

Providence July 20th 47

Dear sister Ann,

It is rather late in the week, for me to commence writing home, but I have had so much to do & it is so warm that, I have put off writing until now, but could have not much to write that would be interesting to you, it is not much consequence whether I write ^{at} all or not, (I think.) Now that I don't like to write you, for I don't know what I should do, if I could not write to, & hear from home & after, but my letters are so dull, for news is a very scarce article - that I am almost ashamed to send them. The main topic of conversation here now, is about a murder, or almost a murder that took place a mile or

Book of the Father

Dear Adams on the 20th day

He was very much out of health, & had - or has had - as bad my father & mother have been for some time past. He is as weak as baby, that I don't wish my remembrance of the Southern Church, & at all times, & am well & as good as well.

I expect when I was writing. As I told him and he said "Let him come out & tell me himself." Tell Jack to just stay at home next Sunday afternoon & write to me, if he can. I "won't" speak to single good words for him, & even to me. He is "safe" most since he has been at home, "and" get him to write about a few times.

Yesterday noon was at 11.00 A.M. & got there at 11.30 of July 14th. I will answer it next week if nothing happens.

I have written to Ethel & Isaac & shall send it to the Office with this.

By the way is Archibald's family this year? I think I have a great deal of evidence. Write him in my second hand this year. I will give them one lot of with your letter & please.

I think I will stay for 2 days & then so there is nothing more for me today this time. I shall have to go all day a share to the friends. My sister, A. C. H. H.
