for the Phi Gams is when they collaborate with Phi Kappa Psi for their joint annual Jeff Hop, which brought to the campus the name band of Gus Arnheim. It's much too warm in the spring for conventional dress, say the boys, and their dates concur as all don authentic grass skirts for the traditional Fiji Hawaiian party where all formality is banished by the simple expedient of removing all the furniture. Every year the chapter publication, Fiji Brainstorm, is mailed to alumni at a timely interval before the Pig Dinner.

Pledges Win Fraternity Championship

Highlights of last spring's social calendar were the formal dinner held before the Pledge Formal and the annual spring formal dance held in the chapter house. The fall quarter saw a varied and interesting array of firesides and a cowboy dance that was as novel as it was interesting. Decorations were of the type that would put the typical western dude ranch to shame. A much appreciated addition to the surroundings was a newly created formal garden with the moon and fall breezes, and all that goes to create a romantic atmosphere. Another main event taking place at the chapter house was the annual Homecoming dance.

The Phi Kappa actives put up some very game fights in the field of intramurals, but the pledge class brought home the bacon. Missing, in an overtime, the winning of the all-fraternity basketball championship, they coasted through to an easy win in the frosh competition. In the table tennis competition the actives and pledges both stand high in their respective classes. The pledges lost a chance at the bowling cup by losing a close match.

Phi Kappa was founded for the purpose of giving Catholic men the advantages of fraternity life. It originated in 1889 at Brown University and was then known as Phi Kappa Sigma. A charter was granted by Rhode Island in 1902 and the name of Phi Kappa was assumed. Since most fraternities are now more democratic, the main purpose of the organization now is to give Catholic men the advantages of fraternity life with men of their own faith. The local chapter was founded in 1920 as Amican. The Ames chapter was installed as Xi chapter of Phi Kappa in 1924. Xi chapter this year was awarded the William C. Krieder trophy for Concrete Catholic Action in competition with all of the other active chapters.

Two graduate members of Xi chapter, Martin Londergan and Thomas Leary, were recently selected for Phi Kappa Phi. Londergan is also representative to the Graduate Council. Gregory Curtis wields the gavel at the meetings of the Newman Club, reigned as chairman of last year's Pledge Formal and along with Harold Kjar does his bit of fancy jumping with the Iowa State Cossacks. Cletus Ormsby lends his talents to the college band, while Ira Beckman toots his horn for the Drum and Bugle Corps. Tommy Devine does his part for Iowa State on the varsity basketball squad. Jerry Nurre battled his way to a post on the freshman basketball squad. John Devine, graduate member of Phi Kappa, came up to take the place of a General Engineering professor only to be called to the army. He is not the only Phi Kap in the forces, but only one of the many who are serving their country.

Celebrates Ninetieth Anniversary

This year Phi Kappa Psi celebrates the 90th anniversary of its founding at the fraternity's national convention to be held in Des Moines. In honor of the occasion, Phi Psi's from Maine to California and the sunny Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes will converge on the Hawkeye State. Meeting when our country is engaged in its second World War, delegates will pause to pay tribute to such famous alumni as Woodrow Wilson, war-time president, and General T. J. Bliss, who sat with Wilson at the Versailles Peace Conference.

Phi Psi's in their second war are Major General Frank Parker and Colonel William (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Appropriate at a time when the national convention is being held in its own "back yard," Iowa Beta led all chapters of the fraternity in scholarship standing last year. This top rating brought to the local chapter the scholarship plaque presented by Phi Psi's Kansas City Alumni Association.

But social activities were not forgotten when week-ends rolled around. Now traditional on the Iowa State campus, the Phi Psi Moulin Rouge party saw the chapter house bulging with guests for the annual cabaret-costume dance held late in fall quarter. Highlight of the Greek formal season was the Phi Gam-Phi Psi "Jeff Hop."

Extracurricular interests among the brothers are varied and numerous. Past president of the local chapter and now a district Archon of the Fraternity. Winston Henderson heads the list in fraternal activities. He has also served as president of Alpha Phi Omega, business manager of Sketch and is a member of Delta Sigma Rho. Lewis Nady, chapter president, is a numeral winner as track manager and joins Duane Crouse to represent Phi Psi in Scabbard and Blade. Cyclone football captain LaVerne (Butch) Lewis is another brother.

Active in publication circles, Ed Sheridan is editor of the Iowa Engineer, president of Sigma Delta Chi and a member of Cardinal Key. Ed was further honored by election to share the coveted title of "St. Pat" at the 1942 Engineers' Ball. A.I.Chem.E. was headed this year by Phi Psi Pete Carrell, while Emmett Barnes has been named to carry on for the coming year in the capacity of treasurer. Pete was also knighted to the Guard of St. Patrick and joins John McKlveen in membership in Tau Beta Pi. Bob Walker rated a manager's "I" in basketball, while Jack Wier answers roll in Phi Mu Alpha.

In intramural athletics, Phi Psi pledges have "stolen the show" from active members of the chapter. The first-year men captured the freshman track title last spring and followed through to add the fall swimming championship.

Win National Scholarship Award

Some of the alumni members of Phi Kappa Tau are beginning to discover that for the second year the house has maintained its new location at 223 Lynn. They return, not to the old house that they left, but to the same warm fraternal spirit. The boys returning last Veishea saw the usual activity going on in and around the house and the building of the annual float which displayed every department of Iowa State College with a replica of Uncle Sam riding high above.

Frank C. Fridlund finds time to be a cheerleader along with dispatching his duties as president and attending the meetings of the Interfraternity Council. Richard Thompson, member of the Iowa State Players group, was superintendent of the floricultural division of the Little Midwestern Horticulture Show. While on the Ag side of the campus one is very apt to run into Dallas McGinnis working on the Iowa Agriculturist, or Irvin Nathlich, Agricultural Council member, and president of the Iowa Future Farmers of America organization. Gene Ewaldson does his bith for the alma mater varsity wrestling squad.

Scholarship has been one of the highly emphasized phases of Phi Kappa Tau, and rightly so. The efforts of the boys were not in vain as is evident by the presence of the National Phi Kappa Tau Scholarship Award for '41 in the chapter house.

Naturally they did not devote all their efforts to grades, but entered and registered quite a deep impression in the intramural field. Last spring found the cup for runner-up in softball going around and ending up on the Phi Kappa Tau mantel. Winter quarter saw a large and classy group of teams go into the basketball competition. Some won and some lost, but the men from 223 Lynn somehow or other were consistently among the former group and carried home another bit of bronze to adorn their mantel.

The chapter house was gayly decorated with corn stalks, pumpkins and an array of fearsome objects for the annual Hallowe'en fireside. Costumes of every make, color and description made one think that even his best friends didn't know him. The annual Winter House Dance was held in the chapter house with all the formalities such an occasion warrants.

Numbered among the notable alumni of Phi Kappa Tau are such national figures as Dr. W. H. Shideler, geologist; Dr. Albert J. Harno, dean of the Law College at the University of Illinois, and Dr. Shelton Tanner, author of several volumes on law.

It has grown steadily until now it boasts a total of forty-three active chapters with a total membership of over 10,000 men. The Alpha Nu chapter of Phi Kappa Tau started its life as a national fraternity when a local, Alpha Kappa Delta, was granted a charter in 1928.

Honor Mothers at Annual Dinner

The PiKA's pay their light bill faithfully and the house wiring is faultless, but guests at their Winter Blackout Party are still wondering what happened when came the air raid. In tune with, even a little ahead of, the times, the party simulated genuine air-raid shelter procedure even to the addition of sandbags and taped window panes. Not quite so realistic, but just as much fun, were the Homecoming Barn Dance and fall Hay-ride Party. After a year of hilarious informality, the Pikers proved they could be stuffed shirts as well by donning "soup-and-fish for their spring formal. Much appreciated is the annual Mother's Day Dinner at which the chapter honors each mother as only a-fraternity can.

Always strong contenders in intramural sports contests, the balance of PiKA power lay in the track team and they earned several trophies.

Six veterans of the Civil War were instrumental in starting Pi Kappa Alpha on its long and successful journey in 1868 at the University of Virginia. Progress has continued until today Pi Kappa Alpha numbers 81 undergraduate chapters. In 1921, 21 members of the Gamma Theta local were duly initiated and formed the nucleus of the present Alpha Pi chapter. Alpha Pi was the first Iowa State chapter to entertain Ames children at a Christmas party, the idea caught and now almost every house on the campus participates in this Interfraternity Council sponsored campus-wide action.

The "Flying Five" of PiKA are Chester Peek, James Martin, Russell Peek, Don Vreeland and Charles Thompson, all members of the Pilots' Club. David Spesard prefers his flying on horseback and gets plenty of it on the polo team, although it's some consolation to know that Brother Bill Tuttle, team manager, is on hand to repair all cuts, sprains and minor contusions. Arthur Bovett has a good chance to line up future fraternity actives in his office of president of the Interfraternity Pledge Council. Jack Hylton, one of the best bookkeepers in the Vet quad, is secretary of A.V.M.A. and of the Veterinary Executive Council. President Kenneth Brooker is an efficient committeeman on the Interfraternity Council and does a little newswriting on the Daily Student staff. Ted Osmundson landed the job of chairman of the Landscape Architecture Open House, but he is responsible to William Parish, who superintends all open houses in his capacity on the Central Committee. Jack Gibson is the Pikers' bid for track fame while Marvin Winders gets his exercise on the baseball squad. A good portion of the famous Iowa State pep is undoubtedly due to the presence of Harold Gilbert, Paul Duncan and John Stanley in the Yel-Jax. Camera fan Duane Scott took time out from picturing brothers to serve as Bomb photographer.

The leading activity man of the Pi Kap's is John Rigg, president of Cardinal Key, editor of the Daily Student and member of Sigma Delta Chi. Wayne Moore is a prominent figure on the campus, holding membership in Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu, Scabard and Blade and Pi Mu Epsilon. Other men in active spots are: Jack Kennedy on the Daily Student, Eldred Harman, Keith Seymour and Kennedy writing features for the Iowa Agriculturist. John Riley and James Nelson use their dramatic talents to good advantage when they work out with the Iowa State Players. Keith Spiker's activities are chiefly confined to the maple boards where he won his Iowa State freshman basketball numeral.

The annual Homecoming Dance was held at the Pi Kap house last fall. This was a gala festivity, but its magnitude was dwarfed by the winter quarter house dance. This dance, with a "Catastrophe" theme, lent to the whole surroundings the feeling that something that the name implies had really taken place. The brothers and their guests all dressed in the most dilapidated manner possible, so well in fact that they had some folk wondering if it was really a costume or the real McCoy. Investigation usually verified the fact that it really was all "put on," but that a very good job was being done. The house and occupants resembled a London tenement house after a seven-hour raid with the one exception that the people of Pi Kappa Phi had a big time.

The "Almicron" is the monthly house publication and is edited by the historian. It contains such local information and highlights as to be interesting to actives, pledges and alumni alike.

Win Cups in Varieties and Veishea

Pi Kappa Phi was born in the College of Charleston in South Carolina, December 10, 1904, with the definite purpose of extending the influence of the organization throughout the collegiate world. The incorporation as a national fraternity took place in 1907. Today there are 33 active chapters. The Ionian Club was organized at Iowa State in 1916 and reorganized in 1923 as the local Beta Delta Rho fraternity. After subsequent reorganization in 1929, it became the Alpha Omicron chapter of Pi Kappa Phi at Iowa State.

That Pi Kap's after graduation keep the pace they have set during their college career may be indicated beyond doubt, for among the alumni of prominence are such men as William "Doc" Newton, football coach of North Carolina State, and George V. Denny, Jr., director of the radio Town Hall program.

The Pi Kap's, after much hard and diligent practice, placed second in the Varieties skit competition. Anyone present at last year's Veishea parade will realize the conscientious effort that went into their third place winning float.

The S. A. E. social whirl got off to a flying start this fall with the "Sig Alph Rat-Race" informal dance held at the Ames Country Club. With the impetus of this "big deal" carrying on, the brothers dived into a round of picnics, formals and exchanges that kept them busy the rest of the year. One of the events that all Sig Alphas look forward to in spring quarter is the annual stag picnic. On this occasion all actives and pledges get together for a big day of fun at Ledges State Park—and hope that their bruises and skinned knees will mend in time for the big spring formal which follows soon after.

Maybe it's because their "house on the hill" is so close to the campus that S. A. E. men participate so extensively in extra-curricular activities, but probably they would be go-getters anywhere. Stu Kuyper, engineer, scooped the field of journalists this year and took over where Clarence Rice left off as business manager of the Daily Student. Three men who probably won't have time to work on the house float this year are Bob Searing, Gordon Taft and Joe Markey, who hold down posts on the Veishea Central Committee. Fritz Clausen, as business manager of the Freshman Handbook, may inspire the frosh to some day join the ranks of brothers Bill Shearer, Bill Keehn and Jack Swan in Tau Beta Pi. Dick Young and Joe Sexton earned their letters in tennis and golf, while Charley Schalk is a varsity football letterman.

The whole S. A. E. house turned out for the all-college intramural football championship game this year, and well they should for the entire house played the game. For the first time in history both finalists were from the same fraternity, the actives and pledges both champs in their own divisions, but the actives got the cup. The 1941 pledge class won the all-college championship for intramurals by winning individual championships in touch football, volleyball and tennis. The actives took the touch football crown this year and placed Ward Parry, Fritz Clausen and Warren Lindquist on the all-college team.

S.A.E. Boasts 114 Active Chapters

"Whether in fair or in bad stormy weather, we'll all stand together for S. A. E."—runs a song of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and in such manner the men of S. A. E. have grown from their original chapter at the University of Alabama until their ranks number 114 active chapters. The center of activity for the 54,000 members is the national headquarters at Evanston, Illinois.

With its Gothic arches, stained glass windows and comprehensive library and museum it has the reputation of being one of the finest Greek offices in the country. Iowa Gamma chapter was established in 1905. Listed among the alumni of the local chapter are Dr. Charles E. Friley, president of Iowa State College, and Prof. C. A. Iverson, head of the Dairy Industry Department.

All out for defense was the system the Sigma Chis used in their air raid dance last fall. Novelty gas masks consisted of clothespins. With the idea they might have had the air raid during the night, the Sigma Chis wore pajamas instead of formals. The best part of the evening featured a blackout with the usual results accompanying its effect.

Win Track and Tennis Titles

The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi has been heard many times ringing from the Campanile; however, besides sweethearts the Sigma Chi's have many other worthy claims. Founded at Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio, in 1855, Sigma Chi is distinguished as one of the Miami Triad that includes Sigma Chi, Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta.

During the war between the states, a Constantine chapter was formed by seven brothers who fought in the war. This chapter existed through the period of the war and was the only one of its kind. The Beta Omicron chapter at Iowa State was formed from the local fraternity, Rho Sigma Gamma, in 1916. At one time, they lived in downtown Ames, but the Sigma Chi's present chapter house west of the campus was constructed in 1926.

The Sigma Chi's established a recognized position as intramural athletes last year, by winning the track and the tennis titles as well as runnerup honors in volleyball, placing them third in the year's all-college intramural participation.

Varsity men took part in four sports: Bob Harris, ace basketball man; Homer Libbey, varsity wrestling; Ward Sear, captain of the swimming team, and Bob Kline of varsity baseball. Freshman footballers are Pete Van Aucken and Jack Campbell.

Active on publications are Bob Gunsaulus and John Baker, both on the Iowa Engineer. George Krause, past-president of the Joint Social Council, is the vice-president of the Interfraternity Council.

Well represented in the honoraries of Iowa State are Sigma Chi brothers including Fred Eisele, Bob Heuse, Joe Price and Carlton Miller, all members of Tau Beta Pi. Significant of military proficiency is the Scabbard and Blade, claiming Sigma Chi's Fred Eisele. Slide rule experts George Krause and Fred Eisele were pledged to the Guard of St. Patrick at the Engineers' Carnival.

Nationally known as one of America's oldest fraternities, Sigma Chi claims as its notorious alumni Grover Cleveland, John Cudahy, George Ade, Booth Tarkington, Coleman du Pont, Joe Gordon, Frank Murphy, Fielding H. Yost, L. G. Balfour and John T. McCutcheon.

Officers of Sigma Chi, newly elected, are George Brush, president; Bob Kline, vice-president; Dick Ryder, secretary, Mack Scott, treasurer; John Fecht, house manager; Bob Gunsaulus, associate editor; Paul Bridewell, tribune; Bob Young, historian, and Homer Libbey, pledge trainer.

Gamma Sigma of Sigma Nu started out spring quarter by winning the 1941 vodvil skit trophy in the fraternity division. To contact all the alumni before Homecoming and to keep them informed of the chapter activities, the Gamma Sigma News is published by the group.

Sigma Nu was founded at the Virginia Military Institute in 1869. The three founders were western men attending an eastern school, and the organization claimed men from seven states during the first year. The Iowa State chapter was founded in 1904. Today, 98 chapters make up the national organization with at least one house in every state except New Mexico and South Dakota.

Dan Dodd is commander of the Iowa State chapter, Royal Lohry pinch hits as lieutenant commander, Bayard Olmsted keeps the books as treasurer, and Dick Winchester is recorder.

Daily Student National Advertising Manager Walter Ingalls is also a member of the Guard of St. Patrick, does his part on Engineering Council, and is assistant business manager of the Iowa Engineer. Carleton Vangness and Jerry Harris keep Ingalls company on Engineering Council. Jackson Bogle "hun-twoed" his way into the all-college military honorary, Scabbard and Blade.

Dan Dodd is on the all-college student representative council, Cardinal Guild, and was ticket chairman of the all-out Homecoming that saw 4,300 students attend the pep dance in the Armory, breaking all previous attendance records three-fold. Brother in Tau Beta Pi, Bayard Olmsted is a member of Phi Lambda Upsilon of chemistry fame and a Guard of St. Patrick, while Dick Winchester swam his way into Porpoise honorary fraternity, became a Guard of St. Patrick at the Engineers' Carnival and was selected vice-president of his departmental club, A.I.Chem.E.

Sig Nu Boosts All-American Captain

A grand assembly of Sigma Nu's would probably feature a parade of bands, or at least some of the best dance music in the country with frater orchestra leaders Glenn Miller, Kay Kyser, Johnny Long, Orrin Tucker, Griff Williams and Rex Maupin participating. Two other brothers familiar to many people are the novelist Zane Grey, and tennis player Ellsworth Vines. Associated with their alumni orchestra leaders, is the traditional share of dances—exchanges to formals. The annual Spring Formal was held on a portable dance floor near the chapter house and the Fall Sod-Busters' Ball moved to the Ames Country Club.

Individual activities of the Sigma Nu's included the winning of major football letters by athletes Bob Lechtenberg and Bill Barger. Varsity football elected as its captain, Royal Lohry, an All-American honorable mention and a member of the track team.

Win Class Football Championship

The Sig Eps had quite a time with the boys at the A.T.O. house last fall, especially when the Chi O's became involved by letting some of the fraters use their house as a retreat, underground railway, or more frequently as a passage-way. At any rate, the Sig Eps retaliated with vengeance in their soul and won the traditional touch football game with the A.T.O. brothers over the renowned golden cleaver.

Football men all over the Sig Ep house rallied to win the class B title last fall. Speaking of sports, head cheerleader Tex Burdick and cheerleader Keith Young displayed plenty of action in leading the student body cheering sections at football and basketball games as well as in promoting college loyalty at pep rallies, the homecoming barbecue furnishing a good example.

The Sig Eps' action man in basketball is Gene Phelps, while baseball's batmen include Tex Burdick, Ed Cunningham and Wayne Brown. Richard Smith acts as the president of the Tandem Team with frater Martin Myers also a team member.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity was founded in November, 1901, at Richmond College, Richmond, Virginia. The Iowa Beta chapter emerged from the old local fraternity, Kappa Kappa Kappa. Officers of Sigma Phi Epsilon are Robert Banks, president and also secretary of the Interfraternity Council; Martin Myers, vice-president; William Knoble, secretary, and Donald McRoberts, historian.

Members of honoraries are Brad Minnis, of Phi Mu Alpha and Pi Mu Epsilon, with Clinton Peterson distinguishing himself in scholarship, as a member of Phi Kappa Phi. Martin Myers is president of Scabbard and Blade, an honorary claiming another Sig Ep, Richard Smith.

Charles Vosburg, advertising manager of the Bomb, and William Knoble, national advertising manager of the Bomb, associate themselves with the journalists in a business manner. Ted Minnis, another journalistic minded Sig Ep, is on the Iowa Engineer.

The Sig Eps proved their ability to create real harmony by winning an honorable mention recognition in the Interfraternity Sing last year.

With their retreat just off sorority circle the Sig Eps are not a fraternity to be underestimated socially. Social action began with a homecoming dance at the chapter house, followed by the Sig Ep Heart Dance held in winter quarter in the South Ballroom of Memorial Union. The theme of this dance was symbolized by a huge heart at one end of the ballroom with a large pin and guard attached in the middle of the heart. The Sig Eps entertained their Dads at the house on Dad's Day following the football game between Iowa State and Kansas State.

Originate Bowery Party at ISC

Men of Sigma Pi forgot the melodious strains of Royce Stoenner and his orchestra at the Country Club spring formal long enough to change from formal attire to celebrate "Ye Olde Bowery Party" in an entirely different mood. A review of the styles since and including the Gay Nineties was featured at this annual bar room festival, originated at Iowa State by Sigma Pi.

Down-to-earth fun again reigned supreme at the annual Sigma Pi picnic at Ledges State Park when the alumni members brought out their baseball gloves and showed the undergrads just how the game should be played—an example of the pace set by the alumni of Sigma chapter.

Four men realized their common associations and need for a fraternity at old Vincennes University, Vincennes, Indiana, and in 1897 Sigma Pi got its start under the title of Tau Phi Delta. Sigma chapter at Iowa State was chartered in 1922. Prominent alumni among the 8,000 members include Willard Kiplinger, journalist, economist and editor and publisher of the Kiplinger Washington Letters; Ralph Watts, dean and director of the agricultural college and experiment station, Penn State College; Martin Fisher, dean of men and professor, Purdue University; and Vee Green, Drake coach.

Campus activities took their share of the time of busy Sig Pi members. Leading the group were Alva Hayes and Lester Welch. In addition to his position as sports editor of the Daily Student, Hayes was circulation manager of the Green Gander, worked on the Iowa Agriculturist, served as vice-president of the Agricultural Journalism Club, received an activity "I" in debate and was active in the journalism honorary, Sigma Delta Chi. Two engineering honoraries, Eta Kappa Nu and Tau Beta Pi, claim Welch as a member, and he also was a feature writer for the Iowa Engineer.

Dale Goodell went to the other side of the campus to work on the Iowa Agriculturist and was assistant superintendent of horses at the Little International Livestock Show. Radio dramatics and the Iowa State Players claimed more of Goodell's attention. The Theatre Workshop attracted Jack Lange, while Roger "Brain Trust" Christensen was a member of Phi Kappa Phi. Warren Doolittle was assistant editor of the Ames Forster, Louie Achtemeier and Bill Miller exercised their lungs cheering with the Yel-Jax, and Miller sang with the Men's Glee Club. Emmert Daugard and Paul Davis were members of the freshman track and football squads, respectively. Clarence Moffitt applied "Science with Practice" as an active member of the meats judging team and was among the ten high individuals at the American Royal contest.

Tekes Win Numerals and Letters

Teke prexy, Don Eby, holds the purse strings of the Interfraternity Council, one termed the vice-presidency of A.S.M.E., writes a column for the Daily Student and edited fraternity copy for the '42 Bomb. Technical journalists in an extra-curricular way are Bernard Genrich, Leslie Gates and Eby on the Iowa Engineer and Karl Runkle and Bryan Rossi on the Daily Student staff. Everett Casey assumed the almost full-time task of engraving editor of the Bomb, while Genrich has held down the dangerous spot as Blitzkeed in the Ballyrotter's family.

Teke major letter winners were Bill Munson, captain of Iowa State's hard riding polo team; Lawrence Gilley, co-captain of the tennis team; Ellis Alexander, footballer and first baseman, and Roy Reppert, grappler on Iowa State's Big Six champion wrestling squad. Teke's wearing football numerals are Ed Weiler and Robert Olson.

The Tekes failed to defend their all-college basketball title this year, but came back strong to win the Class A pledge bowling trophy and class C basketball title.

Social affairs for the benefit of Tekes included the rip-roaring Barroom Brawl, an autumn formal and spring formal dinner dance. The social committee also had to worry about a homecoming dance, a spring picnic and numerous informal dances.

For community benefit, the Tekes again staked a Christmas party for the needy children of Ames. The children departed laden with gifts and the Tekes enjoyed the affair fully as much, even though no rush talks could be given.

Iowa State's Epsilon chapter had the distinction of making Tau Kappa Epsilon a national fraternity upon its charter grant in 1915 from the local Seminole Club. Illinois Wesleyan witnessed the founding of Teke in 1899 as an organization to further the study of the Roman classics. Roman classic students don't stand a chance at Iowa State, but good students are on a priority basis. Teke's contribution to the scholars are Jack Cairns and Bill Carlton of Tau Beta Pi, Cairns going on to make Phi Kappa Phi and catching a Phi Mu Alpha shingle on the way.

Man of all hours, Jim McIlrath, has the fraters debating whether to put in another telephone or make him pay the chapter phone bill, as his business as general manager of Veishea keeps such a live wire to the house that the boys have a hard time calling their dates. Robert Whittlesey, Cardinal Guild booking agent, uses his office phone, but keeps the social committee well supplied with good dance band tips.

It was "All Out for Defense" with the Tekes this year as they converted some $3,600 of chapter assets into Defense Savings Bonds. The three-fold purpose was to constructively aid our country's defense program, to provide a sound financial investment and to lend moral support to the many Tekes now serving in the armed forces. The attitude is not "How many did we buy?" but "When can we buy another Bond?" as members unofficially total their Defense investments at $1,500.

Favorite ISC Campus Serenaders

A favorite as serenaders, the Theta Chi's uniquely combine their vocal group with their own instrumental rhythm makers to produce harmony in a modern manner. Musically inclined fraters are proud of their alumni, including Iowa State's foremost musical leaders, Alvin R. Edgar, director of Iowa State's Concert and Marching Bands, as well as Iowa State's Symphony Orchestra, and Tolbert MacRae, leader and director of the Men's Glee Club and the Iowa State Singers. Other noteworthy alumni include orchestra leader Sammy Kaye, Commander DeWitt Clinton Webb, U. S. Navy, and William Rutherford Mead, architect.

The Theta Chi fraternity started at Norwich University, Norwich, Vermont, in 1856, from a society believed to be called the Regulars. Locally, the fraternity was known as the Antler Club, later changed to the Mohawks and finally became the Alpha Mu chapter of Theta Chi in 1922.

B.M.O.C. Thomas Tuttle as a member of the Veishea Central Committee, is chairman and general manager of Stars Over Veishea. Tuttle is also a member of Phi Mu Alpha, Alpha Chi Sigma, the Rhythm Club, Concert Band, Symphony Orchestra, and chairman of the Harmony Ball. Bruce Glassburner is the Cardinal Guild booking agent for 1942, a member of the concert band, Rhythm Club and Symphony Orchestra. Curtis Ward is a member of two honoraries, Eta Kappa Nu and Tau Beta Pi. Peter Tuttle is claimed by Phi Mu Alpha, Alpha Chi Sigma, the Rhythm Club and the Concert Band. Clayton McCartney was manager of the Little Midwest Horticultural Show for 1941.

Don Thomson was succeeded as president by Peter Tuttle following Don's graduation in the fall. James Poulter is vice-president; Curtis Ward, secretary; Richard Pfitzenmaier and Bruce Glassburner, marshals.

The local chapter was host to the Theta Chi chapters of North Dakota State College, North Dakota University, and Minnesota University at a regional conclave from November 14 to 16. At that time the fraters held their Fall Formal in MacKay Auditorium, dancing to the music of Noble Ross and his orchestra. Of the many firesides during the year, the Christmas and the Marriage firesides were the most unique. For the Marriage fireside, the chapter house was fixed like a hotel, all persons registering as they entered with their dates. A parson "married" all couples and they were given engraved marriage certificates.

Particularly noteworthy is Theta Chi's Heptet that has played all over the campus as entertainment for big dinners, basketball games and other large meetings. Thomas Tuttle was one of the three finalists in the Fred Allen search for talent program. Another Theta Chi is Dwight Gilbert of the Rhythm Club and the Concert Band.

Knocking it off is more fun than putting it on. Jack Munroe, Jim Jackson, Ed Norcross, Bob Rector, Dave Roberts and Del Greenlee "chew the fat." Sam Nelson and Midge Clark at a fireside.

One of the factors in the fine standing of the fraternity might be that it was the eleventh national fraternity founded; eleven is a lucky number in all collegiate circles. Probably more important is the caliber of men the fraternity started with, and still maintains—four of the six founders were members of Phi Beta Kappa. The organization originally was to be a literary society but eventually changed to a social and now has twenty-eight chapters. It is noted as a fraternity of "firsts," being the first Greek organization to have a pledge pin, the first to adopt and display a flag and published the first fraternity magazine. The individual chapters go by a somewhat different nomenclature than in most fraternities, the local chapter known as the Colonials being established in 1919. The first chapter was founded at Union College, New York, in 1847.

Prominent alumni of Theta Delt excel in all vocations from captains of industry to eminent scholars and theorists, and include: Eugene Grace, President of Bethlehem Steel Corp.; A. J. Hepburn, Admiral, U. S. N.; F. J. Compton, President, Compton Encyclopedia Co.; Robert Frost, poet of fame, and Alexander Woolcott, popular author.

Undergrads of the Ames chapter are no less on the way to excellence as indicated by the activities pursued in addition to their academic work. Delbert Greenlee and William Brown showed promise in Cyclone athletics by their numeral performances on the freshman football and swimming squads, while Everett Norcross is proving his worth on the varsity track team. Dave Roberts serves on the Iowa Engineer staff.

Winter Party Leads Social Season

Something entirely new and different for the Fourth Ward of Ames was the winter opening of the "217 Club." However, the joint closed the same night it opened, and hopes of all underclassmen tumbled—all, that is, except the forty couples fortunate enough to attend the one-night stand of the Theta Delt's winter house party at 217 Ash Ave. The party was appropriately entitled a brawl and the house was decorated as a speakeasy, complete to bar and dice table in the basement. After this grand splurge, social events of Theta Delta Chi returned to normal for the remainder of the year, but guests had no less entertainment attending the usual quota of formals, picnics and firesides.

Alumni had ample opportunity to hold bull sessions in their old rooms, to praise and criticize "these kids" and to revisit the old school while attending the big Founder's Day Banquet held at the chapter house on October 31.

Members of the Iowa State Theta Delt chapter checked up on the brother chapters by sending President Wayne Leo and David Buck to the 94th annual convention.

Acting in the capacity of executioners, the Theta Xi fraters cleverly changed their house to represent a prison, and with the slogan "Missouri Bums" they won first prize in the fraternity division for Homecoming decorations last fall.

Activity minded brothers of Theta Xi are represented in many campus organizations. Prominent in military organizations such as the Pontoniers, Cossacks and the Pistol Team, many brothers demonstrate their ability as horsemen and marksmen and perhaps more timely, as candidates for Uncle Sam's army. Musicians of Theta Xi are not to be disregarded with men in the concert and marching bands as well as the mixed chorus, glee club and symphony orchestra. The athletic contingent on the campus claims members of Theta Xi on the basketball team.

With an engineering background, the Theta Xi fraternity was founded at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., in 1864. Changing from an engineering fraternity to a social fraternity, the Theta Xi's have grown to thirty-eight chapters with a membership of some eight thousand men. Iowa State chapter was established as a national fraternity in 1909.

Officers of Theta Xi are Art Pennings, acting as president, assisted by J. D. Long, vice-president, Les Fisher, treasurer, and R. Boyd Sawyer, corresponding secretary. As leaders of the fraternity, these men have distinguished themselves as well as the Iowa Journalistic fraters include Les Fisher, who can be seen almost any time in the Veterinary Student office. George Villican and Bob Giles are active on the business staff of the Bomb.

Contemporary greats affiliated with Theta Xi are Anson Marston, Dean Emeritus of the engineering school here at Iowa State; Claire L. Egvedt, president of the Boeing Aircraft Company; Norman M. Smith, Rear Admiral in the U. S. Navy, and Henry T. Heald, President of Armour Institute.

The air is really disturbed when the brothers decide to put on their Bowery Brawl during winter quarter. This is but one event in the social program of Theta Xi. With an aristocratic bit of formality, the fraternity also marks the social register when they have their Fall and Spring Formals.

Marking a definite advance in campus prominence, the Theta Xi fraters bearing the recognition of B.M.O.C. are Don Van Howeling, chairman of the Representative Party and president of the Interfraternity Council. Directing the open house activities for the Veterinary Medicine Division for the 1942 Veishea is Theta Xi's Les Fisher.

Formal Dances

During the winter the dormitory women entertained their dates at two formal dinner dances. In Great Hall, the couples dined and danced during the evening to the music of Ray Gray and his orchestra. Sara Jane Pritchett was the general chairman of the Valentine Dance, February 7. Oak, Elm, Mary Lyon and Barton Halls with the Town Girls and Memorial Union, were the hostesses. A St. Patrick's Day dinner dance completed the formal season.

Fosters Student Discussion Groups

In keeping with the times and the general spirit of the campus, the Dormitory Council turned its efforts toward aiding the Student Defense Council. In cooperation with the council, student discussion groups were held regularly in all residence halls. The sale of individual Defense Bonds and Stamps was carried on by each hall itself. In addition to this, each dormitory purchased for its own treasury a group of bonds.

The new advisory system, under the guidance of the council, paid dividends in freshman orientation. Among the other activities of the council were the annual Valentine and St. Patrick formal dinner dances and the formal dormitory dinner in the spring quarter.

The surprising thing about the 117 women students in Alice Freeman Hall is that they all know each other. Everybody works with everybody else at some time during the quarter. Each woman spends about one hour a day as a member of a committee to clean corridors, vacuum rugs, wait tables or help prepare food in the kitchen. Life in this typically cooperative dormitory is highly systematized with definite work schedules.

Every fifth week is rest-week. The other four are spent doing scheduled work, alternating on cleaning, preparing and serving food. Housemother Mrs. Katherine McDonald supervises the work, but students do the actual planning. With most of the residents taking some phase of home economics, they receive much practical experience in house-keeping and large scale cookery. Besides this each woman works out half of her yearly board bill.

Stella Lou Johnson and Eleanor Hoeflin distribute the hot casseroles as part of their cooperative duties. Every woman must work about one hour each day.

Win Annual Scholarship Award

Much credit for cooperation in Alice Freeman Hall goes to the dormitory officers: Virginia Taplin, president; Evelyn Botts, vice-president; Harriet Zook, secretary, and Evelyn Groth, treasurer. This group presides at the weekly dormitory meeting at which each coed is given an opportunity to voice her opinions on group activities. Official action is taken on such things as organizing athletic teams, homecoming decoration committees and the dormitory candidates for campus queen selections.

Despite the picture presented thus far, life in a cooperative dormitory is much like that in the other dormitories. The hour a day spent doing assigned duties does not interfere with social or scholastic standings. A glance at social and scholastic records shows Alice Freeman Hall actually excelled records of all other women's dormitories. This dormitory won the scholarship award for women last year in competition with all other women's organized residences.

On the social side, Alice Freeman had more 5 pound parties than any other dormitory during the fall quarter. Five-pound parties are the highlights of a woman's college life. When a student announces her engagement, she passes 5 pounds of candy at a party which may be given unexpectedly any time of the night. Either the whole dormitory is invited or a group of close friends. If the party is given at 2 a.m., coeds come down in their regular night attire, night-caps and all, to spend a few hilarious moments enjoying refreshments and wishing the "lucky coed" happiness. That's life in a women's dormitory.

Win Veishea Sweepstakes Award

Mildred Skola and Beverly Eckwall use the library facilities of Elm Hall.

Elm Hall began the year with a bang last spring when the Veishea float representing the work of the women won the grand sweepstakes award. The colorful bit of fantasy showed a Cinderella who had skipped the ball to attend Veishea. Also during the spring quarter of 1941 the dormitory won the plaque for the championship intramural basketball team and for the second year in a row the volleyball championship rested with Elm Hall. Completing the year with Mildred Giesenberg as president of the hall, the women went on to even greater accomplishments.

The dormitory claims three members of Omicron Nu and four members of Delta Phi Delta fraternities. Among the outstanding students in the dormitory was Mary Burnham, who this year was editor of the women's page of the Daily Student. Alta Spotts won the sweepstakes prize at the Little Midwestern Horticultural Exposition that was held on the campus last fall. Her ability to arrange flowers has proved to be an interesting and profitable hobby. Neva Hohl also has found a worthwhile hobby and avocation. From the prizes she has won showing her cattle and sheep at exhibits about the country, she has made enough money to send herself to college.

This year in Elm there were two girls who had come from Panama. Betty Clay and Fern Horine entertained their friends with interesting stories of their colorful life at home, and showed them the bright costumes and souvenirs from their native land. At Christmas the dormitory presented a family of seven with groceries, gifts and a bright Christmas tree. The Elm Hall women contributed money for the defense bond for the dormitory and enjoyed knitting for the Red Cross and sewing at the meetings of the Women's Health Council at the College Hospital.

The dinner held the night before Thanksgiving was a special occasion in Elm Hall. The women decorated their tables with such original designs as a harvest scene and a South American Thanksgiving scene. The prize winning table had a "Horn of Plenty" for a centerpiece and individual turkeys of real feathers at each place.

Under the leadership of Florence Jane Kas, the students sang Christmas carols at many fraternity houses on a December Saturday night. Hot chocolate was served to the cold serenaders upon their return.

Elm Hall won the Green Gander trophy for selling the most magazines in a given length of time. Virginia Bates had charge of the women who sold them.

Mary Lyon Hall, surrounded by trees and shaded walks and overlooking a pleasant little valley, is considered one of the most beautiful dormitories on the Iowa State College campus. Located at the northwest corner of dormitory circle, a rolling expanse of green lawn drops away in front of the dormitory, threaded by paths and sprinkled with redbud trees. In the spring, even before the other trees have their leaves, the Mary Lyon redbud trees are one of the most colorful scenes on the campus. To the north is the valley created by the creek which flows through the campus. Here, in the deep green grass, Mary Lyon girls sunbathe, study and relax in the warm spring and fall sun. There is a homey, friendly atmosphere about Mary Lyon Hall. Nine senior girls who live in the dormitory this year have spent their entire four years at Iowa State living in Mary Lyon Hall. These girls, Eleanor Anderson, Lucille Whiteley, Lucy Neff, Margaret Kirchner, Harriet Roberts, Beth Beaster, Ruth Rosdahl, Dorothy Besimer and Marjorie Scott, have a warm spot in their hearts for Mary Lyon Hall. They and the other 105 girls in the dormitory have many memories of their life there to treasure after they have left Iowa State. This winter there was caroling. They'd bundle up and go out in the still cold to sing songs at other dormitories, sororities and fraternities. There were "spreads," or informal little parties given by girls who received packages of cakes and cookies from home and shared them with their friends. There were dance exchanges with men's dormitories and fraternities. Keeping abreast of current events, the girls invited outstanding speakers to discuss books dealing with war and the peace to follow.

While listening to these speakers, the girls knitted and sewed for the Red Cross. Residents of Mary Lyon Hall contributed voluntarily to the purchase of a twenty-five dollar defense bond, and most of the girls purchased defense stamp books for themselves. Many of the Mary Lyon Hall residents were outstanding leaders on the Iowa State campus. Katherine Wittkowski, Mary Lyon president, was a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron; Dorothy Besimer, Harriet Roberts and Margaret Kirchner were members of Omicron Nu, and Lucy Neff, a member of the honorary science fraternity, Pi Mu Epsilon, was awarded the current year's Lane-Wells Scholarship. In addition to their other activities, the girls of Mary Lyon created their own milk fund, which provided a supply of milk for a needy Ames Family. Their activities extended to the athletic field, where they won the archery plaque.

Win Women's Intramural Cup

Oak Hall, newest and largest women's dormitory, housed mostly senior women and was known campus-wide for its activities. Mary Louise Morton and Eugenia Hoffert received highest activity rankings by being initiated into Mortar Board. Five members also were initiated into Phi Upsilon Omicron, national home economics honorary.

Adorning the mantel is the prized intramural trophy, awarded annually to the organization that has won the highest total number of points awarded for participation in various sports. The women entered every intramural sport staged during the year to establish a record.

Although the dormitory was humming with activity from church time Sunday morning to late Saturday night, the scholarship standards of the 178 students remained high. Women had opportunity to keep up on the ever-changing world news through a wide selection of newspapers, magazines and journals. Latest fashion news, professional news and the ever-popular humorous articles had their share of readers in Oak Hall.

Women of Oak Hall will well remember the large collection of phonograph records gathered by Barbara Read. Lengthy informal chats often settled many of the trivialities that couldn't be settled in regular meetings. Complete cooperation from the women was obtained under the able leadership of Barbara Ruby, president.

Oak Hall women changed the cry, "Remember Pearl Harbor" to "Remember, Purl Harder." With the aid of Mrs. Fern Sadler, housemother, they knitted 14 sweaters for the Red Cross and others for men in the armed service. The proverbial "coke date" often found the coed knitting furiously on a sweater for her pen-pal or dream man in uniform, while her date had to be content with watching. Every Monday and Thursday an hour was set aside for a knitting bee.

The dormitory also aided the national cause by purchasing a defense bond. The women saved the postage stamps from their letters in order that the dye in them might be utilized.

Every Oak Hall woman made use of the large recreation room where weekly meetings were held. On the social side the room was used for week-end firesides, teas, receptions and dance exchanges.

Oak Hall women did their bit for national defense on March 14 by giving a Taxi Dance in the Oak Hall Recreation Room. It was the first affair of its kind to be given by a residence hall for women and all the proceeds were turned over to the War Chest of the Student Defense Council.

All men on the campus were invited and tickets were sold at 10 cents for two dances of three records each. The floor of the recreation room was roped off and "bouncers," guarding the two entrances to the dance floor, collected tickets from men before letting them onto the dance floor.

Freshman women launching their first year of college in Birch Hall last year entered the swing of campus activities to carve their name on the 1941 Veishea Vodvil Sweepstakes Trophy. Organized enthusiasm in both dormitory and outside activities led these women in promoting programs that surpassed even the efforts of upperclass groups.

Active members in the dormitory totaled 134 last year. Within the dormitory the women initiated the practice of inviting student faculty counselors to dinner each Wednesday evening. Students who were counselees under the instructors were given the full responsibility of acting as hostesses and entertaining the guests at dinner and during the evening. Under this arrangement the advisors became more fully acquainted with the women who came to them for advice and found themselves able to give more helpful aid in solving problems.

The dormitory lounges took on a brighter appearance. The walls were painted and the carpets in all the rooms are new. Dormitory members are proud of their efforts in helping to redecorate the lounges. Profits from candy sales made in the hallways provided funds with which the women bought a new lamp, colorful vases and fresh flowers that brightened the rooms. The women also purchased china to be used at annual receptions and teas. At Christmas time money from the candy box was used to buy gifts of clothing for a needy family of five. Led by their president, Dorothy Ann Klein, the women contributed to national defense by banding together and voluntarily buying defense bonds. Miss Klein is a representative of the Dormitory Council to Cardinal Guild and is active in musical organizations.

In the reception room near the dormitory entrance, the women maintain two colorful bulletin boards on which maps and clippings from newspapers were posted. The move was made in an effort that all might benefit from being better informed on current topics and world affairs. The women were not the only people to profit from the displays, for the bulletin boards proved popular centers of interest with male visitors who were forced to wait longer than they expected for their dates.

The women took active part in intramural competition. They placed near the top in badminton, archery and basketball tournaments. Many of the girls gave their time to projects in YWCA workrooms, and many joined the Health Council to work on other projects where they enlarged their acquaintance among other groups of students. Birch Hall was represented in the concert band, orchestra, women's glee club and other musical groups.

Win Homecoming Decoration Cup

King, Kelley and Barrett kick their feet under the table, "relaxin'."

Getting off to a "whirlwind" start, the 140 Roberts Hall girls captured their first laurel this year by winning the Homecoming decoration trophy in the dormitory class with the slogan, "Cyclones to Victory, Tigers to Butter". Based on the story of Little Black Sambo, the display illustrated how the Cyclones churned the Missouri Tigers to butter.

Continuing their conquest of student activities, the Roberts Hall Chorus, led by Rae Pollock, with the selections "Moon Glow", "Summertime" and "Green Hills", won first place in the dormitory division of the annual Sor-Dor Sing. They later repeated their performance over WOI.

In December the girls entertained at an open house with the entire dormitory on display for the guests. Besides a tour of the rooms, there was dancing in the recreation room and refreshments were served in the lounges. By the time the afternoon was over, the guests had a very good insight as to what the life of a freshman girls' dormitory consists. A series of corridor teas was inaugurated that the girls might get better acquainted with the members of their respective sections.

Roberts Hall girls were represented in many activities on the campus. The president of the Freshman "Y" was Betsy Little, and she was elected secretary of the YWCA for the coming year. Kay Jacobson was initiated into Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary music fraternity. Barbara Wellmerling was a member of the Student Activities Committee. Jean Ringoen expressed her vocal abilities in the "Y" sextet and played in the orchestra. Barbara Blake was freshman representative on the Home Economics Council.

They took active part in the Home Economics Club, and Janet Stewart was elected vice-president of the freshman branch. Within the hall, 33 sophomore proctors acted as advisors to the freshman girls.

Katherine Jacobson, dormitory president, is a member of the Iowa State College Orchestra and string quartet and was a candidate for the Fred Allen talent program in the fall. Mary Minor Maclin, as social chairman of the dormitory, with the assistance of Barbara Wellmerling, was responsible for the parties and dances that occurred this year. At Christmas the dormitory entertained a poor family and presented them with warm clothing, a supply of groceries, and many bright toys. The girls placed first in scholarship of the freshman dormitories.

Roberts Hall girls recognized the national defense emergency and constructed a news bulletin board. Fall quarter they purchased a $25 defense bond out of the candy sales with members of the dorm holding $60 in defense stamps.

Roberts Hall intramural athletic teams competed in swimming, basketball and ping pong. Frances Madigan was secretary of the Swimming Club. Janet Crosby and Sylvia Lehti took part in fencing.

Musical Replaces Annual Reception

No wonder Welch Hall is filled so rapidly. Its residents are promised a good time. The 150 freshman women who live there have fun keeping pace with the "older girls" of other dormitories in study, social and activity life.

One novel idea that proved popular this year was replacing the annual reception and tea for faculty members with a musicale. Those having musical talent gave two performances for guests in the recreation room. The program included a violin solo by Willetta Townley; vocal solo, "Spirit Flower," by Jeanne Malbeouf; accordion numbers by Barbara Hird; cello solo by Martha Armour; marimbaphone solo, "Ave Maria," by Jane Lindberg; flute solo, by Jeanne Gross; piano solo, "Liebestraum," by Janet Burnstedt; and a group of Lithuanian songs by Violetta Ychas. The "Prayer Perfect," sung by the quartet composed of Patricia Gilchrist, Jacqueline Ramseyer, Mary Burgi and Elaine Wiemers, concluded the musical program.

During the first week in December, the dormitory opened the Christmas season with its annual Christmas dinner party. Pres. and Mrs. Charles E. Friley, Dean and Mrs. M. D. Helser, and Mrs. Madge I. McGlade, director of residence, were special guests. A Christmas white breakfast also helped celebrate the holidays.

In the YWCA drive for voluntary contributions, Welch Hall led all other dormitories by a wide margin.

On the Recognition Roll that hangs in the reception hall are names of students holding offices in the dormitory or on the campus. Heading the list is Barbara Miles who was co-chairman of the Prep-Soph Ball, president of the Freshman Home Economics Club and secretary of Freshman YWCA

Welch's dormitory hymn was first presented in the February Sor-Dor Sing, annual competition between singing groups from women's residence halls and sororities. The hymn was dedicated to Mrs. Madge I. McGlade.

Welch Hall inaugurated something different for their February fireside by having a movie before the dancing and refreshments.

Elizabeth Lindsay was house president during the year, and upperclass women served as advisors to the freshmen residents to help orientate them into Iowa State campus life.

Simmons President

Comprising the Memorial Union Dormitory this year were 95 women students who lived on the fourth and fifth floors of Memorial Union. Jeanette Simmons served as president of the group, and Mrs. Harper Gordon was housemother. A special dining room on second floor accommodated the residents for noon and evening meals, and breakfasts were served at the cafeteria. The convenient location, handy elevator and busy atmosphere all contributed toward an enjoyable year.

One roommate tries to study, the other nods a sleepy approval. Every Iowa State College man would envy that collection of Petty girls, or do they read "Vogue"?

Varieties Skit Captures First Place

Eighty-four women of Barton Hall, cooperative dormitory, this year became versatile in making a home for themselves while attending classes and taking part in extra-curricular activities.

Not only have the women prepared their own meals, but at Christmas time they prepared a dinner party for the children of a low income family in Ames. Watching the children's excitement as they opened their colorful gift packages, the women found as much pleasure as did the children.

Their skit, "Alice in Collegeland," won first place in the Competition Night of Campus Varieties in January. It was written by Jeannette Kiel and Mary Homans.

The students have participated in a great variety of activities. Ida Beck is president of Home Economics Education Club, and Marjorie Wigstone is office manager of the Iowa Homemaker. Mary Elma Roberts is an editorial assistant on Sketch. Lualis Uthoff, Ida Beck and Jacqueline McLaren are members of Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity. Ruth Grierson and Frances Holmes are members of the "I" fraternity, women's athletic honorary, and Dorene Diemann is a member of the chemistry honorary, Iota Sigma Pi.

Direct YMCA Finance Drive

Fifty-two men live on the campus in the YMCA building composing Alumni Hall. Each year twenty-six newly enrolled students move into the hall with an equal number of upperclassmen. In this way, the new students become more easily adjusted to college life.

Living in the "Y" building, the men co-operated in backing the organization. Fred Nance headed the finance drive this year. William Miller was president of the freshman "Y" group. Howard Moburg, Cardinal Key man; William Oppold, an all-around M. C. entertainer, and Burnell Huso, president of the hall, are among the outstanding members of the group.

Men Present Veishea Dance Club

To the men living in it, Hughes Hall is not just a college dormitory, but a home in which they not only eat and sleep, but learn to work and play and live closely with one hundred thirty-seven other men. Graduates returning at Homecoming and Veishea never fail to mention how valuable their experience in living cooperatively with such a large number of men has been to them in their work or professions—and sometimes their wives have a complimentary bit to add about the culinary accomplishments of ex-Hughes Hall men.

This fall, old residents returning to the Hall found themselves greeted by a new housemother, Mrs. Gertrude Hoxie, who since then has not only very efficiently performed the numerous duties involved in her position as housemother of one of the largest single groups of men on the campus, but has planted herself firmly in the heart of every man in the Hall. Nurse, confidant, advisor—she is all of these and a grand person with a marvelous sense of humor as well.

On the campus, Hughes has become well known for its Dance Club, which performs every year in Stars Over Veishea. Started four years ago as a fill-in, the club has made such a hit that it has been brought back every year and has since run the gamut from comic ballet to straight burlesque. This year's group is in charge of Owen Scheldorf, and, as in previous years, will be trained by the Misses Hassinger and Moomaw of the women's athletic staff.

Equally well known is the Hughes Hall Chorus and Serenade Group. Entering the Inter-Fraternity Sing for the first time last year, it came away with second prize, and will again be entered this spring.

Three members of Scabbard and Blade, Bob Clark, also vice-president of the Independent, John Lawton and Dick Gifford, live in the Hall, and Myrvel Sorenson is a Tau Beta Pi man. Larry Dunn, president of the Hall, is also treasurer of Cardinal Guild, and was a member of the Homecoming Committee. Lew Mellem is treasurer of the Bomb, and Ed Hanna is president of the Junior A.V.M.A. and served on the Veishea Selection Board. Kenneth Watson last year won the awards for the highest average in the Science Division and for the highest all-college grade point average for sophomores.

Organize New Union Dining Room

Brinkman, backstage, and Nielson design for Veishea Vodvil.

Men's New Hall members this year for the first time ate together in a dining room on the second floor of Memorial Union. Next Fall the addition that is being built will contain a dining hall that will accommodate the 600 men that will be living in the dormitory.

In campus activities, Willard Rogers, Edward Kratz, Robert Mather and Bob Hetherington were pledged to the top scholastic honorary fraternity, Phi Kappa Phi, whose membership is composed of those students who have shown ability in scholarship, citizenship and leadership. New Hall President, Howard Rosenblum, is a member of Cardinal Key, business manager of the 1942 Bomb, a member of the Student Defense Council, and a Knight of St. Patrick. Bob Hetherington was a member of the Engineering Council, Tau Beta Pi, and served on Cardinal Guild. John Slater, also a member of Cardinal Guild, served on the Union Student Council, Engineering Council, and was a major "I" winner on the varsity swimming team. Bob Brinkman, social chairman of New Hall, was a junior pledge to Tau Beta Pi.

New Hall also was active in athletics this year, supporting intramural teams in bowling, track, baseball and football. They won the intramural swimming meet in the fall, and had representatives in the table tennis tournament, in the handball tournament, and in basketball. James Kiser was a member of the Iowa State polo team; Tom Hughes, a member of the pistol team, and John Wakefield and Mack Bristol were members of the College Cossacks.

New Hall placed second with their float in the 1941 Veishea parade. The fellows received honorable mention for their 1942 Homecoming decorations, and were finalists in the winter quarter Campus Varieties competition.

Miss Rachel Piesen served as house director. They were a sociable lot—these New Hall men. The guests at the dormitory fire-side at Christmas time will tell you that it was a gay and peppy party. The Fall Hayride in the airport vicinity was, "Beyond a shadow of doubt, a great success." They enjoyed entertaining members of the faculty at dinner.

Although the building stone for the new addition was used by the resourceful Men's New Hall as a graveyard for their Homecoming decorations, they are looking forward to the completion of the new wing. This will make it possible for the 600 students to eat together. The dining facilities will consist of a dining room and a cafeteria. Several new lounges, and a spacious roof terrace overlooking Lake LaVerne are to be completed before the opening of the 1942 fall quarter.

The New Hall men led their dormitory group in scholarship Fall quarter with an average of 2.525.

Program

The Ward Program Council, headed by Don Carter, is made up of the chairmen in the individual Wards. They plan the meetings for the system one quarter in advance. Collectively, the Council contacts all the possible speakers on the campus and compiles a list of those who are available.

Social

Led by President Gene Rottler, the Ward Social Council arranged exchanges between Wards and the dormitories and the sororities. Three major dances, the Fall Sport Dance, the Winter Semi-Formal, and Spring Formal, along with the Ward-Dormitory party highlighted the program.

Executive

Under the leadership of Richard Wilson, president of the entire ward system, membership reached a new peak of 1700. Although the largest increase came in the Freshman Days drive, the Ward Round-up yielded 300 tickets. There are thirteen organized wards on the campus.

Intramural

The Ward Intramural Council seeks to provide an opportunity for every man to participate in a sport of his own choosing and foster a spirit of good sportsmanship. Its membership includes the intramural managers of the various wards. Leroy Keizer was president for the year.

Stress Individual Participation

The Ward System is a cooperative enterprise in which participation is not compulsory and values accrue to the individual in accordance with his activity. It is hoped that active participation in the program of the Ward System by those who have no such opportunities elsewhere may broaden the individual Iowa State College graduate.

Then...

The Men's Battalion has a "Review Militaire". They went to the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 . . . also served as special police at the state fairs in Des Moines.

The girls from Margaret Hall do their morning set-ups with dumbbells.

The C. C. C. (College Cycle Club) lines up just south of Morrill Hall before a Sunday afternoon ride through the North Woods.

The Women's Battalion has a dress parade. They too went to the World's Fair in '93. Miss Annie Fleming was a captain. That's Old Main in the background and the old dinky station on the right—the present site of the college post office.

Hungry boys enter Margaret Hall Dining Hall back in the days when the boys and girls ate together. Note they all are wearing coats.

These senior military students will soon be seeing active duty . . . in Alaska . . . in South America . . . nobody knows where.

Women's P. E. takes a different stride now-a-days. Watch that arm.

One might say this is self-explanatory.

...and Now

From one wooden building, Old Main, to an extensive array of modern structures . . . from the strictly academic "Ames College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts" to the broad-scoped "State College of Iowa" . . . from a handful of students from Iowa farms to several thousand students from all over the world . . . that is the colorful tale of the progress of Iowa State College. As the college has been progressing, there has been simultaneous progress among an important counterpart of Iowa State College . . . the merchants serving this college community. It is their services, upon which we depend so much, and their advantages, that we wish to present in the following pages.

These merchants have been enthusiastic supporters of the college program; they have satisfied the numerous demands of hundreds of ISC students and visitors; they have been consistent, yes, indispensable boosters to the prosecution of countless campus activities. In the full realization of the importance of their interest and cooperation, we dedicate this section of the 1942 Bomb to the advertisers represented on the following pages. Their loyal support helps make possible this 50th anniversary Bomb.

Members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, represent the outstanding women of 1942. Their achievements are the goal of every Iowa State coed.

Iowa State College

Lake LaVerne has its place in student life as do all the gay campus functions; but in this time of emergency, when a world war is consuming the energy of the nation, IOWA STATE COLLEGE is playing an important part in the war effort. As an aid in that direction, the college is now on a twelve month basis, thus enabling students to graduate in three years. In the fields of Agriculture, Engineering, Home Economics, Science and Veterinary Medicine the college offers the technical training which not only makes for a successful life but which is necessary for a successful war. "Science with Practice," motto of the school, is the motto which will help forward victory and the triumph of democracy.

Don Beam Menswear

Something up your sleeve is an old expression, but having your arm up the sleeve of one of DON BEAM'S latest sport coats is a new experience. More and more men about the campus are getting "on the beam" with DON BEAM. His wide variety of quality clothes will be just the thing for the Senior Prom or the Foresters' Hoedown. For the man who wants to increase his rating with "that little babe" and at the same time not put too much of a dent into the old budget (and what man doesn't?) DON BEAM MENSWEAR offers the solution.

Campus Drug Company

So huge is the crowd continually passing through the doors of the CAMPUS DRUG that a stranger would think that an end-of-the-month sale must surely be in progress. But every day of every month so magnetic are the attractions of a cheery atmosphere, tasty refreshments and a complete stock of merchandise that students are just naturally drawn to the CAMPUS DRUG. If you want just the right card to express your feelings, the CAMPUS DRUG has it. After you've bought your card or purchased your gift a few steps will take you to another of its services, the convenient mailing department.

Jammed from cover to cover with new and pertinent facts, the IOWA AGRICULTURIST deserves a place in your magazine rack.

Between the Theatres

The fellows who come in every day for meals, the groups of coeds who drop in for a coke, and the couples who stop in for a late-evening snack all agree that the L-WAY CAFE is the place to eat. Many a "bull session" is carried on in its cozy booths. Many a girl keeps up with the campus gossip while sipping a refreshing malted at the L-WAY. Reasonable prices, fine service, excellent food and convenient location make the L-WAY CAFE the logical place for the gang to get together. Your date will like it, too.

Green Gander Humor Magazine

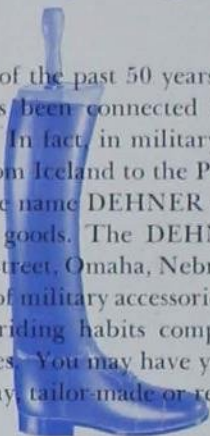

Esquire! Petty! Fun Frolic! It sounds like a collection of Joe College's favorite library. It's only one magazine, but it's got IT (and for just twenty-five cents). Spreading fame or infamy in its wake the GREEN GANDER tells all—the campus news behind the news. College life at its hottest and funniest is exposed in the GANDER. Four times a year, when you see heads, fair and dark, bushy and bald, all buried in the GANDER, you know it has spice. Also many selected raw subjects. (CENSORED.)

To completely relax, carelessly read a magazine, or idly stare out the window—this is one of those moments of which hard working students dream. All you have to do is travel in one of the INTERSTATE TRANSIT LINES' luxurious busses; they do the rest. All thought of weeks of studying and worrying over final exams quickly disappears as the crowd joyfully gathers and enjoys modern comforts on that long awaited "homeward ride." It's inexpensive, too. Lectures, receptions and committee meetings take place in the UNION regularly. Coffee forums and book reviews augment the academic program. A checking and mailing service as well as a barber shop and beauty parlor are yours to use if you wish. It is a residence hall for close to one hundred girls and the headquarters of Cardinal Guild. At all times you are invited to make yourself at home and to enjoy the privileges of Iowa State's MEMORIAL UNION—your college club.

Student Supply Store

An energetic employee sweeping the sidewalk at 7:30 A. M. . . a coed stopping in for a notebook filler on her way to class . . . a big shipment of lab manuals arriving on time . . . students crowding around the book counters on registration day . . . a typewriter, a tennis racket, a box of stationery, an electric razor or a blanket being purchased by one of the boys . . . a courteous clerk assisting a perplexed freshman in the selection of a set of drawing instruments . . . a busy student buying a greeting card and a clever gift just at closing time—9 p. m. . . that's the STUDENT SUPPLY STORE.

The Iowa Engineer

The lights from a little room in "Engine" Hall blaze on far into the night. Scores of sweating men slave over bushels of copy. The confusion rises to a furious tempo; it is "make-up night" at the IOWA ENGINEER office. Along towards dawn the lights die out and another and better monthly issue of the IOWA ENGINEER is ready for the press. Due to the untiring efforts of Iowa State's "slip-stick" boys, it has become one of the top college engineering publications in the country. Students, faculty and alumni turn to the IOWA ENGINEER for the latest details and information in the engineering field.

Kingskraft Covers

Simplicity of line . . . void of ornate decoration . . . a color scheme of quality. All of these make her a worthy rival of her illustrious predecessors. Her smooth bronze finish accented with blue and gold in a finely cut design is truly indicative of the fifty years of progress experienced by the Bomb. The artisans of KINGSFORT PRESS, INC., from their office at 325 West Huron Street, Chicago, to their fine manufacturing plant in Kingsport, Tennessee, again have called forth their talent to make the cover of this special 50th anniversary, 1942 Bomb.

Yunker's Little Shop

The moon shone upon the happy couple strolling home after the prom. The stars on Marge's formal winked at the milky way as soft breezes gently tossed the feathery chiffon skirt. For a short distance they walked in silence. Then, as if bewitched by the sparkling stars, John withdrew something from his pocket which sparkled more and slipped it on her finger. Marge awoke. There was one way to make it come true; she needed that dress in YOUNKER'S window. Clothes from YOUNKER'S can always be counted on for that all important impression. They have everything you need.

Cownie Fur Company

Spring had come to Iowa State, and she had to stop wearing her luxurious winter fur coat. It hung dejectedly in the closet—cracking in the dry, dusty heat. And then one day a friend suggested she entrust its care to COWNIE craftsmen in Des Moines. There it was Lusterized, the essential oils redistributed, the dirt and grime removed. Next it was put in Cownie's Hygro-Cold Storage, where a brisk winter day always exists. When fall came and she received her coat back from COWNIE'S it was as beautiful as the day she had first seen it.

Coe's Flower & Gift Shop

Marian was in a perfect state of excitement as she rushed about putting the finishing touches on her ensemble. Just as she had slipped the frothy formal over her head, the buzzer sounded. It couldn't be Bill already; he wasn't coming until eight. The puzzle was solved as Nancy came tearing down the hall holding a box in her hand and shouting, "It's from COE'S, too." Nancy looked on as Marian opened the box and brought out a beautiful orchid. Marian breathed a sigh—"What a night—a date with Bill and flowers from COE'S. Isn't it just wonderful!"

Edwards Coal Company

The Martins, the Joneses, the Smiths—yes, EDWARDS COAL COMPANY has been supplying the families of Ames with coal and ice for thirty-two years. Since 1910, they have been giving dependable service to Ames. Now Mr. Smith no longer has to go down cellar every night to shovel coal as he had to when he first began to patronize EDWARDS COAL COMPANY. Why? Because he bought a labor saving, disposition saving, and economical Iron Fireman automatic stoker from the EDWARDS COAL CO. Mr. Smith buys his coal there too.

Soft strains of Lohengrin fill the air of the flower filled church . . . all heads turn expectantly as Mary, a vision in white, comes slowly down the aisle. Her beauty is emphasized by the huge bouquet of delicate spring flowers which she holds tenderly in her hands. Flowers from COLLEGIATE FLORIST again do their part to make a wedding beautiful. Flowers from COLLEGIATE FLORIST have a special meaning for Mary, for the first corsage she received from John came from their ever plentiful supply of beautiful flowers.

The old saying, "an army marches on its stomach," has an important significance to the "tall corn state." Dairy products, grains, vegetables, especially corn and soy beans—these are the Iowa farmer's contribution to a strong and invincible America. The reliability, progressiveness, and service of MASSEY-HARRIS, a great agricultural manufacturing company, have made it the farmer's leader during these important times. Ames Pantorium

Dear Diary: Golly, I feel so scrumptious today! Remember how awful I felt last weekend? You remember—that was the time my simply wonderful date with Lew was spoiled when someone spilled punch all over my new blue dress? Lew suggested I send it to the AMES PANTORIUM since they did such a good job removing the spots from his suit. Well—I did—and yesterday it came back looking as fresh and nice as the day I bought it! Dad says I'm going to have to make my clothes last longer now. So believe me—I've decided to turn all my cleaning over to AMES PANTORIUM.

Hill's Studio

From the foxholes in Baatan to the steppes of Russia we hear the sound of shooting. The results are often doubtful—but our shooting carries only one result—a photograph of fine distinction. A campus cross section shows a coed having a Tru-Color picture taken at HILL'S STUDIO to become a valuable addition to her favorite's room; or a proud senior having his picture taken to send to his mother for her birthday. A life-like photographs from HILL'S STUDIO will make a welcome gift and will continually serve as a focal point of admiration.

I N A P P R E C I A T I O N

. After a yearbook is out, little can be said about its staff other than the conventional remarks about hard work and loyalty. The editor gathers together the ideas and the staff converts these plans into printed realities.

The 1942 Bomb as a fiftieth anniversary issue also presents one of the most dynamic years in the history of the nation. The students of Iowa State College saw war strike Dec. 7, and their plans change almost simultaneously. Members of the staff accepted the speed-up scholastic program and began to carry heavier schedules, which in turn made participation in outside activities more difficult. But nevertheless, they found time to work on the Bomb.

To these people, who put forth the extra effort, belongs whatever credit is due the 1942 Bomb. Don Eby, assisted by Bernard Genrich, spent his entire Spring vacation writing copy for the fraternity section, while Everett Casey prepared copy for engraving. Gene Mock labored in the darkroom printing informal pictures. Managing Editor Eleanore Robertson kept the outer office humming with activity. Paul Mongerson and Warren Bower converted the sketches into concrete page layouts. Beverly Matson, index editor, catalogued every name that you might more conveniently locate the activities of your blind date. Dean Watkins supervised the engraving copy.

Betty Simpson, as the editor's secretary, saved hours of his time by handling the staff's correspondence. Marilyn Williams worked long hours on the senior index. Al Hayes' typewriter poured forth the bulk of the athletic copy. Dordana Fairman's religious section was the first major copy assignment completed. Eileen Dudgeon, with seemingly limitless energy, delved into the catacombs of the college records for the division page information. Anne Walther scheduled all the group pictures and Lilla Rossiter prepared a guide of the Iowa State Daily Students for the copy writers.

Every day, typists, proof readers, copy writers, and workers came from every corner of the campus to help with the office details. Some of them wrote their names on the time cards and others merely became unsung heroes of the Bomb staff.

To function properly, every editor must be backed by a business staff. Lew Mellem came through with nearly perfect ledgers, while Les Fisher set a new record as sales manager. Jeannette Simmons repeated her feat of selling the most Bombs for the year and pushed organization space income to a new high. Charlie Vosburg's advertising staff, despite the troubled times, went over the top to a new record in advertising income. Everyone agrees that his three top salesmen were Winston Henderson, Warren Raney, and Stanley Brandt. Betty Barnett and Joe McCarthy were responsible for a good share of the unique advertising copy. Office manager June Coon wrote many letters as well as the business staff checks. Orchids to Margaret Ann Clark for the handling of the Bomb Beauty election and selection, and a vote of thanks to Bomb Ball Chairman Bill Koopman.

Active and indispensable to the publication of this year's book, have been members of Collegiate Press, Inc., Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company and the Kingsport Press, Inc. The 1942 Bomb staff insists that they be given due credit for the fine job of printing, engraving, and binding respectively.

After four years' work on the Bomb, it is with sincerity that I say to these associates who have also been my best friends, "I wish we might all publish another Bomb."
